TORONTO, April 18. — (C.P.) — The funeral of Sir Clifford Sifton, who died in New York yesterday, will be held from the residence in Lawrence Park to-morrow at 2 o'clock. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Richard Roberts of Sherbourne street United Church, with interment at the family plot at Mount Pleasant cemetery, Toronto.

A Wonderful Spring Tonic.

"Fruit-a-tives" Quickly Relieves Tired, Run-Down Feeling.

Almost everybody needs a tonic in Spring time.

With the change from cold to warm weather the system has to undergo a complete re-adjustment, and until it does your blood is sluggish, and you don't feel right.

"Fruit-a-tives" counteracts Spring Fever—it helps Nature by stirring up the lazy liver — correcting digestive faults—regulating bowels and kidneys—and acting as a purifying agent.

FOLLOW THE ADVICE OF USERS

"I sincerely recommend it."—Mr. Jos. Page, Cabano, Que.

"I think they are a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. E. Drasching, Enderby, Sask.

"I wish I could tell everyone what Fruitatives has done for me."—Mr. H. Bovay, Trenton, Ont.

"Fruitatives" has a unique action on the three great blood purifying organs, the liver, kidneys, and skin. Modern science offers nothing more effective for purifying and enriching the blood—soothing the nerves—and building up strength and vigor.

Mother, Daughter, Two Brothers Die Within Few Hours of Each Other.

MORE ARE ILL.

Doctors Are Mystified By Strange Disease in Ekfred Township.

GLENCOE, Ont., April 18.—(Canadian Press).—An undiagnosed disease of dreadful malignity, baffling the skill of the best available medical men of west Middlesex as well as government officers and specialists called from London, has caused the deaths of four members of two Ekfrid families since Friday and last night a fifth victim is reported at death's door in Victoria Hospital at London.

The dead are: Mrs. Dugald Sinclair and her 18-year-old daughter, Barbara, of Appin, and Daniel Brown, 21, and Willie Brown, 9, sons of Thomas Brown of Tait's corners, South Ekfrid. The fifth sufferer from the outbreak is Edward Sinclair, age 21, whose mother and sister are now dead.

Turned Over to Health Authorities

Coroner Dr. L. W. M. Freele, of Glencoe, following a probe of the circumstances, concluded not to hold an inquest, but rather to hand the situation over for investigation along scientific lines by representatives of the Department of Public Health. Dr. John Dewar of Melbourne, the medical officer of health for the vicinity, conferred yesterday with Dr. T. J. McNally, divisional medical officer of Health, who is expected to visit the affected territory Thursday. In the meantime the telephone conference between Dr. McNally and Dr. Dewar was followed by the administration of anti-deptheretic antitoxin to other members of the Brown family who were in contact with both boys

WILLIAM DAVEY OF ROSENEATH CELEBRATES 84TH BIRTHDAY

Worked As a Blacksmith For Over Sixty Years in Centreton.

BORN IN ENGLAND.

Took Up Residence in Village Hall Until Suitable Home Was Provided.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, April 18. — William Davey celebrates his 84th birthday today.

Mr. Davey, who is a resident of the village of Centreton, Haldimand Township, but who during the winter months makes his home with his son, Marcena Davey of Roseneath, was born in Cornwall, England, in the year 1845.

Leaving Plymouth, on August 2nd, 1872, Mr. and Mrs. Davey, with their three children, set sail for Canada, arriving at Port Levis, Quebec, on Aug. 20th, continuing their journey to Cobourg, making their way to Centreton on August 23rd.

Reaching this crude little place at that time, they took up residence in the village hall until time and means provided for them a home.

Sixty Years a Blacksmith.

Mr. Davey being a blacksmith by trade opened a shop and continued at this business for over sixty years. Whether it was a horse to shoe or a tire to set his work was as near perfect as possible. He and his wife built for themselves a very comfortable home, where many may recall the pleasant times spent with Mr. and Mrs. Davey and their family. Eight children were born, two dying in infancy, six of whom are living: Albert of Calgary, Alberta; Thomas, of Craig Mile, Alberta; William Henry, of Toronto; Marcena of Roseneath, and two daughters: Mrs. William Rogers, Macklin's Settlement, and Mrs. Robert Rusk, of Castleton. He is the proud grandparent of twenty grand children and three great grand children.

Mrs. Davey Died in 1919.

In 1919 Mr. Davey was deprived by death of his helpmate, and has lived practically alone ever since, until the last few years he comes to Roseneath for the winter months.

Needless to say, he is therefore able to relate many interesting and exciting tales of pioneer life of Canada, and has lived to see many changes in both rural and urban districts. He has seen this country develop from the days of open, corduroy roads, and a country covered with brush, to this wonderful age of motor cars, airplanes, radios and paved roads, which are accepted as a common place of everyday life. He has kept abreast of the times and thoroughly enjoys all these modern conveniences.

Mr. Davey has always been a faithful worker in the Methodist church, now the United church of Canada, and took great interest in the beautiful cemetery at Centreton,

TWINS BORN IN JAIL CELL

Mother Sentenced On L. C. A. Few Hours Before Giving Birth.

ONE BABY DIES.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 18 (Canadian Press).—Twin boys were born to Mrs. Annie Minnigan, Hamilton, in the City Jail here yesterday. When medical aid arrived one of the infants was dead. The mother and the other baby were immediately rushed to the hospital.

Mrs. Minnigan was sentenced after a Liquor Control Act conviction in Police Court here yesterday. She was transferred from the police station to the jail just a half-hour before giving birth to the twins. An inquest will be held. Officers admitted the seriousness of her condition was obvious. Conflicting statements were given last night regarding the care of the prisoner from the time she was admitted. Late last night the mother and other baby were reported to be considerably improved.

Magistrate Jelfs stated he was not aware of the woman's condition when he passed judgment on the case.

EAST CITY OWNERS PETITION COUNCIL

Several Property Holders Will Ask a Fixed Assessment.

Several property owners in the gravel pit neighborhood of Rogers and Hazlett streets are drafting a petition to the council asking for stated compensation for a depreciation of their real estate values resulting from the offending pit. They suggest that their assessment be fixed at the 1926 figures until the pit is filled in and the lot restored to its former appearance and that their taxes be reduced by one-third of the present rate. It is their intention to ask Ald. Holland as an Ashburnham resident to support their appeal.

Southern Cross Reaches Derby, West Australia

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 18. — The airplane Southern Cross landed at Derby, Western Australia, to-day, after more than two weeks spent on a mudflat near the mouth of the Glenelg River, during most of which time Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and three others aboard it, were objects of widespread search.

LIQUOR SQUAD TO BE FORMED

First Step Is Taken To Merge County and Provincial Forces.

INSPECTORS ARE NAMED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 18 (Canadian Press). — Establishment of a liquor control investigation branch; appointment at an early date of a number of officials with the entirely new designation of "staff inspectors"; the placing of the force on a uniform basis throughout, by means of the abolition of the post of "Provincial officer," and a tightening up of the training methods of the Queen's Park training school through which every applicant for a constable's job must pass and in which every constable from time to time take refreshing courses, were announced yesterday by Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, as further steps in his re-adjustment of the Provincial police force.

Placed On Firmer Basis.

With these changes, the Attorney-General believes he has the force on a "firmer basis" than ever before, and ready, in every respect, to take over this summer the administration of all county high constables, and to work out regulations and plans that "will very much improve the general police administration throughout Ontario."

The liquor control investigation branch, now established, will be headed by the present Chief Provincial Inspector, Frank E. Elliot, with Provincial Inspectors A. E. Sarvis, H. Graham, A. R. Elliot, W. C. Kifling and A. Moss assisting him in the administration of the branch. These men, the Attorney-General pointed out, will have charge of general investigation, in particular cases relating to liquor affairs throughout Ontario, and this work will be carried on in the same way as the criminal investigation branch, the senior branch of the service.

Staff Of Inspectors.

One of the difficulties experienced by the Commissioner of Police in the carrying out of his duties over a territory as large as the Province of Ontario has been the inspecting of the 13 districts throughout the Province. It has been decided to establish a number of staff inspectors who will operate out of the head office, being detailed by Commissioner from time to time to investigate a district without notice to anyone concerned. These men will be entirely independent of local conditions. They will have no connection with the general force in the district and will act entirely independently, reporting the result of their inspection to the Commissioner.

LITTLE WORK DONE ON LAND

Farmers Are Becoming Impatient With the Backward Weather.

FALL WHEAT GOOD.

Peterborough farmers are growing impatient for warm weather. April has been altogether too gloomy and depressive after March's sunshine and deceptive promise of an early start on the land.

In the neighboring townships very little work has been attempted. On the drier slopes and knolls some plowing has been done in Monaghan, Smith and Otonabee, but it has only been a gesture, a sign of eagerness to get into action and sow the spring crop.

Reports of the condition of Fall wheat and clover are almost unanimously encouraging and according to Deputy-reeve Fred McIntyre of Otonabee these are the farmer's cash crops in this district. There has been little or no damage by frost, a condition which on the other hand has reduced the flow of sap in the maple woods and curtailed the output of syrup.

McCOY IS REMANDED.

SIMCOE, Ont., April 18 (Canadian Press). — Charles McCoy, alleged slayer of his father, James McCoy, Round Plains, Ont., was remanded for a hearing next week. McCoy has now been remanded five times, pending advice from the Attorney-General's Department as to what disposition should be made of the case. It is expected action will be taken soon, as officials are desirous of being relieved of the prisoner, who is believed to be insane.

TWO AVIATORS FEARED LOST

Heated Controversy Has Arisen in Australia Over Southern Cross Flight.

TERMED A FIASCO..

SYDNEY, Australia, April 18.—(C. P.)— Anxiety is growing as to the fate of Lieutenant Keith Anderson and Robert Hitchcock, last seen over Alice Springs, Central Australia, ten days ago while flying in the airplane Kookaburra to join in the search for the Southern Cross, then missing.

Three additional airplanes, one of which is equipped with wireless, have gone to Alice Springs to aid the search which two planes carried out in that region for several hours yesterday without results.

In the meantime, as Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his party are still on the mud flat where they were forced to land awaiting supplies of gasoline, a hot controversy has arisen over the interrupted flight.

Some of the newspapers have criticized the conduct of the flight and the Sydney Guardian has suggested that a Royal Commission be appointed to inquire into the entire circumstances of what it calls the "Southern Cross Fiasco."

FRENCH LINER RUNS AGROUND

Steamer Paris, With 300 Passengers On Board, Sends An S.O.S. Call..

ASKED FOR BIG TUGS.

LONDON, April 18 (Canadian Press).—The French liner Paris, fresh from a day and a half on a mud-bank in New York Harbor, grounded in the English Channel to-day during a heavy fog.

The big liner went ashore near Eddystone Light.

The Paris had sailed for New York from Havre, France, only this morning.

Lloyd's Land's End wireless station reported the following message from the Paris at 11.32 a.m. (6.32 eastern standard time):

"Want big tugs to take us off rocks and take passengers if necessary."

First word of the liner's grounding was received at the Land's End wireless station in an S.O.S. from Paris, saying merely that the ship was aground at Eddystone and giving no details.

The famous Eddystone Lighthouse is on a dangerous reef about fourteen miles south-west of Plymouth. The Paris was due to call at Plymouth at 11.00 a.m. It was understood here she had about 300 passengers on board. Fog had been lying over the English Channel for many hours, holding up all shipping, the banks of mist extending from the Irish Sea right up to the Channel.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 16.—Butter to the retail trade was 2 cents per pound cheaper yesterday, wholesale jobbing houses announcing reductions to 44c for solids and 45c for prints. The decreases follow the lower values ruling in the wholesale trade. Wholesale prices also declined, with prices dropping ½c per pound. There were some sales of Western No. 1 pasteurized as high as 34c per pound in small lots, and some New Zealand finest was sold at 42c per pound, also in small lots. Other sales were at 42½c. Receipts were 302 boxes.

The cheese market was reported unchanged. Receipts were 60 boxes.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, April 18.—Heavy shipments of eggs were received on the local wholesale produce market yesterday, with the result that large supplies were put into storage. Prices were firm, and dealers were quoting a range to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras, 26c to 27c; firsts, 24c to 25c, and seconds, 21c to 22c a dozen.

Reports from the country indicate that production is slightly ahead of a year ago at this time, and receipts are expected to continue heavy for the balance of the week.

Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged at the following scale: Fresh extras, in cartons, 34c per doz.; loose, 32c; fresh firsts, loose, 30c; and seconds, 27c a dozen.

Butter Prices Lower

The demand for butter was quiet, and fresh receipts were somewhat heavier than they have been for the past few weeks. Dealers reduced their prices, and No. 1 finest cremery was quoted at 43¼c to 43½ per pound.

The cheese market was quiet, and prices were unchanged at 21¾c per lb for No. 1 large, colored, parafinned and Government graded.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

MONTREAL, April 18.—There were 15 cattle, 65 calves, 334 hogs and 5 sheep and lambs for sale on the two markets.

The few cattle offered were of medium to good quality. Medium heifers brought $8, and bulls from $6 to $8. Canners were steady.

Calves were mostly sold for $9, with a few veals as low as $7.

The standard quotation for hogs of good weight was $13.50, fed and watered, not graded. A couple of loads were sold on a basis of $12.25 f.o.b. Sows were from $10.50 to $11.25.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, April 18. — After a fresh collapse yesterday, in which the prices went to within a cent of the season's lowest level, wheat, rallying sharply, closed at an advance. Word that 1,000,000 bushels of North American wheat had been taken yesterday for shipment to Europe, and that exporters were active buyers of Winnipeg future deliveries, was in large degree responsible for the rally. Earlier there had been persistent selling in connection with trade disappointment over agricultural measures at Washington.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ¼c to 1c net higher; corn, 1¾c to 2⅛c to 2¼c up; oats, ½c to 1c advance; and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 20c.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, April 18. — With a good export demand prevailing and local buyers active, the wheat market yesterday wiped out its drastic decline of Tuesday, and recorded a net advance of ¾c to 1⅜c at the close. Liverpool advices reported a better demand for Canadian wheat.

Grades of cash wheat from No. 3 Northern down were in excellent demand at prices ¼c to ½c higher than Tuesday's close.

Trading in oats was active, and prices advanced fractionally. Rye, flax, and barley were dull.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. McDermid Drug Co. Ltd., McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store sells lots of it.

PETERBORO'S HUDSON SEAL IS BEST IN WORLD

Price Furriers Are Paying For Muskrats Bound To Be Reflected in Coats.

FIRST CHOICE AT HOME.

Catch This Season Has Been Heavy, With Quality Good.

The prices local furriers are paying for muskrat pelts this season are bound to be reflected in their ultimate decorative service as Hudson seal coats. And this is no intentional boost for the fur stores, but only an inexpert opinion based upon the business fundamental that when raw materials are higher in price the finished product also advance.

It is probably true that the women of Peterborough wear the best Hudson seal coats in the world; and because of that fact the day may come when Peterborough pelts will be trade marked and protected by patent rights in the same way as Peterborough canoes and other products.—only more so, because nature puts the thick under fur on the backs of the Rice Lake district muskrats and the handicraft of tanning, dressing and dyeing the pelts is simply a secondary quality. The primary value is in the thicker skin and fur.

Have First Choice

The statement that Peterborough Hudson seal coats are the best in the world means of course coats made of Rice Lake district pelts, and local furriers being on the ground, as it were, have virtually the first choice. The statement is also predicated on the fact that Peterborough muskrat pelts bring the highest price. This season the market has remained steady and firm, with prices for the best pelts ranging from $2.35 up to $2.65. The top quotation has been for what might be called extra selects, which are not numerous, and selects have sold around $2.45 and $2.50. Some of the buyers are Barrie's Limited, William Lech and Sons, Brightman, Jopling, the Peterborough Raw Fur Company and John Dickson of Lindsay. Fairweather of Toronto is also reported to have been in this field.

Better Quality This Year

T. E. Curvin of the Peterborough Raw Fur Company said to The Examiner: "I don't hesitate to say that our rats from the Rice Lake waters including the mouth of the Otonabee and sections of the Stoney Lake district are the best in the world, and this year's quality is equal to any I have seen in former years. The catch has been heavy, and that proves that the Rice Lake rat is still plentiful and there is no present need of the closed season that was proposed a year ago. It seemed to me that the fur is a little heavier on this year's catch, taking it on the whole."

Season Closes April 21

William Lech and Sons have already bought 5,900 pelts here and may pick up another 1,000 or 1,500 before the time for selling by trappers closes on April 30. The open season for trapping ends on April 21. Mr. K. G. Lech states that the quality of pelts is unusually good this year. There are also fewer blemishes, such as cuts, than in most seasons, due perhaps to the high waters. The market demand has been strong and probably most of the season's total catch has already been sold under those conditions.

OSHAWA MAN LOSES MEMORY

Joseph Blakoe Found Wandering Aimlessly On Toronto Street.

SEEMED TO BE ILL.

TORONTO, Ont., April 18 (Canadian Press).—Penniless and half famished, an amnesia victim who was later identified as Joseph Blakoe, 106 Westmoreland Street, Oshawa, was found wandering on King Street, near Bay, late last night. He was wandering aimlessly, his memory a complete blank, when Constable Sproule, suspecting that something was wrong, approached him.

The man was unable to give an account of himself and seemed to be ill; so the officer walked with him to Court Street Police Station and turned him over to Sergeant Charles Scott, who finally established his identity at an early hour yesterday.

Through kindness of the police station staff, Blakoe was provided with hot coffee and food. Blakoe spent the night in the station house, sleeping in a warm bed.

Police at Oshawa stated that they would send for the man and return him to his home in Oshawa.

It was only through the persistent efforts of Sergt. Scott that the early identification of the man was obtained. Not satisfied with just looking through the man's pockets, the sergeant turned to the hat, and under the sweat-band he found a letter, on which the man's name and address was found.

MEETINGS ARE UNDER BAN

before their deaths at their own home.

Cultures Are Taken

Last night cultures were taken of the Browns and sent to the Institute of Public Health, where it is expected that the death dealing germ will be definitely identified today. In the meantime similar action has been ordered in the case of the Sinclairs, though it is believed probable that the Sinclairs and the Browns may have been afflicted with different but equally pernicious diseases.

The first appearance of the outbreak occurred last week when Barbara Sinclair, after cutting her hand on a fruit jar, developed what was believed to be an extreme type of blood poisoning. Five physicians and two nurses attended her, including London specialists, but despite their combined efforts the disease ran a rapid course, terminating Friday in her death at the family home, near Appin.

At an emergency session of the Township Board of Health yesterday evening a proclamation was issued banning public gatherings of all kinds and closing churches and schools. Township authorities are staggered by the possibilities of the epidemic after a survey indicating that 400 to 600 residents of the district have visited the Sinclair and Brown homes in tender sympathy and attend funeral services.

The special bulletin issued by Dr. Dewar at the close of the emergency meeting last night follows:

(1) There is every evidence of a contagion in the township.

(2) Effective measures are being taken at once to quarantine and isolate all cases.

(3) There will be no public meetings in the township or gatherings of any sort until after May 1 at least. There are to be no church services.

(4) The schools will remain closed until May 1 at least.

(5) Funerals in suspected cases are to be private and all sanitary precautions are to be observed.

(6) Dr. T. J. McNally, District Medical Officer of Health at London, has been notified and his co-operation asked.

(7) A diagnosis of the disease awaits the reports from the Institute of Public Health at London concerning analysis.

(8) Immediate inoculation of all those who have come in contact with cases or suspected cases is recommended and may be made compulsory.

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999 1391 E. Third St., Milwaukee, Wis. for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Adv.

HYDRO POWER FOR COTTAGERS

Various Trent River Resorts Preparing For Big Influx of Cottagers.

DISTRICT NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, April 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).— This ideal summer resort will be the scene of greater activities this year than any previous year. It is expected the Hydro power will be connected up before the annual influx of tourists. Six of the permanent residents have their houses wired already, while the work of wiring the cottages, the owners of which have signed up for the power, will be completed by the opening of the fishing season. The various resorts are preparing for a big crowd for the opening of game fishing, although pickerel fishing in May may bring many visitors here. Practically every available cottage is occupied each year. Those who do not secure cottages enjoy camp life on the grounds at the Government Park. Tourists are provided with many conveniences for a country resort, the daily mail delivery; taxis are available at a number of places; two general stores; two milk deliveries selling pasteurized bottled milk; ice deliveries and telephone connection with central at Havelock. Plenty of good boats of all kinds can be hired at the different resorts. The majority of cottagers do not arrive till after schools close for the summer vacation although a number of city friends open their summer homes in May.

Flowers In Bloom.

Hepaticas are in bloom and were gathered for the first time on Sunday.

Trappers End Season.

The trappers are winding up their work this week. A number pulled up their traps a week ago.

OBITUARY

G. F. FRALICK.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

STIRLING, April 18. — The death of G. F. Fralick occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. Waller on Tuesday evening after an illness of nearly three months. His wife predeceased him three years ago. He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Waller, three grand children, and ten great grandchildren. He had reached the age of 91 years, and nearly three months.

The funeral will be held at St. Paul's church Friday afternoon, burial in Stirling cemetery.

RICHARD NEWTON BIRD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

STIRLING, April 18. — The sudden death on Monday of Richard Newton Bird of Oak Hills came as a shock to his family and a large circle of friends in the surrounding community.

During the winter months Mr. Bird's health was somewhat impaired but he was able to do the work necessary on his farm. Monday morning after completing the chores at the barn he returned to the house, and was about to enter when he dropped dead.

He was in his 65th years. In religion he was a member of the Marsh Hill United Church, and for many years filled the office of local preacher. For the cause of temperance he was a strong advocate. He is survived by his widow, four sons: Edward, in the West; Laurison at Smithfield; Lewis, Glen Ross, Kenneth, in Belleville, and three daughters: Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson, and Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson of Thurlow, and Miss Edith at home. A son was killed overseas.

The funeral service will be held in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, on Thursday at 2 o'clock. Interment in the Stirling cemetery.

Most correspondents discussing the rescinding of the no-left-turn regulation seem to be thinking only of the motorist's interest in the matter.

They seem to forget that the restoration of left turning is an added hazard to pedestrians, and that so far as the man on foot is concerned most of the protection that the electric signals should provide.

It does not effect the merits of the case to point out that many pedestrians cross against the lights and thus, of their own accord, place themselves in danger.

The remedy for this condition is not to be found in introducing new hazards, but in educating the public to follow safety first rules and to take advantage of the protection the traffic signals were intended to afford.

The Examiner's contention is, that safety should be the first consideration in the drawing up and enforcing of traffic regulations, and we have yet to be convinced that left turni. , at this intersection will prove a contribution to safer conditions as regards motorists or pedestrians.

SIR CLIFFORD SIFTON.

One of the builders of the Canada we know to-day was Sir Clifford Sifton, whose sudden death in New York yesterday was a shock to the people of this country.

For many years Sir Clifford was outstanding among the public men of Canada and played a great part in many public activities, but he will be remembered longest for his share in the filling up of the Prairie Provinces.

His services in that respect when as Minister of the Interior in the Laurier Government he launched and carried out an extensive and vigorous policy of immigration that brought hundreds of thousands of new Canadians into the West, formed a contribution to the wealth and prosperity of the Dominion such as few citizens of the Dominion have been able to make.

A man of strong convictions and the courage to stand behind them, Sir Clifford Sifton was one of Canada's greatest citizens, a shrewd financier, a statesman, who both in the Provincial as well as the Federal field was a source of strength.

His work as chairman of the Canadian Conservation Commission and his many other public services all entitled him to public gratitude and the tributes that his passing is bringing forth are heart-felt and sincere.

NO DIVORCE COURT WANTED.

James S. Woodsworth, M.P., is doubtless sincere in his attitude in regard to the divorce question, but his tactics are not facilitating the transaction of public business, nor is his attempt to force a divorce court upon Ontario appreciated by the bulk of the people in this Province.

The present method of dealing with divorce applications has manifest defects, but The Examiner is convinced that the majority of the residents in this Province would prefer to keep it in operation rather than to accept something that would make it easier and more convenient to break the marriage tie.

We in Ontario surely have no desire to emulate the United States where matrimony is entered into with as little thought as is given to the purchase of a motor car and departed from as easily as an old car is traded in on a new one.

There is no demand from this Province for a divorce court, because most people are clear-headed enough to realize that anything that facilitates the severing of the marriage bond cannot fail to injure the sanctity of matrimony and to lower the general moral tone.

Mr. Woodsworth's attempt to force Parliament to adopt what it has already rejected and to thrust an unwanted divorce court upon Ontario cannot be allowed to succeed.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS.

It is unfortunate that the question of more adequate remuneration for rural mail carriers in Canada has to be decided from a political viewpoint.

The Examiner has long contended that the present contract system is unfair, that rural carriers are never sure of their positions, and that they are inadequately paid.

The majority of the members of Parliament undoubtedly have the same opinion as to the defects of the system and as to the need of a change, but the way the game of politics is played has prevented for the time being at least justice being done the men who carry Canada's rural mail.

Thus an amendment from the official opposition in Parliament, proposing a departure from the contract system and more pay for the carriers, was viewed as submitted merely for political motives, and was voted down.

It is impossible to avoid the conclusion that were the whips taken off and Parliament left free to vote on this question as they saw fit, the result would have been the scrapping of the present system.

However, the situation is not without hope, in view of the statement from Hon. Peter J. Veniot, the Postmaster-General, that he believed that a better system than the existing one could be found, and his promise to see what could be done to improve conditions in this branch of the postal service.

The dawn of a better day for Canada's rural mail carriers may not be so far off after all.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Out of Canada's total population, only thirteen or fourteen thousand citizens have taken the trouble to enroll in the membership of the Canadian league! Fortunately, that is not an indication of the strength of the public's endorsation of the scheme. It is certain that the vast majority of the Canadian people are heart and soul for the league and for the grand ideals it stands for. But that approval must take on concrete form if it is to be of value. The league needs active workers for the cause, ready to demonstrate their support at the meetings of the society and participating in its activities.

Dr. Tory brought out one fact which is ordinarily lost sight of, and that is that the idea of the League of Nations was not born of the travail of the Great War. It is an idea which has always been instinct in the human race, though more or less dormant till the occasion and opportunity came for giving universal expression to it. In a most interesting manner the speaker traced the development of the group instinct; at first the individualist, then the tribe, then the nation and now the group of nations. It is a natural, evolutionary process. As the peoples of the earth have progressed, narrow insularities have broken down, and in their place the spirit of tolerance and the desire for co-operation have arisen. One must either go forward or perish; stagnation is death, and in this stirring onward march of humanity the shining goal is "human solidarity," with enmities forgotten and the reign of universal peace ushered in. These ideas are "in the air," they are seen to be reasonable and feasible, and the hope of their acceptance becomes stronger and stronger. As Major Huston said, in his brief and eloquent address, the soldiers who fought so gallantly in the "war to end war" must not be let down. The ideal for which they suffered and died is committed to our charge. The one way to make the slogan effective is to take part in the work of the league. The few hundred members of the local society will be swelled to much larger proportions if citizens only realize and seize their opportunities. Canada is taking a foremost part in the promotion of the League of Nations; Hamilton, which did so nobly in the war, should set an example in this organized labor for peace among the nations.—Hamilton Spectator.

ANNIVERSARY.

The appearance of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin on the platform at the Albert Hall, London, to pay tribute, on behalf of the nation, to the memory of General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, who was born one hundred years ago, was unquestionably in keeping with the spirit of the public toward the Army, and a significant commentary on the changed attitude even so lately as the beginning of the present century.

The old General's aggressive evangelism, wedded to social service, provoked open hostility and ridicule when first he started in the east end of Old London. He and his associates walked into the saloons and personally entreated the frequenters to renounce drink and seek the Lord. Such boldness annoyed the licensees, who saw the Salvation Army making inroads on their trade, and the drinkers regarded it as an interference with their liberty, so that both landlord and customer united against the General.

Then there was the uniform, the banging of drums and the blare of the bands, the street corner meetings and processions. All these strange innovations furnished opportunity for making Salvationists targets for verbal and material missiles of the most objectionable kind.

But all ranks held steadfastly to their purpose and triumphed in the face of tremendous odds, winning the respect of everybody from the hooligan classes to the royal family. They launched into every branch of social service at home and abroad, and to-day are operating in over seventy different lands, and the officers speak in fifty languages.

There were no rich members among their ranks. They worked among the down-trodden, the poor and the castaways, and lifted them up. By dint of persistent appeals, and by demonstrating to moneyed people what they had done and what they wanted to do, they built up a gigantic, international organization, a universal network of religious and social services to help humanity; they knew no color nor creed, and cared nothing for rank nor fortune. If a human being had a soul to save they were out to save it.

All this is the monument of William Booth, son of an obscure Methodist minister in Nottingham, England.

William Booth was a dynamic personality, a massive, picturesque figure, something of a Viking, and he had the kind of make-up which was perhaps necessary for the achievement of such a task. He was not the smooth, benign type of minister who wins souls by charm, but a torrid gospeller who preached fire and brimstone, a gospel of fear, rather than a gospel of love.

Over his co-workers he ruled with an iron hand. He was a Mussolini who snapped out orders and demanded instant and unquestioning obedience. Woe betide the officer who protested. If General Booth told a home-loving man in London or Glasgow to pack his bag and go to the hills of India or the arid plains of Africa next morning, the man had to go—or get out of the Army.

He was, in fact, something of a tyrant. He was unsparing of himself and unsparing of everybody else. He quarreled with some of the ablest men in his service, but he never swerved from his purpose, nor his policy. When he died, his funeral in London was one of the most wonderful the metropolis had ever seen, the procession, about two miles long, comprising Salvationists from all parts of the world who hastened to the scene.

So long as the old General lived, the system by which the Salvation Army was carried on could hold together. Recent events which have caused regret both inside and outside the Army, have been due to the fact that Bramwell Booth was only a pale imitation of the red-blooded man his father was, albeit a kindly, gracious and benevolent leader. He had not the peculiar gifts of the founder that made him capable of administering such a vast and intricate organization, and a "revolt" that has been simmering since the death of William Booth, nearly 20 years ago, at last boiled over.

Perhaps the Salvation Army will be the better for it. The Army is too big now to ever be anything but what it is. The name of its founder is as imperishable in the religious world as that of his fellow-countryman, Wesley, or the Scotsman, Knox.—St. Catharines Standard.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

APRIL'S CHILD

I guess the skies were just as blue
In all the other Aprils, too,
And I suppose that other springs
Had birds and all these other things;
And yet it seems I never thought
What April was, what April brought,
Until one April day of ours
Brought you, with all the other flow'rs.

And April has a meaning now
That April never had, somehow.
The months return, the months go by,
We little notice when or why.
Then April comes, and we recall
The brightest April of them all,
For April now means so much more
Than April ever meant before.

It was the month in which you came,
And now no other seems the same.
There's something of you in the breeze,
The smiling skies, the waving trees,
And, even in the April rain,
One memory makes me smile again,
To April weather reconciled,
For April brought us April's child.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, APRIL 19, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrology finds this an important day in planetary government with many benefic aspects strongly dominant.

It is pre-eminently a time of tremendous promise to American commerce, making for great expansion and big profits.

New lines of steamships will benefit the Pacific coast, and a new line of trade will bring profit, it is foretold.

Under this sway there should be a buoyance and uplift of spirit that is stimulating to creative work.

Industry should be accelerated today when employees should be inclined to identify their interests with those who pay their wages.

Women, especially those past middle age, have the best possible direction of the stars and may expect success in public work.

Great lengthening of life among women is prognosticated. Many will outlive their husbands and widows endowed with fortunes are to become factors of supreme importance in American life, it is forecast.

Bankers and heads of big business continue under a sway that presages remarkable enterprise and success in world projects.

By this sign that seems to indicate financial welfare for the United States the average man and woman may expect to benefit through wise investments.

This is a day to look after one's financial affairs, and is especially lucky for paying bills.

This should be a successful day for those in search of positions in offices. Clerks and secretaries should benefit.

The evening of this day is propitious for association with celebrities. Banquets and other entertainments are subject to lucky stars.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of prosperity for all that they undertake in the way of business. Many hopes may be realized within this new year.

Children born on this day probably will be successful as well as extremely popular. The subjects of this sign usually are industrious and able to achieve success early in their careers. They are usually happy in marriage.

Roger Sherman, early American statesman and signer of the declaration of independence, was born on this date, 1721. Benjamin Vaughan, 1751, political economist, also claimed this as his birthday.

FOLLOW EARL HAIG

To Editor of Examiner,

Dear Sir:—

Sunday, 21st April, being our Annual Church Parade, it is also a fitting occasion in remembrance of our Comrades who made the Supreme Sacrifice at the Battle of Ypres on April 22nd, 1915, and their splendid Valour. It also serves to remind us of our late Founder of the British Legion of the Empire Service League "General Earl Haig" whom I believe was an Elder of the Church in London, England, and religion was the basic factor of his life. He realized that if our Empire was to be kept strong her sons must be kept pure.

Earl Haig drew his strength from worship. And in the strength of that Communion he went forth to serve his King and Country. He was a man of unfailing courage and tenacity of purpose.

Once he had taken a decision nothing could seem to take it from him. His calm unwearying strength of mind, his singleness of spirit enabled him to endure his hidden stress of War. He was incomparably the finest British Soldier of the day, he behaved not merely like a great Patriot, but like a Gentleman. He was always keenly interested in his men even in his early days as a soldier was a Comrade as well as a Commander. He always studied the best interest of his soldiers in time of War and he became their Champion in times of Peace. The British Legion was the outcome of his efforts, and that great National Institute is a monument to his affection and regard and care for his men. "He being dead Yet speaketh," his soul still marched on, he developed great qualities of Soul which never died. And his memory should cling for ever 'round our National Life.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

She slept soundly that night and woke to sunshine streaming into the window. For a moment she lay still, confused. She felt as if she were back in the cottage—as if in a minute she would hear Anthony's knock at the door—Anthony's voice.

Then she was wide awake and she shivered and got out of bed.

This was not Lyme and romance! This was Wimbledon and monotony. But the thought of last night was cheering. She had enjoyed herself yesterday at all events, and she was grateful to Drake for having invited her to his sister's flat. She knew that she would go again many times; she knew that Drake meant to see her often.

Miss Sawyer was already seated at the breakfast table when she got down.

"You are late!" was her chill greeting. "I heard you come in. No wonder you have overslept."

"I had a lovely time." Ana said cheerfully. "They are ever such nice people. I am going again."

"There is a letter for you," Miss Sawyer said. She indicated a letter lying by Ana's plate. "It looks like a man's handwriting," she added disapprovingly.

"A man's——" Ana took up the envelope, and for a moment her heart seemed to stop beating. The writing was Anthony Hambledon's.

"Well," said Miss Sawyer sharply; "aren't you going to open your letter?"

Ana looked up. She had laid Anthony's letter down again beside her plate. It seemed something too wonderful to open beneath her aunt's unfriendly and inquisitive eyes; she felt that she must be alone when she read it.

"It's nothing very important," she managed to say quietly. "And I'm hungry."

There was a little silence, broken after a few moments by Miss Sawyer.

"I thought you said you were hungry, and you are eating nothing. It is wicked waste to pick at food as you do. Are you trying to starve yourself and get thin, may I ask?"

Ana laughed.

"Don't you think I'm thin enough?" She was too excited and happy to resent her aunt's tone of voice. She took up her letter and rose from her chair. "I don't believe I am hungry after all, so if you will excuse me——"

"There is no need to apologize," said Miss Sawyer bitterly. "I no longer seem to be mistress in my own house."

Ana escaped gladly.

She ran upstairs, put on her hat and went out. She felt that she could not read her letter in this house; even the walls seemed full of prying eyes. She did not break open the flap till she was right out on the common with only the sky and the sunshine to watch her.

But the letter was short; only a few lines not covering half a sheet of paper.

My Dear Ana:

I am coming to town on Monday and should like to see you. To save time I suggest that we meet by the upstairs bookstall at Baker Street Station about three o'clock in the afternoon. I am afraid I cannot get to town earlier. If by any chance you are unable to come, write to me at the following address.

Yours,
Anthony Hambledon.

Monday! that was to-day! Ana's heart leaped.

To-day! In a few hours she would see him. For a moment she was blind and deaf with happiness. It was like a dream. She stood still, her face lifted to the sunshine. It was not possible; it was too wonderful to be true. In a few hours! She was afraid to look again at the letter clasped in her trembling hands for fear she should find she had just imagined it all.

Why had he come? Had anything happened? Or was it just that he longed to see her, even as she longed to see him?

Presently she walked on. From time to time she stole timid glances at her letter.

"Yours, Anthony Hambledon."

His writing was real enough; big masculine writing like the man himself.

Three o'clock by the Baker Street bookstall.

What should she wear? She must look her best; she must buy a new hat.

Ana turned and went home.

She had a few pounds left from her quarterly money; she wished it was twenty times as much so that she could buy herself entirely new and wonderful clothes for Anthony to see.

Not that he would mind. It was just she herself whom he loved.

"Another invitation to tea?" Miss Sawyer asked with sarcasm when her niece told her she was going out that afternoon.

"Yes."

"Chelsea again?"

Ana laughed.

"No, not this time. Somewhere much more exciting," she said.

She had never believed it possible for a railway station or a bookstall to be so romantic.

She was there at ten minutes to three. She was not in the least afraid that she might be before Anthony. She would rather have been there an hour too soon than a minute too late. She could not spare one flying second of the time they were to have together. She had bought a new hat—blue, because Anthony liked blue, and her eyes were like stars.

A boy in charge of the stall eyed her in a friendly manner and offered one of the latest magazines for sale.

"Just out!" he said laconically.

"No, thank you. I'm waiting for a friend," Ana explained, as if that were any adequate reason why she should not buy a magazine.

She kept looking up and down the entrance hall.

Which way would he come? She had no idea. She hoped he would not think she was too eager. She turned again to the bookstall and tried to keep her attention on the books and papers.

People passed and repassed her. There was another girl, very young and pretty, waiting for someone too. She looked rather bored and weary, and not at all as if she enjoyed waiting.

"She can't love him, if it's a man she's waiting for," Ana told herself with conviction. She felt quite sorry for the girl for not sharing her own passionate eagerness and happiness.

She looked at the clock overhead.

One minute to three. Supposing he was late? Supposing something had happened to him? He might have got run over crossing the road; the train might have run off the rails. She laughed at her own foolish fears, and walked again to the foot of the stone steps down which she thought he might come.

Then she saw him, and for a moment the world seemed to crash about her, leaving her shaken and a little afraid.

Then his hand was holding hers—such a strong, firm hand, and he was saying:

"It's good to see you again, Ana. It was kind of you to come."

Kind! Didn't he know that she would have walked halfway round England just to have seen him for ten minutes?

"Where can we get some tea?" Anthony asked. He looked round as if expecting to see a tea table drop from the skies. "I know so little about London."

"I know a lovely place," Ana said. They went out of the station and down Baker Street to a little shop into which she had often looked but never visited. It had an upstairs tearoom, she knew, and it was too early in the afternoon for it to be very crowded. She felt as if she were walking on air; she was sure that every woman they passed must be admiring Anthony and envying her.

He was so tall—so distinguished looking.

She looked up at him.

"It seems impossible that it's really you," she said, and her lips were unsteady.

"It's me right enough," Hambledon said in his most matter-of-fact way, but there was an expression in his eyes that set her pulses racing. They had the little tearoom to themselves. There were blue wicker chairs, and the little glass-topped tables all had bowls of roses on them. It was really quite an ordinary sort of room, but Ana thought it was paradise. For the rest of her life she never saw a bowl of roses without thinking of this day, and of Anthony Hambledon's eyes, and of the way the blue wicker chair creaked when he carefully lowered his big body into it.

They ordered tea and toast, and cakes.

"And how is the General?" Ana asked.

"Splendid. I'm commissioned to take him back a box of the Seventh Hussars. God only knows where I shall get them, or if they are to be got, but I must try, I suppose."

"And Mollie?" There was a little breathless catch in Ana's voice as she spoke Mollie's name. Somehow it seemed out of place among all this happiness.

"Oh—Mollie!" Hambledon said. He sat staring before him for a moment with a frown. "I came to talk to you about Mollie," he said slowly.

Ana raised her startled eyes.

"She is not ill?"

"Oh, no."

"Is she in London?"

"She came up on Friday last."

"Oh!"

There was another little silence, then Hambledon said deliberately:

"I believe Mahon came up with her."

"Oh!"

Ana dared not look at him, but her heart gave a great throb of apprehension. There was something so harshly eloquent in Anthony's voice.

"Well?" he said, as she did not speak, and then after a moment. "So you knew all about it, Ana?"

With a desperate effort she forced her eyes to his face.

"Knew about what? I don't understand."

"I think you do. I mean about Mahon and Mollie."

"I don't understand," Ana said again helplessly.

He frowned. "Don't lie to me, Ana. I'm so sick of lies and—and——" He broke off as if afraid of saying too much. After a moment he went on rapidly:

"I'm telling you because I know you will understand, and because I love you, and because God knows I must tell somebody. The afternoon you went away someone sent me an anonymous letter. I don't know who it was, and I don't care. In the ordinary way I despise such letters and would take no notice of them. But this one—somehow it was like being given a key to unlock a door in my own knowledge which I had refused to open before. Somehow I knew it was true."

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE COW'S TAIL

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

"Uncle Wiggily! Uncle Wiggily," called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy at the foot of the stairs in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Yes! What is it?" asked the rabbit gentleman, who was watching the sunshine play across the floor of his bedroom.

"Would you mind getting up and hopping out a bit early today?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Yes, I'll get right up and come down," answered Uncle Wiggily. "I ought not to have slept so late. All the adventures may be gone when I get out in the woods and fields. Is that why you called me, Nurse Jane?"

"Not exactly," replied Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "You see your wife is going to have some lady rabbits over to tea this afternoon and I want to sweep and dust the bungalow and get it nice and clean for company."

"And I am in the way, I suppose," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "All right, I'll get right out as soon as I have my breakfast."

"Your breakfast is all ready for you," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper and soon the rabbit gentleman was sitting at the table trying to keep the carrot oatmeal from biting his pink nose as he ate.

Over the fields and through the woods hopped Uncle Wiggily after breakfast. His bright eyes looked here and there for an adventure and with his pink, twinkling nose he sniffed the air. For often he could smell an adventure before he could see one, just as your dog can smell out the place where he has hidden a bone, even when he can't see it.

All of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping over a green field of clover, he heard a queer noise. It sounded like:

"'You! You! Hoo' Hoo'"

"Ha! Perhaps that is an adventure calling to me!" thought the rabbit gentleman. "The sound seems to come from over there, near that wire fence. I'll hop a bit nearer."

As Uncle Wiggily started to hop, up out of the grass close by bobbed a cute little spotted Squiggle Bug.

"You had better be careful, Mr. Longears!" buzzed he quickly. "Why so?" asked the rabbit.

"That may be a dangerous creature," buzzed the Bug.

"Oh, I think not," answered Mr. Longears and as he hopped nearer he heard the noise again. Only, this time, it sounded like:

"Moo! Moo! Moo'"

"Oh, it's a cow!" cried Uncle Wiggily and, standing near the wire fence, he saw a brown animal with horns. "Hello'" called the rabbit in a friendly voice. "Why don't you walk around the field and eat green grass, so you can make milk of it?"

"Because," answered the cow in her deep voice. "I can't. My tail is caught fast in this wire fence and I can't pull it loose without hurting myself very much. I was switching flies off my back with my tail when I swung it too far and it caught in the fence. I can't turn around far enough to loosen it with my horns, and I don't know what to do."

"I'll help you," said Uncle Wiggily, kindly. He hopped closer to the fence. The long hairs on the cow's tail were tangled around a low wire and it did not take the rabbit long to untangle them, a few at a time, as you take the knots out of a string. Soon the cow lady's tail was free and she could switch it at flies again.

"Thank you so much'" mooed the cow. "That was a great favor, Uncle Wiggily, which you did for me, and I should like to do one for you."

"My tail isn't as long as yours, and never gets tangled on a wire fence, thank you," said the rabbit with a laugh.

"Well, then," mooed the cow, "I will walk along with you and if a Bad Chap tries to catch you I'll switch my tail at him and tickle him so he will run away."

"Thank you," said Uncle Wiggily. So the cow lady walked along beside him, but they met no bad chaps at whom she could switch her tickling tail and soon she and Uncle Wiggily were at the bungalow.

"Dear me'" mooed the cow. "I haven't had a chance to do you even a little baby favor."

"No matter," said Mr. Longears. But just then Nurse Jane came out on the porch and said:

"Oh, dear'"

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"It's the dusting'" sighed Nurse Jane. "I'll never get the dusting done in time for company."

"Ah! Here is where I can help'" mooed the cow. "If I do a favor for Nurse Jane it is the same as if I did it for Uncle Wiggily." So the cow lady walked backward up to an open window of the bungalow, thrust her tail inside and switched it around until the end, which was like a brush, had dusted all the furniture nice and clean for company.

"Oh, thank you'" said Uncle Wiggily. "That was a real favor."

Why We Do What We Do.

CLASS RESTAURANTS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Food tastes better when it is clean and appropriately served. We like to eat in a high-class restaurant not merely because it is high class, not merely because the elite eat there and we feel like somebody by hobnobbing with the social lights. But quite apart from such considerations the food actually tastes better. It is more appetizing. We enjoy it better and get more out of it.

In some of our modern state prisons the meals are much better balanced as to the essential vitamines than in the average house. The prison fare is clean and wholesome. The one thing it lacks is the aesthetic setting, the music, the cut flowers, the table linen, the fancy silverware spritely conversation and the rest of the things we gladly pay for in a high-class eating place.

The stomach and the whole digestive system are highly sensitive to suggestion and especially to emotional excitement. A strong emotion of joy or sorrow or anger will destroy appetite. This is due to the action of the glands of internal secretion which are charged with the regulation of the emotional life. Certain functions of these glands run counter to others and cannot both exist at the same time. The emotion of anger and fear start reactions that prevent the functioning of the salivary glands and the whole digestive system.

The sensations we receive from clean dishes and the rest of the paraphernalia of eating greatly modify each other. Sensations that are experienced influence each other, some pleasantly, others unpleasantly. The sight sensations from dirty dishes, soiled table linen, loud conversation, etc., modify the taste sensations in an unpleasant way. Music, flowers, soft lights, witty conversation, in most persons, modify the taste sensations in a pleasant way.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

SEEKING HOLLINGER VEINS

Timmins report says Vipond's drive on 200 foot level seeking extension south of some big Hollinger veins now near completion and few more days should tell story.

VIPOND

Vipond mill now handling 300 tons day $7.70 to $8 ore, which is on basis of around $840,000 year.

MINES UNRESPONSIVE

Financial News Bureau after pointing to flood of good mine news and reports, says this constructive news fails to influence mines.

ARNO

Drop in Arno to 20 puts stock back to original starting point and meantime on February 5th achieved high $1.75. Market drop taken to indicate reported New York deal has fallen through.

COPPER OUTLOOK

Copper prices in London reduced on export to 18.30 cents. Will stabilize there.

NICKEL EXPORT

Canadian export of nickel 11,977,300 pounds, value at new high record of $2,709,759 against $2,166,061 in February.

DRILLING OXFORD LAKE

Ventures has completed 20 drill holes, 150 to 450 feet deep, at Oxford Lake, mostly off the ice. Radiore survey just completed on same property.

FALCONBRIDGE NICKEL

At present rate shaft at Falconbridge should reach 1,000 foot level in five or six weeks. Not intended to do any lateral work between 350 and 1,000 levels, but a deep diamond drilling campaign will be carried on from 1,000 foot horizon and at same time two levels, 225 and 350, will be further opened up.

Site for smelter chosen about 2,000 feet from shaft and excavation work will be started almost immediately. Hoped to have building ready for installation of machinery about July or August and blast furnace blown in by end of year.

AMULET

Should revised estimated of Amulet be given by the new management it will be in neighborhood of a total of 750,000 tons averaging 3 per cent copper and 12 per cent zinc. Fifteen cent copper and four cent zinc gives total better than $13,000,000 in ore reserves, practically equally divided in value between zinc and copper.

Further computed zinc will pay all mining and concentrating costs, leaving copper nearly all profit. Whether construction of concentrator will proceed or be postponed until zinc smelter and refinery is built in Eastern Canada, is doubtful point. If delayed until refinery built, profit would be much greater. Believed concentrator will be located two and a half miles from property.

NORANDA

In further drilling on Noranda 500 feet from shaft west, in a hole pointing north at a forty-five degree angle, ore was encountered after a few feet of rock. This incline hole was directly underneath flat hole mentioned at annual meeting which gave 251 feet of high grade ore. In this new hole there is some sixty feet of ore with drill still in. Smelter treating between 1,200 and 1,440 tons per day of around 7 per cent copper. Production this month should be around 4,500,000 pounds copper.

ALDERMAC

Crosscut north from east drift is now in about 35 feet of good grade milling ore. This is best yet found in this mine. It will most probably mean that Aldermac will sink to 1,500 feet.

CENTRAL PATRICIA

Now drilling eighth hole. One hole cut 16 feet of $15 ore.

OILS LOOK WELL.

Healthy reactions are holding oils in check and preventing runaway. Public interest growing rapidly and success for Home No. 2 may result in boiling market.

HOME No. 1.

Home No. 1, Turner Valley's biggest naphtha producer, has established itself as a phenomenon in two respects, says Paul Reading in Calgary Herald. It not only bettered Royalite 4 output but is also yielding four products. By means of a double casing it produces wet gas and oil from an upper horizon, and naphtha and sulphur gas from its bottom in the lime. It is exactly one mile deep and at the present rate it represents nearly a million dollars a year in gross revenue.

HOME'S ROYALTIES.

Many inquire as to whether Home is paying 50 per cent. drilling royalty to Imperial Oil. Calgary Herald says wells are drilled on cost plus royalty basis. Royalties of 10 per cent. do not commence until six wells are completed and do not apply to No. 1 well.

A. P. CONSOLIDATED.

Alberta Pacific Consolidated has assumed appearance of holding company, though it has announced its intention of drilling its 80-acre property near Home. On March 1 the company had $400,000 in liquid assets besides 150,000 shares in Home. These were part payment for lease on which Home made its recent big strike. A. P. Consolidated has acreage in six other fields. Of five million (dollar par) shares authorized, 1,500,000 have been issued.

JUMP SUBSTANTIAL.

Turner Valley naphtha and crude output 1928, 481,357 barrels. First three months 1929, 136,052 barrels, or on basis of 544,208 for year.

OILS ARE PROFITABLE.

Profits twenty representative U.S. oil companies 1928 over 1927 increased 81.43 per cent.

LOWERY OILS.

Lowery Petroleum, traded in for first time on Montreal Curb Monday at range between $5 and $6, and closed $5.25, will be called on unlisted section of Standard Exchange to-day.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

The wires were working overtime this morning with the result that a flock of news is circulating on the street. Kirkland Lake despatches are to the effect that Wright Hargreaves have encountered rich ore on the 1,750-foot level near the Lake Shore boundary. The outlook for this company is improving rapidly and the lower levels are said to be opening up a new mine that will more than take the place of the old upper level workings. Good grade ore was cut recently on the 1,000-foot level of the property, near the Lake Shore boundary. This ore is also said to have been picked up on the Lake Shore near the Wright Hargreaves boundary and here it is said to be 50 feet wide in places.

Preparations at the Teck Hughes are now said to be complete for changing the cable guide and other equipment at the central shaft. The new equipment together with the new large motor will permit of a considerably larger tonnage of ore being mined.

On the 600-foot level of the Murphy, where the fault was encountered, the drift is said to be carried east and west while the crosscut is being continued south. The report states that it is planned to raise above the drift.

Another despatch regarding Noranda states that in further drilling 500 feet west of the shaft, in a hole pointing north at a 45 degree angle, ore was encountered after a few feet of rock. This incline hole is directly underneath the flat hole mentioned at the annual meeting which gave 251 feet of high grade ore. In this new hole there is said to be some 60 feet of ore with the drill still in. The smelter is said to be treating between 1,200 and 1,400 tons per day of around 7% copper. The report states that production this month should be around 4,500,000 pounds of copper.

The crosscut north from the east drift on the Aldermac is now said to be about 25 feet of good grade milling ore and this is said to be the best yet found in the mine.

Sudbury is the next camp to come into the picture. It is stated that a the present rate of progress that shaft at the Falconbridge Nickel should reach the 1,000-foot level in 5 or 6 weeks. It is not intended to do any lateral work between 350 and 1,000 feet, but a deep diamond drilling campaign will be carried out from the 1,000-foot horizon and at the same time two levels, 225 and 500, will be further opened up.

It is rumored on the street that Arno is running short of funds and that a re-capitalization is imminent.

Venture is said to have completed 20 drill holes at Oxford Lake, 150 to 450 feet deep. Radiore survey on property just completed.

Central Patricia is now said to be drilling their eighth hole. One hole cut 16 feet of $15 ore.

LOSES CONTROL.

HARRY SINCLAIR

Chairman of board of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation who it is rumored in Wall street has lost control of the company which he formed in 1919.

SINCLAIR LOSES CONTROL INTEREST

Rumored Group of Financiers Have Taken Control of Consolidated Oil.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 18 (C.P.) —The Herald Tribune said to-day it had learned in well informed Wall Street circles that Harry F. Sinclair, under three months' sentence for contempt of the United States Senate, had lost control of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, of which he is chairman of the board of directors.

The paper said a group which included Blair and Company, incorporated New York Bankeds; Arthur W Cutten, Chicago financier, and the Fisher Brothers, automobile makers of Detroit, is understood to hold the new dominant interest in the company's affairs.

Close associates of Mr. Sinclair in the company, The Herald Tribune said, would not comment on the report that he now owns little Sinclair Consolidated stock and is likely to be supplanted at an early date as chairman of the company he formed in 1919.

STANDARD LIST HOLDS STEADY

Lower Priced Stocks Register Slight Differences in Dull Session.

MAYLAND OIL UP.

Toronto, Ont., April 18. — (C.P.) — Prices literally marked time in another dull session on the Standard Mining Market to-day. Trading was less active than yesterday and continued in an uninteresting way. Mayland Oil showed the only marked change on the board, advancing $1 to $9. The rest of the changes were mostly in the lower priced stocks, which showed fractional and cent differences. Associated Oil improved 15c to $4.90.

Noranda reached $53.00 and then held uncharged at $52.25, while Dome strengthened 50c to $10.00. Pend Oreille reacted 35 to $6.50; Wright-Hargreaves 9 to $2.10 and Falconbridge 15 to $10.85.

Sudbury Basin and Teck-Hughes were both up 5 to $8.85 and $9.40 respectively, while McIntyre gained 25 at $19.25.

Steel Issues Gain in General Advance On New York Market.

NEW HIGH RECORDS SET.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 18. — (Canadian Press). — Stock prices made further recovery in to-day's market under the impetus provided by easy money.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent. but dropped to 7½ in the early afternoon, with a plentiful supply of funds available.

Expectations of record breaking first quarter reports by the leading producers accelerated the demand for the steel stocks. Sheffield jumped 6 points and Bethlehem Steel moved up 4 to a new peace time high at 115¾.

New high records for the year were established by at least a score of issues, including American Can, U.S. Industrial Alcohol, American Railways Express, Glidden Co., Pan American B. Skelly Oil, Belbing-Hemingway and McCall Corporation.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 18 (C.P.) —Foreign exchange quiet; demand rates (in cents): Great Britain 484 15-16; Canadian dollars at 15-16 of one per cent discount.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

PRESIDENT DODD LIKELY TO RETIRE FROM PRESIDENCY OF LAKE SUPERIOR CORP.

Rumors current in financial circles over the past few days to the effect that there has been a split in the Lake Superior Board are in a measure explained in a statement. This is to the effect that President Robert Dodd, who is now returning to Canada from a trip to the Old Country, is reported as having been unwell for some time, so that he may not be able to continue his duties as president, in which case a reorganization of the executive of the board will be necessary. Just whether or when this will take place is not yet determined.

R. Home Smith, president of the Algoma Central Railway, was in Montreal yesterday, but it is definitely known that there was no meeting of the Lake Superior Corporation in their offices in the Royal Bank Building or elsewhere during his visit. Mr. Smith returned to Toronto overnight.

Inquiries show that the Algoma Steel Company, the main subsidiary of the Lake Superior Corporation, is making good progress at present, and the Algoma Central Railway, another subsidiary, is also in improved condition.

Photo Engravers and Electrotypers, Ltd., for the year ending February 28 1929, earned $3.53 a share after depreciation but before taxes according to annual statement forwarded to shareholders.

As this is the first statement made public comparison with former years is impossible, but President W. T. Northgrave in his remarks states profits compare very favorably with previous years.

Current assets of $185,330 compare with current liabilities of $37,319, leaving working capital of $148,011. Included in assets are accounts receivable less reserves of $86,764, cash of $57,797 and inventories of $40,770. Current liabilities are composed of accounts payable of $14,903, accrued wages of $7,416, and dividends payable March 1 of $15,000.

Total assets are valued at $657,125. Plant, machinery, etc., after depreciation total $223,273, and investment in subsidiary, The Process Engravers' Realty Co., Ltd., $245,848, and deferred charges amount to $4,673.

In his report President Northgrave states:

The company's net profits for the year, after providing for depreciation and bad debts, but before making provision for income tax, were $105,922. This amount, we are happy to say, compares very favorably with the profits reported by your company in previous years.

"During the year your company purchased the business of the Dominion Gravure Company, Limited, and also installed considerable additional machinery in its rotogravure department, thus considerably increasing the scope of your company's operation.

"It was also deemed advisable to purchase certain property adjoining your company's plant to provide for future expansion.

"All departments of the plant have been maintained in the state of highest operating efficiency."

Sidelights on the Earning Power of Massey-Harris Company.

At the current price of around 70 Massey-Harris common stock yields approximately 4.30 per cent. and in view of the strongly entrenched position of the organization from the standpoint of working capital, equipment and world wide sales organization, the shares are regarded as having sound safety element combined with speculative possibilities.

The declaration of dividends at the rate of $3.00 per annum is taken as meaning that the shareholders can look forward to a rather brilliant future. A study of the annual report for last year shows that after deducting profit on capital assets for the year amounting to $835,218, earnings were far in excess of the $3 dividend since established. This was indicated by the fact that non-recurring charges, amounting to $540,000, had been taken out of earnings before profits were brought down. Furthermore it is understood that the profits from the enormous export business of the company from June 30, 1928, to November 30, were not included in the report.

It was definitely stated that large amounts had been expended upon new processes, etc., and it may be expected that results therefrom will be reflected in this year's earnings and those of future years.

Copper Exporters, Inc., Expresses Confidence in Return of Market to Stability.

In answer to their inquiry, regarding basic conditions of the copper industry, Copper Exporters, Inc., has sent a cable to German consumers tracing the history of copper production demand and prices over the past year.

The cable says: "The decline in the price of copper began in the European speculative market and was augmented by the offering for re-sale of copper from Europe in this market, shaking confidence and causing the demand to cease. The situation during the last few months is not dissimilar in character to what the industry has previously experienced, and which it will undoubtedly continue to experience whenever demand and consequent buying increases normally and exceeds available supply.

"It is our deliberate opinion that had it not been for the Export Association fluctuations would have been much more rapid and extreme than those which have taken place. It cannot be expected that Copper Exporters or any other agency can be held responsible for the operation of economic conditions that cannot be controlled. The law of supply and demand will of necessity control price, but as conditions in the copper industry the world over are fundamentally sound, we believe that within a short time the market will be restored to an orderly condition and confidence and stability re-established."

Special Truck Retained Street Lighting Service

One of the Utilities Commission's new truck's has an innovation in its equipment which is aiding greatly in keeping the city streets serviced with lights. This truck has a ladder attached to its roof, which can be set up handily by one man. It is used only on night. Setting out at dark, its compartments full of new electric bulbs, it cruises the streets, its driver with a watchful eye on the lights. When a burned-out light is noticed the driver sets up the ladder, climbs up and soon has a new bulb in place.

The Newbec is still said to be in good grade ore at the 125-foot level. Reports state that the grade is around 10% copper over a width of 20 feet.

INDUSTRIAL ISSUES FIRM

International Nickel Registers Slight Gain At Noon Quotations

TORONTO CURB DULL.

TORONTO, Ont., April 18 (C.P.).— A firmer tone throughout the list was disclosed in dull trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. The list was again small and prices fluctuated narrowly. Fairly heavy trading in International Nickel sent this stock out to head the list in point of activity, though the general interest was centered on the industrial section, which showed fairly substantial improvement. Hayes Wheels continued to advance, gaining 3½ points to 63½, while Standard Steel and Cockshutt Plow each strengthened a point to 48 and 42 respectively and Massey-Harris and Page-Hersey were fractionally higher. Abitibi was up 2 at 45¼, Bissel Preferred 5 at 130, Beatty 1¾ at 45¾ and Canada Dredge 1½ to 73½.

International Nckel reached a high of 49⅞, with the noon price of 48⅞, showing a gain of ⅜. Ontario Equitable Life sold up 5 to 57, while the Bank of Nova Scotia at 402 and Toronto at 274 were both up 2 points.

City Dairy came out 2¾ points lower at 65¼, while Service Stations Equipment lost 2 to 70. The oils were all steady.

Liverpool Quotations Softens Chicago Wheat

CHICAGO, Ills., April 18.—(Canadian Press.)— Wheat prices underwent an early setback to-day due largely to failure of Liverpool quotations to respond satisfactorily to yesterday's advance. Favorable weather for the domestic crop tended also to ease wheat values. Opening 3-8 to 7-8 off, Chicago wheat afterward sagged further. Corn and oats were relatively firm, with corn starting at 1-2 off to 1-4 up and later holding near initial figures. Provisions held steady.

Rouyn advices state that a new compressor is reported to have been added to the power plant at the Noranda. This will permit the use of twelve additional air drills. Another similar compressor is said to have been ordered.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD BANQUET

About One Hundred Guests Take Part in Gathering at Millbrook.

ENTERTAINING PROGRAM.

MILLBROOK, April 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The banquet held in the Sunday school auditorium of the United Church on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Young People's Society, marked a red letter day in the history of that organization.

Covers were laid for about one hundred guests, the tables arranged as three sides of a hollow square, looking very attractive in a color scheme of orange and black featured in the runners down the centre and the vases of flowers placed at intervals down the length of each. The Ladies' Aid Society catered for the banquet, and the menu was satisfying in every detail.

Shortly after seven o'clock the guests were seated, and at the head table were the chairman, B. B. Dawson, president of the Y.P.S., and Mrs. Dawson; the speaker of the evening, G. F. Holton, of Belleville, President of the Young People's Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and Mrs. Holton; the pastor of the church, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D.; E. H. Barnes, Scout Master of the local troop of Boy Scouts; the speakers who were responding to the toasts, and officers of the hostess Society.

Community singing, and selections by the Silver String Orchestra immediately followed the service of the supper, and the president, who also acted as toastmaster, proceeded with the program for the evening.

In his address of welcome, Mr. Dawson heartily greeted the large gathering, having a special word for the Conference President, Mr. Holton, who had motored a distance of more than seventy miles, with none too good roads for the latter part of the journey, and yet had readily consented to be present and address the young people. Likening the young people's association to the old Romans when they charged a city to its downfall the concluding message was: "We should be a charge of strong hearts, locked together in a spirit of solid unity, leading on against the forces that oppose us, and brushing away the temptations that may come to us."

After the opening toast to "The King" had been duly honored the one to "Canada" was called for, the toastmaster asking Miss Bertha Lang to be the speaker, explaining that, by special request, Miss Lang who had brought honor to the local Continuation School and to the community, by the fine record made in the district oratorical contest this season, would give the address on "The Peoples of Canada", which won for her a tie for first place recently at Cobourg.

With a voice of splendid carrying qualities, and finely reasoned logic, Miss Lang listed her various points until she reached a fitting climax with a quotation from Jean Blewett's poem, "Canada."

Response to this toast was made by Mrs. V. C. Lambert, who pointed out that Canada is a young people's country; that upright, Christian lives are necessary to its well being; that we are here to help with the finishing of the history of this young land; that the moral appeal of the gospel should be applied to legislation, and that the aim should be equal rights and privileges for all.

A selection by the orchestra preceded the next toast to the 'Young People's Society', proposed by Miss Pearl Burnham, who referred to personal help received from membership in the Epworth League, the name used in earlier years to designate the young people's association. A brief history of the origin and development of the League, with its emblem and motto, and some of the fine things which it has accomplished in setting higher ideals, and transforming lives, led up to the suggestion: "This Young People's Society recently formed in connection with this church, and which has already done such splendid service, may not accomplish all that its sponsors dream of, but it is not to be judged by the flaws, or the things it may not have done, but this standard, 'How much less would have been accomplished without it'?"

Response to the toast was made by James Larmer, and a duet, "Dreaming of You" by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, with "Because You're You" as encore, was followed by the introduction of the speaker of the evening by Rev. W. W. Jones.

Mr. Jones referred to the fact that it was a representative gathering which Mr. Holton was to address, young people being present from outside points, and from other churches in the community. The spirit prevailing reminded him of an old-fashioned Methodist love feast, and he was assured that a sympathetic hearing, with a desire for information that would lead to a widened outlook, was awaiting the message of the Conference Y.P.S. President.

Mr. Holton voiced his appreciation of the welcome extended, and the privilege of being present, and went on to reply to some questions that had arise through previous speakers. The former League emblem, the Maltese Cross, he said is to be retained, but as to what name will eventually be chosen for what is now called the Young People's Department of the United Church, no definite information could yet be given.

"This Young People's Society is the greatest, democratic organization in existence in the world to-day. It was carried over into the United Church upon our own request, and has a membership of 200,000 in Canada, with 15,000 in the Bay of Quinte Conference, and over 350 organizations, we are gaining all the time.

"A new publication for this Conference," the speaker said, "is under preparation and will be ready shortly. Sample copies will be sent to each society, and if it goes over this paper will continue to appear each month. The annual Y.P.S. excursion to Niagara Falls is scheduled for July 19. Last year more than 700 young people went on this trip, and it is hoped that number will be exceeded this season. Dr. McKay, formerly of the Presbyterian church, told me he only saw one person even attempt to use tobacco when we had our day at the Falls last year, so you see the excellent company you keep in association with our Conference young people.

"Success is getting what you are after, provided that is the best thing for you. Character-building is the real test of success. We must adopt the foundation principles that make for success in business life if we are to come out at the top with our young people's work. Four things are necessary: (A) have an objective; what a fine thing it would be to have every member in your society fitted to lead in a religious service, and to pray in public, or to have your missionary committee pledge a proportion of some missionary's salary; or your citizenship committee aim to have every member enlisted in the campaign against the liquor interests of this country; and try also to have every member belonging to the League of Nations, and take up this study at several meetings, so intelligently understanding this question of world peace, and helping to bring it into actual practice."

Up-to-date methods; advertising the organization; being thorough in plan and practice; selling the goods, and giving value and service, were points stressed. "The Y.P.S. is a fine training-school in public speaking. I know two prime ministers and several cabinet ministers who have publicly stated that they made their first attempt at speaking before an audience in the Epworth League. So do not always import outside speakers, but discover and use your own talent.

Service to the church and community should radiate from our meetings. We shall pay larger dividends in human life when we assume the personal responsibility necessary to success. Success is all in the state of mind, hence determine in your own minds that you will make personality count, and thinking on a large scale, for the Master's honor, results will be proportionate."

Warm applause followed Mr. Holton's address, and the formal vote of thanks to those who had ministered in any way to the pleasure and success of the evening, was moved by the secretary of the Y.P.S., Eddie Nattress, and seconded by the Literary Vice-president, Miss Jean L. Burnham.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD MEETING

Routine Business Discussed By Members of Omemee Church Society.

ADDRESS HEARD.

OMEMEE, April 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People's Union of Trinity Church was in charge of the 1st vice-president, Irvine Connell, on Monday evening.

After the devotional exercises, several items of business were discussed and the roll call was taken.

Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard then conducted a questionnaire on which the Golds secured eight points and the Reds one.

The topic of the evening was ably taken by Cyril Elliott, his subject being "Spring, Sowing Seeds."

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed, during which Mr and Mrs. Irvine Connell, who are active members of the Society, were presented with a miscellaneous shower accompanied by a brief well-worded address read by Miss Mary Faulkner. Mr. Connell made a suitable reply and expressed gratitude for the numerous gifts received.

NIGHTLY HOWLING OF WOLVES FORCED THE FIRST SETTLER TO LEAVE TOWNSHIP OF BELMONT

Township Was Surveyed in the Year 1823—Settled Several Years Later.

ROBINSON MIGRATIONS

Robert Stewart Was First Man to Secure a Deed for Land.

The following is a paper on "The History of the Township of Belmont," given by Mrs. George Smith at a meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute:

Belmont, the speaker said, was surveyed in 1823, but the first settlers did not enter it for several years after that date. In 1825, the Hon. Peter Robinson paid a visit to England and while there was spoken to by Sir Wilmot Horton as to the advisability of directing a large tide of migration from Ireland to the wilderness of English-speaking Canada. Mr. Robinson thought favorably of the scheme and was induced to take charge of the whole matter. In the autumn of that year, four hundred and fifteen families availed themselves of the offer of free grants of land and all necessary aid for settlement in Upper Canada. This large and important immigration was the true foundation of the Town of Peterborough and thence the rising prosperity of the surrounding townships.

Remained Only Short Time.

The first actual settler in Belmont was a man named Fiddick, who brought his family into the wild bush, remained there only a short time, removing to the settlement which was growing up around Keeler's mill, now Norwood. The cause of his removal was the howling of the wolves, which kept up a most unearthly noise all through the night. The first settler who received a patent for land was Robert Stewart, afterwards called the King of Belmont. The first mill in Belmont was built by Jehiel Breckenridge; it was afterwards burned down. Mr. Breckenridge also built a saw and grist mill where the waters of Round lake empty into Belmont lake. After the first mill was burned down another was erected in its place by Peter Pearce, a leading settler, who became Warden of the county in the years 1863 and 1864.

For years the roads of Belmont had a bad reputation and much difficulty was experienced by the settlers in conveying their supplies into the townships and their grain to and from the mill.

Large Sums Spent On Roads.

After the incorporation of Belmont large sums of money, the income from taxes on non-resident lands, were spent to improve the roads.

The land throughout Belmont cannot truthfuly be said to be of the best kind for agricultural purposes, as it is to a great extent more or less rocky and stony. But if it is poor as a grain raising district it is rich in minerals. Large deposits of iron ore have been found in Belmont. The Blairton mine on lots 7 and 8 in concession 1, belonged to the Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora Mining and Railway Company, and has produced large quantities of ore, the yield at one time being as much as five hundred tons a day. But either from want of practical knowledge or from some other cause, the mine was found to be unprofitable. In 1867 a new company took over the mine and in 1871, it began to yield profit. The iron taken out was found to be of excellent character, possessing some special qualities so valuable that great American smelters with others, such mixture being found to produce a very superior kind of iron.

Short Railway Built.

In order to convey the ore to its destination. This company built a short railway nine miles in length, starting from the mine on lots 7 and 8 of the first concession, it ran south-west through the small village of Blairton until it met the River Trent at a point near the 'Narrows.' After being taken along this line in flat cars, the ore was dumped into scows and towed up the Trent through Rice Lake to Harwood, where it was conveyed by the Cobourg and Peterborough Railway to Cobourg; from Cobourg it was taken in schooners to American lake ports. Unfortunately this industry, which promised such bright results, succumbed to the depression in the iron trade in 1878 A large deposit of magnetic iron ore has been found on lot 19 in the first concession of Belmont. The very best iron ore can contain no more than seventy-two per cent. of metallic iron. This metallic iron ore contained 64.26 per cent. of metallic iron.

Early Settlers

The following are some of the early settlers of Belmont:

James Burgess.—Born in County Cavan, Ireland, in 1828, and came with his parents to Canada in 1836. A few years later settled in Belmont. He married in 1854 and settled on a hundred acres given to him by his father to which he added another hundred acres.

William Burgess—Brother of James Burgess, was also presented with a hundred acres of land by his father to which he added another hundred acres. He was reeve for nine years and collector and assessor in the early history of the township.

Andrew Mathison—Was born in Scotland in 1793. He came to Canada in 1841, settled on lot 9 in concession 10 in Belmont. He bought a hundred acres and afterwards made purchases till he owned seven hundred acres of land. His death occurred in 1877.

Alexander Mathison and William Mathison, sons of Andrew Mathison, lived on the old parental estate. William owned a shingle mill which annually turned out about 150,000 feet of lumber and about 200,000 feet of shingles.

James Johnston was born in Ireland came to Canada, and settled on lot 7 in concession 10, where he resided till his death in 1866. He was about the third settler in the township. He learned the trade of plasterer and worked at the same in connection with his farming. He owned a hundred acres on lot 5 concession 8.

Phillip J. Garrison, of lot 5, concession 6, was born in Fredericksburg, Lennox County, Ontario, in 1819. His grandfather was a U. E. loyalist. Phillip Garrison came to this township in 1851. He may certainly be called a pioneer, there being but two settlements in the east part of the township when he came. He has been assessor, collector and treasurer of Belmont Township.

Ezekiel Nixon of east half of lot 4, concession 6, Belmont, was born in Prince Edward County, Ontario. He married in 1849, Mary Ann Garrison, a sister of Phillip J. Garrison of this township.

Robert Preston—Moved to Belmont in 1854 and it is worthy of note he was first settler in this section. He located on six hundred acres of land and lived on lot 21 in concession 2.

William Edward Young was born in Perth County, Ontario, in 1824. He came to Belmont in 1856, settling on lot 17 in concession 2. He owned at his death about a thousand acres of land. He married in 1851, Maria Campion. Mr. Young was prominent in municipal affairs of the township and was about nine years in the council.

John Anderson and William Anderson, brothers, born in the County of Sligo, Ireland, came to Canada and settled on the west half of lot 4, concession 6, Belmont, in 1860. William Anderson was clerk of the township for about fifteen or eighteen years, assessor for one year, census enumerator, and one year treasurer.

Thomas Taylor of lot 18, concession 5, was born in England in 1838, and came to Canada the following year. Settled in Belmont in 1878. Mr. Taylor has been engaged in saw milling and carpenter work the greater part of his life.

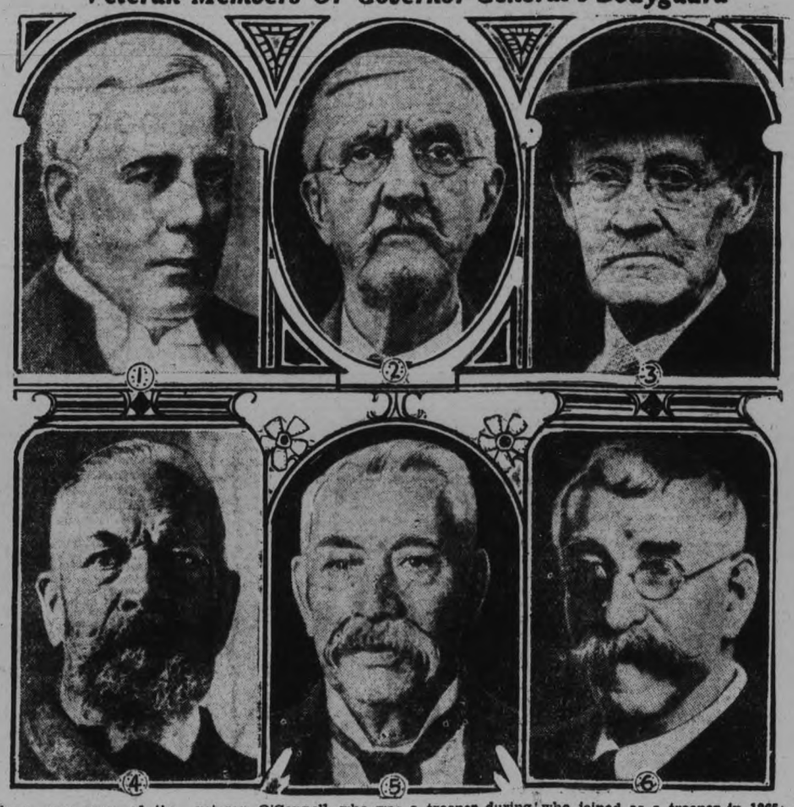
James Wilde was born near Napanee, Ont., in 1833. In his youth Mr. Wilde learned the trade of blacksmith at Norborough, Ontario. From there he went to the village of Roblin, and started in business for himself, where he remained ten years He then went to California, remaining about ten years, then again took up his residence in Roblin, staying four years. He then settled in Belmont township near Havelock post office, where he owned a farm and carried on a general blacksmithing business. Mr. Wilde served eighteen years as councillor. He died in 1916.

Thomas Sexsmith was born in the township of Richmont, Ontario, in 1828. Settled in Belmont in 1856 and by energy, perseverance and skill succeeded in developing the full agricultural resources of his farm. He was on the school board for a number of years, and in those early days the trustees collected the taxes. He died in 1877.

Farmers of South Africa are complaining that the grey squirrel, imported from America, has become a pest and is doing much damage to crops.

Australia has granted special permission to export two black swans to England where they will grace the estate of Lord Dewar.

Veteran Members Of Governor-General's Bodyguard



These are some of the veteran members of the senior cavalry regiment of the Canadian militia, the Governor-General's Body Guard. No. 1 is his honor Judge Daniel O'Connell, who was a trooper during the Northwest Rebellion, 1885; (2) Ex-Alderman John Dunn, Toronto, now 93 years old, who was a trooper from 1854-66; (3) Robert Dunn, 84, who joined as a trooper in 1865; (4) George White, of Islington, 86, who joined in 1865; (5) Charles C. Abbott, 84, who joined in 1865 and (6) Capt. J. L. Rawbon, 81, who joined in 1876.

A Successful Failure

By FREDERICK HART

When Margaret Anderson started the "Blue Rose" Tea Room she had no premonition of failure. The neighborhood where she had rented her two small rooms was quiet but populous; there seemed to her to be a good chance for a place that advertised home cooking and dainty surroundings. She had a little money—enough, she was sure, to keep going until the credit side of her very new ledger should show a balance in her favor. Her cooking she was sure of; her home training had made her waffles famous. There would be no difficulty in training any one she might obtain as assistant. Her heart beat high with hope; and when she had paid the first month's rent to the agent and taken possession of the little place with her shiny new key she experienced a thrill of pride.

The expenses of the first installation were heavier than she had imagined; her helper demanded payment in advance, and large payment at that; the furniture she bought at second-hand stores, her good taste standing her in good stead; silver, china, etc.; kitchen supplies—she had a very slender balance left in the bank when she had finished writing the checks. But for the first two weeks of her month people came instreams to the little tea room, as they always do to a new place, and Margaret's unvarying service and the fame of her waffles carried her through the breakers triumphantly.

Among the customers whom she had begun to designate as "regulars" was a young man who appeared for two meals—breakfast and dinner—every day. He was punctual to the minute—8 o'clock sharp for breakfast; 7:15 in the evening for dinner. He was quiet and polite, and never joked with her or with Hilda, the maid, as some of the others did; this fact Margaret subconsciously noted in his favor. He spent his breakfast time looking over the morning paper, and his evening meal seemed to be devoted as much to figuring as eating; he would draw diagrams on a slip of paper which he invariably carried in his pocket, eating mechanically the while.

One morning, well on in the third month of Margaret's venture, he appeared as usual for breakfast; the day passed; 7 o'clock arrived, and the tables began to fill; 7:15—and Margaret found herself looking at the door, expecting her "star boarder," as she called him in her mind. But he did not appear. Seven-thirty; still no star boarder. At 8 she gave him up, supposing that he had gone elsewhere—gave him up with a pang at her heart which surprised her and did not please her.

And he was not there the next morning, nor all that day in fact, and when two days had passed without his reappearance Margaret gave him up for lost.

His departure seemed to have a bad effect on her fortune, however, for when she balanced her books at the end of the month she found herself facing a deficit. Her success during the earlier days of her venture had been in a large degree the result of the curiosity which leads people to try new places; and even the excellence of her waffles had not been able to hold many of the palate-weary passers-by who had come as an experiment. A new and flashier tea room had opened only a block away, and many of her customers had fled thither. As Margaret sat alone at 9 o'clock on the night of the 31st she reflected bitterly that when she had written the last check on the morrow there would be nothing left with which to carry on the business.

The lights in the "Blue Rose" were extinguished, all but one over her desk. Before her was the ledger, once the repository of her hopes, now the record of her failure. Outside the street was silent save for an occasional belated car chugging by. The little clock on the mantel struck 9:30. Margaret let her head fall on the pages of the open book and gave way to the relief of tears.

A knock on the door startled her. Hastily she sat up, dabbing her eyes with her handkerchief. Who could it be at this late hour? Courageously she went to the door and opened it. "We don't serve after 8—" she was beginning, when she stopped with a little gasp. "Oh—it's you!" she exclaimed.

Into the small circle of light cast by the desk lamp stepped the young man—her erstwhile star boarder. "Yes," he replied ungrammatically, "it's me." Then he looked at her sharply, and then at the open ledger.

"You've been crying!" he accused.

"I—I have not!" she exclaimed indignantly. Who was this youth to accuse her of shedding tears? But her voice trembled in spite of herself. For a moment she braved it out, and then overstrained nature gave way. Down went her head on the desk and her sobs broke forth.

"Oh, there isn't any use!" she exclaimed despairingly. "Everything's gone wrong—the Blue Rose is a failure, and so am I—nothing's been right since you left—" she stopped, horrified at what she had said. But the young man laughed out, and suddenly she found herself in his arms.

"Dear," the young man was saying, "you remember those diagrams I worked on so much? Well, they were plans for a new invention of mine—and it's a big success! I came back to tell you about it—and to tell you that I've been in love with you for two months, but I didn't want to say anything till I was sure that my machine would go; and it has—and I've come back."

Smiling through her tears, she looked up at him.

"I knew that my life would be a success—if you came back!" she said.

SO HE GOT FINED

LONDON, April 18.—At the South Western police court of Upper Tooting-road, Mrs. Elias Leon entered a complaint against her husband that he allowed her only $5 weekly to run the house and support a child, and that he kept her on a diet of bananas and eggs. When the tomatoes weren't red enough she said, he fined her. When she did not look at him properly, he fined her. The judge ordered Elias to pay his wife $12.50 a week.

3 SENTINELS EMPHASIZED

Every Member Present Night At Revival Brings Out Large Congregation.

SERVICE OF SONG.

Various churches of different denominations were well represented at the "Every member present night" held in connection with the "Singing Revival" last evening in St. James' United Church.

Preceding Mrs. Dibble's stirring appeal, a short service of song was held, and Rev. Mr. Thornley, of Mark street United Church led in prayer; Mrs. E. Kitney sang sweetly, "All the way I love Him" and Rev. George Dibble sang Paul Rader's beautiful sacred words to the "Sunshine of Your Smile," also the solo "Face to Face."

One of the most marvellous pieces of literature ever written is the story, contained in the twenty-fourth chapter of Acts, of Paul's defence before Felix. This, Mrs. Dibble took as the theme of her address emphasizing especially what she termed "The Three Sentinels."

The scene showing Paul, before his judge represents the eternal triangle—the sinner (Felix), the tempter, (Satan), and the preacher (Paul).

The power of the Cross and of the Judgment Day should be preached to all sinners, for it is a terrible thing to resist God, and there is great danger in delaying your decision. Felix did not yield to Paul's plea, because he lacked the moral courage, which is often a stumbling block to-day. For this reason, three essentials have been placed at the disposal of each—the first, "Conscience". This sentinel should make it hard for anyone to sin, but it is possible to sere it and go so far in sin that the conscience no longer troubles you.

The second sentinel is "reason". Sin costs you peace, hope and honour, and is against all sense or reason.

The third and perhaps greatest sentinel is the "Voice of God" which tenderly and pleadingly calls you "to come unto Him."

When God saw that men would not see the sentinels, He had placed for their guidance, He sent His Only Son to earth as a sacrifice to win them."

Many young people, who heard Mrs. Dibble's message last night, were constrained to identify themselves with the Christian life.

To-night is "Family Night" and all families are invited to come together, especially the large families. To the largest family, including Father, mother and children, present, Rev. Mr. Dibble will present a fine Bible and Mrs. Dibble's address will be a practical one on the great need of home life to-day.

MY FRIEND HAS MY EVERLASTING THANKS

Says Ontario Man who took Friends Advice and Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

W. L. Cattral Suffered Greatly With Lame Back.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 17.—(Special).—"Two years ago I was troubled with a lame back," writes Mr. W. L. Cattral, 442 Cambridge St., Ottawa. "A friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and I did. After taking the second box I was completely relieved. I always keep a box on hand in case of a relapse. My friend has my everlasting thanks."

That Mr. Cattral's trouble came from his kidneys is evidenced by the relief he got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. Many persons suffer periodically with backache, and, as middle age approaches, the pain increases in severity. Rest may give temporary relief, but Dodd's Kidney Pills do much more than this. They strengthen the weak Kidneys and remove the cause of the pain.

DAY IN PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 18.—(By the Canadian Press.)— Day in Parliament:

To-day the Senate will meet.

The House of Commons will consider government business.

Yesterday in Parliament — The House of Commons debated an amendment presented by H. A. Stewart (Cons. Leeds) to a motion to go into supply. The amendment charged that the Postmaster-General (Hon. P. J. Veniot) had acted in an arbitrary manner and disregarded the spirit of the Civil Service in connection wtih the recent appointment of a postmaster at Simcoe, Ont. The debate was taken part in Mr. Stewart, Mr. Veniot and Hon. R. B. Bennett, Leader of the Opposition.

The Senate discussed the project of constructing a canal across the Isthmus of Chicnecto in Nova Scotia.

IDEAS FOR THE DYE-WISE

PRIZE LETTER FOR WISE DYEING

Dyed 10 Garments —Spent 65 Cents

"I decided to try Sunset Dyes and Dytints. Having a faded blue crepe kimona, began on that with Bright Blue Sunset. It came out beautiful, bright, clear blue.

"With a camel's hair paint brush I renewed the blue flowers on my summer hat. I purchased one cake of Bright Blue Sunset, one cake of Heliotrope Sunset, one package Peach Dytint, one Blue Dytint for silk only. A discoloured white Crepe Romaine dress was dipped into Peach Dytint. A rich peach colour was obtained. Then a wash satin night gown and a pair of scanties went into the same bath and a beautiful colour resulted.

"I tinted a white crepe de chine trimmed with white lace using Blue Dytint for silk only. The result was lovely. I put in a dotted swiss dress, faded blue dots on white; this weak bath just brought back their original blue. I dyed my faded blue georgette, using Blue Sunset with Heliotrope. This dress looks better than when new. I boiled a faded Swiss dress in soap solution to extract the original colours and tied knots in it. I dyed it with Bright Blue Sunset. The blue with white is very effective. I dyed a figured Crepe de Chine Heliotrope with a Blue cast.

"For sixty-five cents I have dyed one kimona, one night gown, one pair of scanties, six dresses, one hat."—Katharine G. Summerson.

For fast dyeing use Sunset Soap Dye—15 cents a cake. For beautiful tinting use Dytint, wonderful new tint, in big box, 10c. Made in Canada.

British Government Shares Same View as Canadian Authorities in "I'm Alone" Case.

CHAMBERLAIN QUESTIONED

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 18. — (Canadian Press).—The New York Times publishes the following despatch from London:

"Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Minister, disclosed in the House of Commons Monday afternoon (April 15) that the government shared the view of the Canadian Government in the I'm Alone liquor ship case and desired to support the action taken by Canada.

Sir Austen, in answer to a question by Harry Day, Laborite, read a long statement as representing the British Ambassador's report on the sinking of the vessel. The statement disclosed no new facts.

"United States revenue cutter Walcott," said Sir Austen, "encountered the I'm Alone off the coast of Louisiana at a place alleged by the United States preventive authorities to be 500 miles off her course to Bermuda.

Point Disputed

"The United States government also alleges that at the time the I'm Alone was encountered by the Walcott she was within the limits prescribed by article 2, of the convention respecting the regulation of the liquor traffic signed at Washington on January 23, 1924, but this is disputed."

"Has any claim for compensation been lodged?" Mr. Day asked.

"No, I think not, at present" Sir Austen replied.

Major W. P. Colfox, Conservative, asked whether the pursuit was continuous. Sir Austen replied that he would rather make no further statement, or above all, offer any personal opinion at this time.

A. C. MacQuisten, Conservative, asked:

"Is it a fact that all American liners have gone wet in defiance of the prohibition laws?"

No reply was given.

Ordered By Port Officials.

It was announced that M. Oberkirch, under secretary of the Health Department of the Ministry of Labor, told the Cabinet the quarantine had been ordered by the French port health officials without referring the matter to him. Louis Luucheur, Minister of Labor, therefore agreed with Foreign Minister Briand to suspend action.

The suspension, it was said, would be effective until the sanitary experts could consider the situation with proper regard for the British point of view.

The order issued yesterday said that effective Thursday at noon anyone entering France from England at either the Channel ports or French airports, would have to show a vaccination certificate of date within two months past the stringent order was explained by French authorities as being necessary to prevent spread of smallpox in this country through contagion from virulent cases in England.

7TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The 7th Peterborough Troop met as usual in St. John's Parish Hall on Wednesday at 7 p.m. A.S.M. Turner was in charge. The troop was divided into two temporary patrols, the "Chickadees" under Albert Stephens and the "Seals" under Ormie Henry.

Three races were held. The "Seals" gained their first pont of the evening in the patrol competition by winning the first and last of these races.

The "Chickadees" then went off to their patrol corner for knotting while the "Seals" practised signalling. The Morse code was used.

Later the patrols played football. In a well played game the "Chickadees" won 2-0. Thus they gained their first point. Then came the "Seals" turn for knotting and the "Chickadees" got a further insight into signalling.

In a game of "do this" the "Seals" captured another point and the honors for the evening also by having two representatives left on the floor when the Chickadees had none. The boys enjoyed their usual singsong. The National Anthem and Scout silence closed the meeting.

Care of the Kitchen Sink

A friend of mine recently moved into a house and was shocked to find the unsightly condition of the sink. The enamel was scratched in many places, until it was almost impossible to clean it.

"And yet," she said, in talking to me about it, "the previous owner was an exceptionally clean housekeeper"—that's just it—the enamel was scratched with everlasting scouring and scrubbing, with harsh cleaners. It is just too bad to see a sink ruined this way when Princess Soap Flakes will keep it nice so easily.

Before my friend left, I took her to my kitchen to see my sink—just as lovely as a new one. I have never allowed harsh abrasives to be used on it, but simply wash with Princess Soap Flakes as I would a porcelain pot. And because I use Princess Flakes for all my cleaning, I don't have my sink cluttered with packages and cans of cleaners. Cans are especially harmful because they get wet and rusty, leaving marks on the sink.

To Wash Enamel Ware

The Princess Flakes method is the best for cleaning enamel ware, because Princess suds cannot possibly cause the glaze to crack. They quickly dissolve the grease—soften and loosen hard particles without scraping and scratching the enamel—leave your utensils cleaner and more shining than any cleaning preparation you can buy.

And don't ever think that Princess Soap Flakes are too expensive to use for your pots and pans. They are really the most inexpensive soap there is, because they are all soap, not full of chemical "filler" to give a lot of bulk. It requires very few of these flakes to make mountains of suds. Your enamel ware will last longer if washed regularly in Princess suds.

I recommend Princess Soap Flakes for every household washing task—dishes, floors, woodwork, the family washing, and those dainty things that must be washed so carefully. You can safely use Princess Soap Flakes for anything that clear tepid water will not harm, and they will never give you red hands. If you would like to try these soap flakes which I so often mention in these columns, write me at 64 Natalie Street, Toronto, enclosing 4c in stamps, and I will see that you receive a free trial package. And tell me about any cleaning problems you may have—I will be glad to help you in any way I can.

Washing Handkerchiefs

An easy way to wash handkerchiefs, and one which is not in the least unpleasant, is to place them in a small boiler or clean pail, cover with cold water, shake a few Princess Soap Flakes over them, and let boil. After boiling for about fifteen minutes, turn the handkerchiefs out into clear warm water to rinse out the soap suds, and then blue them. Coloured handkerchiefs, of course, should not be boiled, but you will find Princess Soap Flakes very effective for washing them also. There is nothing in Princess Flakes which will cause the colour to fade.

SHOW ROOMS OPENED.

J. R. Battisby Has Interior of Old Princess Theatre Remodeled.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 18 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—What will probably be the most modern automobile show rooms in the community were opened yesterday by J. R. Battisby, the local representative of the Essex motor cars. Alterations have been made to the old Princess theatre, Front street, and attractive displays arranged inside. The interior is not yet completely decorated, but this detail will be attended to at once.

The Royal Cafe, Front street, is undergoing extensive interior improvements. When the work is completed it will be modern in every respect. Business is being carried on as usual during the operations.

The cold dry winds of yesetrday have done much to make the district roads more passable. The road gangs are busy drawing gravel into the bad spots and grading long stretches, and the Campbellford-Havelock road is almost as good as it is during the summer. Gravel is being used generously between West's corners and Woodland cheese factory.

A number of young people from here attended the dance in Springbrook last night.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Hennessy and Mrs. Hennessy Honored By Friends.

WOOLER, April 18.— (Examiner Correspondence).—On Saturday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Hennessy and Mrs. Helen Hennessy, was filled with friends, who gathered to say farewell to them before Mr. Hennessy and family retired from the old farm home to live in Brighton. Alexander Dunn acted as chairman for the evening when an impromptu program was given, as follows: Addresses by Rev. Asa Rogers, S. L. Terrill, F. A. Dorland, Lydia Nelson, Mrs. Or..., Mrs. Lester Richards, Miss Myrtle Mutton, Robert Spencer, Alden Arthur and Mr. Vardy; old time songs, William Montgomery, L. H. Rowe, Robert Spencer, W. Huycke and A. Arthur; music, Miss Grace Mutton and Mrs. L. H. Rowe.

The appropriate address was read by Miss Ruth Orvis and a suitable presentation was made to the departing family.

61 SCHOOLS ENTER FAIRS

3,000 Packages of Vegetable and Flower Seeds Have Been Distributed.

NINE NOT ENTERED.

Three thousand packages of vegetable and flower seeds have been distributed among fifteen hundred school children of this county by the local agricultural representative, J. Nelson. In all, sixty-one schools have entered in the competition and nine School Fairs will be held in the county this autumn. This is an increase of three over last year's record and it is expected that several of the nine schools left in the county who are not entered, will yet enter the competition.

Each pupil is allowed one package of grain or vegetable seed and one package of flower seed. The prizes for the competition are largely donated by school boards and township councils, with some special donations by Women's Institutes and similar organizations.

In several townships every school is entered in the competition.

FIRE DESTROYS ROOF OF HOUSE

Chimney Fire Gets Out of Control At Wolsley Street Home.

OUTSIDE CITY LIMITS.

When a chimney fire, driven by a strong north-easterly wind, got out of control, it spread to and destroyed most of the roof of P. R. Castle's house on the county side of Wolsley Street early last night, and was only extinguished after heroic efforts of a volunteer bucket brigade, assisted finally by a tank of chemical brought to the scene by the city fire department.

When the blaze broke out shortly after 6.30, someone rushed to Box 38, which is located at the corner of Reid and McDonnel Streets, summoning the first brigade, which immediately responded with three units, the Chief's car, Number 1 motor and the large ladder truck. However, when it was learned that the fire was outside the city limits, regulations left nothing to do but for the firemen to turn back, which they did, rather reluctantly. A few minutes later Mayor Roland Denne authorized the trip outside the northern boundary, and the same equipment as on the first call, turned out. However, on arrival, the firemen found the blaze practically extinguished, and it only remained for them to apply some chemical as a safeguard.

CREW OF BARGE IS RESCUED

Howling North-easter Drives Boat Towards Round Rock Shoals.

SIGNAL ROCKETS SENT UP.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., April 18 (Canadian Press).—The crew of three of the barge Emilie, Boston for Bangor, Me., was rescued by coastguardsmen yesterday after a night of peril. The three men sent up signal rockets throughout the night as a howling north-easter drove the barge, with dragging anchors, towards Round Rock Shoal at the mouth of the harbor. The gale abated at dawn, and though the seas continued to run high, a power surfboat from Doliver's Neck station was able to get alongside and take off two of the men. The third was removed by coastguard patrol boat 145.

RELIEF FROM GAS STOMACH PAINS DIZZINESS

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles, you can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mrs. George Bell, of 82 King Street, London, Ont., writes as follows:

"I had suffered for years with Stomach trouble. Gas would form and bloat me up so I could hardly catch my breath. My nerves were shattered; I did not sleep, became weak and run-down; and spent enough on medicines to furnish a home."

"Two months after starting Tanlac, however, I had gained eleven pounds and was entirely free of indigestion. Now I have no gas, no pains in my stomach. The headaches have disappeared. My nerves are calm. I sleep like a child, am always ready for my meals, and my housework seems like play to me."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run-down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist to-day. Money back if it doesn't help you.

CHURCH SOCIETY HOLDS CONCERT

Rev. R. C. Tait Delivers Interesting Address On Zion City.

MUSICAL NUMBERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 18 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Zion City in the State of Illinois, as he saw it two years ago when on a visit to that part of the United States, was the interesting subject of the address given in the auditorium of St. John's United Church by the Rev. R. C. Tait, last night. The program was under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and attracted a large audience. The assisting numbers were solos by Miss Emma Meiklejohn and Mrs. Stanley Windrim and organ music by Albert Hazel, organist of the church. The ladies of the society were highly complimented on the high standard of their program and the artists on the excellence of their numbers. G. A. Kingston officiated as chairman.

In his remarks, the Rev. Mr. Tait was careful to deal with the subjects most interesting to his audience. Although many have listened in to radio broadcasting from Zion City, there were very few who understood much about life there. Mr. Tait's remarks were of especial interest to them. He pointed out some of the religious methods of the city of 6,200 souls, and contrasted some of their belief with those of his own church. There was no smoking, drinking or swearing allowed within the city. Neither were card playing or dancing permitted. The city boasted no jail for the confinement of law breakers. At one time three men had made their appearance in the city and had profaned the laws it upheld. They were finally induced to leave, and took up residence in Chicago. The manufacturing and business life of the city was very interesting to the visitor. There were no doctors there, although it was understood that there were some of the citizens who understood a certain amount of medical practice.

In conclusion, Mr. Tait pointed out that there were some fifty different nationalities represented in the city and they were all striving to live in the manner which they believed Christ would have them live. "The bells of Zion City coming to him over the radio, he said, "brought back many fond memories of this unusual city."

Miss Meiklejohn and Mrs. Windrim each sang three numbers. Their solos were enthusiastically applauded and each of the artists responded with one encore. Miss Meiklejohn sang, "Little Brown Bird" (Del Rigo); "Trees" (Rasback), and "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" as arranged by Willan. As an encore after her final number Miss Meiklejohn sang Gaynor's "Slumber Boat." Mrs. Windrim's three numbers were "Down the Vale" (Moir); "To-morrow Comes the Song (Ambrose), and "Open Mine Eyes, O Lord" (Huerter). As an encore, Mrs. Windrim sang, "The Princess" (Greig). At the pipe organ, Albert Hozel entertained the audience with the skill of the master musician. His numbers were "San Jacinto Morning" (Nearing); "The Pilgrim Chorus" from "Tanhauser (Edwin Lemare); "Narcissis" (Nevin), and "Staccatto Etude" (Nevin). The entertainment closed with the National Anthem.

NOTICE.

By order of the Council the Friday half holiday is to be discontinued. The banks in Campbellford will follow the usual practice laid down by the Bank Act and will close Saturdays at 12:30 after May 1st.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Here are some rules for successful dinner planning:

Never serve a cream soup and a vegetable with cream sauce at the same dinner.

Never serve tomatoes twice at the same meal—thus if you have tomato soup do no have fried tomatoes or tomato salad.

Never serve two friend dishes at the same meal.

Do not serve s up at the same meal with stew.

Do not serve a fruit cocktail as the first course and fresh fruit as the dessert of the same meal.

Serve only one "transparent" food at the same meal. That is, if you serve clear soup, do not serve a clear gelatine dessert, if you serve tomato jelly salad do not serve a water ice or dessert.

One milk dish at dinner is enough. That is, if you have a milk soup do not have scalloped potatoes cooked with milk. If you have oyster stew with milk do not have rice pudding.

Avoid a monotonous color scheme. If you have vanilla ice cream the cakes should have chocolate or some other colored icing. Don't serve white fish, creamed cauliflower, mashed potatoes and stewed celery together. Use tomatoes or spinach in place of the celery for the sake of adding color.

Never have meat pie or dumplings at the same dinner with pie or steamed pudding.

A HINT OF LIFE

(Contributed by Anonymous)

Don't look for the flaws as you go through life;
And even when you find them,
It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind,
And look for the virtues behind them.
For the cloudiest night has a hint of light
Somewhere in the shadows hiding.
It is better far to hunt for a star
Than the spot on the sun abiding.
The world will never adjust itself
To suit your whims to the letter;
Some things must go wrong your whole life long,
And the sooner you know it, the better.
It is folly to fight with the Infinite
And go under at last in the wrestle;
The wiser man shapes into God's good plan,
As the water shapes into a vessel.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

IN A LETTER printed to-day, "Betsy Jane Ann" raises some questions that are pertinent and of interest to all farm dwellers.

* * * * * * *

It would be presumptuous of me to endeavor to answer all of them, but I certainly do think every one is worthy of discussion by the neighbors, and I will be looking forward with interest to seeing your opinions.

* * * * * * *

The first question is: "Why should we keep books on a farm?" and I suggest that the same reason applies here as for the use of system in the home. It gives you an idea of where you are going.

* * * * * * *

No business man would think of starting the year without a budget. And if any "business" man remarks that he DOES run his business without a budget, I wish merely to remark that he is NOT a BUSINESS man.

* * * * * * *

I've seen too much of this haphazard financing to condone the "system" that lives only from day to day, without looking to the future or profiting by past experience.

* * * * * * *

You may think you know all about your farm or family business, but unless you keep books YOU DO NOT. There's no possibility of a successful challenge to this statement.

* * * * * * *

I know a business man who thought he knew it all. He "carried the facts in his head." He was finally persuaded to bring in an accountant, who speedily demonstrated that one of the two departments in the business was losing money steadily, and draining the other.

* * * * * * *

If you don't believe in keeping books, just get in touch with someone who does, and compare the knowledge you have of your farm affairs with hers—you'll be surprised!

* * * * * * *

I'm afraid the next question, about the farmer setting his own price, is too deep for my limited mind! It seems to me I have read somewhere about the law of supply and demand—but maybe it doesn't apply in this case.

* * * * * * *

After all, if the paper says the current price of a commodity is so-and-so, isn't it a guide to what you should give or receive.

* * * * * * *

Remember, "Betsy Jane Ann," I'm no financier. My opinion is founded on the opinion of the average untutored person. But I'll surely be glad to learn from you neighbors about this question.

* * * * * * *

The next question, "Should farm women milk cows?" is something I know something about—because I've milked cows, as many as nineteen in a string.

* * * * * * *

The city woman isn't expected to help her husband out in his manual labor; wouldn't be allowed to, in fact. Maybe that's not a reason.

* * * * * * *

But it IS sad to see so many farm women (I've seen them in the West) worn to rags through trying to carry on two jobs. They manage the house—and for cleanliness, neatness, and efficiency the farm home can still show the city home something—and tend the garden, and bring up children—and in addition they are expected to milk, separate, make butter, and even help with the haying.

* * * * * * *

Yes, I've pitched hay, and stooked grain behind a binder, and driven a team on a rake—and I think there is something wrong with the economics of farm life when women HAVE to do these things to make ends meet.

* * * * * * *

A day in summer for me was something like this (I wasn't the housewife, so didn't have to tend home): Rise at 5 a.m., and milk before breakfast; snatch breakfast and out to rake, hay or stook; maybe lunch in the field, if we were working far from the house—or a hasty trip home for lunch; out again to work until 6.30 or 7 in the field, and then back to milk and separate and feed the pigs and bed down the horses.

* * * * * * *

That's no life for a woman, even when she hasn't to look after meals and housework—but when she must do everything it's not a DOG'S life.

* * * * * * *

That's my opinion, and I'll look with interest for neighbors' ideas —with their solutions of the problem.

* * * * * * *

I wouldn't quibble about the next, provided a woman were relieved of doing the chores. Boarding a hired man is no worse than keeping boarders in the city, but if it is added to everything else the farm wife is expected to do, it is the last straw.

* * * * * * *

The answer to the question of electric power brings in economics again, on which I am not at all well up. It seems to me, though, the reason lies in the long transmission lines, without sufficient users per mile or yard, or however they count it, to make the line pay.

* * * * * * *

If sufficient women shout loud enough, though, a paternal government may arrange to give the farm women equality in this regard with her city sister.

* * * * * * *

My reply to the second-to-last question is emphatically "NO." It is the hardest life imaginable for a girl, with, alas! so often so little to show as results.

* * * * * * *

Given electricity, and a comfortable home, and sufficient revenue from the farm to hire men to do men's work, releasing the farm housewife from the deadly chores, farm life would be ideal.

* * * * * * *

But as conditions are now, the hardest, toughest, most unbearable job in the world is that of being a farm wife.

* * * * * * *

And that so many women are carrying on is a tribute to the sex.

* * * * * * *

The last question is impossibly absurd. The farmer's life is the hardest that MEN lead, just as the farmer's wife's is the hardest for women.

* * * * * * *

If there are any heroes and heroines in this modern Canada, comparable to the pioneers, they are the farmers and the farmers' wives.

* * * * * * *

System will help a great deal on the farm, but I doubt whether anything can ever take the hard work out of farming, so far as the men are concerned. Better prices for product would undoubtedly assist by enabling the farmers to hire adequate help.

* * * * * * *

And now, neighbors, what do YOU think? I'm delighted that "Betsy Jane Ann" brought up this subject for discussion. I'm sure thinking it over will do us all good. Let's hear from you!

OLD SONGS

A HANDFUL OF MAPLE LEAVES

(Contributed by "Lucinda.")

A Canadian maid in a village is seen,
With care on her fair young face,
For her lover has left her to fight for his Queen,
And his absence has saddened the place.
She prays for his safety in heaven above,
For her spirit is ill at ease
She gathers to send him with oceans of love,
A handful of Maple Leaves.

Chorus.

Leaves from the trees where they both used to roam,
Sent by his sweetheart from Home Sweet Home,
'Neath the Maples she lingers and grieves,
For hopes that have withered like the faded leaves.

A Canadian boy in South Africa lay,
With the mortally wounded men,
He sighs for his loved ones he left far away,
And his sweetheart he'll never see again.
He says to his friends I've received here today,
This memento from o'er the seas,
Place it here on my breast,
When you lay me to rest,
'Tis a handful of Maple Leaves.

WHILE SWINGING DOWN THE THE LANE

(Contributed by "Ella May.")

How oft we've talked of childhood days,
The tricks we used to play
Upon each other while at school,
To pass the time away.

The boys and girls would often go
Afishing in the brook
With spools o thread for fishing lines,
And bended pins for hooks.

They often wished me with them,
But they always wished in vain,
For I'd rather be with Rosie Nell,
A swinging in the lane.

But soon a cloud of sorrow came,
A strange young man from town
Was introduced to Rosie Nell
By Aunt Jermina Brown.

She stayed away from school next day
The truth to me was plain,
She had gone off with the city chap,
While swing ng in the lane.

So now young men with tender hearts,
Please take advice from me,
Don' be too quick to fall in love
With any girl you see.

For if you do you soon will find
You've only loved in vain,
For they'll go off with city chaps
While swinging in the lane.

THE DYING ENGINEER or THE WRECK OF THE No. 9

(Contributed by Elsker.)

On a cold winter night, not a star was in sight,
And the north winds were howling down the line;
With his sweetheart so dear, stood a brave engineer,
With his orders to pull old Number 9.
She kissed him good-bye, with a tear in her eye,
But the joy in his heart he could not hide;
For the whole world seemed bright,
When she told him that night,
To-morrow she'd be his blushing bride.

For the wheels hummed a song as the train rolled along,
And the black smoke came pouring from her stack;
But the headlight agleam, seemed to brighten his dream
Of to-morrow when he'd be going back.
She sped round the hill and his brave heart stood still,
For a headlight stared him in the face;
Then he whispered a prayer, as he threw on the air
For he knew this would be his final race.

In the wreck he was found, lying there on the ground,
They asked him to raise his weary head;
As his breath slowly went, this message he sent
To the maiden he thought he would wed:
"There's a little white home, I've bought for our own,
Where I dreamed we'd be happy by and by,
But I'll leave it to you, for I know you'll be true
Till we meet at the Golden Gates, good-bye."

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

SMALL AILMENTS MAY CAUSE DISABILITY

You are considering the purchase of an automobile. Perhaps you have been driving a certain type and as you think of trading it in for a new car you are in doubt as to whether to buy a car of the same make or another make entirely.

The car you have been driving has been satisfactory in many ways but one or two minor parts have given you trouble.

Now, if these troubles were of a minor nature why do you hesitate about buying one of the same make?

Because the service you have received from the agent has not been satisfactory. In other words, no matter whether your car is a Rolls Royce or a Ford it is the "service," the "servicing," that counts in your mind because you want your car to be ready for the road any time.

Now the only way you can get the most from your car is to let the agent who sold it to you take it in for "inspection" at regular intervals. He not only goes over the engine, which is the "heart" of the car, but he looks at the fan belt, carburetor, the tires, springs, steering apparatus, and all the other parts that have a bearing on the ability of the car to run well, and to run so that you are comfortable.

Now did it ever occur to you that if you are not feeling well, you go to your doctor and tell him about one organ; your stomach, your heart, your lungs, your head or some other one part. You are usually interested in one organ only.

If it is your heart about which you are concerned and your doctor tells you it is all right, you are greatly relieved and of course have a right so to feel.

However, your heart may be all right and yet any number of other things may be interfering with the "health running" of that body of yours, a slow intestine, bad teeth or tonsils, a sluggish liver, a "dropped" stomach, poor carriage of the body.

Now just as the engine of a car may be all right, but the car can be "stalled" or work poorly if the fan belt is loose, the carbureter has the wrong mixture, the tires carry insufficient air, and other "minor" conditions, so also can little troubles in that body of yours prevent you having perfect health. The lesson of course is that as you have your car inspected, so should you have your body completely inspected by your family doctor once or twice a year.

WISHES

By LEETE STONE

One early March morning a window near the top of the tall Wabash Building was pushed open and a very pretty, very tired face gazed out. The day was one of those forerunners of true springtime that insinuate into offices and winter-weary nerves and blood.

She looked out of the wide window, down on the red-tiled roof of the building next door, a pygmy edifice, mustering but twenty stories. Alice was tired of keeping books, tired of office routine, tired of the scrambling, shoving, brutal subway jam morning and evening, tired of returning to a dreary two-room flat night after night.

Where would it all end? In a balance at the bank, perhaps, that would save her, some day, from an Old Ladies' Home where the inmates knitted and crocheted and ate three times a day. Was that Life? Alice pondered the question.

True, there was the handsome, rugged young office manager, Sidney Jevons, courteous to all the girls, and, so it sometimes seemed to Alice, especially considerate of her; but then, he wasn't looking for a hard-working office girl. Gossip allied Jevons with the Treasurer's daughter, whose sable-wrapped figure was a familiar sight on this, the executive floor.

No, men today did not wish women to love them, mused Alice, eyeing a fleet of wheeling pigeons, animated specks against the sky; they wanted women of independent affluence and position whose social and financial prestige would aid their business climb. Her mind raced back to doll days and the childish game of Three Wishes. All three of Alice's wishes were for a real baby to croon to and play with—a baby that cried! Well, that was that!

Sighing, Alice raised a slim hand to close the window and saw Tommy on the red-tiled roof below. Tommy was in distress. Tommy was howling. Tommy was a real baby.

A girl of ten or so was hanging clothes on a line stretched from chimney to chimney on the roof, and five youngsters of assorted sizes and sexes were being admonished severely by ten-year-old Little Mother not to go near the wet sheets and dirty them. All the while wee Tommy howled.

Suddenly a bulging capacious female issued from the roof door and deposited a resounding slap on Tommy's round, red cheek.

Alice wanted to sit right down with Tommy next her heart and cry with him. Her sense of loneliness and heart hunger, her frazzled nerves, and the permeating presence of spring in the air all added their quota to her feeling.

"Anyway," Alice whispered, shutting the window, "I'll make that baby forget that slap—somehow!"

One later, warmer day when the window stayed open, Alice heard childish voices again floating in from the roof below. She listened.

"But didn't I told you I don't want a Teddy Bear? I wants a dolly—a squeezy dolly—I wants a—"

"You're a boy, ain't you, Tommy? Y'ought to be 'shamed to want a dolly. I want a dolly. I'm a girl! Y'ought to want a Teddy Bear. I ain't goin' to play Wishes with you no more, Tommy." Little Mother went to the other end of the roof.

Next day Alice watched and listened for the janitor's children on the red-tiled roof below her window. At last!

"No, Tommy, they ain't no such things as fairies. You're silly! Come on, let's play! Shut your eyes and make three wishes. I got something in my hand behind my back. Listen now! Don't go wishin' for no dollies."

"Tandy!" Tommy promptly shrieked, and little Mother poked a huge marshmallow between the rosy lips.

"I want a dolly—I want a dolly—I want a dol—" the baby insisted, as mastication permitted.

The psychological moment had arrived for Alice. Leaning far out of her window she took fair aim. Plop, fell something square on Tommy's fat legs. And plop! Another something fell right in Little Mother's lap.

Little Mother jumped up and searched the heavens high above and all sides with wide, ecstatic eyes. Cloudless skies, and the brick walls of a familiar building were all she saw. No sign of fairy, magic carpet, witch or goblin. But in her scrawny little arms a beautiful doll. And in Tommy's arms, short, pudgy and wonderstruck, a "squeezy" doll.

Neithe of the children could be told that these were painted toys from the shelf of a shop. No, indeed! These were real dollies to be loved, caressed and talked to, put to bed and taken up, kissed, scolded and adored. Fairies were real! They were the glorious creators of the game of "Shut Your Eyes and Make Three Wishes!"

• • •

"What in the world are you looking at so intently, Miss Arno?" said Sidney Jevons, the handsome office manager, coming to Alice's side as she stood a little back from the window, looking down.

"The two happiest children in New York," Alice quietly replied. "They believe in fairies—GOOD fairies. You see . . ."

"Yes," broke in Sidney Jevons, looking gently, steadily, and worlds deep into Alice's lovely coal-black eyes, "I saw! I saw many things. And I believe in you."

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Jevons named their first baby Tommy, instead of following the time-honored Jevons custom of calling the first son after the first son. They fostered his early faith in fairies and encouraged him to howl.

An egg-shel crepe de chine blouse was chosen to wear with this navy-blue wool crepe suit, worn with light beige fur scarf and felt hat.

The suit blouse seldom precisely matches the skirt with which it is worn this season. And yet it is chosen with as close regard to tone and color as though an exact match were desired.

White blouses and off-white blouses in various sorts of silk crepes and satins are considered appropriate for cloth suits and when you count the various nuances that are off white and find over two dozen, you see what a wide range of choice is before you. There are blue whites or the blue suit, egg-shell whites for brown or beige—or if you prefer you may wear the egg-shell tints with the blue suit.

Sometimes the blouse is darker than the suit—a decided blue blouse to wear with a light blue tweed sports suit—almost an orange to wear with pale yellow.

The increased interest in the little separate jacket or coat in resort wardobes planned for spring and summer has brought again into prominence the rather simple one-piece, straight-line frock of white or other neutral tone. Often these are sleeveless and they are worn beneath the figured or colored coats or jackets of silk, linen, cotton, retonne, calico. These little top coats or jackets are almost always made without linings.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

'Dear Marion:

I enjoyed 'Ella May's' letter with her suggestion that at housecleaning time we change things around a bit to vary the monotony of looking at the same furniture in the same place day after day. As she said, even changing curtains from one room to another helps. This suggestion may help some homemaker just beginning, to have her curtains hang straight after they are washed and ironed. I hang them on the line with the top and bottom edges pinned together so that the curtain forms a loop. This is also a good way to pin sheets and table clothes on the line to keep the edges straight. Then when the curtains are just dry enough to iron well, bring them in and fold in half lengthwise so that the edges are even and iron. If washing more than one pair of curtains at a time, I leave part of them in the rinse water so that they will not dry faster than I can iron them. I try if possible to take each curtain as I iron it to the window where I wish to hang it and place it on the rod. The crease caused by folding the curtains in half soon comes out and they do hang beautifully straight if ironed by this method.

Here's another suggestion for arranging your cooking materials on shelves in the cupboard or pantry. I use sealers that have a wee crack or chip so that they are useless for canning. In the one quarts I place rice, tapioca, icing sugar, raisins, currants and anything bought in fairly large quantity. I put the glass covers on them to keep out the dust, but not the rings. In pint sealers I store mustard, nuts, pepper, salt, etc., in half pint sizes or jars in which we buy jam or honey, I place spices of all kinds. The sealers placed in neat rows at the back of the shelves (I like fairly narrow shelves) can be easily seen and the front part of the shelf can be used for something lower. Labels are not necessary except for such things as icing sugar, cornstarch, etc.

This letter will be too long if I tell all I'd like to in advising the little lady with six babies who lives on a farm how to make her work easier, so I'll leave that for another time. Will the homemakers in the city pass on to the next letter while your country readers discuss such important problems as, "Why should we keep books on a farm?" "Why does not the farmer set his own price for farm produce instead of asking such questions as, 'What are you paying for eggs to-day?' or 'What does the paper say about the price of cattle?'" "Should farm women milk cows?" "Should they have to board a hired man, especially young mothers with a baby or two to care for?" "Why cannot the farmer's wife have electric power at the same rate as her sister in the city?" "Would you want your daughter to marry a farmer, unless customs continue to change so that she will not be expected to do all the things her husband's mother or her own mother did?" "Is the charge recently made by a man important among the new advisers of President Hoover that what their farmers need is hard work, true to this country?"

Now let us hear your opinions. Of course, he may have meant that they need to work hard mentally to plan how to make farming produce reasonable profits!

Betsy Jane Ann."

Yours are really splendid ideas for the home manager, "Betsy Jane Ann," and your questions are so pertinent that I will work them into a Whatnot in an effort to start discussion.

Thank you for your nice letter—and we'll all wish that you come again soon.

"Dear Marion:

I've read your Whatnots and various letters from neighbors but this is my initial letter. I'm not terribly interested in what the folks have to say, as I am a business girl and your articles do not have much for me.

What I want to say is that I congratulate you on your comments regarding those who read aloud in the theatres. This is a very annoying thing and theatre managers should take steps to stop it. I sometimes feel like telling people behind me that I can read.

Put a little pep into your Whatnots for you know we are not all "Housekeepers." With kind regards,

Oddity."

Well, well! Don't you expect to be a housekeeper sometime, "Oddity?" What do you wish me to write about? Shall I tell what I know of some of the younger set? That WOULD be peppy!

I've repeatedly asked you business girls to get started. I can assure you that if you once start the column I'll try to write a little article every day specially for you. Now YOU write about something that interests YOU, and I'll follow it up.

"Dear Marion:

I wonder if the Dutch Cheese Sally H asked for is the same as I make? Put sour milk on the back of the stove where it will be warm; leave until the curd separates from the whey. Put in a thin cloth and let drain until quite dry. Season with salt and pepper and add a little cream.

And this is for Pat: A couple of years ago I painted my cabinet (which was very dark) a cream color. I gave it several coats of just inside paint, three I think it was, and it lasted fine. I intend to go over it again this spring to touch up the edge. I was very pleased with the result. I think Pat could paint her cabinet to match the rest of her kitchen furniture all right. These new quick drying enamels are lovely I think.

I intended to send a couple of recipes but my small son is crying for bed so had better look after him. Wishing you continued success.

Sincerely,

Peggy."

Thank you for your helps, "Peggy" which I'm sure the neighbors will appreciate.

"Dear Marion:

I thought I might help Rose Ellen she does not say what kind of spots on the velvet goods, but this might help her and it won't harm the goods anyway. Sprinkle thickly white flour on the dress and leave overnight and gently brush with the nap in the morning until the flour is soiled.

I see a neighbor is asking for the words of the song, 'The Letter Edged in Black,' so I will enclose it.

I hope you still have some helps left as I am sending for some. I hope to see some patterns in The Examiner for children age 9, it seems so hard to get patterns to suit that age. I enjoy the neighbors' letter and get much help from them. The recipes are fine I have tried quite a few and I will enclose one for a Banana Pudding, the children enjoy.

This seems quite a long letter for a newcomer but also a well-wisher.

Mrs. Soft Voice."

Thank you for your nice letter, "Mrs. Soft Voice," and for the ideas. But you evidently forgot to enclose the recipe, which I'll be looking for soon. I'm glad you like our pages.

"Dear Marion:

Have been intending to send a reply to 'Leatherhead's' request for information regarding Northern Ontario. If I am too late, just discard this letter, Marion. We spent four years in Northern Ontario near Cochrane and have only been in South about a year, so perhaps I can tell her some of the conditions there.

I went North to take up my teaching in a small school, and my husband took up a timber lot. As it was impossible to get land near the railroad we later had to give this lot up. I found it a bleak country, 'Leatherhead,' but some people would live no where else. We were in an English community and if most of those farmers could have sold their property for anywhere near the amount expended in toil and improvements, they would not be there this minute. Some farmers are doing well, while others find it almost impossible to gain a bare existence. We became close friends with a young couple who had been on an excellent lot for five years, who never got a crop, and just had to leave everything and came to Southern Ontario to work a farm on shares. The chief drawback is the short season. I have seen beautiful fields of wheat in September which had to be harvested on sleighs, and useful only as poultry feed. This discourages the farmers dreadfully.

The winters are very severe, the school being closed through January and February. It is often stated that as the climate is dry one does not feel the cold. I certainly felt it on my ears and fingers on my way to and from school when about 40° below. We left the North mostly on account of my baby, as the cold is so intense and we were some miles from medical aid, and I really think that any one with children should hesitate before undertaking life in that clime.

Of course, it might prove to be just the life for you and your husband, and I must not discourage you utterly. I believe that the cities and towns are excellent for employment, and I sometimes wish that my husband had seen fit to find work in one of the Northern towns. The people are wonderfully friendly and there is always something interesting to do or see. The cost of living is much higher than here unless edibles have lowered in price.

Now, Marion, must state that daughter is coming along just beautifully and couldn't be much better. No more stormy scenes about paper clippings, has learned that she can not have the scissors unless every scrap is put away and the strap has only been used twice. You win, Marion.

Must close this disgracefully long letter.

Sincerely,

Canadian Mary."

I'm sure all the neighbors, and not only "Leatherhead," will be interested in reading your letter, "Canadian Mary." What you write is very informative. Thank you.

Marion

ALL SAINTS' PLAY IS WELL RECEIVED

Dramatic Club Presents Four Act Drama, "The Old Oaken Bucket"

WELL ACTED.

Play Will Be Repeated To-night and Friday Night in Parish Hall.

"The Old Oaken Bucket" is the appropriate title of a rural drama in four acts which is this season's effort of the Dramatic Club of All Saints' Church. Presented for the first time last evening in the Parish Hall, it will be the attraction again to-night and to-morrow night. Last evening, there was a good attendance of interested spectators who laughed and, if the loud blowing of noses is any sign, also wept a little, with the actors in the play.

It is evident that a great deal of time and care has been expended in the preparation of this attractive production. The settings, for instance, are far and away beyond the usual run of amateur plays and a clever hand can be seen in the little details which add so much to the interest of such productions. There is something extraordinarily real in the way the heavy snow falls outside the window in the third act, and anyone listening to the "clop clop" of the horse's hoofs as they approach the house in the opening scene, would swear the animal was passing along on the street outside. There is a great deal of reality also in the way the farmhouse breakfast is carried on. The back drop for the first act, representing a front dooryard to a country house, is very pleasing.

Well Acted.

Along with this professional attitude in the matter of "props" is a splendid type of acting that leaves little to be desired. Each person in the cast appears to be quite at home in the role assigned him or her, and language, diction, behavior and attire are made to correspond to the part portrayed. The members of the cast and their director, James Price, should be congratulated on the way they have entered into the spirit of this attractive drama of rural life. In the "weepy" scene in the third act, when the erring daughter comes home, there is a great deal of fine acting that gives the touch of realness once more to an old and well-known story.

Repeat Twice.

As the play has two repeat performances, it would not be in order to tell the story in its entirety. It revolves around a simple theme, the story of a country girl with ideas beyond her station in life. A travelling book agent promises her a different life and she goes away with him to encounter a mock marriage and consequent disillusionment. Wound up in the thread of the tale is the love story of her sister and a visiting artist and the rural atmosphere of the piece is rounded out by the inclusion of several minor actors who give the necessary touch of comedy to the story.

Miss J. Maconomy, as Lizzie Lawrence, the heroine of the tale, has the principal role and enacts it beautifully, proving herself to possess considerable histrionic ability in the difficult presentation of the third act. Miss G. Lucas is her sister, Emily Lawrence, otherwise known as Teddy, who also has a splendidly-enacted role. Mrs. E. LeBarr gives a fine presentation of the farm mother, Martha Hardacre, grey-haired and sweet-hearted, with a good word for all and a deft hand at cooking.

Miss D. Worboy is immense as Sapphira Scriggins, the village gossip, with a tongue that wags constantly. Miss Worboy gets many a well-deserved laugh in her presentation of this character, which is done with enthusiastic appreciation and a fine sense of the demands of an exacting role.

Minor feminine characters, coming in for the wedding scene, where a square dance provides amusement for the audience and the actors alike, are well done by Miss G. Smith as Mrs. G. Whillikins, who is very popular but not at all charitable, and Miss G. Dobbin as Miry Jones, the village belle.

Harry Carter, as Reuben Hardacre, a square, honest old farmer, has a difficult part, carried off beautifully, and Oswald Price as his son, Tom, "a chip off the old block," has another well acted role.

James Price is the tall Mary Hayward, "a wolf in sheep's clothing," and does the villainous stuff so well that everybody dislikes him immensely. He comes on again in a double performance, as Mr. G. Whillikens, a neighbor who visits the home for the wedding of Emily. Mr. Price is splendid in both instances.

"True Blue" Artist

James Morley has the contrasting part of a "true blue" artist, Arthur Ames, who is honorable at all times and gains the affection of the family and the audience by his good intentions. The role of the Rev. William Mason, the peacemaker, is taken by Mr. George East, who makes a splendid minister, and Homer Lundy is Ezrybab, the postmaster, who reads all the postal cards. J. Hope is the luckless and lazy Jake Tomkins, who loves Teddy, 'not wisely but too well" and who suffers a great deal of teasing because of his heart affliction. Mr. Hope makes this a most interesting bit, giving his portrayal a realness that proves him to be a very fine actor of character roles.

The four acts progress over a space of time two years in length, and have their setting in and around Reuben Hardacre's farm home. The costumes throughout give the necessary colorful touch and show again that attention to detail that means so much to any production. In fact, from beginning to end, "The Old Oaken Bucket" may be said sincerely to be one of the best directed and best acted amateur performances presented in the city this season.

James Price acts as director; Miss G. Dobbin, as stage manager; J. Morley, as business manager; Miss J. Maconomy, as treasurer; H. Lundy, as master of properties, and Mrs. E. Goodly, as musical directress.

Between acts, the church orchestra, led by Mrs. Goodley at the piano, gives some very bright and pleasing music, and there are several contributions from the cast also in the "country dance" scene, when Miss G. Dobbin recites briefly, J. Hope does a step dance and George East sings "The Vicar of Bray."

The name song of the play, 'The Old Oaken Bucket" is also splendidly rendered in one of the scenes, in George East's rich, deep tones.

The play will be repeated this evening and to-morrow night also in the parish hall.

During an intermission last evening, the director, James Price, extended thanks to all who had assisted in any way with the production, and to the audience for their patronage.

PRESENTS PLAY.

Comedy Staged Under Auspices of Womens Patriotic League of Ashburnham.

Under the auspices of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, the delightful three act comedy, "The Bride Breezes In," was presented by Young Peoples Club of Trinity United Church in the hall of Collegiate Institute, last evening. There was an attendance of over four hundred people and much interest was manifest in the efforts of the actors, all of whom took their parts in excellent fashion. There are many amusing situations in this comedy, which is directed in splendid fashion by Wilfrid Derry, with Harold Rehill as stage manager. As the performance last evening was a repetition of the same play, about two weeks ago, a bare outline of the plot will be sufficient.

It revolves about a complication in which a wealthy heiress, disguised as a maid, visits her guardian's home and falls in love with his secretary. Those taking part are the Misses Jean Padget, Lyda Wilson, Nellie Carter, Alma Blanchard, Edna Forrester, and Messrs. James Reeve-Newson, John Krogh, George Nicholls and William Fanjoy.

The orchestra of Trinity Church assisted with the production last evening, playing very fine music. Its personnel includes Messrs. Vigo Dennison, Even Quist, Art Knott and George Coleman.

His Worship Mayor Denne opened the evening's program with a brief speech, extolling the efforts of the Women's Patriotic League, promising them the support of the City Council and asking the audience to assist them in every possible way.

During intermissions, a charming vocal solo was given by Miss Helen Lytle and little Sophie Yeotes danced a graceful number, a 'Pansy' dance from the forthcoming 'Y' Pageant program. Sophie Yeotes, Berta Belleghem and Isabel Butcher also appeared as a pretty trio, with a banner advertising the 'Y' Pageant.

OLD SONGS

I HAD BUT FIFTY CENTS

(Contributed by "Shirley.")

I took my girl to a fancy ball,
It was a social hop.
We waited till the folks went out,
And the music it did stop.
Then to a restaurant we went,
The best one on the street.
She said she wasn't hungry,
But this is what she ate:
A dozen raw, a plate of slaw
A chicken and a roast,
Some sparrowgrass an apple sass,
And softs' ell crabs on toast
A big box stew and crackers too,
Her appetite was immense—
When she called for pie, I thought I'd die,
For I had but fifty cents.

She said she wasn't hungry,
She did'nt care to eat,
But I've got money in my clothes,
To bet she can't be beat.
She took it all so cozy,
She had an awful tank,
She said she wasn't thirsty,
But this is what she drank:
A whisky skin, a glass of gin,
It made me shake with fear,
A ginger pop with rum on top,
A schooner then of beer,
A glass of ale and rum cocktail
She ought to have more sense—
When she called for more,
I fell on the floor,
For I had but fifty cents.

ENGLISH NIGHT.

Social Affair Held Under Auspices of All Saints' A. Y. P. A.

On Monday evening the members and friends of All Saints' A.Y.P.A. held a very enjoyable English night with a program of music and contests. Assisting in the program was Miss Isobel Young, recitations; Miss Vera Downer, violin selections; Mrs Stanley Willis and Delbert Lucas in vocal numbers. Miss Marguerite Rome as accompanist. Refreshments were served and a pleasant English evening brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

PLEASING CONCERT.

Affair Staged Under Auspices of May Home and School Association.

Arranged by the Harmonica Band of the Kiwanis Club, a very successful concert was staged last night in May's Schoolhouse, under the auspices of the May Home and School Association. The affair was attended by a capacity audience of nearly two hundred people, and the proceeds of the collection, amounting to about $25.00, will be used to improve the school's playground.

Bert May occupied the chair and announced the numbers of a very interesting entertainment which was featured by the old-time music of the Harmonica Club, playing with its usual vim and melodious harmony, and assisted by Mr. Poole at the piano. Other selections which were received with the same degree of enthusiasm which greeted the efforts of the harmonica players were those of T. Stazicker, heard in vocal numbers, Miss Isabel Thomson, sword dance, Miss Kathleen Prout, piano selections, the Misses Huffman, Scholey and Clark, in readings, William Thomson, Scotch impersonations, J. John, readings, and little Orval Wainman, in songs, dances and mouth-organ selections.

The Rev. J. D. Paterson also gave a brief, pithy address dealing with the Home and School movement and the three things which it has accomplished in bringing the parents together in the same way that the school brings the children together; in affording a check-up by the parents on the trustees, the teachers and the school building, and in effecting a mutual benefit when the parents co-operate to see that no child is allowed to be of the underprivileged type.

At the conclusion of the concert, a sumptuous and well served supper was served to all those taking part in the program, in charge of the members of the Home and School Association, assisted by the teachers of the school. Mrs. A. Pearson, president of the society, supervised the arrangements. A hearty vote of thanks to the artists and speaker was moved by John Barns and seconded by William Dummitt.

PARTY CRITICS ARE ANSWERED IN FINE ADDRESS

record bears comparison with any previous one.

"The policy of sobriety in nursing trade into better conditions, looking after education and health, which we can see through, is a policy going into every home and cottage in the country and it will be carried to the utmost limit" he declared. "Our people in this country are a very great people. There is a new spirit abroad in the land. People who think pre-war electioneering is going to win a post-war election are making a mistake. Our people think."

"We cannot live in a world to ourselves alone and to use a realization of that which will make our people deaf to appeals of cupidity that will reach them on the one hand, or those of credulity offered to them on the other."

Coming to the development of the colonies about which it had been confidently predicted the Prime Minister would have something to say, Premier Baldwin remarked: "I do not use the phrase 'development of the Empire' because the Dominions are self-governing and our great contribution to that can be made by giving them the best of our people. Our contribution can be made by arranging with them such terms of preference as we can. The whole Empire is under our direct responsibility and none of us is quite satisfied with the progress we have made. Our preoccupations at home have been very heavy these years.'

"I have tried to show you we have been pursuing for some years past a consistent policy aimed at development of our own industries and the placing in them of men in permanent employment, and that we have not neglected any of these services making for the happiness and welfare of our own people," the Prime Minister declared. "You may judge us by what we have done. You may judge us by this—that we do not promise more than we can perform."

Replying to a vote of thanks which expressed the firm conviction that the Conservative party under his leadership would again achieve victory, Premier Baldwin said: "The battle has begun. Money, noise and posters count for a lot in elections, but the two things that count most are unity and faith, and we have both."

Disclaims Snowden.

Political circles opposed to Ramsay MacDonald and the Labor party to-day charged that although the former Premier had "thrown overboard" Philip Snowden his repudiation had failed to clear a situation which was compromising in the extreme for his party.

MacDonald, in a speech in the Commons last night, disclaimed any intention of "repudiating" the Balfour note or other British debt agreement covenants, as Snowden, who was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Labor Cabinet, had said the Labor party held itself open to do. MacDonald said, however, the agreement were subject to revision.

The sensation created by Snowden's threat, made in the course of an attack Tuesday on Winston Churchills budget proposals, to repudiate the agreements which set the debts of France and Italy to England at only an amount necessary to cover British indebtedness to America, continued unabated with general acceptance it would cut a figure in the impending national elections, May 30.

Liberals, although they always disapproved of Premier Baldwin's debt arrangement, joined with the government and Conservative leaders in denouncing the idea of "repudiation." Walter Runciman, who is acting Liberal leader in the Commons in the absence of David Lloyd George, told the House last night his party wishes to make it clear that it would not depart from a doctrine of continuation of contractual International obligations, however much they might disapprove othe terms.

LOCAL SOCIETY HEARS ADDRESS

Mrs. George Dibble Addresses April Meeting of W.C.T.U.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK.

The ladies of the local W.C.T.U. held their regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. with a very large attendance.

This meeting was honoured by the presence of the visiting Evangelists, Rev. George Dibble, Mrs. Dibble and Harold Mustaine the pianist of the party.

The large assembly rose to greet the visitors upon their arrival and Mrs. Cunningham, the president, welcomed them in person.

Mr. Dibble expressed his delight at being in Canada with his party who were singing and preaching in St. James United Church. He was very pleased to attend this meeting of women, who were interested in and working for so great a cause.

His last appeara. e at a W.C.T.U. meeting was in Cleveland, Ohio, from which he carried many pleasant memories.

Another meeting he recalled was the great W.C.T.U. convention held in Atlanta, Georgia, where he was assistant pastor in a Baptist church.

Mr. Dibble sang the sweet old hymn "I'm a child of the King." His next selection he said was a reminder of the day with its mingled clouds and sunshine. "Morning" by Ollie Steck.

He also sang a southern song, appropriate to the work, "The Brewer's Big Horses."

Mrs. Dibble was introduced and spoke of her pleasure in being present and touch so many lives of members belonging to all churches. She has learned to love the Canadian people, and has greatly enjoyed her stay in this city.

Great Organization

Next to the church she believes if there is one organization worth while it is the W.C.T.U. She too recalled attending other meetings. One was just after Mr. Hoover had been elected President of the United States. The meeting was one of rejoicing at the choice of the people and she felt sure that Canadians also rejoiced with them, because of its direct influence upon the liquor question. She appealed to the women present to pray for the President of the United States that he may succeed in his efforts for this cause. In trying to decide upon a message that would be helpful and profitable, her mind had been directed to the sixth chapter of St. Luke's Gospel, upon which she based her short but interesting address, "Jesus went up a mountain to pray"—what a wonderful rebuke to those who think they can succeed in home, in business, in pleasure, without prayer! You W.C.T.U. women know that Jesus prayed about everything.

He came down with the multitude following him because this was the day of His popularity. Some came from sheer curiosity, and there were some who came because they loved him. He looked over this great crowd. It was from them He must choose those he wanted to help Him. He must have those who will be true and faithful to carry on His work for though we are entirely dependent upon God, and without Him we are absolutely helpless. He too is dependent upon us. If we fail, He too, in a sense, fails. "I can imagine" she said, "hearing Jesus call them out by name, and telling them the task would not be easy, for He never deceived any one. Some were holding back, and God never chooses those who do not wish to come. Just so he is choosing his helpers to-day. And women, don't think the battle is won. Mothers, do not fail in teaching your boys and girls in the home, drinking, smoking and reading, impure literature, is your battle. There never was a day of so many subtle temptations to lure our young people. God pity the woman who lowers the standard of womanhood. And bless the woman who stands firm against any and everything that will lower it."

She gave all present an invitation to attend the meetings in St. James and closed her splendid message with prayer.

After the Dibble party had departed a hearty vote of thanks to them was placed on record by the organization, and the meeting closed with the ode, and prayer was offered by Mrs. Coon.

"I think it only right to let you know of the wonderful benefit my wife has received from your Kruschen Salts. She had rheumatic fever in 1911, and was left a cripple by it till 1913, when I was advised to try Kruschen. I thought it a waste of money at the time, as I had tried almost everything. I got a bottle from our druggist. Within a month she was better, and can now walk as well as anyone. This is no bunkum, as all people in this place know. We are always telling people about it." —E. The Music Teacher - By FANNIE HURST

THE music teacher was seventy-three. She was a little old lady. She had not always been so little. As a girl, she had been at least an inch or two taller. These added inches, coupled with an enormous amount of vitality, had made her appear larger than she really was. But the long years of position at the piano and the amount of work she had done sitting hunched over musical scores, had taken their toll in actual inches. At seventy-three, she was frankly full of years; bent, loose-skinned and, worst of all, racked and all but ruined by rheumatism.

Her once supple fingers were as knotted as hickory sticks. They lay upon the keys, when she permitted herself to open the lid of her beloved piano, like so many lumps of inertia. Horrible, gnarled, stiff old fingers, knotted and rigid with age. In the beginning, when the rheumatism began its first merciless onslaught, the madam used to have a horror of her hands. She could not bear to look at them. She kept them behind her when visitors called.

But there came the day when she found herself obliged to be reconciled; to shift her point of view, to take up the new threads of a new life.

FOR ten years the little madam had now reconciled herself to the fact that she must live off the bounty of her former pupils. And they were many. In her day, the music teacher had enjoyed brilliant and outstanding success in her field. Names that were to become world-famous had walked out of her studio, equipped for the concert stage. From all over the country children had journeyed to her, accompanied by parents or guardians, filled with the hope that the little madam would see in them talent sufficient to warrant her taking them as pupils.

The great Moritzy had been prepared for his triumphant career in madam's studio. Lilienthal, Mann, Forenzi, Lanz and Spamer were all of the brilliant company of madam's pupils. She had worked with them with a patience, with an understanding and with a wisdom that was unfaltering. Her hour lessons could easily stretch into two or three or five. And in the case of Spamer, probably the most infallible genius of them all, she had taken him free of fee into her home, under the surveillance of her constant guidance, her untiring patience.

NO wonder that, at seventy-three, madam looked her age. She had fought so many separate battles. She had achieved so many individual successes. She had conquered obstacles for so many human beings. She had given of herself, of her vitality and of her time; of her wisdom and of her curious musical instinct.

It was as if she had been a well of inspiration and vitality—a well of inspiration from which those with the genius of music could drink. Could drink, and then go forth and conquer their worlds.

Madam herself had never been a brilliant piano performer. But she was undoubtedly the most brilliant teacher of her time. She did not play Brahms with any outstanding facility, but she knew his heart to the core. Forenzi once said of her that she knew Beethoven better than Beethoven could have known himself.

She had a wonderful faculty for passing on this knowledge of the masters she loved—to the pupils she loved. She could train fingers and brains and hearts to interpret the beauties which the great musicians of the past had captured for the future by means of little marks on paper. Madam could interpret the soul of music and could give her pupils, in magnified degree, this gift of interpreting its seal.

Though her own fingers, even in her prime, had never had the facility, the power, to transfer to the keyboard of a piano the depths of the music she studied and loved, her brain had the faculty of giving others the gift she lacked.

No wonder her former pupils never forgot her. She made them. She created them. She lived in them, long after her active life was ended.

ON her seventy-third birthday, as was their wont, as many of her former pupils as were within possible distance, gathered around her. The birthday of madam was an outstanding occasion. Not only her pupils, but the important names of the musical world, came flocking to her little home, bearing gifts of affection for the little lady whose day had passed.

No wonder she looked her age. She had fought so many separate battles. She had achieved so many individual successes. She had conquered obstacles for so many human beings. She had given of herself, of her vitality and of her time. No wonder she looked her age.

Of course there was something pathetic and heart-hurting about these birthdays. Each one found her a little smaller and a little more gnarled and a great deal more crippled. She never referred to this last condition, but those who knew her knew with what yearning eyes she gazed upon the young proteges and musical talents who were brought to her home from time to time just to be able to say that they had looked upon and met the great little madam.

IT was difficult to realize, upon these birthday occasions when the world remembered, the lonely, despairing three-hundred-sixty-four days that preceded them. Here was a woman whose life had been crammed to the hilt. Not with lovers. Not, strangely enough, with the adulation of men. But with the devotion and crying need of hundreds of human beings who looked to her for the fulfillment of their destinies.

Her own life had been crammed with the task of creating other lives, of moulding them into success, of bringing out in them talents and genius in order that they might shower the beauties of talent and genius upon the world.

It was not easy after years filled with this kind of accomplishment to sit back, old and gnarled and helpless, in an easy chair, waiting. Because that was what it practically amounted to, those three-hundred-sixty-four days of the year when madam's world was too busy to pause at her door. Checks came from her erstwhile pupils, gifts and sometimes letters, but for three-hundred-sixty-four days in the year she was practically alone, waiting for the one day when they remembered to come.

AND this one day was all too brief. It began in a shower of flowers. It ended in the adieus, blessings and the many happy returns of friends and benefactors of her wisdom who loved her. But almost before the door closed on the last of them, the waiting began again.

And yet, in a way, the little madam, who hated to be alone, would begin to console herself the very first night of the three-hundred-sixty-four that stretched ahead of her.

How wonderful it was to be able to sit there. Lonely? Yes. Locked with rheumatism? Yes. But secure and radiant in the knowledge that, even as she sat there, hundreds of her pupils were spreading abroad over the world some of the beauty which she had inculcated in them.

LEAFS SWAMP ORIOLES IN OPENING GAME

GUY CANTRELL PITCHES CLUB TO 10-2 WIN

Joe Rabbitt Leads Assault Against Orioles, Accounting For Four Runs.

SMART BASEBALL.

Chilly Weather and Other Attractions Keeps Gate Receipts Down.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 18.—(Canadian Press).—Steve O'Neill, popular member of Dan Howley's 1928 Toronto champions, made a most auspicious start in the role of manager when he piloted the leafs to a 10-2 victory over Baltimore in the opening game of the 1929 International League campaign here yesterday. Cloudy skies, a high and cold wind, the Havre De Grace races and the American League opening at Washington kept the attendance for the blow-off down to some 2,500 incurable fans, but the faithful few who turned out had the pleasure of seeing a smartly played baseball game, from the Leafs point of view.

Behind some de luxe pitching by Guy Cantrell, who toiled for the Orioles last season and who was made a free agent by Commissioner Landis this spring, the Leafs played spectacular ball at the bat and in the field to down Fritz Maisel's white clad men.

Joe Rabbitt led the withering assault on the Baltimore pitchers for the Leafs. The Omaha flash blasted the ball into the right field bleachers for three home runs, and altogether accounted for four of the ten runs. Cantrell hit one into the same place with none on bases and in no small measure helped to destroy the morale of Maisel's men.

KEYS WALLOP ROCHESTER

READING, April 18.—(Canadian Press)—Reading wallopped Rochester, 1928 International champions, in the opening game of the season here yesterday, 14 to 6. The game was played in freezing temperature under cloudy skies and only 2,300 attended.

The Keys pounded four Rochester pitchers for 18 hits, while John Welch and Sterling Stryker allowed only 13. Stryker gave up one hit in the final three frames after Welch was driven out of the box. Art Reinhart, former St. Louis Cardinal left-hander, was pounded hardest by the keys. He allowed ten hits and seven runs in the initial four innings.

BEARS LOSE OUT 8-5

NEWARK, April 18.— (Canadian Press). — Back in a minor league uniform for the first time in 21 years, the veteran, Tris Speaker, led his Newark Bears into action in the International League opener yesterday, but could not save them from defeat.

Taking a blow in the box office as well as the box score, Speaker and his mates were beaten, 8 to 5, by a hardhitting Montreal aggregation before an opening-day crowd which a biting wind and overcast skies held down to 11,500, or a little more than half the capacity of the stands. War clubs of the Royals battered out 11 resounding hits, including a homer and a three-bagger and the skies rained ice water from time to time.

Cincinnati Reds Even Count With St. Louis

CINCINNATI, April 18 (Canadian Press).—Pounding Sherdel hard, the Cincinnati Reds evened matters with St. Louis by winning yesterday, 8 to 3. Donohue kept the Cardinals' hits scattered.

The Reds, who last year set a new record of 194 double plays, started their assault on their own mark with three double killings yesterday, which materially aided in their victory. Bottomley laced a home run into the bleachers. The bases were empty at the time.

Mackmen On Rampage; Browns Again Victors

WASHINGTON, April 18. — The Athletics ran roughshod over the Senators here yesterday to win the delayed opening game of the American League season by 13 to 4.

The Athletics pounded Jones and Braxton for all of their runs in the first five innings, Liska stopping the slaughter in the sixth. The Senators found Yerkes for their four runs in the first two innings, but thereafter Rommel was a puzzle.

PILES GO QUICK

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

SPRINTER TIES FORMER RECORD

Percy Williams Again Defeats Johnny Fitzpatrick at Ottawa.

PHIL EDWARDS A VICTOR.

(By Edwin S. Johnson, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, Ont., April 18. — The cream of Canada's track luminaries launched a savage foray against existing records at the indoor race meet here last night, but the competitors failed in their determined quest. Two Canadian marks were equalled and it fell to the honor of Percy Williams, the marvel of Vancouver, and Miss Ethel Catherwood of Toronto, to record these achievements.

Williams, in a 50 yard invitation dash against Johnny Fitzpatrick of Hamilton and Jimmy Ball, Winnipeg, dashed across the boards on winged feet to equal the indoor mark for this distance in 5 1-5 seconds. Williams was a trifle slow in breaking at the starter's gun, and to this circumstance he can probably attribute failure to establish a new Dominion record.

Fitzpatrick broke away fast, but the fleet Williams had drawn abreast of him at the 25 yard mark. He then unleashed the full burst of the speed for which he is noted, and broke the tape with alead of nearly a yard over the Hamilton boy, Ball, who was making his debut as a sprinter, greatly enhanced his reputation as an all-round track star, and finished less than a yard in the wake of Fitzpatrick.

Equals Record.

Despite a slight muscle strain, sustained in the Montreal meet, Miss Catherwood demonstrated her supremacy as a high jumper. She cleared the bar gracefully at 4 feet 11 5-8 inches to equal the present indoor record, but failed to better the performance on three successive attempts.

In the other events, the Canadian Olympic stars also dominated the spotlight. Phil Edwards, the dusky middle-distance runner, literally burned up the track to capture the 800 yards event. In a field of six he lapped four of the competitors and breezed across the finishing line more than a hundred yards ahead of W. Tate, of Ottawa. Fitzpatrick, in winning the final of the 50 yard open dash, was never extended, and his time of 5 2-5 seconds was slower than the mark he set in his preliminary heat.

Makes Good Showing.

Miss Myrtle Cook of Toronto, who established a new Canadian indoor record for the 50 yard dash at Montreal, withdrew from the local sprint. She gave as her reason a slight indisposition, but later in the evening acceded to the insistence of the crowd and raced with her team mates of the Toronto Olympics to an easy victory in the ladies' relay event. The Ottawa quartette gained second place when Gwen Nye, running in third position for the Hamilton entry, slipped as she rounded a bend. Miss Nye was running under a distinct handicap, as she injured her foot badly in a preliminary heat of the ladies' 50 yard dash.

Johnny Fitzpatrick, Williams, Ball and Edwards, gave a phenomenal display, and Edwards as anchor man particularly finished in a walk to win by more than 50 yards over an all-star Ottawa team. No time was announced for this event.

The final of the ladies' 50 yard dash was won by Miss Kay Griffiths in a stirring battle with Jane Bell and Ethel Hogarth. All are members of the Toronto Olympic team.

CIRCUIT CLOUTERS.

Earl Averill took the Inter-League lead in home runs by hitting his second circuit blow in two days of big time play at Cleveland yesterday. The other home run hitters of yesterday entered a tie with Charlie Gehringer of Detroit and Chick Hafey of St. Louis for runner-up honors, each having one. The home runs yesterday follow:

Hornsby Clouts Homer To Aid Cubs Win 13-2

CHICAGO, Ills., April 18. (Canadian Press). — The Cubs hit four Pittsburg pitchers hard yesterday to win the second game of the series by 13 to 2. Rogers Hornsby capped the Chicago attack with a home run in the eighth inning with three Cubs on the bases. Perce Malone pitched for Chicago and Remy Kremer started for the Pirates. Pittsburg failed to score until the ninth.

ORGANIZATION MEETING IS CALLED FOR CITY LEAGUE

Promising Season Looked Forward To By Officials of Loop.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Possibility May Be Extra Team Added to the Bantam Series.

Despite the fact that actual baseball competition is at a standstill it is a time of considerable activity for all league officials and those who are otherwise connected in sponsoring the different leagues. Memories of dashing hockey matches and skiing trips crammed with incidents are forgotten in the bustle of enthusiasm which accompanies the first glimpse of the drying ball diamonds.

There is much to look forward to locally as far as this favorite summer pastime is concerned with the city baseball league occupying an important place in the program of city's sports affairs.

Extra Bantam Team

A meeting of this league has been called for Monday night, to be held in the board room of Duffus Recreation Academy at 8 p.m. to outline plans for the coming season. The circuit will likely be composed of the same sections that comprised last year's league with the one more team may be added to the bantam series.

There is every reason to believe that the league will be successful this year as it was last and the officials of the loop stress the importance of everyone interested in this league especially the teams' representatives should make it a point to attend this meeting when the election of officers will take place along with a general discussion the coming season's activities.

HARRY HILL WINS CROWN

British Fighter Beats Belanger in Titular Bout at Montreal.

LEO ROY FOULS COHEN.

MONTREAL, Que., April 18. — (Canadian Press)—A new Canadian flyweight champion was crowned here last night when Harry Hill, a British boxer, but now a resident of Montreal, took a 10-round decision from Frenchy Belanger, of Toronto. Hill's victory was well-earned, and he was given the unanimous decision of two judges and referee Bert Light.

Hill's victory came in the nature of a surprise to the fans, as prior to last night Hill had never met a high-class opponent on this side of the water. In last night's bout, however, the clever little Britisher showed determination and aggressiveness. He was cleverly outpointed by the champion in the first three rounds, but from then on fought toe to toe with his opponent and piled up a point majority through his superiority at open boxing.

Loses On Foul

In the semi-windup, Leo "Kid" Roy, of Montreal, the Canadian featherweight champion, lost on a foul in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round bout, to Jackie Cohen, of New York. The bout was a non-titular affair. Up until the time of the low blow, it was a clever fight, with honors about even. When the bout was stopped by referee Bert Light there was little advantage to be claimed by either fighter. They set a fast pace throughout, and both fighters absorbed a vast amount of punishment. Roy looked better at infighting, while Cohen appeared to have a slight advantage at the more open style of battling.

In the best of the preliminaries, Arthur Roger, local bantamweight, earned the decision over Joe Villeneuve, Canadian bantamweight champion.

Roger just failed to make weight or another title would have changed hands. Roger outpointed Villeneuve in each round of the six-round encounter.

In the other preliminaries, Billy Ayrton of Toronto was given the decision over Lucien Gariepy of Montreal, and Edouard Peyarcde, Argentine fighter, won on a foul from Larry Marinucci, who substituted for Johnny Morris, who was originally scheduled to meet the South American battler.

Crowder Goes Route; Browns Take Second

ST. LOUIS, April 18. — Alvin Crowder, the American League's leading pitcher in 1928, won his first game of the season yesterday and the St. Louis Browns bagged their second consecutive victory over the Chicago White Sox 5 to 3.

Crowder allowed ten hits, but was effective in the pinches and was given excellent support. The Browns made three double plays. Clancy, first baseman, drove in all three runs for Chicago with a single and a homer, the latter with one on. Blue, Brown first sacker, got four singles in as many times at bat.

Bengals Drub Indians; Holloway Driven Out

CLEVELAND, April 18. — George Uhle, former ace of the Cleveland staff, came back against his old mates yesterday and pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 15 to 3 victory over the Indians. Ken Holloway, who came to Cleveland in the deal that sent Uhle to Detroit, started the game for the Indians, but was batted from the box in the second inning.

The Tigers got 18 hits off Holloway and Farrell and Grant, who followed him.

Earl Averill, Cleveland's $45,000 recruit outfielder, hit his second home run in two days.

At a recent swimming meet held at the New York Athletic Club, Walter Spence, who represented Canada at the Olympics, won the individual swimming championship of the United States, defeating the favorite, Walter Laufer, in the 500 yard event. Austin Clapp of Stanford University, took second place in the event.

Laufer had a chance to tie Spence's score at the start of the 120 yard backstroke, but could not make the pace.

The standings of leading competitors in this meet were as follows: Spence, unattached, 19 points; Laufer, Lake Shore A.C., Chicago. 17; Riley, Los Angeles A.C., 10; Kojai New York Boys' Club, 10.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR ORGANIZING SOFTBALL LOOP

Winners of Three Sections Presented With Trophies, Cups and Shields.

JOLLY AFFAIR.

Another Meeting For Purpose of Forming League Will Be Held Monday Night.

The successful teams in the City Church Hockey League were crowned champions and fittingly honored at a banquet tendered by the league executive in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The winners in the three sections: Junior, All Saints; juvenile, All Saints, and midget, Mark street, were presented with their trophies, cups and shields. It was the final chapter in a most successful season and nearly fifty boys sat down to the banquet board.

Showing that the executive is wide awake to their responsibilities of directing sports for the youth the meeting was only concluded after definite plans for a softball league during the summer were launched.

In presenting the shield to the Mark street team, Midget champions, A. Hope dwelt on the fact that the championship was only won because these boys co-operated as a team and he pointed out that co-operation is needed in gaining success in the battle of life L. Agnew, coach of the team, accepted the cup for Mark Street, promising that every effort would be made to win it next year again. The members of the team were: Carlisle Ferguson, Melville Hunter, David Peters, Norman Calladine, Jack Gardiner, Clarence Lipsett and John Hill

Chris Sproal, vice-president of the league, congratulated the All Saints' Juveniles on winning the cup and presented the trophy, which was accepted for the team by Clifford Cadd, captain. The members of the Juvenile champions are: Leslie Patterson, Stanley Clarke, Gerald Wood, Arnold Sanderson, James Price, Clifford Cadd, Roy Hope, Kenneth Hetherington and Jack Richardson, with Fred Dyer as manager.

The honor of presenting the shield to the Junior champions, All Saints, fell fittingly upon Howard Hall, who for many years was actively engaged in renewing the scope of Church League hockey. The shield was accepted by Raymond Frost, the captain. The team of champions consists of: Arnold Reynolds, William Hope, Gordon Young, Raymond Frost, Oswald Price, James Murphy, Arthur Rightmeyer, James Marchen, Jack Hope was their coach.

John Ward, the president, filled the chair, leading in the many rollicking songs. He presented a shield to the Park Street Juniors, champions in that section last year, and the trophy was accepted by James McCullough.

The president introduced the subject of softball, which was enthusiastically taken up by the boys. It is likely that there will be a junior section for boys under twenty and a juvenile section for those under sixteen. Another meeting for the purpose of organizing the league is planned for Monday night at 7 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

BELGIAN PLANE MISSING.

BRUSSELS, April 18 (Canadian Press).—The Belgian aviator Thieffry and passengers aboard his plane were reported missing to-day after a crash at Kibanga Bay, Belgian Congo. Gastuche, mechanic, was found unconscious, and ignorant of the fate of his companions, by natives. Thieffry recently failed in an attempt to fly from Belgium to the Congo.

EXHIBITION NOTES

One of the requests which President Roland Denne was most interested in making at last night's meeting of the Exhibition Board, was for the whole-hearted co-operation of the Board with the Old Home Week committees. "We want your assistance generally, and with your experience in handling the Exhibition, you can help us a lot," declared the Mayor. His request met with a hearty response from everyone present.

Discussion was lagging when Reg. Turner introduced the matter of securing a prominent man to officially open the 1929 Exhibition. He was given immediate attention that increased to astonishment when he declared that an even better drawing card than the Premier would be to secure the one and only Orval Shaw

"Try and get him!" came back Bill Merrill, as the laughter subsided. And, later, when he tried to make a hasty exit at the close of business, someone warned him that he would thus forfeit his $5.00. Mayor Roland Denne smiled with the rest.

Among several suggestions that met with approval at the meeting, was that made in the form of a motion by Directors Routley and Matchett, that the Provincial Government be invited to send its exhibition of English pheasants and prize birds, and that the Dominion Government also be asked to send an exhibit. The motion carried.

That "barnyard golf," or in other words, horseshoe pitching, will again be a feature attraction with more extensive competitions to cover four days of the Exhibition, was the outcome of Arthur Moffat's attendance at the meeting. Last year, as he explained, the Kiwanis club had sponsored the competition which had attracted many people during the two days that it was carried on, but he thought that this new department should come under the Exhibition Board rather than the Kiwanis club. President Denne's explanation that at present every member of the board has his work cut out, and his request that Mr. Moffat again take charge with a committee of his own choosing, to operate with the backing of the Exhibition Board, cleared the situation, and Mr. Moffat agreed to work along these lines.

Looking For a Thrill Holds Up Storekeeper

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 18.—(C.P.)—Ross Ganton, 18, member of the Sault Ste Marie Greyhound hockey team, is in jail in the Michigan Soo, facing a charge of attempted robbery while armed. Ganton, it is alleged, held up Speros Tampas in his store but fled when Tampas wife and some friends appeared from a tea room.

Ganton, with a reputation here of being a model youth who "doesn't smoke, drink or swear," told Chief of Police Herbert L. White that he held up Tampas for the thrill. He did not need the money.

To care for the increasing radio traffic the Government of the Netherlands has constructed a large receiving station to replace that at Meyendel.

AT THE CAPITOL

TO-NIGHT THE CAPITOL OFFERS ANOTHER BIG KNOCK-OUT SHOW. THE GREAT MYSTERY PLAY WITH LAURA LAPLANTE "THE LAST WARNING" ON THE SCREEN AND "THE MASKED HERCULES", THE 20TH CENTURY SUPER-MAN ON THE STAGE.

Another big knock out shows is being offered at the Capitol the last three days of this week commencing to-day. On the stage will be seen "The Masked Hercules", the 20th century super-man, one of the world's strongest giants, in whose hands iron bars are as pieces of wire. This is an act different from anything seen locally before. The Toronto Star has this to say about it: "A most unusual performance of strength and endurance. Original and different from anything that we have ever seen."

Ooooo! Oooo-o-o-o-o-o-o-o-o "The Last Warning" is at the Capitol Theatre, with Laura La Plante in the starring role.

It is a riot from start to finish. All the ghostly things that can happen do happen in this greatest of mystery photoplays. For sheer suspense this is the finest piece of Art the director, Paul Leni, has ever turned out.

It surpasses "The Cat and the Canary." If you missed his former directorial vehicle you shouldn't miss this. But if you saw "The Cat and the Canary" you need no bidding to see "The Last Warning."

The story is absolutely different, however. There are thrills and chills galore. You have your screaming audience—breathless silence as danger lurks in the offing then riotous laughter, a laughter of relief, which literally rocks the house.

Laura La Plante is delightful in the starring role. There is a murder—in fact, two murders—a haunted theatre and ghosts warning a theatrical company not to stage their show.

Miss La Plante has never been more beautifully photographed. And as a versatile actress, the little blonde comedienne is in a class by herself. She isn't guilty of the crime—but we won't tell you who is.

There are some splendid performances in the supporting cast, notably those of Montague Love, as the producer, Roy D'Arcy as the leading man, Margaret Livingston as the former burlesque queen, John Boles as the understudy and many others, including Bert Roach, Mack Swain, Burr McIntosh, Mme. Carrie Daumery Slim Summerville, Buddy Phelps, D'Arcy Corrigan, Charles French, Tom O'Brien and Fred Kelsey.

The motion picture is an excellent cinematic treatment of Thomas F. Fallon's famous stage play and Paul Leni has directed as only he can—with odd angles which make the very sets seem living things. For an evening of nerve-tingling excitement to stir your sluggish blood we highly recommend. "The Last Warning."

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The International League was officially opened yesterday, and the Leafs won a 10 to 2 victory from their old rivals, Baltimore.

An active interest in the City Baseball League is gaining in strength and the first step in the season's campaign is the meeting slated for the board room of Duffus' Bowling Academy on Monday night. The possibilities of the league this year and the number of probable entries will be thoroughly investigated. It is to be hoped that there will be some new entries and that all the former teams will be back strong. This league deserves the support of every fan in the city. It supplies sport to scores of young players and is the cradle of the game. The desire to keep baseball alive is the only aim of the men promoting this loop and the boys should get behind them.

CAMPBELLFORD SUGGESTED FOR SOFTBALL LEAGUE

The Peterborough Softball Association is sending an invitation to Campbellford to have that town hook up with the local league for softball games. Campbellford has a flourishing league and it is the opinion of the local executive that greater interest could be added to the game, both here and in Campbellford if intercompetition were arranged.

* * * * * * *

STRONG COMPETITION EXPECTED

The East Peterborough League supplied great games last year and it is fully expected that the competition will be just as keen this season. Two of the teams, Cognawagas and Raybestos, are practically intact. Not much is known of the strength of Bethany, but it may be relied upon that a strong lineup will be fielded, since the village among the hills likes its baseball. The Crescents too who supplied much of the fire-works in past years past, although, there will be shifts in the team, will likely trot out a nine that will cause some stepping.

* * * * * * *

CLOUD ON HOCKEY HORIZON

Paddy Harmon, the sore in the side of the N.H.L., is threatening to cause more trouble for the league. Harmon is the owner of the new arena in Chicago and he applied for an N.H.L. franchise and the price was set at $200,000 and the consent of the Black Hawk club to operate in Chicago. He felt that the price was too high and he failed to get the Black Hawk's consent so now he threatens to establish a hockey league of his own consisting of four teams in the city of Chicago and to do this will raid the N.H.L. and take at least forty-eight players. The chances are that this is only a bluff, but if he goes through with it, it will likely cause a hockey war which will be fine for the players but bod for the league and professional hockey.

* * * * * * *

O'NEILL JUBILANT AT LEAF'S WIN

Probably no victory in the long career of Steve O'Neill as player tickled his more than yesterday's win over the Orioles, for it marked his debut as manager. Incidentally, the 1929 edition of the Leafs came through with a clean-cut win, thanks to the clever pitching of Guy Cantrell and the unexpected home-run hitting of Joe Rabbitt. Ruble, as was expected, got into the game at centre field, and got two hits. At that, a win over the Orioles does not seem to arouse the same enthusiasm as it did before the passing of Jack Dunn. Then again on paper Baltimore does not look to be a formidable aggregation and appear for the second division unless they strengthen.

BOXERS WORKOUT AT "Y" TO-NIGHT

The boxers will hold their regular workout this evening at the Y.M.C.A. The boys are making every effort to be at top form for the next tournament that is just in the offing.

WE WERE SWAMPED ON OUR OPENING SALE DAY. OUR APOLOGIES ARE EXTENDED TO THOSE WHOM WE COULD NOT ACCOMMODATE — BUT OUR

SMOKE SALE

FIRST SALE STILL GOES ON

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE AS WELL AS OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS REALIZE THE QUALITY OF OUR STOCK AND ARE AFTER IT.

SUITS

Our first sale was forced upon us when our racks were filled with new Spring merchandise. Suits of every description. Plain blue serge and vicuna, imported worsteds and fine pin-stripes and over-checks in browns, tans, greys and blues. English and Scotch tweeds that are only found in the better shops.

OVERCOATS

The first day of our Smoke Sale proved that there are enough thrifty buyers ready to take advantage of purchasing next winter's overcoat at a fraction of its original price to clear our racks in a very short time. There are blues, greys, browns, fawns and tans, in camel-hair, whitneys, chinchillas, frieze and meltons, etc.

SPRING COATS

Our assortment is large and all new stock. The popular guards model, semi and semi-form in plain models, in fancy tweeds, herringbones and finer worsteds for the more conservative dresser.

HATS

A quality sale as the brands indicate: Brock, Horton, Vanity and Borsalino. Come with the crowds and see the prices this new Spring merchandise is being sacrificed at.

SHIRTS

Hundreds and hundreds of shirts being sold at a fraction of their former price: Silk Shirts, Silk Broadcloth Shirts, Silk Stripe Shirts, Plain Colored Shirts, Fine Pin Stripe and Dark Ground Shirts, with two separate collars and collar attached styles.

Our first sale is a Smoke Sale? So everything must go? Hosiery, Pyjamas, Gloves, Underwear, Belts, Suspenders, Night-Robes, etc., etc.

Don't Gamble on new car Lubrication

THE lubrication that is given to a new car has a very direct bearing upon the life and service that you are going to get out of the car.

The object of lubrication is to reduce friction to a minimum and only an expert knowledge of greases and their quality will achieve this purpose.

Thin cheap greases will eventually aggravate rather than reduce friction.

"WHIZ" GEAR GREASE contains those two necessary qualities—fluidity and rich smooth oiliness—that mean free moving parts and easy starting. In a new car, all moving parts are stiff and rough. Friction inevitably smooths these down, but in doing so, injures your grease. Right here is why "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE is so valuable—its richness—its body—have the strength and ability to resist the effects of friction.

And of course the correct grade of grease is just as important as the quality. Your dealer sells and recommends "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE.

"One pound of fresh grease added to four pounds of worn grease means five pounds of old grease."

DISTRICT CHURCHES

DUNSFORD CHURCH.

DUNSFORD, April 17.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Interesting and helpful children's services were held in North Emily and Dunsford United Churches on Sunday, when at each place the choirs were composed of boys and girls 14 years and under, who sang several special selections of music. At Emily the children, who had been trained by Miss Mary Elliott, sang, "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam" and "Jesus Bids Us Shine."

In the evening, at the United Church, the musical program, under the direction of Mrs. Irwin Thurston, comprised a chorus, "Smiles Like Sunbeams"; a duet by Carman and Eddie Thurston, "In the Morning of Youth," and a solo, "Little Sunbeams," by Miss Velma Burgess. For a scriptural lesson at the evening service, Miss Eleanor Thurston recited the Ten Commandments and Miss Margaret Beavis the 23rd Psalm. The pastor spoke on the incident related in the 15th chapter of Numbers where God requested Moses to order the Children of Israel that they should wear a ribband of blue upon the fringe of the borders of their garments, that they might look upon it and remember all the commandments of the Lord to do them. He closed with an illustration, using his watch, and pointing out that the word "watch" might be used in a similar way to the blue ribband, meaning to watch our actions, our thoughts, our companions and our habits, each word beginning with a letter bound in the word "watch."

Rev. J. F. 7verson, as instructor, has been successful in piloting eight more students through a teacher's training course on the subject of "Educational Evangelism." The following persons were successful and received certificates: Misses Mary, Jean, Mildred and Kathleen Elliott, Mrs. W. N. McMullen, Mrs. W. J. Patrick, Mrs. J. L. Ashmore and Mrs. J. F. Everson. Last year on Dunsford circuit eighteen pupils received certificates on "The Principles of Teaching." This makes a total of 29 certificates issued to pupils on Dunsford charge within the last eighteen months.

BROADCASTING EQUIPMENT TO BE PURCHASED

the expression of appreciation, the latter passing on the vote of thanks to Mr. Knox. Mr. Turner's motion regarding the float carried.

Change of Program

A matter which has caused the Fair Board considerable concern in past years has been the difficulty of working out a successful grand parade of the livestock, since the exhibits have grown in extent. Director Knox suggested that the livestock judging begin an Wednesday afternoon of the Exhibition instead of Thursday, so that by Friday afternoon, all of the cattle might take part in a grand procession which would be an added attraction, while the horses would take their places in the Saturday parade. This would eliminate the trouble of insufficient help to handle all the stock at once, and Mr. Knox assured the meeting that it would not result in two poor parades rather than one good one. He felt that there would be plenty of animals to compose the two.

Then there was the matter of "barnyard golf" competitions in which the Kiwanis club had managed with success at the Exhibition last year. Arthur Moffat, manager of the competition last year was present during the evening, and he asked that the Exhibition Board, rather than the Kiwanians, sponsor the 1929 competitions. President Denne, pointing out that all of the directors have a great deal of work to do at present, suggested that Mr. Moffat again take charge with a committee of his own choosing, which would have the backing of the Exhibition Board. Thus the matter was left in the same hands as last year, since Mr. Moffat will again conduct the competitions.

Mark of Respect.

There was one note sounded more solemnly than the rest at last night's meeting, President Denne calling attention to the passing of a member of the board in the person of the late Samuel Oke. At his request the entire meeting stood, with bowed heads as a mark of respect to the late Mr. Oke, and later, also, on the Mayor's suggestion, the board decided to ask Walter Oke to replace his late brother as a director.

To Purchase Equipment.

Then came up one of the most interesting subjects of discussion—the proposed purchase of a broadcasting apparatus for use in carrying speeches or music to the thousands of people who will come to the Exhibition. Last year the Northern Electric Company installed loud speakers and the necessary equipment, but Webber Turner, who suggested the purchase last night, felt that the board should own such equipment, since rentals were very high, amounting to in the neighborhood of $600 for the week. He had been in touch with a firm in the United States which could supply a portable outfit, capable of picking up and re-broadcasting radio music, or of re-producing speeches, music, etc., to crowds at the Exhibition. It could be obtained complete for $1650, Mr. Turner explained. Since the Old Home Week Committee will be expending approximately $600 for such equipment for the week, and since the Exhibition Board would otherwise have to pay out four or five hundred dollars for a similar convenience a few months later, he considered that such a purchase would be a wise one. Othmembers of the board were like minded, and finally a motion carried providing for the purchase as outlined by Mr. Turner.

Ticket Rates Changed.

Among one of the last, but certainly not the least important items of the evening's business, was the discussion of charges for admission to the Exhibition and the grandstand, some of the members feeling that last year's charge of 35c at the gates and 50c to the grand stand, was too steep for the average visitor. Others contended that it was all a matter of educating the public to pay for a good thing, but finally it boiled down to the following decision, which was reached by a large majority when put to a vote, that:

The admission fee to the grounds be set at 35 cents, and a similar entrance charge be made at the grand stand, and that an advance sale for one month prior to the exhibition be carried on with strip tickets being sold, four for a dollar. The old charge for children of 15 cents both to the grounds and grandstand was retained, with Children's day being the exception. On that day 10 cents will be the charge to the youngsters.

Master and Sovereign of the Loyal Orange Association of British America from 1923 to 1928, when he retired. In the Order his work was outstanding. While his championing of the cause of the Orangemen brought him criticisms from some quarters, it demonstrated his courage and his fighting ability and gained for him friends who admired his courageous stand.

Always a Prominent Figurer.

Adherence to the principles of the Conservative party, his ability as a debater, his capacity to illuminate figures and details, his great faculty as an observer of history, political and otherwise, all tended to make Dr. Edwards a prominent figure in politics. He spoke with force and with a comprehensive knowledge of the subject in hand, and so was constantly in demand in Parliament and elsewhere. His selection in 1921 as a Cabinet Minister was a tribute to his qualities of perseverance and determination. His persistence, his hard work, his adhesion to party were elements that placed him in the councils of the nation.

Almost what one would call the fiery type of speaker, nothing pleased Dr. Edwards more than a passage-at-arms with an opponent on the public platform. He was singularly fortunate in that there was practically no one in the County of of Frontenac he did not know personally and he never lost the opportunity to meet these people at social or political gatherings no matter how small.

Dr. Edwards was a member of the Albany Club of Toronto and of the Conservative Club of Kingston and Frontenac.

He was married in August, 1890, to Hester Jane Purdy of Frontenac County. They had four daughters and one son.

LORD REVELSTOKE BREAKS UNDER STRAIN

CROWDED PAST ITS CAPACITY NICHOLLS HOSPITAL REQUIRES $300,000 TO BUILD EXTENSION

Beds Are Packed Into Every Available Space in Rooms.

FITTINGS OUT-OF-DATE.

Institution Provided Through Munificence of Late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls.

Crowded past its capacity, Nicholls Hospital is asking the ratepayers of Peterborough to vote $300,000 for an extension. So crowded are conditions at present that there are four beds in three-bed wards, three beds in two-bed wards and eight beds in the public ward intended for only six patients. Nor is this all. The plaster cast room has had to be given up for the accommodation of patients and there are from ten to fifteen babies crowded into a small room intended as a private ward.

Nicholls Hospital was built and endowed by the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, under a special act passed by the Ontario Legislature in 1885, when the population of Peterborough was about ten thousand. During the past forty-four years the population has increased to about twenty-five thousand and while certain additions have been made to the hospital, it is now totally inadequate to serve the needs of a community grown so large.

Even on the same basis as was practised in hospital accommodation half a century ago, advances in medical science, modern ideas of air space and comfort and the ever-increasing use of hospitals by people who fifty years ago would have remained at home, put a different complexion on the whole subject of hospital efficiency. Judged by this standard, the Nicholls Hospital of to-day falls very far below even moderate modern standards.

The munificent gift by Mrs. Nicholls, later increased by her executors, has meant the giving to the city of a plant and equipment worth between four and five hundred thousand dollars. Had not this gift come to the city, it would have been necessary for the ratepayers to provide hospital accommodation which would have had to be paid for through taxes. It seems to the Board of Management, therefore, not unreasonable to approach the ratepayers when it becomes necessary to make improvements and extensions.

Necessity Evident

The necessity for enlargement of Nicholls Hospital is evident to even the casual visitor. On the ground floor there is a small office for the superintendent and a countered space as a general office, totally inadequate for the keeping of records and objectionable from the point of view of interviewing visitors. Here, too, is the dining room for the nursing staff—a room which, owing to lack of space, it is necessary to seat eight nurses at a table commonly used in a hotel for four persons—forty-two nurses in all were crowded into this small dining room yesterday, and the juniors are compelled to take their meals in relays.

Wonders have been done in the kitchen in spite of handicaps that would stagger the average housewife. There is one large coal range on which meals must be cooked with an auxiliary electric range which is not found suitable for hospital purposes. Considering the variety of meals that must be served in an institution of this kind, the visitor wonders how on earth the kitchen staff succeeds. There is no diet kitchen available, although this has been a feature of the modern hospital for some years. Too, the lack of facilities for properly keeping food warm while in transit from the kitchen proper to the wards is unsurmountable in the antiquated building now existing. There is no storeroom of adequate dimensions, or equipment, and the result is that it is necessary to purchase food stuffs "from hand to mouth" with a consequent loss of

Imperial Oil Will Not Build This Year

The Imperial Oil Company have decided not to proceed with the building of a new gasoline and service station on the David Conroy property, at the corner of Hunter street East and Burnham street. In the meantime the house will be occupied by the company's district representative, Arthur Blade.

The appropriations for extensions in Peterborough this year, include an addition to the Imperial Oil Company's station at Charlotte and Aylmer streets, as well as the new station on George street, opposite Confederation.

Because of these expenditures here it was decided to postpone the Ashburnham station, probably until next year. Mr. Blade will move across the river next week.

SOVIET PLAN IS REJECTED BY DELEGATES

Russian Commissioner Reserves Right To Make Further Statement.

BRITISH PLAN OUTLINED.

Lord Cushendun Expresses a Most Optimistic View Regarding Disarmaments.

GENEVA, April 19 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—The League of Nations' preparatory commission of disarmament emerged from its impasse today by rejecting in effect the Soviet government's disarmament scheme. But further words remain to be said. As the commission passed to the second item on the agenda, Maxim Litvinoff, Rission Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, reserved the right to make an additional statement.

"As our draft convention has been rejected," M. Litvinoff significantly said, "I ask permission to make further declaration to-morrow in regard to the attitude of the Soviet delegation to the future work of the commission."

Put in Writing

Jonkheer Loudon of the Netherlands, chairman of the commission, replied that as the commission had already given its decision he was unable to authorize Litvinoff to make any further statement. He suggested the Russian delegates should make his declaration in writing, which could be circulated among the delegates.

And as the commission turns to other business, there is questioning among the delegates as to what form Litvinoff's declaration will take. Rumor has been going around that a flat rejection of the Soviet's sweeping proposals for mathematical reduction in armaments would be followed by withdrawal of the Soviet delegates from the commission. But to-day's decision, while putting the Soviet scheme aside, provides the Soviet draft may be appended to the preparatory commission's report, and further recognizes the right of the Soviet delegates to propose amendments to the commission's own draft convention on disarmament, which is due for second reading.

May Be Discussed Later

The commission reached the dicision on the Soviet proposal by adopting the opinion of its bureau—a "steering committee"—on whether the proposal came within the competence of the commission. The bureau, referring to the principles of the proposal, expressed the opinion the commission had not seen its way to adhere to a

MAY EXPORT LIQUOR FROM PORT HOPE

RIGHT TO CARRY LIQUOR ON SHIPS IS QUESTIONED

I'm Alone Case May Lead To Full Discussion of International Problems.

OTTAWA GIVEN ANSWER.

American Liners Are Permitted To Serve Liquor Outside Three Mile Limit.

(By Francis G. Aldham, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 19. — The right of passenger liners registered in a British country to carry liquor under seal into an American port, may be used by the American government as an argument for prompt and amicable settlement of the dispute over the sinking by the American coast guard of the Canadian schooner "I'm Alone."

If the treaty of 1924, which grants the right to challenge and board suspected smugglers within an hour's journey of shore, does not also imply the right to pursue and sink a ship which refused to submit within that area, Washington is getting ready to submit that the treaty might just as well be discarded. If the 1924 treaty is discarded, ships of British registry cannot carry alcoholic beverages into American ports for use on the outward voyage.

Lost in Passenger Trade.

Within the last day or so, the point has been brought up in unofficial conversations by officers of the State department and the Treasury department, the two departments of government here concerned with the case. It is significant that at the same time the right to serve liquor outside the three mile limit has been granted to ships under American registry. Attempts to keep American liners 'dry' have resulted in loss of passenger business. Liners which serve liquor have got the cream of the American tourist traffic. Recently prohibition headquarters here ruled that nothing in the law prevents an American liner from serving liquor outside American territorial waters. American ships can acquire in foreign ports enough liquor to serve their passengers on the home voyage. Before they cross the three mile line, the ships must jettison any quantity remaining over and above the amount sanctioned for medicinal purposes.

Outward bound from an American port, American liners can pick up a fresh supply of liquor beyond the three mile limit. Probably from a vagrant schooner lingering around as rum-runners do. The fact that the supply ships might become real rum-runners and slip into a snug harbor somewhere on American soil or deliver their cargo to cutters which land the contraband, is giving the coast-guard something of a headache.

Have Slight Advantage.

At present the first consideration is the advantage the American passenger liners enjoy in competing for business. Under the new ruling they have a slight advantage over British vessels. They can serve liquor beyond the three mile limit. The others must wait until they have steamed one hour from American soil, the distance specified under the treaty.

While Washington's answer to Canada's note on the "I'm Alone" is under consideration at Ottawa, with the possibility that further correspondence will take place between the two governments before the exchange is made public, officials here are apparently confident that the matter will go to arbitration.

The 1924 treaty provides for arbitration of any dispute over a vessel seized under the treaty.

In the case of the "I'm Alone," the vessel was sunk and the American government may have to recompense her owners for the vessel and a liquor cargo valued at $120,000, and recompense the crew for the loss of their personal belongings. Worst of all, this country may have to admit that its coastguard went outside its jurisdiction in an act which resulted in the loss of life, that of Leon Maingoy of Saint Pierre-Miquelon. Maingoy's family probably will claim compensation.

Experts Fail To Reach Agreement On Reparations

Death of One of the Foremost Workers Casts An Additional Shadow of Gloom Over Committee As It Reports Failure To Reach Agreement

HEATED PLAY OF INTERNATIONAL PASSION IS FELT HAD MUCH TO DO WITH LORD REVELSTOKE'S DEATH

Uncompromising Attitude of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German Spokesman, Set At Naught the Work of the Conference and Made Its Breakup Inevitable.

PARIS, April 19 (Canadian Press). — The death of one of the most sincere workers of them all cast an additional shadow of gloom over the Experts' Committee on Reparations as it met to-day to report failure of its negotiations and immediately adjourned out of honor to Lord Revelstoke, who died at 7.30 a.m.

The experts felt the heated play of international passions in yesterday's session of Lord Revelstoke's sub-committee had been too much for him and he had broken under the strain.

It was at this meeting the uncompromising attitude of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German spokesman, set at naught the work of the conference and made its break-up inevitable.

Adjournment forced until another day what may be one of the final actions of the experts, tht is the drafting of the report to interested governments announcing failure of the conference, and assigning reasons.

Consider Conference Closed.

Owen D. Young and other members of the United States delegation let it be understood this morning they considered the conference of experts as ended. They, however, would make no statement until after meeting with other memberss of the committee and then perhaps not as a delegation.

It was assumed German Government knew and acquiesced in the uncompromising refusal of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German spokesman, to permit further negotiations save on his own terms. The presumption was Germany had decided on an aggressive attitude toward its former enemies.

Raymond Poincare, French Premier, against whose heavy hand in the Ruhr Germns have repeatedly complained, was expected in a speech on Monday before the General Council of the Department of the Meuse to approximate an "I told you so" and make plain France's attitude toward political problems raised by the Germans.

John Daring Revelstoke, or Lord Revelstoke, the second baron of that name, was one of Britain's most distinguished bankers, a director in the firm of Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd.

In the 65 years of his life he held such posts as Receiver-General of the Duchy of Cornwall, member of the Council of the Prince of Wales, Lieutenant of the City of London, and director of the Bank of England. His decorations included Commander of the Legion d'Honneur and Order of the White Eagle (Russia).

Hoped for Settlement.

He was believed to have held at the end some hope the reparations conference might still emerge with some sort of settlement, this belief being based on comments to his brother when he arrived at the apartment he maintained at Fauborg Saint Honore. He complained of being tired, and then said:

"I don't suppose that this thing has gone beyond repair. It may be patched up yet."

When the death of Lord Revelstoke was announced in the conference room at the Hotel George V. this morning Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German spokesman, with whom he pleaded in vain yesterday, was one first to rise. He expressed his sorrow and the sympathy of the German delegates.

Expressions of condolence poured into his home. Someone said he might have accomplished in death what he failed to do a living man yesterday. He said the Englishman's death would cause the reparations experts to stop and think and perhaps avert the impending failures of the conference.

BODY OF SIFTON IS LAID TO REST THIS AFTERNOON

Casket Is Taken Direct to the House On Its Arrival From New York.

MANY NOTABLES ATTEND.

Hon. George P. Graham and Sir William Mulock, Former Colleagues, Present.

TORONTO, Ont., April 19 (C.P.).—The body of Sir Clifford Sifton lay in state at his palatial residence in Lawrence Park East to-day, the casket being taken directly to the house after its arrival from New York this morning. Harry Sifton, of Toronto, and Major J. W. Sifton, of Winnipeg, accompanied the body of their father from New York, where death came suddenly Wednesday morning.

Old friends and acquaintances of the former Minister of the Interior, financier and sportsman, visited the Sifton residence to take their last view of him. The funeral service was held from the residence at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Richard Roberts, of Sherbourne Street United Church and interment was made in the family plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, just south of Lawrence Park.

Arrive From Winnipeg

Two of the honorary pall bearers arrived from Winnipeg this morning. They are E. H. Mackin, president of The Manitoba Free Press, and John W. Dafoe, editor-in-chief of The Free Press. Sir Clifford inherited The Free Press from his father and made it an influential power in Western Canada, which his immigration policy played a large part in developing.

Sir Clifford's four sons, John, Harry, Clifford, Jr., and Victor, were the other honorary pall bearers.

A large attendance of men prominent in the political, financial, journalistic and sporting life of the Dominion attended the funeral. The Governor-General was represented by Lieut.-Col. H. W. Snow, Comptroller of His Excellency's household. Senator George P. Graham, a former colleague of Sir Clifford in the Cabinet of Sir Wilfred Laurier, was present, and Chief Justice Sir William Mulock, of Ontario, another former colleague attended the funeral service.

LEAVES CAPITAL.

OTTAWA, April 19.—(C.P.)—Hon. Shuh Tomii, accompanied by his family took leave of the capital today for his native land, after serving for two years as Japanese charge d'affairs here. Hon. Yosjio Iwate, his successor, will have full charge of the legation pending the appointment of a Japanese minister to Canada.

YOUNG CADET PASSES AWAY

Member of Australian Party Dies in Niagara Falls Hospital.

TRIP IS CHANGED.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 19. —(C.P.)—William Strauchan, 17, a member of the Australian Cadet Party, died in the hospital here early this morning as a result of hemorrhage of the heart. His brother Eric, 20, is also in the party. The lad was removed to the hospital last evening and Major J. J. Simons, head of the party, was summoned at two-thirty and Strauchan expired at three. The boy's home was in Queensland. A public service will be held this forenoon in the Collegiate Insititute and it is expected that burial will take place here tomorrow. The plans for the trip have been changed. Instead of leaving here for London, Ont. this morning as planned, the party will likely remain in this city until Sunday. Sightseeing trips and festivities have been cancelled.

TORONTO, Ont., April 19. — Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, has been instructed by Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, to go to Niagara Falls personally to supervise the efforts of the health authorities there to prevent a spread of the outbreak of hemorrhagic measles among the Australian boys.

"These boys are guests in our midst and we feel responsible for their well-being," declared Dr. Godfrey.

"Everything possible will be done to prevent a spread of the disease. All persons who came into contact with the dead lady, William Strachan, will be isolated for a period of two and a half weeks and every precaution will be taken. Personally I deeply regret the death of this one boy so many miles from home. Five doctors attended him, but his life could not be saved."

JOHNNY MILES WINS MARATHON

Hamilton Runner Breaks Old Record in Annual Boston Classic.

HIS SECOND VICTORY.

BOSTON, Mass., April 19 (Canadian Press). — Johnny Miles, formerly of Sydney Mines, Nova Scotia and now a resident of Hamilton, Ont., to-day won the 32nd annual Boston Athletic Association Marathon. It was the second time he has won the event. In repeating his 1926 victory to-day he shattered the old record of 2 hours 37 minutes 7 4-5 seconds by covering the 25 miles 385 yards in 2.33.08 4-5.

Karl Koski, running under the colors of the Finnish-American A.C., of New York, was second, and Willie Kyronen, of the same club, was third. Both Koski and Kyronen broke the old record established last year by Clarence De Mar, veteran Melrose runner. Koski's time was 2.35.26, and Kyronen's 2.35.44.

VENIOT DEFENDS APPOINTMENTS

"Slippery Evasion" Is Words Applied To Some of Postmaster General's Answers.

HOT EXCHANGES.

OTTAWA, April 19. (C.P.) — The course followed by Hon. P. J. Veniot, postmaster-general, in connection with the dismissal from the Civil Service of a number of postmasters, brought severe censure from members of the opposition in the House of Commons yesterday. As on two previous occatempted to obtain approval of estimates covering appropriations for the post office, outside service. Twice now he has met with opposition in the form of amendments emanating from the Conservative party. Yesterday the House having gone into supply without the question being put, the Minister was met with a barrage of questions relating to dismissals and appointments of postmasters during his regime. At times the exchanges between the Minister and prominent members of the Conservative party were hot. The Minister was charged with "playing favorites. The words "slippery evasion" were applied to some of his explanations. On the other hand the Minister defended his course of action, in cases cited, on the ground that there had been irregularities, incompetence, or dishonesty with respect to those dismissed.

And the Minister declared to the House that he had not always used the prerogative of dismissal even though he might have done so.

"I do not wish to deny that I have shown leniency in many cases where I felt I was justified in so doing," he informed the House; "and," he added, "I will show it again." He proposed, however, to see that the law was enforced with respect to irregularities in the postal service.

There was some cross-fire between Mr. Veniot and Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader.

"The minister told the people of this country that he plays favorites in the administration of the criminal laws of Canada" said Mr. Bennett pointedly at one stage.

"That discussion broadened, at times, to include references to the civil service commission which figured in correspondence quoted from some of the files. A. A. Heaps, (Labor, Winnipeg North), referred to the recent appointment by the Minister of Finance, if a committee to investigate remuneration to professional and technical employees of the government.

"If a special commission is to be appointed to investigate the salaries of professional and technical employees, in my opinion there is a thousand times more need to investigate the salaries of men receiving less than $100 a month," Mr. Heaps informed the house. "My opinion is" he added, "that the appointment of this commission by the government amounts to a vote of want of confidence in the Civil Service Commission.

Again, the commission was mentioned by J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre). During the course of Mr. Woodsworth's speech, came a suggestion from the Liberal benches, that the civil service commission might be abolished.

"If the Civil Service Commission is incompetent, if it is failing to function, let us get rid of it or at least let us change the personnel" retored Mr. Woodsworth. Mr. Woodsworth and Mr. Heaps joined in a demand for increased remuneration to postal workers. Support of this request came from H. H. Stevens, (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) who was strongly opposed to any suggestion of destruction of the civil service commission, which was a safeguard of the interests of government employees.

Major Simons, Leader Of Australian Boys, Warned By Letter Not To Visit Chicago

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 19 (Canadian Press. — An anonymous letter warning the party of 160 Australian boys, now touring the United States and Canada, not to visit Chicago was received yesterday by Major S. S. Simons, who is in charge of the party.

"We have received repeated warnings from friends that the visit of our boys in uniform might not exactly be welcomed by the anti-British element in Chicago, but this morning's letter was a bombshell.

"My officers and I are inclined to view the matter as a joke, but some of the people responsible for our tour do not view it in that light, and we may be forced to cancel our Chicago visit," Major Simons said.

"Our boys are now more eager than ever to see Chicago," Major Simons added.

Lord Revelstoke Was Last Survivor Of Boys Who Played With King George In His Youth

LONDON, April 19 (Canadian Press). — The King lost a boyhood friend by Lord Revelstoke's death in Paris this morning. They used to play together as youngsters and Revelstoke was later one of a group of bachelors much in evidence at the British Court.

Lord Revelstoke was the last survivor of these friends of His Majesty's youth.

British banking circles had long recognized His Lordship's financial ability and held him in the highest regard. Apart from his own bank and the Bank of England, however, Lord Revelstoke did not figure prominently in the City of London's commercial and financial district.

He was a very reserved man, devoting his spare time to art and greatly enjoying a quiet home life. He served on few public committees.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 19 (C.P.).—Britain will pay her debts but is willing to discuss the revision of international debts arising out of the war, Sir Hume Howard stated here last night.

ORDER UNJUSTIFIED

LE HAVRE, France, April 19 (C.P.).—Louis Loucheur, Minister of Labor, announced last night that the national order which would have prohibited entrance of travellers from England without evidence of recent vaccination, and which has been vacated, was issued without authority and was unjustified by the health situation.

COMMITTEE FAILS.

PARIS, April 19 (Canadian Press).—The second reparations committee has failed in its purpose to re-delimit German reparations for the damage of the World War.

The conference, which for ten weeks has been engaged in an effort to set a figure mutually acceptable to the allied nations and to the German Republic, last night seemed definitely wrecked.

Is Crushed By Wind Mill

Finlay Waldon, of Ops Township, Was Grinding Grain in Barn.

WINDMILL STOPPED

Youth Went On Top of Mill and Was Struck When It Went Into Gear.

LINDSAY, Ont., April 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—A sad fatality occurred on the farm of Thomas Walden, three miles south of here, in the Township of Ops, when his 19-year-old son, Finley, was killed. The young man, it appears, was in the barn attending to a grain crusher which was operated by a windmill. Something went wrong with the power as the windmill ceased to operate. The unfortunate young man climbed the mill for the purpose of oiling it when it suddenly went into gear. His clothes became entangled in the shafting and he was crushed to death. His body was discovered by his father.

Dr. Collison, coroner, was summoned, and after investigating the circumstances, decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The deceased was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walden, another son being fatally scalded some years ago.

The Weather

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE Toronto, Ont., April 19.— (Canadian Press).—The disturbance which was over the State of Maine yesterday is moving northeastward with diminishing intensity and pressure continues low over the western half of the continent while high pressure extends from the Atlantic states northward across the Great Lakes to Hudson straits.

The weather has been mostly fair with moderate temperature in the western provinces and unsettled with showers from the Ottawa valley eastward.

Forecasts

Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay—Moderate winds; fair and becoming a little milder. Saturday—moderate winds shifting to southeast. Mostly fair and a little milder, followed by showers in Western counties.

Northern Ontario — Fair to-day and Saturday; becoming a little milder.

Superior — Light to moderate winds, fair; Saturday— moderate winds; partly cloudy; probably a few scattered showers.

Western provinces — Mostly fair to-night and Saturday, not much change in temperature.

TEMPERANCE FORCES UNITED

Local Option Question is Expected to Play Big Part in Coming Election.

PASSES IN 1908

LONDON, April 19.—(C.P.)—H. C. Heath, General Secretary of the United Kingdom Temperance Alliance, issued a statement yesterday on the status and hopes of the prohibition movement in the coming British General Elections.

Heath is one of the leading figures of an alliance of 20 national and semi-national organizations throughout England and Wales. The organizations, for the first time in British history, are fighting side by side in an electoral campaign in an effort to place as many persons as possible in parliament pledged to support a national local option bill.

Heath said that, in his opinion, the election of Herbert Hoover to the Presidency of the United States had done more than anything since the local option of election of 1908 to help the cause of prohibition in England.

"The temperance question undoubtedly will play a greater part in the coming election than at any time since 1908," he said. "Then the election was fought on the local option issue introduced by the Liberal party. The local option bill actually passed the Commons but was vetoed by the House of Lords with the result that Parliament passed an act taking away the Lords' veto power. In the event the next Commons passes a local option bill after the May 30 election the Lords could not again stop it."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

DOCTORS ATTEMPTING TO FIND DIRECT CAUSE OF FOUR DEATHS IN THE TOWNNSHIP OF ELFRID

Guinea Pigs At London Institute of Public Health Are Innoculated.

MOTHER IS BURIED.

Streptococci Organism May Mean Any One of Several Maladies.

MELBOURNE, April 19 (Canadian Press). — While inoculated guinea pigs at London Institute of Public Health are retracing for science the course of the plague that swept four to death in Ekfrid Township, Dr. R. D. Dewar, township medical officer of health, and district physicians under the direction of Dr. T. J. McNally, are concentrating their fire on the suspected germ, the swift and deadly streptococcus haemolyticus.

Yesterday's report from the London laboratories was less than sufficient to give the doctors in the field any positive knowledge of the primal cause of the outbreak which has terrorized hundreds of contacts, who unwittingly exposed themselves to the scourge by attending funerals at the Sinclair and Brown homes.

Another 24 or 48 hours may elapse before the scientists at work in the Government laboratories are able to make a definite pronouncement.

From the same home from which her daughter, Barbara, was buried with all the manifestations of neighborhood sympathy characteristic of rural parts, the body of Mrs. Donald Sinclair was yesterday taken with a lone clergyman the sole follower of the hearse.

The pall of the scourge which hangs over the Ekfrid Township made the double bereavement in the close-quarantined Sinclair home still more trying for the survivors. The family themselves could not attend the funeral. Rev. A. L. Carr, in the presence of the sexton and undertaker, performed the funeral rites.

LONDON, Ont., April 19 (Canadian Press).—Angus Noble, 3, died in Victoria Hospital last night. The child was rushed to hospital here yesterday afternoon, a few hours after he had been taken ill. Doctor Weir, of Thamesford, Ont., the attending physician, believed diphtheria was the cause of death, although it was impossible to make a definite diagnosis. The rapidity of death has given rise to the fear that the disease prevalent in Ekfrid Township may have spread to the border of Oxford County.

TORONTO, Ont., April 19 (Canadian Press).—On the basis of information from London yesterday, Toronto doctors were loath to make any definite pronouncement on the cause of the mysterious disease which has broken out in Ekfrid Township. The opinion advanced by several bacteriologists was that the scourge was a

Initiation Ceremony As Outlined By Comrade Ironside Left With Executive.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)— The grate fire in the assembly room of the local branch of the Canadian Legion looked and felt very hospitable last night, although there were only a few of the members present to deal with the regular business while they toasted their shins. The business was soon transacted and the usual open discussion proceeded with. A proposed initiation ceremony was left in the hands of the executive. One account was presented and passed and an account which was ordered paid, and which seems to have been lost in the shuffle, ordered investigated. Softball was allowed to wait till the next meeting for final hearing. Two of the comrades aired unemployment grievances and asked the Legion to take some action in their behalf. The matter was left with J. S. Dickson and his committee.

In the absence of J. D. McEachern, Dickson was the secretary for the meeting.

President Free started the ball rolling by announcing that the softball team fee for last year had not yet been paid. The announcement came as a surprise to the members. The amount was two dollars and it had been passed at the first of last season. Through an oversight, the cheque was not immediately issued. During the playing season, the Legionaires were reminded that they were in arrears and the account was once more ordered paid. This time the cheque was issued but apparently never cashed. The treasurer for last year was present and recalled having paid the fee. The auditors said they had noticed the entry in the books. The mystery will be probed and at all costs, the comrades present last night assured the local hall association that they would not be out their money. If the cheque has gone astray, another will be sent them.

General Business.

Comrade Ironside outlined an initiation ceremony as suggested by the Baron Byng Branch, Toronto number one. It was understood that the Dominion command is working on a suitable initiation formula and that the Baron Byng suggestion is looked upon favorably. There was some difference of opinion on the matter and it was finally left in the hands of the executive of the branch. A motion and two amendments were necessary before the suggestion got that far. One account of five dollars was ordered paid.

Unemployment Grievances.

Comrade Harry Smith did not think the returned men were being given a fair chance on the local section of the canal. Comrade Bert Jones was of a similar opinoin and they were agreed that the Legion should bring their grievance to the attention of the authorities at Ottawa. Both men claimed four years' service with the Trent Canal and thought they should have certain preferences when there was work to be done. The matter was left in the hands of the employment committee, Dickson, Ironside and Ferris.

Whether or not the Legionaires will play softball in the town league this season was left over till the first meeting in May. When the Legion banner had been handed over to Comrade Cubbit for repairs and improvement the meeting adjourned.

FACES OLD CHARGES

PROBE IS ORDERED INTO DEATH OF INFANT IN HAMILTON JAIL

Inquest Will Be Held Into Child's Death On Tuesday.

STRONG INDIGNATION

National Council of Women Is Expected To Take Up the Case.

HAMILTON, April 19. (C.P.) — A thorough probe will be held into the circumstances surrounding the death of the infant son of Mrs. Annie Minnigan, Hamilton, in her cell, in the jail here Wednesday. Mrs. Minnigan was charged with an offense against the Liquor Control Act. According to a statement made by her husband last night, the bottle of alcohol found in their home was obtained by his wife to relieve her of her pain. An inquest will be held into the child's death here Tuesday next.

TORONTO, Ont., April 18. — Strong indignation was expressed by women in Toronto and Hamilton last night over the case of Mrs. Annie Minnigan, who gave birth to twins half an hour after being sent to jail in Hamilton on Wednesday. One of the twins died.

It is probable that representations will be made by Women's organizations demanding of the Provincial government the appointment of women police and women magistrates as a result of the case.

WOULD ABOLISH GOVERNMENT HOUSE

Conservative Member For Winnipeg Surprises Manitoba Legislature With Statement.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 19. — (Canadian Press).—Many members of the Manitoba legislature, including Conservatives, were greatly surprised last night when John T. Haig, Conservative, Winnipeg, advocated the abolishment of the government house and declared that the functions of the Lieutenant-Governor should be discharged by the Chief Justice of the Province.

Great Britain got along very well with one government house and there surely must be something wrong, he said, with loyalty in Canada if it required ten government houses, one for each million of population to sustain it.

Captain of the Alberta Wins Three Silk Hats

PORT McNICOLL, Ont., April 19 (Canadian Press).—What probably constitutes a record in the annals of navigation on the Upper Lakes, has been made by the liner Alberta. She was the first vessel to leave here this season, the first vessel to arrive at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and at Fort William, Ont., and the first vessel to arrive back at Port McNicoll. Captain F. S. Middleton is therefore the recipient of three silk hats, the third being presented to him on his arrival here yesterday.

CAUSE OF DEATH UNDETERMINED

Father, Negro and Girl Face Charges in Police Court To-day.

MULATTO CHILD.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 18—(Canadian Press).—The cause of death of a mulatto child found Tuesday on the Ferris farm was not determined by a coroner's jury sitting yesterday afternoon in the townhall at Harrow. The baby was born to Ruth Ferris, 21 year old white girl of North Colchester township, the authorities said. The Woman, her father, Kenneth Ferris 65, and William Talbot, 50-year-old Negro, charged with concealment of the birth of the child, are to be arraigned to-day in Sandwich police court. They are at liberty on $2,000 bail each.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, April 19.—There were no cattle in the fresh receipts of live stock at the yards yesterday. Arrivals by railroad amounted to a few hogs and calves. A few lambs and calves arrived late by truck.

Wednesday's offerings were well cleaned up, with cattle prices firm to a quarter stronger than at the opening of the week. The offering for the three days was about even in value with that of the week previous and the quality was somewhat better.

Most of the butcher cattle sold within a range of 9 to 10 cents, nothing selling less than 8½ cents a pound. Cows sold Wednesday at a range of 6½ to 8½ cents for butchers.

The supply of calves on the market was heavy. Prices for the week showed an advance of $1 a hundred on veal, due largely to increase of demand for export.

Buyers for shipment to the United States took well over 1,000 calves during the week.

The lamb supply was heavier this week than last, and the price of yearling lambs soared to 15½ cents at top for choice quality. Sheep closed steady at nine cents a pound for the best.

Hogs also were a heavy run and despite a few bids at the opening of the week the bulk sold steady to a quarter stronger than last week, the best closing at thirteen cents a pound w.o.c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 19. — Wholesale butter prices in Montreal continued to go lower yesterday and values dropped over a cent per pound. Sales were made at 41c to 42c per pound for New Zealand finest, Western No. 1 pasteurized and fresh made Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized. As the day advanced the market dropped 41 cents. The volume of trading was small, and the receipts amounted to 735 boxes.

The cheese market remained unchanged with Western No. 1 colored quoted at 19c to 19 1-2c per pound. Receipts were 3661 cases.

The grain, potato, and poultry markets were quiet, and prices were unchanged.

Cheese: Westerns, 22 1-2c.

Butter: No. 1 pasteurized, 41 to 42c.

Eggs: Fresh extras, 33c to 34c, fresh firsts, 31c to 32c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 19.—Disturbed by legislative uncertainty in Washington, the grain markets turned decidedly weak yesterday toward the last, and prices under went a sharp setback. Special notice was taken of reports that Senator Capper would introduce as an amendment to the grain futures act a provision that no trader might have an interest amounting to more than 2,000 bushels on either side of the market.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous 1¾c to 2⅛c net lower. Corn finished ⅞c to ¾c down; oats, ⅝c to 1¼c off, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 22c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 19.—Selling pressure which made its appearance near the close forced the wheat market down 1⅝c to 1½c yesterday. Exporters did not enter the pit yesterday.

Low grades of cash wheat were in fair demand at prices unchanged to ½c better. No. 2 Northern eased ¼c.

There was excellent buying of No. 1 and No. 2 feed oats by shipping interests. Barley was fairly active, but little interest was shown in rye and flax. Prices in all the coarse grains held firm.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 19.—Eggs continue to arrive in large quantities on the local wholesale produce market, and yesterday dealers reported one of the heaviest single day's receipts so far this year. Production throughout the country is increasing daily, and there is every indication that shipments will be heavy for the rest of the week.

Although prices held steady, the market has an easier undertone, and some of the larger dealers are not willing to commit themselves to large supplies at present price levels. The feeling exists that, if receipts continue to increase prices will have to be lowered even more before they are bought for storage.

Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, were as follows: Fresh extras, 26c to 27c per dozen; firsts, 24c to 25c, and seconds, 21c to 22c per dozen.

Butter Prices Lower

The easier feeling that developed on the butter market earlier in the week gained courage, and the price of No. 1 finest creamery was shaded to a range of from 42c to 43c per pound. The supply on spot is more than sufficient to meet the demand, and dealers expect definite word of the large shipment reported to be in New York at the present time.

Quotations to the retail trade were unchangd at 47c per pound for No. 1 finest creamery.

Lacking any new interest, the cheese market remained dull, and prices were steady at 31¾c a pound for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded.

DOCTORS ATTEMPT TO FIND CAUSE

virulent form of scarlet fever.

Of all the many and varied diseases which the organism known as streptococci causes, scarlet fever answers most closely to the dread disease which has created a near panic in parts of Middlesex. Doctors here believe that one disease is responsible for all four deaths in the affected area.

Streptococci is believed to be the cause not only of scarlet fever but of erysipelas, blood-poisoning, tonsilitis, some forms of influenza and pneumonia, abscesses in various parts of the body, fever after childbirth, otseomylities, otitus media, a disease of the ear, and skin diseases. It is not the cause of diphtheria, at first blamed for the epidemic, though it may provide a complication and be found in the throat of diphtheria patients.

Suggestions that the victims suffered from different diseases all caused by the same organism, were discounted by Toronto doctors. It was hardly likely that several types of organisms causing such violent reactions would be active in so small a community at the same time. It was considered probable that the type was highly infectious.

Doctors here did not think there was serious danger of the mysterious malady sweeping the whole township. The usual tendency in epidemics of the kind is towards a mi'der type after the first few cases. Suggestions that scores of township residents had been exposed to infection at funerals of the first victims was also considered as unlikely.

Charles Dickens wrote a "Life of Christ" specially for his children.

W.M.S. SERVICE CAVAN CHURCH

Members Hear Interesting Address By Mrs. Carscallen of Whitby.

MISSION WORK IN CHINA.

CAVAN, April 19. — (Examiner Correspondence).—On Sunday evening in Cavan church a special W.M.S. service was held, at which Mrs. Carscallen of Whitby, gave an interesting and inspiring address on Mission Work, in China, where she had spent twenty years in missionary work.

The pastor, the Rev. F. Carpenter, conducted the service.

Rev. Mr. Carpenter chose as his scriptural lesson the last part of the last chapter of Matthew which contains the Master's command to His disciples "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Mesdames Kennedy and Staples sang "I Gave My Life For Thee," as a duet.

The Easter offering of the members of the W.M.S. was placed on the plates, as well as contributions for the work, from others in the congregation.

Mrs. Carscallen chose as her text St. John 20:1 and 2, particularly the clause "When it was yet dark."

She said, "Easter has been called 'The heart festival of Christian womanhood', but we must remember that it is yet dark for millions. For the women of the Orient, the old order is changing, physically, mentally and spiritually.

"In the feminine ideal of Christianity there are three stages of development: primitive, self-consciousness of which the key-note is personal ambition, and voluntary self-denial. The majority of the modern Chinese women have passed the first stage. In the second stage they are demanding amusement, education, and power. They have no training or safeguard for this greater liberty. The task of missions is to provide the larger liberty of Christ."

Mrs. Carscallen paid tribute to the home organization of two million women with a budget of two and one quarter millions, but of which ninety-eight per cent. is used for mission work, only two per cent being used for expenses.

She said that during the past two years of unrest and rebellions in China, when the missionaries and their families had been forced to leave, that the way in which the Chinese Christians had risen to the occasion, had been very great encouragement. She said now that the country was going back to more peaceful conditions, there would be very great opportunities for mission work.

The kindness shown in the schools and medical institutions of the church would be a very powerful and helpful factor in the uplift of the Chinese women.

"We know the Chinese women need our help and that God cares that we strive to hasten the coming of the dawn of Christianity for them. 'The darkness shall turn to dawning and the dawning to noon-day sun. We have so much.

"In security 'We lie pillowed on the Father's breast,' while it is still dark for so many.

Mrs. Carscallen told the story of a number of individual Chinese women who have come under the influence of the Christian schools in China, showing the difference it had made in their lives. She made a strong appeal for the work in which she labored for twenty years, and in which she is still heartily interested.

Her address was most helpful and inspiring, coming as it did from one who thoroughly understood the work and the great need.

BRAKE TESTS.

The local police department is conducting a test of automobile brakes, and the check-up is expected to have decidedly beneficial results in bringing about better conditions as regard brakes.

What can be accomplished in this direction is seen in the results reported of a similar test made in Toronto.

The Queen City police investigated brake conditions there last October with the disquieting result that no fewer than 81 per cent. of the cars examined were found to be equipped with defective brakes.

A second test, commencing with the first of this months, has disclosed a satisfactory and surprising improvement, for the returns show that less than 10 per cent. of the cars tested have bad brake equipment, and on Wednesday of this week only 5 per cent. were found to be defective.

Modern traffic conditions call for brakes to operate satisfactorily, and defects in this respect are almost as serious as recklessness on the part of drivers.

The police should continue the present test until they are convinced that local cars have been made safe mechanically.

POLICE RE-ORGANIZATION.

The establishment of a liquor control investigation branch of the Ontario Provincial Police, announced by Attorney-General Price as part of his re-organization program, should not only ensure a more effective administration of the Liquor Control Act but add also to the general efficiency of the provincial force.

The new department is to have charge of the general investigation of liquor cases throughout the Province, working along the lines followed by the criminal investigation branch.

In districts where conditions call for the activity of special officers the investigation branch will be able to do effective service, and at the same time the provincial force generally will be relieved of responsibilities that have interfered with its work in other fields of crime prevention and criminal investigation.

The other changes announced by the Attorney-General, notably the appointment of staff inspectors, who will inspect the work of the Provincial Police as a bank inspects its branches, should also be an improvement.

These officials will drop into a district without any warning and conduct an independent inspection of the work of the police and conditions generally, and report directly to the commissioner.

Such an inspection will undoubtedly keep members of the Provincial Police on the alert at all times.

A COLORFUL MEMBER GONE.

Some of the color has gone out of present-day politics with the sudden death yesterday morning of Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, member for Lennox-Addington in the Dominion Parliament.

Dr. Edwards, widely known here because of his Orange connection as well as because of his political prominence, was a doughty fighter whose slashing speeches and vigorous onslaughts made him a striking figure in parliamentary life.

He may be said to have died in action, inasmuch as he rallied from a serious heart seizure that overcame him on Monday and returned to his duties in Parliament on Wednesday, only to succumb to another attack that followed a few hours after the House adjourned.

There was nothing of the "pussyfoote" in the colorful member for Lennox-Addington.

He never hesitated to fight for the principles he advocated, nor for the cause he espoused, and when he rose to his feet the House was assured of a fiery and spirited address that usually struck sparks from the ranks of opposing parties.

Hon. Dr. Edwards will be missed at Ottawa and throughout Ontario.

Public life is the poorer because of the passing of a powerful personality.

A POSTAL NUISANCE.

"The Canadian postoffice is still burdening its letter carriers and cluttering up the mail boxes of householders with advertising circulars that are neither addressed nor stamped.

"The practice involves risk of loss to important private letters, it is a nuisance to recipients, and by giving him work that requires no intelligence, it degrades the postman.

"Although numerous complaints have come from many sources, the postoffice has not only continued but enlarged the pernicious practice."

—Ottawa Journal.

This indictment of what has come to be an intolerable nuisance has been several times made by The Examiner in calling attention to the development of this practice on the part of the postal department.

The delivery of advertising matter addressed merely to "The Householder"—which means the letter carrier must deliver such mail to every house on his beat—should never have been undertaken by the Canadian postoffice as part of its regular mail service.

It delays the delivery of important mail, adds unnecessarily to the work of the letter carriers, and is resented by most citizens both from its effect upon mail delivery and because it brings a mass of advertising that few people want.

If the postal department needs the revenue that comes from the distribution of this stuff it should devise some other method of handling it.

It is not fair to the carriers or to the public that the regular delivery of mail should be interfered with by the distributing of unaddressed circulars.

In principle the acceptance of such mail does not differ greatly from calling upon the air mail pilots to scatter hand-bills as they wing their way across country.

Babe Ruth's marriage is announced. The Sultan of Swat is bound to keep on making home runs now.

TAGORE'S MESSAGE.

The exclusive message given by Sir Rabindranath Tagore to the people of Canada, through the Southam newspapers, on the eve of his departure from this Dominion, is one which deserves to be earnestly pondered. He speaks of the mission of Canada as that of fashioning a "new world." As the early pioneers subdued the wilderness, so the present generation has an even greater pioneering work to do—no less than the clearing away of the "debris of the dead past" and the establishment of a new spiritual order. Only a young nation, free from the sophistication and cynicism of older races, can undertake such a task with any hope of success, and the Indian poet-philosopher looks to Canada with the highest hopes. He is regarded by the delegates to the National Council of Education conference in Vancouver and by all who have heard or read his addresses as a modern prophet, bringing to the western world the penetrating insight of the East. His speeches have been of a peculiarly inspiring character, dealing with eternal spiritual values. In one of these addresses he said: "What gives us cause for anxiety is the fact that the spirit of progress occupies a great deal more of our mind to-day than the deeper life-process of our being, which requires depth of leisure for its sustenance. In the present age the larger part of our growth takes place on the outside, and our inner spirit has not the time to accept it and harmonize it into a synthesis of creation. In other words, the modern world has not allowed itself time to evolve a religion, a profound principle of reconciliation that can fashion out of all conflicting elements a living work of art—its society." There is more "depth of leisure" in these days, but little time is devoted to considering the profound truths of which the Indian seer speaks. His contribution to the discussion of the right use of leisure, which was the keynote of the council's conference, has been of lasting significance. In this period of the world's history, when speed is all-in-all, the message of the philosopher, on the value of quiet introspection—the precious harvest to be reaped from "the deep soil of leisure"—is of the utmost value.—Hamilton Spectator.

"THAT'S THE WAY THE MONEY GOES . . ."

Jack Canuck, taxpayer, gives up to Dominion tax collectors some four hundred million dollars annually. Now and then he is permitted a glimpse into the workings of the Government, which shows him how some of the money is spent.

Take the recent reference to the Supreme Court on waterpower ownership, for instance. This reference, as we all know, settled nothing. What the Government wanted to find out was whether waterpowers were owned by the Dominions or the Provinces. The matter was a highly legal and technical one, so somebody sensibly suggested that before the court was approached at all the Dominion and the Provinces should get together and agree upon just exactly what it was they wanted to find out. In other words, that they should submit specific, concrete questions.

That didn't happen. What happened was that the Dominion Government, without consulting the Privinces, drew up and submitted a list of questions of its own. They were about as definite as the proverbial black cat on a moonless night in a coal bin.

We all know the result. After weeks of argument among high-powered and high-priced lawyers, argument that made the Einstein theory look like the alphabet, the learned judges said that the questions were so vague they couldn't answer them. Not, at all events, a number of them. There would have to be new questions; also, of course, more argument—and more expense.

Now we've got the bill.

It is, we find, $60,000. Mr. Newton Wesley Rowell received $2,500, and has $12,602 still coming to him. Mr. Symington, once a crusader for Western rights, but not adverse to turning an honest penny for himself, received $3,925, and has $9,071 still owing him. Mr. Charles Laurendeau got $3,931 and will get $7,145 more; and Mr. Vincent MacDonald, either more shy or less able than his learned friends, received $9,221.

It was a great case—for the lawyers.

Some day, when we get industrious, or have a lot of time on our hands, we are going to try to find out just what it has cost us since Confederation to have lawyers tell us from time to time what this B.N.A. Act is about. It's an extraordinary document. Read by a layman, it seems simple enough; yet hardly a year goes by without some Government gouging us of thousands of dollars to have a lot of lawers and judges or the Privy Council tell us that it doesn't mean something that a lot of others thought it meant. And the worst of it is that these legal gentlemen don't always tell us the same thing. Perhaps if they did, it would be bad for business; would spoil a good meal ticket.

But to get back to our point. If the Government had used common sense in the first place, had asked the court straight, clear questions, the matter would be over with. As it is, we have paid a few lawyers $60,000 for practically nothing; are poorer without being wiser. Some day we'll have the whole thing all over again.

Sixty thousand dollars, to a country like Canada, isn't much. Yet it is one of the leaks. It is part of the inefficient system—an unnecessary thousand here and another there—that makes government costly, and that makes taxes high.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Attorney-General Price has organized a new department to handle liquor cases, but so far there is not a separate branch to capture Orval Shaw.

Frenchy Belanger, of Toronto, has lost the flyweight title, but Council battles indicate that Mayor McBride has still a firm grip on the lightweight honors.

Hon. Peter J. Veniot is to take a holiday trip next week, and judging from proceedings in the House, the vacation may be necessary.

From letters on the left-turn controversy, it is apparent that some motorists would prefer an elimination contest with no rules and no closed season for pedestrians.

The Ontario Government's omnibus bill seems to have developed a knock in the engine.

That Toronto Bible reading marathon may be intended to create interest in the Bible, but it sounds more like an endurance contest.

A Thought

"UP TO EACH ONE OF US."

Before we can make ourselves beloved by those who surround us, we must know ourselves. We all have our weak spots, and they should be attended to before we can be to others what we would like to be ourselves. The mistakes of our lives are many; but that is no reason why we should keep on making mistakes. Improvement is always in order. Perhaps we do not always feel in the mood to do so, but it is up to each one of us to strike out and be, men, women, girls and boys in the great army of well-doers.

It is up to us to love those whom we often can't understand. Make our misunderstandings fifty-fifty. Do not leave one inch to quarrel over. I know it is hard work but you cannot gain a prize without work.

God, the Great Painter, paints so many magnificent pictures in the sky to satisfy our love for the beautiful. Heaven's art gallery cannot be surpassed. The beautiful clouds and the regal rainbow captivate me. I often wonder if God's paintings will look more beautiful to our eyes when the Resurrection morning dawns? But is it not up to each one of us, readers? God has given us something beautiful to look upon. So it will be our own fault if we bleach those glorious colors.

The active side of life is more attractive to the majority of us than the passive. It is in the spring of the year now. So it is up to us to build lost strength and faith. God says, "Go work to-day in my vineyard." Then after the day's work is done, God calls us from the busy thoroughfare to the quiet seclusion of a sick room. Here we go to cheer and bless. Christ trod the wine-press alone, and with all the people there were none with Him. He suffered human pain and sorrow but there was no voice of peace; no cooling hand to wipe the sweat from His brow.

See how much good work we can do, readers It is up to each one of us. For Christ does not sleep when men weep. He stoops to wipe a tear, and kneels beside us in our Gethsemane.

Voice of the People

ANSWERS TRUCK DRIVER

Editor of The Examiner:

After reading a local truck driver's statement in Wednesday night's Voice of the People, in regard to the left hand turn on the corner of George and Charlotte streets, we being truck drivers are not in favor of this turn as nearly every one is used to this law now and to start back to the old turn would only cause confusion with plenty of accidents. I think the people in this city are more educated to the use of that sign than the person who wrote that article last night.

Yours very truly,
ANOTHER TRUCK DRIVER.

PRAISES NICHOLLS HOSPITAL

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

I would like to say a word about the lovely home-like Nicholls Hospital, you have in your lovely little city.

I cannot say enough in praise of the way I was looked after. I had a private room and enquiring in the public ward of the treatment there, was told that the doctors and nurses could not do enough for them.

They have a fine staff of young surgical and medical doctors and a nice staff of very efficient nurses. God bless the nurses. For some are tall and some are short and some are fat and some are lean and some are blondes and some brunettes and some are full of the devil—I mean full of mischief—and some are sedate, some serious, some otherwise—and what would a hard-boiled old bachelor like me do if it was not for the women—God bless them.

But putting them all together—they are a great bunch of sweet souled sisters and mothers.

God bless them all.

Yours truly,
JAMES WILDE.

BUYING OF SEED.

Dear Editor:

As one farmer to another, may I give a word of advice in regard to buying seed grain or clover to sow this Spring? The same will apply if you have your own seed, or better still, if you have some to sell. Every farmer should have a copy of a small book called "The Seeds Act". This may be obtained free of charge by sending to the Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont. In this book is a full description of all the different grades of seed and exactly what is required in each grade, for example: Registered, with three grades, and then No. 1, No. 2, No. 3, and Rejected for Seed which applies to all seed which does not grade No. 3 or higher.

If you wish to find out the grade of any seed, send a sample (two ounces in an envelope, of clover, timothy, etc. and one pound in a small cotton sack, of oats, wheat, etc.) to Mr. T. G. Raynor, Seed Inspector, 117 Vittoria St., Ottawa. Mr. Raynor is always ready and willing to help any farmer in obtaining pure seed. This testing of seed is done free and a certificate is sent showing the grade of the seed.

All farmers should try to buy Ontario grown seed because it is hardy enough to stand our winter, especially around Peterborough. Seed imported from other countries may be easily recognized by the presence of dyed seeds which is required by law. Sometimes a dealer will recommend what he calls Northern-grown seed which may be seed grown in Northern France, which does not grow well here.

You cannot be too alert if you intend to prevent weeds from overrunning your farm. The Agricultural Representative will help you too.

" A WEED FIGHTER."

Since writing this we notice that Mr. Nelson had written on the same subject, but we are sending this along because of the reference to the "Seeds Act."

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

Ana broke in hurriedly:

"Mollie hasn't done anything wicked. She's foolish, I know—she likes attention, but I am sure she hasn't done anything that really matters, Anthony."

"Are you? I am not so sure," Hambledon said in a voice of flint.

He leaned back in his chair with a sigh.

"There is no other living soul with whom I would discuss . . . my wife," he went on presently with an effort. "But you have known her all your life, and I——"

"You can trust me," Ana said.

"I know that, Ana; she's borrowed money from that—that fellow! Not small sums—not sums she could possibly pay back, but large amounts—running into hundreds of pounds. When she went away she left all the drawers in her room locked, and though it's a thing I would scorn to do in the ordinary way, I had those locks forced."

"Anthony!"

"Well, and why not? I've got my own life to consider as well as hers."

"And the General's," Ana said gently.

"Ah, yes—the General's." Hambledon's voice softened.

They sat in silence for a moment. The tea was brought and Ana poured out.

"No sugar and lots of milk, isn't it?" she said, trying to speak lightly. "You see, I have remembered."

But it hurt her because her beautiful day was to be spoiled by trouble, and yet she was proud and glad that Anthony had come to her out of all the world.

"Of course he would, though," she told herself. "We really belong to each other."

"How much do you know, Ana?" he asked suddenly.

Ana hesitated.

"I don't know anything really, for certain," she said at last. "At least, I saw a check once. Mollie dropped it, and I picked it up for her."

"A check from Mahon?"

"Yes. But I'm sure there really wasn't any harm in it," she cried out eagerly, helplessly, as his face darkened. "He liked Mollie—she's so pretty——"

"She's my wife," Anthony said sternly.

Ana drew back with a little shiver.

"Yes, she's your wife," she whispered.

"The thing is, what am I to do?" Anthony said.

"Does Mollie know that you——?"

He shook his head.

"Not yet. She is not coming back till Thursday." His mouth twisted into a wry smile. "It's to be a week this time, not a week-end."

"Oh!"

The colour deepened suddenly in his sun-bronzed face.

"God, what a fool I've been," he said passionately.

Ana laid her hand on his arm.

"Don't be too hasty. Don't think things are worse than they are. Mollie may be able to explain."

"Explain!" he laughed harshly. "I think it will be beyond even Mollie to explain away the presents and furs and—and money which I know she has taken from that cur."

"She isn't the only woman who does that sort of thing," Ana said helplessly. She was frightened for Mollie; she felt that they were all on the verge of some terrible catastrophe.

"I know that women—some sort of women think nothing of taking presents from men——"

"Would you do it, Ana?"

"I? I've never had the chance. I might if I had the chance."

He shook his head.

"It's kind of you to say that, but you know it's not true."

"I'm different. I'm not pretty like Mollie."

"Thank God," Hambledon said dryly. She laughed a little.

"You're not very complimentary."

His hand closed about hers in a hard grip.

"You know you're everything in the world to me. I don't care if you're pretty or not. I don't know. I only know that you're everything I want a woman to be. That's why I came up to-day. I had to come—don't you understand me, Ana?"

She shook her head. Her cheeks were flushed and her lips trembling.

"No—no, I don't."

"I mean"—Hambledon explained with almost brutal directness, "I mean that if all this is true—this—do you think I am going to be a quixotic fool any longer and throw away my own chance of happiness?"

She stared at him, wide-eyed, breathless.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I shall not take Mollie back to Rhodesia with me."

"Anthony!" Ana's cheeks flamed with distress. "You mustn't say that. You're exaggerating things. I know you are."

"And I know I am not. I found letters—dozens of them—the sort of letters—well——" He broke off with a shrug of disgust.

"But you haven't spoken to her about it yet. You must give her a chance to explain. She is really fond of you, I know she is—oh, it's not possible that she can have done anything that really matters."

There was a little silence, then Hambledon said slowly:

"I'm afraid I don't care if she has."

"Anthony!"

He turned his sombre eyes upon her.

"That's the truth. Our marriage has been like hundreds of others, based on nothing better than a foolish attraction which could not possibly last. We haven't a single thing in common—not a link that binds us together."

"The General!" Ana said gently.

"The General would, of course, stay with me," Anthony said.

"It would break Mollie's heart," Ana told him despairingly.

He laughed at that.

"Rubbish! Hearts are not so easily broken—not hearts of that type, at least."

"Anthony, you're very unfair to her. You're judging her too soon and too harshly. You haven't any actual proof."

"Have I not? I tell you I have. Besides—since you went away, Ana, I haven't known a moment's happiness. I think of you all the time and want to be with you. It's torment—I can't sleep, or rest, or settle to anything. It's you—you—all the time. God knows why, my dear, I don't. I didn't want it to happen. I did my best to stop it when I realized how things were." He made a little gesture of self-contempt. "I might as well have tried to stop the tide coming in."

Ana turned her face away to hide the passionate joy in her eyes.

Every nerve in her body responded to what he said. She wanted to say: "Yes, yes, that's how I feel, too. Life isn't anything without you—there's nothing to live for, nothing to look forward to," but instead all she said was: "You'll regret it all your life if you do anything without being quite sure first; without being quite sure. Besides—I wouldn't, anyway," she added in a whisper.

"You would if I asked you to, Ana."

"I would not!" she looked at him defiantly. "We couldn't be happy that way—nobody ever is."

She slipped her hand into his.

"Everything will come right, Anthony—I am sure it's all a mistake. I am sure it is not so bad as you think."

"But I don't care if it is," he persisted recklessly. "Can't you see that it's a way out for us? The only way? If you care for me as I do for you——"

"And Mollie? What becomes of Mollie?" Ana asked tremblingly. "Mr. Mahon can't marry her, even if she wanted him to. Oh, Anthony!"—she shook his arm with gentle playfulness—"it isn't like you to be so hard. To-morrow you'll be sorry."

"No, I shall never be sorry."

Ana drew her hand away.

"Oh, very well."

They sat in silence.

Then with an effort Ana roused herself and took up her gloves.

"I must be going."

"Nonsense. You are to spend the evening with me."

There was an angry, possessive note in his voice, and Ana's heart gave a flutter of fear.

She loved him so much; there was nothing in all the world she wanted except to be with him, and yet—there was Mollie! and the General! and life, and she knew that life can never be coerced.

"I can't. I promised to go back to supper," she said.

"Well, you are not going. We can 'phone."

"We're not on the 'phone. It costs too much."

"We will send a wire, then."

She faced him desperately.

"Anthony, I don't know you in this mood. You frighten me."

"I don't know myself, or is it that I am only just beginning to know myself?" He shrugged his shoulders. "Where is the waitress? We'll get the bill and go out."

"I must go home," Ana said again, though with less determination. "It's been lovely to see you, but——"

Anthony interrupted.

"Very well, if you're determined to be so obstinate, I will tell you something that may make you change your mind."

"What do you mean?"

"That I am going back to Rhodesia in a fortnight."

She stared at him with blank eyes, incredulous, disbelieving; then she struggled to laugh.

"In a fortnight. But you booked on a boat that does not sail till the end of October."

"I've changed my mind. I had a cable last week from the man who is managing my farm. I shall have to go—and anyway, I'm sick of England."

"Anthony!"

"That's the chief reason why I had to see you at once," he went on ruthlessly. "You've got to make up your mind about me. I'll give you three days."

"Make up my mind!—I don't——"

He looked at her steadily.

"You've got to make up your mind whether you will come back with me, or if I go alone," he said.

A busy time is just ahead for the Legion. Plans are under way for the big carnival to be held May 15, 16, and 17, and there will be several meetings in connection with this in the near future.

Then, on Sunday, there will be the annual Church Parade, this year to Mark Street United Church. The parade will form up at the Legion Cenotaph at 10.20, and after a short service will march off at 10.40.

This service, commemorative of the Second Battle of Ypres, is always well attended, and this year should be especially popular because of increasing interest in veterans. The militia units have been asked to take part, and both the bands of the Peterborough Rangers and the Salvation Army have also been invited.

Members of the Legion will wear civilian dress, and medals will be worn on the outer coat.

The order of service will be published to-morrow, with further particulars.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SATURDAY, APRIL 20, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Benefic aspects dominate today in planetary government, according to astrology.

It is a day that should be especially helpful to trade and commerce. Merchants and manufacturers should benefit.

Under this sway beginnings are supposed to be lucky. It is a time to act upon what one has planned.

Judges and lawyers of every rank should benefit today which makes for enterprises that require legal decisions or advice because of their importance.

New fortunes for Americans are foretold, and they will be found in foreign lands, it is prophesied.

The seers who have far sight declare that a century hence many nations will become one commercially and co-operation will reach a stage that eliminates national boundaries.

All constructive activities are well directed today which is supposed to be particularly favorable for engineers, architects and builders.

Beauty is to rule in America as never before, astrologers predict, and there is a promise of splendor in gardens and parks as well as buildings.

The old-fashioned girl will now become the mode, so far as attire is concerned, astrologers foretell, and her dress will affect her manners so that modesty again will be cultivated.

This evening should be a lucky time for according honors or giving recognition to important achievement. Lucky for banquets.

Washington, D.C. now comes under a direction of the stars that is most fortunate for the people. Wise legislation is indicated.

A great engineering feat that will excel any previously achieved is foretold for the United States.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a fortunate year. They should be fortunate in financial matters.

Children born on this day are likely to be exceedingly charming in nature and fond of society. Girls may be especially talented but difficult to place satisfactorily in any vocation. Both boys and girls change decidedly as the years progress.

Cornelius Harnett, early American statesman, was born on this day, 1723. David Brainerd, 1718, noted missionary, also claimed this as a birthday.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY PAYING ATTENTION HELPS US TO REMEMBER

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.)
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

"Pay attention to what you are doing" we say to a careless boy or an indifferent worker. We know by experience that attention has something to do with learning, that the more attention we give the better we learn or the better work we turn out.

The WHY of this well-known fact is that attention increases the amount of nervous energy driven through the arc, and therefore modifies the arc more effectively than does the small amount of energy sent through in imperfect attention.

In the absence of any attention there can be no learning at all. The thing simply doesn't register. That is why we miss seeing what is right before our eyes. To see a thing it must register on the visual centers of the brain in the back of the head. The eyes are merely conductors of the impression. If there is no attention there is no real seeing. This is illustrated by the fact that if you are preoccupied with some problem you go right past a friend and never speak because you really do not see him despite the fact that your eyes are turned in his direction, or you go past the store you were to shop at. The same holds for all our senses.

Attention is absolutely essential to learning and the greater the attention the more effective the learning. Intense attention drives the largest possible amount of energy through the brain center. In this way it modifies the center to such a degree that the next impulse will easily go through with little resistance. The situation is very like clearing the streets by a group of motor cycle police for the approach of a celebrity on parade.

If the attention is intense enough a poem, a lesson, or a book could be learned at one reading. You should not begin to study a thing until you are ready to give it absolute, undivided attention. Note that our greatest scholars and statesmen are able to do this very thing. It is the secret of quick mastery of a subject and the essence of mental efficiency.

Repetition helps us to remember because it serves the same function as careful attention. Each repetition makes up for some imperfection of attention. Conversely, the more intensely you attend the fewer repetitions you will need to make.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamp-envelope for reply.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

OUTDOORS

Dawn streaming from the skies,
Flow'rs opening at our feet,
And yet how many a mortal sighs,
And can't find one thing sweet.
A breeze across the grass,
Ah, yes, across the mind,
Yet through a world like this we pass
And can't find one thing kind.

The dawn, and then the day,
The noon, and then the night,
And yet we grumble on our way
And can't find one thing right.
The spring returns again,
What winters we endure,
And yet the world is full of men
Who can't find one thing sure.

And, searching men, no doubt,
They always seek in vain;
But God is only one mile out
This street, up yonder lane.
In town are hates and wars,
The wicked seem the strong,
But when I really get outdoors
I can't find one thing wrong.

MINERAL DEVELOPMENT IN THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO HAS INCREASED ANNUALLY

Statement Found in Government-Authorized Publication of Yearly Reports.

TEN YEAR PERIOD.

Report Shows Increase in Canadian Production While Other Countries Slump.

Within the next two years, the Dominion of Canada will supercede the United States as the world's second gold-producing country, this improvement in her status being largely due to annually increasing her mineral development in the Province of Ontario. Authority for this bold statement is found in a Government-authorized publication in which is included a statement, abstracted chiefly from annual reports of the Director of the United States' Mint. It covers a period extending over the past ten years, and also the year 1915 when the world attained its maximum of production. Canada now holds third place while Ontario is next in line.

The statement is one from which a wealth of interesting comparisons may be drawn, almost invariably in the Dominion's favor, for over the past decade, as well as in 1915 (the next three years were omitted due to the war) gold production has shown a seldom-interrupted increase in Canada, while the record for the United States shows a downward trend, as is the case of numerous other countries and states listed.

A first glance over the statement reveals that in 1915, the world's production of gold amounted to 468.7 millions of dollars, while in the post-war period, having taken a considerable slump, it began to rise again in 1923 and since that time has steadily increased from 367.8 millions to 402.9 millions in 1928. Of that total in the past year, the Transvaal, with its vast mines, contributed 214.0 millions of dollars. But a second and closer study reveals that comparison most interesting to Canadians—and Americans, for it shows that in 1915, the United States produced 101.0 millions, and since 1921, has been gradually slipping backward, from 50.1 millions to 47.3, 50.2, 50.6, 48.0, 436. 43.8 to 43.6 millions last year, while Canada's production has grown over that period from 19.1 millions in 1921, upward to 39.1 millions last year at such a rate as to easily surpass the U.S. The production with in a year or two, the totals for each year from 1921, being 19.1 millions, 26.1, 25.5, 31.5, 35.9, 36.3 millions, 38.3 millions in 1927 and 39.1 millions in 1928. The two preceding years of the post war period, that is, 1919 and 1920 showed the United States' production to be 60.3 and 51.2 millions respectively, while Canada's production was only 15.9 and 15.8 millions in the same two years. The difference between the two countries at that time, and again in 1928, forms the real basis of comparison —entirely in favor of the Dominion.

Ontario's art.

While the Dominion's total production of gold has been rapidly increasing(it is noteworthy that Ontario alone has contributed the major quantity of that annual production, with a gradual increase from 10.5 millions in 1919 to 32.6 millions in 1928. Russia, Mexico, Oceanica (includes Australia and New Zealand) Rhodesia, California, Australia, West Australia and India have all gradually decreased their production and follow in that order after Canada and Ontario. In relation to her sister gold-producing provinces or districts, Ontario passed the Yukon territory in 1925, and British Columbia in 1926, while her maximum production for a year, $33,627,040 in 1927, is far in excess of the Yukon's maximum of $22,275,000 reached in 1900, and British Columbia's high mark of $6,149,027 reached in 1913. Production from British Columbia began in 1858, in Ontario during 1866 and in the Yukon nineteen years later.

NEW YORK LIST MOVES UPWARD ACTIVE SESSION

Easier Credit Conditions and Favorable Trade News Provides Backbone For Trading.

EARLY LIQUIDATION.

Market Rallies Under Leadership of Public Utility and Merchandising Issues.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 19 (Canadian Press). — Responding to easier credit conditions and favorable trade news, the stock market moved upward to-day after an early period of heaviness resulting from liquidation inspired by the small decrease in brokers' loans and the breaking up of the reparations conference.

While a few soft spots cropped out here and there, the market generally rallied under the leadership of the public utility and merchandising issues. At least 15 individual stocks moved into new high ground for the year.

Call money renewed at 7½ per cent. as against 8 yesterday and appeared to be in plentiful supply at that figure. A further easing also was noted in the time money market, some of the longer dates being available as low as 8¼ as against 8½ earlier in the week and 9 per cent. a week ago.

High current farmings and rumors of new stock split-ups and mergers stimulated the demand for the merchandising shares. Woolworth, which recently announced a 2½ for 1 split-up of the stock, ran up more than 6 points to a new high record at 225¾.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF BABY

"Such a Thing Should Not Have Happened," Declares Attorney-General Price.

INQUEST IS CALLED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 19.—(C.P.) "Such a thing should not have happened, and all the facts will be brought out at the Coroner's inquest," said Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, to-day, regarding the death of one of twins, born to Mrs. Annie Minnigan, in jail at Hamilton.

Crown Attorney Bellard, of Hamilton, has been directed by the Attorney General to make a thorough investigation into the question as to why Mrs. Minnigan was permitted to be removed to the jail, and the facts are to be given at the inquest.

Inquiries by the Attorney-General have shown that Mrs. Minnigan, being summoned to court, took her sentence without informing anyone of her condition, nor was attention drawn to it.

The Attorney General pointed out that Mrs. Minnigan might have sent a doctor's certificate to court stating she was unable to appear, for her husband might have informed officials of his wife's condition, in which case she would not have been called uuon to appear.

Wheat Drops New Low Under Heavy Selling

CHICAGO, Olls., April 19. — (Canadian Press). — Generous selling carried wheat values down to-day to below any level heretofore reached this season. Beneficial rains west and southwest as well as heavy supplies with harvest only about two months off, were among the chief reasons given. Opening ¾ to 2¾ lower, wheat prices later showed something of a rally. Corn and oats were also weak, corn starting at 1 cent decline to ⅛ advance and subsequently continuing to average lower. Provisions held steady.

VIOLET DAY ON SATURDAY

Humane Society Will Hold Its Annual Tag Day To-morrow.

FORTY-FIVE TAGGERS.

Saturday will be Violet Day in this city, as a result of a decision reached last night by the Peterborough Humane Society in its regular executive meeting, to hold a tag sale on that date. Thousands of artificial violets have been made as well as violet rosettes to be worn by commercial horses, and forty-five young lady taggers have been secured to patrol the main streets of the city.

Presided over by the new president, T. E. Sargent, last night's meeting, held in the Council Room of the Chamber of Commerce, was a busy one, and included among the items given attention was the appointment of the new president and the secretary. Mrs. J. S. Chandler, as members of the executive of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which meets at headquarters, Toronto, twice yearly. All arrangements were completed for the violet day, and Mrs. E. S. Martin was appointed convenor of the taggers, with headquarters at the Jeannette Shop, George Street.

During the evening the new inspector, Dr. Thomas Johnston, submitted a comprehensive report of activities during the past month. He reported the collection of $8.50 from sale of goods and humanely destroying cats and dogs, as well as telling of inspections of stables, in one of which he had found a horse suffering from starvation to such an extent that it had to be destroyed. A number of lame horses had also been stopped on the streets and their drivers given advice regarding proper treatment. It is the intention of the inspector to make systematic inspection of all stables in and around the city at once.

HIRAM WALKERS FEATURE ISSUE TORONTO CURB

Marked Price Changes Isolated With List Having Softer Tendency.

LIGHT TRADING.

Industrials Supply Bulk of Total Sales—Penny Losses Prominent.

TORONTO, Ont., April 19 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of Hiram Walkers, which featured the morning session with a great display of strength, little changes were shown in prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. The general list leaned toward the softer side, though marked changes were isolated, and single point losses were the most prominent recorded. There was a heavy decrease both in trading and the width of the list. The industrial group again supplied the bulk of the total sales. A heavy run in Walkers sent the price soaring to a high of 76, with the noon quotation of 75½, showing a net gain of 5½ points. City Dairy came out with an additional gain of 2¾ points to 68, while Canada Dry was up 2 points at 87. Beatty Bros. held at the morning's high of 46, up 1½, while Dufferin Paving was 1¼ stronger at 30½.

Re-action in Standard Steel sent the price sliding down 3 points to 55, while Page Hersey lost 1½ to 134. Among those showing single point losses were Gypsum and Alabastine at 113, Goodyear at 108, Hayes Wheels at 63, and Russell at 115. C.P.R. dipped 4 points to 234. International Nickel was very quiet and held fractionally higher at 48 5-8.

SIX ARE SUFFOCATED.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 19 (Canadian Press).—An aged woman and five children were suffocated as they slept when a defective kitchen stove set fire to the home of Harvey Pucker on the outskirts of South Bend last night.

FAMILY NIGHT WELL ATTENDED

Choir and Congregation Enter Whole-Heartedly Into Revival Services.

A CHRISTIAN HOME.

"Family Night" brought large crowds again to the singing revival in St. James United Church, with families, large and small, seated together, recalling old days when this was the custom in all churches.

The message in song was even more impressive than usual, and was entered into heartily by both the choirs and congregation. The opening number by the choir was "Jesus May Come To-day," followed by several other selections in which the congregation joined.

A duet (requested), "Keep Me Shining for Thee," was sung by Mr. and Mrs. Dibble. A second duet, "Move Out, Let Jesus Move In," rendered by Mrs. Kitney and Mr. Dibble, the latter also joining with Ensign Green in singing "Joy, Joy in My Heart."

Seated on the platform with the pastor and the evangelists were Rev. Mr. Edgar, of Gilmour Memorial Church; Rev. J. E. Todd, George Street United; Rev. William Allan, St. Paul's Presbyterian, and Ensign Green of the Salvation Army. Several other visiting clergymen were in the audience, and as evidence of the good will existing between the denominations represented all joined in sing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

The largest family present was found to be that of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jarvis, with their nine children, to whom Mr. Dibble presented a fine Bible.

In speaking of the "Home" life, Mr. Dibble compared our Canadian homes with those of the United States and noted the similarity of the southern homes to those of our own land, in that there was more time here for the development of the Christian life.

Rev. J. E. Todd led in the evening prayer, and Mrs. Dibble's address was preceded by her husband's solo, "The Ninety and Nine."

"There are three wonderful words in our language," said Mrs. Dibble, "Father, Mother, and Home." It takes a good father and mother to make a good home. Preachers and statesmen declare that the only solution of the problems to-day lies in the home. Quoting from Deuteronomy, she urged all parents to keep God's commandments in their homes.

Mr. Moody, in the beginning of his ministry, stated that if there were one sermon that could be repeated over and over, he would preach the responsibility of parents to children.

Parents as Teachers.

Moses commanded that a wall should be built around the home as a protection. Parents should build just such a wall around their homes, to consist of four parts. The first is that of Prayer and Reverence for God. That is why parents should be Christians and should instill in the heart of every boy and girl—love for the Bible. The father and mother must build this home together. No mother should bear all the responsibility for the Christian training of the children. That father who has none, is a coward and a slacker. Is your home a Christian home? If Jesus lives there, it is. He cannot live in a home with no love. Does Christ live there, the unseen guest at every meal, the silent listener to every conversation? It is a tragedy that prayer in the home is becoming a thing of the past, but the world, Satan and temptation, are always on the job.

Statistics in the United States show that 75% of its criminals are young men under twenty-four. This shows that the "Christian home" is failing to-day, for every drunkard, murderer and thief was once an innocent babe.

The second wall was that of Authority, for where there is no authority there is no peace. One of the chief causes of sin and crime to-day is laxity in home life.

The world need to-day is not more government, but home control through parental guidance.

A certain picture represents a sea of crime, with the ship of youth tossing upon it. Near by on a rock is the lighthouse of parental influence and authority. If the light goes out, what chance is there for the ship?

The third wall is comradeship and affection, and there is nothing so much needed to-day.

We must have hours of fellowship, confidence and sympathy in our own home. Edgar Guest says, "It takes a heap o' living in a house to make it home," and a lack of home life is deplorable.

Jesus Christ in the home and heart keeps the fountain of love flowing and keeps out a nagging and fault-finding spirit.

The last part of the wall is that of consistent example. One of the greatest stumbling-blocks to young people is the inconsistency of the older folk. Children are the greatest imitators in the world. Parents should never do anything they do not want their children to do.

The story is told of a boat nearing the fisherman's cottage when the storm and darkness fell. The mother had placed a lighted lamp in the attic to guide her husband and daughter home, but her Godless son declared it would be of no use. Rejoicing, the father and daughter arrived safely home, steered by mother's light. This led the boy to accept Jesus, and a few months later, when his life was ebbing away he comforted his mother by saying he was going straight to God, steered by his mother's light. Let there be a home-coming to God in the rededication of our homes to Him. This fine appeal for better homes closed with earnest prayer by the preacher.

On behalf of St. James congregation, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, the pastor, welcomed the large audience, and thanked the people of Peterborough, the churches, and the clergy for their support at this revival, and he rejoiced that the services had touched every church in the city, as well as St. James, with blessing.

To-night will be the last week-night service, and is for "young people" especially. It is usually the best service of all.

Rev. Mr. Dibble will sing to-night a new song to Peterborough, "The Devil Song," and on request has promised to again sing "Sonny Boy."

All-day services will be held on Sunday. In the morning in St. James; at four o'clock a service for women, to be addressed by Mrs. Dibble, her subject, "A Great Woman," while at the same hour Mr. Dibble will address a men's meeting in Park Street Baptist Church. Further announcements of Sunday evening will appear later.

REV. G. TEBBS ADDRESSES CLUB

Burlington Horticulturist Declares City Needs Larger Horticultural Society.

GIVES LECTURE TO-NIGHT.

A wealth of genuine humor sparkled through at most opportune moments to punctuate the message of the Rev. George Tebbs, Burlington Horticulturalist as he delivered it before the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club at noon to-day. Indeed, the reverend gentleman all but concealed the more serious aspects of his address, for he carried his listeners along on a wave of laughter with only an occasional reference to the main object of his visit, so that they learned, while in a happy mood, that Peterborough needs, and needs badly, a far larger, and therefore more active Horticultural society. They heard that of a Dominion-wide membership of 80,000, Peterborough only contributed about 150 of that total, and that if the practise of horticulture were carried on to a greater degree the city and every resident would benefit thereby. The Rev. Mr. Tebbs will deliver his main address, a comedy lecture on English and Canadian Horticulture, before a public meeting this evening. Among those present to-day were President W. H. Young and Secretary Harris of the local Horticultural Society, while the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson introduced the speaker.

There was one other most enjoyable feature of to-day's meeting —the vocal and piano numbers contributed by George Dibble and Harold Mustaine who, for the past week and a half have been attracting large audiences to St. James Church. Widely known as radio entertainers, the two men put over some of the happiest and most effective combinations heard at Kiwanis in some time, including the popular Al Jolson hit "Sunny Boy", "Smiles" and a few old favorites. Messrs Dibble and Liddle were heard in a duet chorus and Mr. Mustaine, their accompanist responded to C. S. Browne's request with a couple of well-rendered piano instrumentals.

Going to Oshawa

Kiwanian H. C. Huffman, as chairman of the Inter-club relations committee had important announcements regardding delegations of Peterborough club members who will go to Oshawa to-night as a guard of honor for District Lieut.-Governor I. P. McNabb, to Bowmanville for a joint meeting with the Riverside club of Toronto next Thursday, and to Toronto on the occasion of the International President's visit next Tuesday. Relative to the ticket-selling contest for the Kiwanis Kapers, President J. J. Turner announced that team number II had won the prizes. That team included in its personnel, M. Sweetman, E. Taylor, R. B. Taylor, J. Wearing and J. J. Turner.

Prior to dismissal, C. S. Saunders moved a vote of thanks to the entertainers and the speaker of the day.

EMPLOYEE'S FINGER SEVERELY CRUSHED

William McKenzie Meets With Painful Accident at New Service Station.

An unfortunate accident that caused him considerable suffering befell William McKenzie, Louis Street, an employee of McIntyre Brothers, contractors, at about 2.30 this afternoon. While assisting in the operation of a small cement mixer at the construction work of the new Imperial Oil Service Station, George Street, his left hand was caught between a dumping bar and the revolving mixer, with the result that the top of the middle finger on his left hand was severely crushed. McKenzie was taken to Dr. Morgan for medical attention, and was later able to go to his home.

VALLEY'S BIGGEST MONTH.

Importance of Home Oil development in Turner Valley recognized by C.P.R., which in a bulletin says, "During March more important results were obtained than in any other month in the history of the Alberta oil field," and add that Home No. 1 well is now the leader.

KRESGE STORE CONTRACT LET

Sullivan and Freid, of Toronto, Will Build New Store On George Street.

BEGIN WORK MONDAY.

The contract for the construction of the Kresge building at the corner of Simcoe and George streets, has been let to Sullivan and Freid, of Toronto, the builders of the first Westclox building.

L. T. Bishop, local superintendent for the S. S. Kresge Company, informed The Examiner this morning that the contractors would begin work here next Monday. Five tenders were submitted, the only local bid being from Richard Sheehy and Sons. The new store is expected to be completed by the latter part of August.

The Peterborough store is just one of twenty that the S. S. Kresge Company, Limited, will open in Canada this year. It will be approximately 61 feet wide by 120 1-2 feet deep, and the Kresge store frontage will be 40 feet.

An official of the company stated that they will offer the rest of the ground floor to a tenant for a small store, but if local business expands, as the company anticipates, they will eventually occupy the entire ground floor of their property. The front half of the second storey, and also along the Simcoe street side will be made into offices for rent.

T. C. Morgan of Detroit, manager of the construction and store equipment department of S. S. Kresge Company, Limited, said to The Examiner: "We have designed for Peterborough what we consider a very nice building, and when it is completed we are confident it will be a good addition to your city and district."

The tenders were called for Wednesday, April 17, and the contract was awarded the same day. Sullivan and Freid are now completing a Kresge Store in Toronto.

Mountain goats are classed as the rarest and wildest of Rocky Mountain game.

JAMES MORROW AWARDED PRIZE

Oratorical Contest Held at Queen Alexandria School Association Meeting.

GOOD PROGRAM

A very successful teachers' "At Home" was held in the kindergarten room of Queen Alexandra School last evening, under the auspices of the Home and School Association.

The attractively decorated room was filled to overflowing with an admiring number of parents and friends of the pupils taking part in the excellent program presented by the pupils under the direction of the teachers of the school. Besides the splendid choruses given by the senior and junior choirs, and individual numbers, the interest centred around the oratorical contest. This has become an annual event in the school life and is creating much interest and enthusiasm among the students. In the Junior and Senior IV. classes all the students but two in each class had been eliminated, leaving the following to compete for the prize: Edith Wills, who spoke on "The Product of Silk"; Helen Steer, who took as her subject, "A Famous Old Castle and Its Song"; James Morrow, whose subject was "Men who gave us Printing," and Isobel Duthie, who spoke on "The Water Supply of Peterborough." All these youthful speakers did exceedingly well, speaking with ease and fluency, surpassing many a public platform speaker. The judges, J. E. R. Munro, W. Sangster and Miss Helen Ross, found it very difficult to arrive at a decision. James Morrow was awarded the first prize and Helen Steer the second, while a few friends decided on giving the other two contestants consolation prizes. All the prizes were beautifully bound books.

Maurice Park, principal of the school, acted as chairman, and after a few remarks of appreciation on the large attendance, introduced the new president of the Home and School Association, Mrs. Carl Simpson, who briefly welcomed all to the meeting. The following is the program:

Senior Chorus—(a) Ye Banks and Braes; (b) The Soldiers' Chorus.

Recitation—Jean Kerr.

Oratorical Contest — (a) Edith Wills; (b) Helen Steer.

Harmonica Trio (prize winners at the Kiwanis Music Festival).—Tom Martin; Stuart Clark; George Hall.

Playlet—The Trial of Jimmy Germ; in which the following was the cast of characters: Queen, Eleanor Reed; Street Cleaner, Billy King; Jimmie Germ, Robert Flitton; Sunshine, Jean Todd; Fresh Air, Ruth Deyell; Soap, Warden Wright; Carbolic Acid, Tommy Mackie; Tea Kettle, Ruth Parnell. Horace Steer acted as the announcer in a clear voice, giving the cast of the characters.

Junior Chorus, by ten of the junior pupils of the school.—(a) The Land of Nod; (b) Peek-a-Boo; (c) April.

Oratorical contest—James Morrow, Isobel Duthie.

Piano duet—Isobel Duthie, Della Reynolds.

Vocal duet—Annie and Margaret Fletcher, who responded to encore.

Senior chorus—"Robin, Lend to Me Thy Bow," "The Meeting of the Waters," "The British Grenadiers."

Before singing the National Anthem Mr. Munro gave the decision of the judges, while Miss Helen Ross presented the prizes to the successful contestants. Mr. Sangster presented the consolation prizes. At the conclusion of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Park and the teachers of the staff was voiced in a few words by Mrs. H. H. Graham and Mrs. Tremaine, after which dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. J. H. Vance, assisted by the executive. The reception committee consisted of the president, Mrs. Carl Simpson, and Mrs. H. G. Walker.

GARRISON NOTES

A splendid smoker marked the week for the Machine Gun Company, when most of the members gathered at the Armouries. The gun teams presented stunts and musical numbers, number three, under Sgt. Westram, winning first place, with number two, under Sgt. Hobson, second. Sgt. Ross was in charge of number one. Judges were John Crane, A. J. Reynolds, and R. Haddow. In addition to the judging, Mr. Crane acted as accompanist, Mr. Reynolds contributed a solo, and Mr. Haddow a piano solo. Captain J. A. Dewart presided, and others contributing to the program were Major H. Dodds, O.C., Captain J. Turnbull, Captain G. R Scott, M.D., Lieut. H. Devey, Lieut. J. Heron and C.Q.M.S. T. Thomas. Regimental Sergeant-Major Calladine, of the Peterborough Rangers, was a guest.

All units of the Peterboorugh Garrison have been invited to the Canadian Legion Church Parade on Sunday, commemorative of the Second Battle of Ypres. The parade will form up at the Legion Cenotaph at 10.20, when a brief ceremony will be held, and will march off at 10.40 to Mark street church.

The training season has started for both Peterborough Rangers and Machine Gun Company, the former parading on Tuesdays and Thursdays and the latter on Wednesdays. The Rangers have room for a few good recruits.

Battalion orders issued by Major M. H. Park announce the granting of certificates from C.S.A.E. as follows: Lt. R. J. Bolton and Lt. H. H. Langford, "A" wing instructors. Gordon Reid Clegg is appointed provisional lieutenant.

The following, of the Peterborough Rangers, have qualified in Part I for the ranks indicated: Lt. J. Dunkerly and Lt. C. E. Newman, Captain; P. Pt. J. E. Parsons, and P. Lt. G. R. Clegg, Lieutenant; C.M.S. J. Gaskell, C.Q.M.S. O'Varty C.Q.M.S. N. Chale, Sgt. W. J. Mackness, Sgt. F. A. Lockhart, W.O. Class 2; Cpl. G. H. James, Sergeant.

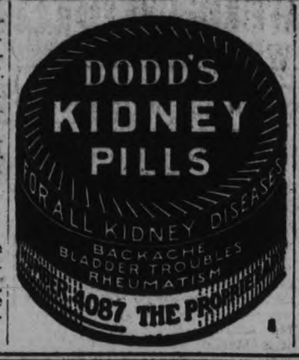
C. N. R. EARNINGS

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending April 7th, 1929, were $5,011,486, as compared with $4,519,913 for the corresponding period of 1928, an increase of $491,573, or 11 per cent.



Ennismore

ENNISMORE, April 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The roads are in a much improved condition, except for the boundary line between Ennismore and Emily.

The long swamp is badly flooded and there is a depth of about three feet of water across the road, which makes it almost impossible for traffic on the road.

Several farmers are preparing the ground for sewing grain.

Personals.

Mrs. William Young is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. F. Scollard in Douro.

The Misses Kathleen an. Madeline Flaherty, of Peterborough, spent the week-end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Flaherty.

Mrs. B. Leahy and son, of Douro, visited Mr. and Mrs. V. Murphy on Sunday.

Mr. J. J. Young and Mr. T. I. Crough made a business trip to Warsaw on Monday.

Around the City

A moving picture showing in a graphic way the health effects to be obtained from taking Fleischmann's yeast was the feature of the program at the "Y" Men's club weekly supper last evening. Jim Holland, local agent of the company, described some of the peoperties of yeast and its benefit on the organic system.

REPORTS SHOW BIG PROGRESS

Old Home Week Committee Decides to Employ Organizer.

GRANTS MADE

Reports from several committees, presented at last night's meeting of the Central Committee on Old Home Week, indicate that progress is being made with all arrangements.

Appropriations of $300 each were approved for the Reception Commitee for badges, and for the Regatta Committee for prizes and incidental expense. Offers to help the Decorations Committee prepare the trimmings for Old Home Week have already been received from King Edward Home and School Association, and the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. Many others are anticipated.

A regrettable loss is the resignation of John Crane as chairman of the Music Committee, owing to pressure of business. The committee was asked to meet and select a successor.

One of the most important decisions made was to engage an organizer from May 1, to co-ordinate the work of the committee and plan the week's entertainment. The appointment was left to the Entertainment Committee.

W. WEST ELECTED TO FILL POSITION

Succeeds E. Sandercock On Stirling Council—Presentation Made.

DISTRICT NEWS.

STIRLING, April 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—At the meeting called to nominate a candidate for councillor to succeed E. Sandercock, who resigned to take the position as superintendent of the County House of Refuge to which he had been appointed, W. C. West, proprietor of the Stirling Creamery, was the only one nominated for the position, and was elected to fill out the balance of the year.

Causing Much Trouble.

One of the chimneys at the public school is causing considerable trouble by smoking and the pupils are losing time from the cause.

Presentation Made.

In the presentations to the members of the hockey team, an omission was made in not stating that a beautiful leather club bag was given to W. J. Whitty, as manager, by the members of the team which was greatly appreciated and received graciously by him, on the night of the banquet.

Y.P.S. Meets.

St. Paul's Young People's meeting was held on Monday evening under the direction of the Literary Department. Rev. E. W. Rowland presided over the devotional part. Miss Bessie Dicken took charge of the remaining part of the program. Mrs A. E. Dobbie delighted the audience with a reading entitled "If" by Rudyard Kipling. The Blue Outlook paper, which was prepared by Mr. D. M. Halpenny, of Aylmer, and read by Miss L. McGuire, created unusual interest insomuch that the attendance was very large.

Kenneth Smith, of Mount Pleasant, gave a saw solo, which was well received. A bird contest was put on by Miss Pearl Reid.

Personals.

Mr. Morgan Rowland has been confined to his home since Friday with an attack of tonsilitis.

Mr. Weese, of Kingston, will succeed Mr. E. Eggleton as accountant in the Bank of Montreal, Stirling.

The Rev. Dr. Endicott, superintendent of Missions of the United Church in the west, preached to very large congregations in St. Paul's Church on Sunday.

SOCIAL EVENING HELD AT MADOC

Young People Entertain Society of Queensboro United Church.

GOOD PROGRAM.

MADOC, April 19.— (Examiner Correspondence).—A very pleasant and profitable social evening was spent on Tuesday when members of the Y.P.S. of Trinity United Church of Madoc entertained the young people of Queensboro United Church in the Sunday school rooms. The president of the Madoc Y.P.S., Miss McRory, opened the short devotional services and spoke a few words of welcome to the visitors, then called Miss J. Thompson, of Queensboro, to take charge of the program. The topic was taken by Miss Howe, based on I Cor. 4:12. A reading was well given by Miss M. Sager and a solo by Rev. G. Parker with accompaniment by Miss A. Keene, "Who Shall Roll Away the Stone." A reading was then given by Mrs. Hamm, a sequel to "The Horse By the Side of the Road." An instrumental solo, mouth organ and guitar, was given by William Glover, which was received with much applause.

Miss Gawley gave a reading "Change of Color" which was followed by a beautiful solo by Miss G. Parker. "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day", completing the program given by the Queensboro Y.P.S.

This was followed by a half hour of games and contests put on by Madoc Young People, which was heartily enjoyed by all.

Dainty refreshments were served by the Madoc members and a social time enjoyed.

AFFIRMATIVE SIDE WINNERS IN DEBATE

Large Number of Young People Attend Affair Held in Dunsford.

DUNSFORD, April 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A large number of young people gathered in the church hall on Tuesday evening to hear a debate given by four of the public school pupils on the subject, "Resolved that country life offers more advantages than city life." The affirmative was supported by Miss Myrtle Kennedy and Lloyd Lyle and the negative by Miss Helen Kennedy and Orville Burgess. A number of splendid points were stated by both sides and a strong defence made for both the city and the country. Rev. J. F. Everson, Elwood Beavis and Miss Isabell Devitt acted as judge and through Mr. Beavis, who announced the decision, proclaimed the affirmative side the winner by a small margin, delivery and manner which were taken into consideration proved sufficient to win the day for the affirmative.

The meeting was in charge of Elwood Beavis, who read as a lesson the 23rd Psalm, which was afterwards explained by Miss Georgie Richardson, the group leader for the evening. Other items on the program were a short talk by Rev. J. F. Everson on the subject of "Toil" and two contests by Miss Richardson.

MARY'S CASTLE IN THE AIR

FENELLA, April 19 E(xaminer Correspondence).—On Monday evening, April 15, under the auspices of the Fenella W.M.S., the Centreton Dramatic Club put on their play, "Mary's Castle in the Air." The play, a four-act comedy, kept the audience intensely interested and most of the time rocking with laughter.

Miss Mary Lockart, as Mary Esterbrook, the "Castle Girl," and heroine, played a hard part particularly well. The scenes are all laid in a little cheaply furnished cottage in Meadowvale, a small village near New York. Here Mary brings her mother, Mrs. Esterbrook (Miss Flossie Brewster), who is suffering from blindness, the result of a shock at her husband's sudden death, who, she believes, died to save another. The truth of the matter being, Mrs. Esterbrook's husband, Mary's father, speculated wildly, losing not only his own fortune, but funds entrusted to him by friends, and he then committed suicide. So Mary, fearing her mother may learn the truth about her husband's death, with the assistance of kind friends at the cottage, is keeping her mother hid away from all their former rich friends, and leads her mother to believe they are living on a beautiful estate, keeping from her the knowledge of their poverty, fearing the shock would kill her. Into this somewhat happy little home circle comes Edward Carlyle (Clayton McGregor) and his daughter Mimi (Miss Allie Webb), who is Mary's wild little friend from New York. Mary, who has been building a castle in the air with Jim Ruggles, a struggling young attorney (Charlie Wilkin) as the central figure, finds her castle toppling when Edward Carlyle, a widower and friend of her late father, demands that she marry him, otherwise he will inform Mrs. Esterbrook of the truth about her husband's death. Mary, considering her mother first, thinking how she could use Carlyle's great wealth to restore her mother's eyesight, and noticing that Mimi seems to have captivated Jim Ruggles, decides to accept Carlyle. But Mary's castle does not topple over. Mrs. Esterbrook's sight is restored, and Daddy Alden (Harold McCauley), the gardener and village philosopher, takes a hand in the game and reveals himself to Carlyle as his half-brother, and demands that he leave the neighborhood, or surrender to his half-brother, his share of the inheritance. Carlyle decides that after all, wealth without Mary is preferable to poverty with Mary. Mimi Carlyle, for the first time in her selfish life, gives up something she wants, this time it being Jim Ruggles. Thus is restored to Mary her sweetheart, and her castle rises again. Others taking a part in the play were: Mrs. McBride, as Mrs. Jenkins, the housekeeper, whose acting was excellent throughout. She furnished a good part of the amusement, talking always, but boasting how she never talked, but she excelled in the scene where Bill Bronson (Harry Richardson), the sweetheart of her flirtatious daughter Jane (Edith Webb), asks for her consent to his marriage with Jane. Mrs. Jenkins mistakes the question, and thinking it a proposal of marriage for herself, accepts Bill and falls into his unwilling arms. Lenny Taft (Clarence Jones), the grocer's boy, who says he doesn't mind being engaged, but, well, you know Ma she would never let me get married, acts as Jane's lover, as she must have some one to console her now that she believes Bill is going to marry her mother. Of course the tangle is straightened out in the end, and Mrs. Jenkins decides to be bridesmaid for the wedding couples. Delia (Mrs. Charlie Jones), Mrs. Esterbrook's colored maid, shared equally with Mrs. McBride in providing the amusement. All parts were well taken, and the play thoroughly enjoyed by all. Other numbers on the program were: Music (instrumental) by Mr. and Mrs. Webb; violin and piano, with Mr. Max Creighton playing the traps; a chorus, "Dear Annie Laurie," was given by the following ladies: Mrs. H. Macklin, Mrs. M. Adams, Mrs. H. George, Mrs. F. Downs, Mrs. C. Jewell, Miss Florence Macklin and Mrs. A. Nill.

WEDDING BELLS

GREENWOOD—BELAMEY.

COLBORNE, April 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The wedding took place on Tuesday, April 9, when Mrs. William Belamey was united in marriage to C. W. Greenwood, both of Cramake, at the home of the former's son, Sanford Brown. The happy couple left for Rochester, where they spent their honeymoon.

On their return they will take up residence on Mr. Greenwood's farm, who died on Saturday evening after on the Lakeshore road.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

FENELLA, April 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. F. Joblin, of Alderville, occupied the pulpit of Fenella United Church on Sunday morning, April 14, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. M. R. Brown. Rev. Mr. Joblin chose for his text, 2 Kings, chapter 7, verse 9: "Then they said one to another, we do not well, this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace, if we tarry till the morning light, some mischief will come upon us; now therefore come, that we may go and tell the king's household", this being the story of the four lepers who were used by God to carry the good tidings to the famine stricken city of Samaria, of much food and raiment, outside the city, left behind by the fleeing Syrians. "God oftentimes uses most humble means to carry out His work. His plan of salvation for us is often questioned verily His ways are not our ways. Why should not humanity bow down before, and worship, and accept the Christ, who gave His life that all might be saved. This text might well be used as a text for a missionary sermon. Have we withheld our peace? Have we carried the good tiding of Christ's gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth? True, we have done a little, we have contributed a little money, we have sent out missionaries, but is it not a very little when we consider Christ's message, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel unto every creature.' Is anything too much to do for Him who has done so much for us? Is it not all His? Verily the harvest is ripe and the laborers are few."

The choir sang a special anthem, "What A Friend I've Found In Jesus, How I Wish You Knew Him Too."

CANVASS PROGRESSING.

Sale of Shares For New Marmora Rink Meets With Success.

MARMORA, April 19—(Examiner Correspondence).— A meeting was held in the council Chamber on Tuesday in connection with the proposed covered rink. Canvassers reported good success as having attended their efforts. A more intensive canvassing campaign is planned for the next two weeks to acquire the necessary capital before contracts are solicited. It is definitely decided now that the site of the new rink shall be on land south of the public school property.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so sick every month that I had to keep my bed for two days and I suffered so that I felt badly all the time. I had been working in a factory but for a long time was not able to work as I was so run-down and nervous. My friends told me of the Vegetable Compound. I am now sound and well and I have a good appetite, my color is good and I am in good spirits."—Evelyn Bourque.

Laundering Blankets

Launder your blankets in the Beatty Electric Washer and you will keep them looking like new just twice as long. Four minutes in the Beatty will suffice to remove any soiled spots. The blankets are carried back and forth through the sudsy water vigorously, but as carefully as you would treat them with your own hands. Gently but very quickly the lukewarm suds are made to bubble through the fibres. There is no rubbing. The long, soft, fleecy nap is preserved through repeated launderings.

Launder the winter underwear, the woollen scarfs and stockings, Baby's things, the sweaters, mitts and leggings in the Beatty. No stranger in a public place will ever do them with the same care. Launder them at home and preserve the bold colorings, attractive patterns and the fluffy smartness which caught your eye when you bought them.

Launder everything in the Beatty. The complete equipment of laundry pieces which we supply makes it all so easy. Do the entire washing for the week, wash, wring, rinse and blue in about the same time you would take for an extra big batch of dishes. Use the Beatty once and you would no more think of sending out the precious things you wear to be washed than you would think of sending out your china dishes to be done!

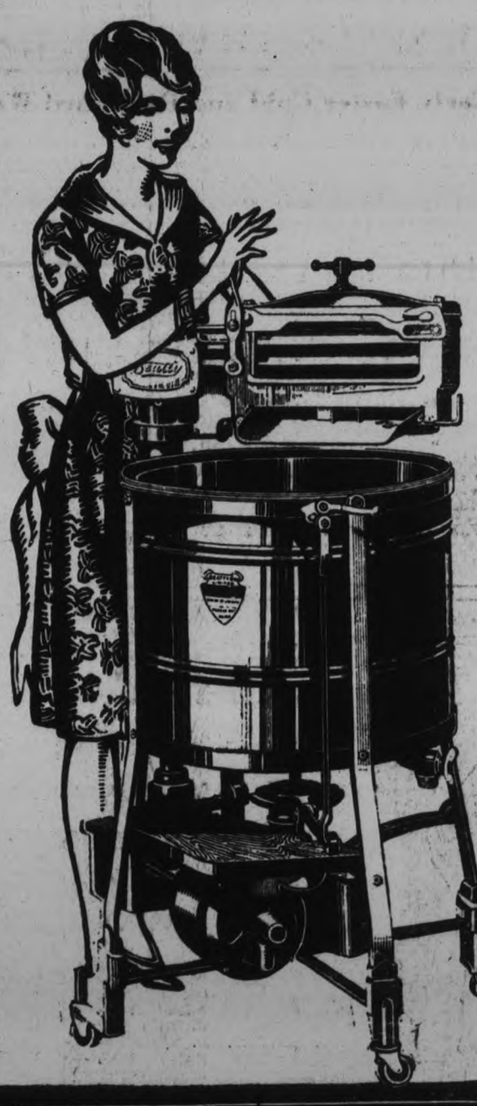
OF Beatty HOME LAUNDERING OUTFITS

Beatty ELECTRIC WASHER $169.00 with complete laundering outfit

$1.00 DOWN
$2.25 WEEK
NO INTEREST
4 PIECES FREE
YOUR OLD WASHER TRADED IN

Will wash your blankets in four minutes and preserve the long, fleecy nap. The electric wringer presses the water out of them without twisting the fibres.

This washer far outsells any other make or type in the British Empire. It will wash cleaner and faster. It is more simple and easy to operate. It is more sturdily built and will last longer.



4 Laundry Pieces FREE choose from list

To enable you to take care of the problem of laundering your winter things in your own home, this remarkable laundering outfit is offered to you. Select any four items on the list below.

1. Folding Tub Bench
2. Square Rinse Tub
3. Drainer and Hose
4. Hamper for Soiled Lizen
5. Clothes Basket
6. Folding Ironing Table
7. Electric Iron
8. Folding Clothes Rack
9. Elevating Ceiling Dryer
10. Step Ladder

The illustrations show a few of the more popular pieces. The drainer saves half an hour's time filling and emptying tubs when you are using your outfit in the kitchen. It is used, too, to empty the machine when used in a basement where the drain pipe is not handy. It works automatically, by water pressure, and fills and empties tubs faster than can be done by hand.

Clothes hampers and baskets have their place in every laundry outfit. These are made in our own basket factory. The other things, too, the bench, tubs, ironing table, iron, rack, dryer and ladder are the product of our own artisans. No other washing machine company in the world builds and supplies the complete laundering outfit.

The most popular of all the extras we supply is the folding tub bench, to hold the rinse and bluing tubs where there are no laundry tubs. It is worth $7.50 retail and one is usually chosen with every washer.

MADE IN THE BIGGEST END OF THE CONTINENT

Invented by a Canadian, made by Canadians, sold and serviced by Canadians, the Beatty Electric Washer is the product of one of the leading industries of our land. More Beatty electric washers are made and sold every month in Canada than all other makes combined, Canadian or foreign.

SHELL COMPANY ERECTING DEPOT

Firm Has Purchased Property South of Wolfe and West of George Street.

ESTIMATED COST $3,000.

Within the next few weeks Peterborough will boast another gasoline and oil storage depot, the latest one to be established by the Shell Company of Canada, in accordance with a recently granted permit from the City Engineer's office, following the approval of the Council.

The new "plant" is to be located on a site which is part of lot 5, just south of Wolfe and west of George streets, and will be 35 feet by 20 feet in dimension. A concrete foundation will support the three-room building which will be chiefly of sheet metal with brick, flue-lined chimney.

In addition to the building, which will serve as office and oil storage, three large 13,000-gallon gasoline storage tanks will be set on cement piers, in connection with the station, and the entire work will be completed sometime in May at an approximate cost of $3,000. R. O. Watson, District Manager, is supervising the work for the Shell company.

Sara's Oil Stock

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"There!" exclaimed John Chester, turning the key in the old lock, "that's over!" He swung down the trim, box-bordered path, out through the sagging gate, and along the elm-shaded dirt road that led to the railroad station.

So intent was he on catching the afternoon train to the city that he failed to notice the slim girl coming up just behind him. She sighed because it was, in all probability, the last she would ever see of John Chester.

Nor did she need the "For Sale" sign which John had just tacked up to know what for days had been town gossip—namely, that the last of the Chesters had rejected the manner of living of his fathers and was going to the city to seek his fortune.

There had never been a love affair between them. Oh, no. An interchange of locks of hair in very early school days, numerous church sociables and picnics shared together—trivial enough bonds, to be sure. And yet—well, there was an ache in Sara Cary's heart which no casual farewell handshake would have healed.

As the days passed, the sight of the shuttered old Chester house, fast showing signs of unoccupancy, grew to trouble Sara. The farm, unsold and untenanted, was running down. This fact, coupled with reports which drifted back from the city that John Chester's fortune was proving elusive and that he was shifting from one job to another, tormented her with a sense of the waste of good material and of her own impotency in the matter.

On a sunny day in late March Sara cast a bombshell at the feet of the aunt with whom she lived.

"Aunt Julie," she gave out casually over her cup of tea, "I'm going to spend next week-end in the city."

"Sara!" her aunt's voice was startled. "Of all things, Sara!"

"Yes, that's just what I'm going to do," returned Sara unperturbed. "And furthermore—do you remember those oil stock certificates that Cousin Jenny left me? Well, I'm going to take them along. Who knows, perhaps they're not as worthless as I've thought them. Just suppose—" and her blue eyes grew dreamy, "perhaps they will bring me my fortune!"

Now it happened that several days after this conversation there walked into the outer office of Whitby & Whitby, brokers, a shabby looking youth with tired lines about his eyes and mouth. A sound of voices from the inner office assured him that his employer was occupied, and sitting down at a dingy desk he rested his head on his hand while his thoughts traveled backward over the discouraging months. Where was he headed? This all but questionable firm in whose employ he was at present held out no future for him. Little by little taught by bitter experiences, he was learning how unfitted he was to complete with men trained for their jobs.

Into his meditations crept memories of home, of green fields tilled by his father and his grandfather and his grandfather's father, of substantial barns, of the cheery, homely dwelling. And with those visions arose persistently the picture of a certain slim, blue-eyed person, the playmate of his boyhood, whom, in his feverish pursuit of fortune, he had all but forgotten.

John Chester sat suddenly upright. Who in thunder was in the inner office talking with old Whitby?

"—yes I had hoped," went on a plaintive voice that awoke in him a sudden, tremendous response, "to realize something on this stock. You see, I have a chance to make a splendid investment. I can buy the old Chester place back home. It is a farm farmed for generations by men who knew how to husband the resources of the soil. But if these certificates are worthless, as you say—"

A moment later the door opened and John, risen to his feet, met the level, blue-eyed gaze of Sara Cary.

"I—why, why, Sara!" was all he managed. Then: "Wait—let me walk a way with you."

For several blocks, through the streaming late afternoon traffic of which neither was aware, they walked silently. Sara was the first to speak. "John," she said gently, "the—the bluets are up in the swamp piece. And Dutchman's Breeches. Remember how we used to go after them?"

"Do I!" exclaimed John fervently. Then he turned impulsively. "Sara!" he cried, "I'm—I'm sick of it all—the hurry, the noise, the crowds. I'm—oh Sara, I'm going back home!"

But not until their very wedding day did John learn the real secret of Sara's trip to the city. "I can't bear to think," he had chanced to say as they stood for a moment side by side on the clematis-draped porch of the old homestead after a simple ceremony at Sara's home, "of you, my darling, traveling about the city trying to get rid of worthless oil stock. You need a husband to keep you from such things."

But Sara threw back her head with a merry laugh. "Why John Chester!" she cried gayly, "of course I knew they were no good. Only—well, those certificates furnished me with a proper excuse for going to the place I had heard you were employed. You see, if once I saw you, I thought—I hoped—I—"

"You did!" said her husband and kissed her tenderly.

A FOOD to keep you fit

ARE you run down? Nerves all a-jangle? Irritable? Easily tired? The chances are that you are undernourished.

It is not the amount but the kind of nourishment you get which counts. It is quite possible that the food you are eating is incorrectly balanced or lacks the vitamins and other important elements.

Drink Ovaltine every day

Drink it at mealtimes. Take it as a between-meal "pick-me-up." Make Ovaltine your "night-cap" to ensure for each night glorious, natural sleep from which you will awaken refreshed and eager for the duties of the day.

Ovaltine is not a mere haphazard mixture of its several ingredients, but is manufactured by an exclusive scientific process. Ovaltine retains, unimpaired, all the essential elements of its valuable ingredients—ripe barley malt, fresh eggs and creamy milk from England's richest pastures.

Ovaltine is very nourishing

One cupful of Ovaltine supplies more nourishment than 3 eggs or 12 cupfuls of beef tea, and will not tax even the weakest digestion. Drink Ovaltine for health the year 'round. Give it to the children.

Ovaltine is made in England. Sold at 50c, 75c, $1.25 and special $4.50 family size. The larger tins are more economical to buy.

BEAUTY OPERATIONS ILLEGAL IN FRANCE

Woman Awarded Damages for Operation on Ankles She Wanted Slenderized.

PARIS, April 19 (C.P.). — Beauty surgeons in France have been put on their guard by a recent court decision declaring that a surgeon has no right to perform an operation on healthy flesh, and that the surgeon's knife must only be used to save life.

The action was one brought by a young woman who was enjoying perfect health but thought her ankles were too thick. She went to the surgeon to have them reduced to more fashionable proportions. He cut a longitudinal strip of flesh out of one leg and joined the two sides together. Gangrene set in, however, and in order to save the woman's life the leg had to be amputated.

She sued for $20,000 damages and was awarded $8,000, a substantial sum for a French court to grant. The court made it clear the surgeon was not being penalized for not taking proper and necessary precautions or for performing the operation carelessly or unskilfully. The judgment is based on a moral principle that no surgeon may endanger human life by operating on a healthy limb.

"Despite the doctor's honest conscience, his high professional standing and his disinterestedness," the decision says, "the fact of his having undertaken an operation involving grave risks on a healthy limb without there having been any therapeutice necessity for such an operation or even any usefulness whatever to health of the person operated upon constitutes a wrong on his part for which he must take legal responsibility."

GIRLS ON 2,000-MILE HIKE

Miss Lillian Rashko, 24, left, 2816 Heath Ave., and Stella Dunn, 20, of 8 Landscape Ave., both of Yonkers, N.Y., who are on a 2,000-mile hiking trip. Both appeared to be in high spirits and not the least bit fatigued despite the fact that they have walked a distance of 700 miles in the last four weeks without once accepting a lift. They have visited Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, Niagara Falls, and after leaving Toronto intend visiting Watertown, Thousand Islands, Montreal and Plattsburg.

In the mode of to-morrow!

WEARING Penmans New Full-Fashioned Silk Hose, the truly modern Canadian girl literally "walks in beauty" . . . A beauty that sweeps from trim, slim ankle to shapely knee. The firmer, finer weave, the lovely "ensemble colors," the special reinforcements at points of wear—all combine to set a new standard in hosiery smartness and utility.

Clever women know that beauty of costume depends on beauty of foundation garments. They, therefore, select Watson's superfine rayon undersilks—pajamas, negligees, vests, pantees, slips. Richly lustrous. Soft and sheer. Yet wonderfully wearable and washable . . . In all the loveliest tints.

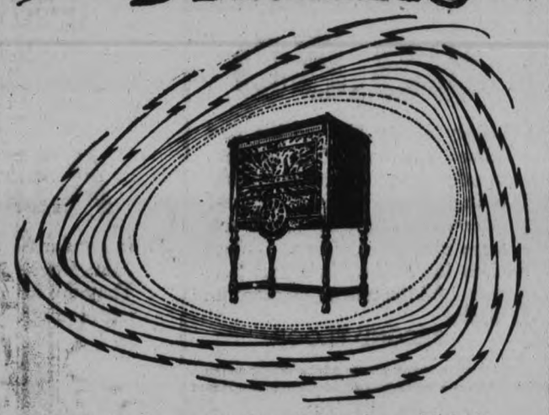
The New Plug in!

Victor Radio DYNAMIC



TO the famous Lowboy, Victor has added the electro-dynamic speaker. To the instrument, which 80% of the present owners bought principally because of its outstanding tone, is added all that further richness and resonance of the Victor Electro-Dynamic speaker.

Tone is the vital factor in radio's amazing popularity today. To this known fact, and to the ability to meet the demand with Victor tone, may be attributed the great success which Victor Radio has enjoyed from the first. And to the season's most popular model, Victor adds its advanced electro-dynamic speaker—truly, adding more tone to tone!

80% of present owners bought Victor Radio for Victor Tone! Victor Reputation! Victor Appearance!

Authorized Victor Radio Dealers are now showing the beautiful Lowboy, specially designed for them, in all the appeal of its new electro-dynamic speaker equipment, the new Victor Radio set, seven tubes and rectifying tube, and cord ready to plug in, for only $310

Or with Regular Victor Speaker, $285.

OKEHS SPANKING.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 16.—Although schools days, past and present, have changed, they still have one common denominator in spanking. A champion of the cause is Supt. J. J. Rocheson, who recently told school principals that, "A good, old-fashioned spanking is still necessary in exceptional cases, but the spanking should be done in the presence of one or more witnesses."

LIVER DIET HELPING TO CURE PIMPLES

As that distressing ailment, pimples, or acne as it is called, usually comes to young folks, boys and girls, just as they are approaching manhood and womanhood, it causes much embarrassment.

The very fact that it comes at this time when certain glands in the body are called on to begin work, or do extra work, is of itself an explanation of the cause of the trouble.

For this reason some glandular products have been used with some success, but it must be admitted that they do not give the results one might expect.

The trouble of course is that the foods handled by the system are not properly taken care of, and the oil material in the glands of the skin becomes thickened, gets infected, and a pimple results.

In a certain number of cases the use of yeast has been of help in that it has helped the system to take care of the foods.

The avoidance of certain foods has helped other cases. These foods are pork, obsters, oysters, fresh or hot bread, oatmeal, and acid fruits. Someone has remembered recently that one of the glands, the main gland in fact that takes poisons out of the blood, is the liver.

Dr. R. L. Sutton, Kansas City, Mo., reports on his experience with liver and liver extract in the treatment of pimples, and of boils also.

The liver extract was used only in particularly obstinate cases.

The most satisfactory results were secured in those cases where the pimples were slow in coming and going, common in patients "whose skins were pale, moist, and flabby."

The amount of extract given daily was equal to a quarter of a pound of liver, taken twice daily for twelve days.

This was followed by a rest period of one or two weeks, and then if necessary another twelve days treatment was given.

At no time did the taking of the liver or the extract give rise to any unusual symptoms.

This is certainly good news to all sufferers from pimples or boils, because liver has been one of the foods thought to be a cause of skin irritations.

However, you will remember that a writer some years ago referred to the liver as the "washwoman" of the system as it took or washed out some ofg the harmful substances in the blood.

I am passing Dr. Sutton's experience along, with the hope that it may be of help to young folks suffering with this miserable ailment.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

Following the new tendency—the flare of this pale pink georgette frock is placed very low, it hangs quite low at the right side.

The entire history of fashion within the past hundred and fifty years might be interpreted in terms of slenderness, and changing modes may be considered as ever-new efforts on the part of fashion to reveal some sort of 'ithesomeness. It is not hard to see why this is so—for slenderness, not angularity nor scrawniness, indicates youth, vivacity, romance and alertness, while excessive heaviness must, justly or otherwise, always be associated with complacent middle age, stolidity and over indulgence.

The important thing to remember is that the emphasis of this slenderness is subject to change, and while in 1860 skirts were enormously bouffant in order to emphasize the wasp-like proportions of the waist, waistlines for the last decade or so have been given their freedom in order that the hips below might appear more slender.

This season there is more of general molding. Sleederness of the body is indicated but at the same time the line around the hips is very closely confined and the hip swathing is widening. Flare and fullness start from a rather low line and of the bouffancy which springs from a high place on the hips there is nothing more to be seen.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

When making egg salad boil the eggs hard as usual and when cold take out the yolks carefully, and chop the whites. Arrange crisp lettuce leaves in individual portions, arrange a nest of chopped egg white in each and in the center of each place a hard cooked egg yolk.

To serve with baked fish prepare small stuffed tomatoes. Select quite small ripe ones, scoop out and fill with well-seasoned breadcrumb filling. Bake and serve as a garnish for the fish.

When roasting chicken put two cups of hot water and two tablespoons of butter in a small pan on top of the oven and use this as needed for basting. By keeping it on top of the oven it remains hot.

To serve fresh ripe currants arrange beds of chopped ice on individual glass dishes, spread two or three currant leaves in the center and place a bunch or two of fine looking currants on the beds. Serve with individual small glass dishes of powdered sugar in which the currants may be dipped.

To make unusually good diced brown potatoes peel and cut into dice and then cook ten minutes in slightly salted water. Drain well and then saute—that is, fry in shallow fat—using good drippings or half butter and half lard. Turn them three or four times and see that they are evenly browned but not too brown. Season with a little salt and pepper and chopped parsley.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

Dear Marion,—The Two of Us Column has fallen considerably, hasn't it? Perhaps the writers to this column are still living on love.

Not long ago a young girl of about eighteen years, wearing a new diamond, asked me if I thought she was too young to marry "Yes, I do." I think she should wait at least four years more at least.. I'll give some of my reasons; maybe they will help some decide the question.

It depends upon the disposition of both concerned. Also the position, character and chances of the man she marries as well as his age.

If he has just an average income and not an average bank account then don't marry him until he can at least pay cash for the furniture. I would dislike very much to start married life with the debt of my furniture ahead of me. Suppose you do marry him, will you be satisfied with a great deal less than you have now. A business girl who has a good position, fair amount of spending money, nice clothes and a good time may not be satisfied to wear last year's hat and coat a year or so longer, stay home evenings minding a baby when she sees her former friends dressed well as usual and having the same good times she is now missing.

She should also be fairly sure that he will be willing to give up his good times and stay home with her when she can not go out as before. Sometimes he isn't and then this makes things that would be bearable very hard indeed.

Married life, of course, has its bright, happy days and joys not found elsewhere, but just be sure you are going to be able to think of them when things look darkest. I think that between the ages of twenty-two and twenty-eight are much better ages to marry.

Your page is very interesting, Marion and I enjoy your What-Nots very much. The one about people reading titles aloud at shows is one that a number of people should read and remember. To have anyone near me doing this just ruins the show for me. Anyone wahting to read that much should stay at home and read a book.

I would like to have the neighbors, when writing again tell us why they chose their pen names and what they mean. To start it Ill say I chose this because it means Noble and Beloved. Now I hesitated to tell after all as it does sound rather as though I have a great opinion of myself, but it isnt because I think I am all that, but because I would like to be.

Best wishes,
ELLA MAY.

I appreciate your letter a whole lot, "Ella May"—so much that I have built to-day's Whatnot around it. Maybe I haven't just your idea, but your letter brought the subject to my mind.

Your remarks on pen names are very interesting. I've often wondered about them, you know, and I hope other neighbors follow your lead. I have thought that if I were choosing a pen name I would take a name I wished to be called. "Marion" (which really IS my name) is so prosaic!

National Sani-Bilt Week

April 20th to 27th

A National Event that offers you a REMARKABLE SAVING

Our Special 3 piece full size suite $199. This Week ONLY

Picture this Beautiful Suite in your home, and remember, Snyder's Ltd., take the "moth risk," not you.

NATIONAL SANI-BILT WEEK has been a big semi-annual event in the furniture stores of Canada for the past three years. To-morrow opens the sixth and the suite which goes on sale to-morrow is the best value offered since Sani-Bilt Weeks began.

Just to make you realize the extra and lasting value of these suites, get this: There are 204 steel-coil springs in the Chesterfield cushions alone, without counting the 40 larger oil-tempered coils in the seat under the cushions, and the springs in the back. Each coil in the cushions separately encased, each coil in seat securely cross-tied—the finest spring upholstery known. A special kidney-shaped design. Solid walnut, hand-carved woodshow frame. New style buttoned front band.

The covering fabric all over, including outside arms, is a high grade of taupe mohair. Reverse cushions are of Sevilla Frieze and carry a floral medallion pattern with a choice of four different grounds—dark brown, dark blue, light blue and black.

There is only one way that such a Chesterfield suite (regularly $250.00) could be offered at $199.00, without loss, and that is by the organization of a big, nation-wide sale such as this. To-morrow, or any day during Sani-Bilt Week, you save exactly $51.

The Sani-Bilt Mothproof Guarantee is a replacement contract and holds good just the same as it does for Suites at full, regular prices. The signed guarantee tag accompanies every piece.

Mr. George C. Carruthers celebrates a birthday anniversary today.

• • •

Last evening, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Gibson entertained the senior members of St. John's Church choir in the drawing room of the parish hall. The room was most attractive with decorations of spring flowers and a cheerful grate fire. The guests were cordially welcomed and the evening was pleasantly spent in the enjoyment of bridge and other games, followed by the service of a delicious supper, during which Mr. Douglas Carlisle gave some charming songs. Eight tables of bridge were played, the prizes being won by Mrs. George Wesley and Mr. A. Pammett. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess was proposed by Mr. F. G. Mann and was accorded three ringing cheers and the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

• • •

Mrs. W. E. Leal, of Deloro, is visiting friends in the city for a few days.

• • •

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. held a very successful bridge and euchre in the Community Hall, East City, last evening. Thirty-three tables of cards were played. The prizes for bridge were won by Miss Herridge and Mr. Ormie Heap, and the prizes for euchre went to Miss Edna Thompson and Mr. Keith Wills. Mrs. D. Lawrence was the lucky winner of the door prize. At the conclusion of the card games dainty refreshments were served with Miss Lawrence acting as convenor, assisted by Mesdames S. Perry, S. Long, and W. Hepburn. The evening's entertainment concluded with dancing. Jack Marshall's Orchestra providing excellent music. Miss Florence Adams and Mr. Stanley Curtis were in charge of the bridge tables, while Miss Queenie Hope and Mr. Morgan Perry were in charge of the euchre. The arrangements were in charge of the executive of the A.Y.P.A., Messrs. Rolly Krant, president, Stanley Curtis, Gordon Maniece, Victor Sedgwick, Morgan Perry, Miss Florence Adams and Miss Queenie Hope. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mrs. A. McLeod, 120 Hunter street east, was hostess last night at a birthday party given for her daughters, Margaret and Betty. Miss Anna McLeod made a charming door attendant. The rooms were tastefully decorated with Spring flowers. The tea table had for a centerpiece a bowl of daffodils and at each end a large birthday cake, beautifully decorated in pink and white icing with yellow candles. A delightful luncheon was served after which the youthful guests spent the evening in games and music, and all had a thoroughly good time.

• • •

Before the party broke up there was a service of ice-cream and cake. Among those present were the Misses Lenore Warne, Jean Barringer, Margaret Wyllie, Marie Ferguson, Dorothy Lipsett, Dorothy Green, Lillian Collins, Mary Kingsbury, Alicia Langley, Beverly Rogers, Laura Charterin, Florence Trebilcock, Betty Detcher, Jean Nicholls, Elva Barringer, Mermadette Flynn, Audrey Flynn, Berenice Flynn, Beth Laing, Jean McLeod, Anna McLeod.

A delightful conclusion to the meeting of the Local Council of Women held in the Green Room and library of the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon was the service of afternoon tea by the president, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, and members of the executive, in honor of the visit here of the Provincial President of Ontario's Women's Council, Mrs. R. G. Smythe of Toronto, who gave an inspiring address during the afternoon's session. Arrangements for tea were in the capable hands of Mrs. J. J. Deyell assisted by Mrs. K. S. Wightman, Mrs. Myles Henry, Mrs. G. Helson, Mrs. F. H. Dearborn and Mrs. E. Wand. Tea was poured by Mrs. Joseph Mills and Mrs. J. Forbes Allan at a table attractive with Cluny lace cloth and silver flower centerpiece of large double daffodils, with tall pale mauve candles in low silver candlesticks. During the tea hour two vocal solos were given by Mrs. G. F. Liddle, with accompaniments played by Mr. Liddle. The singer's voice was at its best in two exquisite springtime numbers in which the effect of the rich contralto tones was charming in the extreme. They were "Lady April" and its encore, a bit of lovely bird song, in "The Yellowhammer."

Before cutting into a meringue, wet the knife each time in cold water. This prevents the meringue from sticking and pulling out of shape.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dypepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. Your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

OLD SONGS

THE MISTLETOE BOUGH

(Contributed by "Fairy.")

The mistletoe hung in the castle-hall,
The holly branch shone on the old oak wall;
And the baron's retainers were blithe and gay,
And keeping their Christmas holiday.
The baron beheld with a father's pride
His beautiful child, young Lovell's bride;
While she with her bright eyes seemed to be
The star of the goodly company.

"I'm weary of dancing now," she cried;
"Here, tarry a moment—I'll hide, I'll hide!
And, Lovell, be sure thou'rt first to trace
The clue to my secret lurking-place!"
Away she ran—and her friends began
Each tower to search and each nook to scan;
And Lovel cried, "O where dost thou hide?
I'm lonesome without thee, my own dear bride!"

They sought her that night and they sought her next day,
And they sought her in vain when a week passed away;
In the highest, the lowest, the loneliest spot.
Young Lovell sought wildly—but found her not.
The years flew by, and their grief at last
Was told as a sorrowful tale long past;
And when Lovell appeared, the children cried:
"See! the old man weeps for his fairy bride."

At length an oak chest, that had long lain hid,
Was found in the castle; they raised the lid,
And a skeleton form lay moldering there
In the bridal wreath of that lady fair!
O sad was her fate! In sportive jest
She hid from her lord in the old oak chest.
It closed with a spring, and—dreadful doom—
The bride lay clasped in her living tomb!

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

ANOTHER good subject for debate is brought forward to-day, by "Ella May," who argues against youthful marriages. She says no girl should marry a man with only an average income and not an average bank account, and that he should be able to pay cash for the furniture.

• • •

These are, no doubt, excellent qualities to demand in a man, if one is seeking peace and satisfaction in the first years of married life. But, after all, can one lay down a rule?

• • •

I once knew a couple, married young, to whom the buying of a dollar-and-a-half clock was a real thrill. They started with a few pieces of furniture, not very good at that, and not much money.

• • •

It was a hard struggle for them, especially after the baby came (they had only one child). There were dark days, and many nights of worry and planning—and finally, when the husband's health broke down and he was compelled to leave the country to live in a milder climate, his wife started to work.

• • •

She did sewing at home, first, and kept boarders. Besides keeping the house, and tending the child, and cooking and making up after the two boarders, she sewed quilts, and children's clothes.

• • •

And she never complained. She had pleasant words for everyone, and her attitude toward life was charity itself. She was always ready with a helping hand for any less fortunate or less brave person than herself.

• • •

Finally, after eighteen years of struggle, the couple reached the place where life became pleasant. They settled down in a pretty house, nicely furnished, and enjoyed life thoroughly.

• • •

I wish coul tell you who they were. Many of you neighbors would know them.

• • •

That woman had a heroic soul; trouble and privation only added to her resources and built up her ability.

• • •

Love conquered all.

• • •

I knew another couple. He earned a salary that probably reached twenty times the sum earned by the first man, at the time of the marriage. He had rich parents; hers were indulgent.

• • •

Gifts showered in on them. House, furniture, and car were provided by doting parents. Even a toy dog was included in the gifts, and after years of married life it is the only other living thing that owns the house as "home."

• • •

Nothing has been denied this couple. Life has been laid in pleasant places. There have been no privations. There have been no financial worries. There has been no sickness.

• • •

But of living and of love they know nothing.

• • •

Love is brought to fruition only through adversity, neighbors. Those who have struggled TOGETHER through dark days know one another, have learned to rely each upon the other; they are welded by the fires of adversity.

• • •

So it seems to me that though "Ella May's" ideas may be very commendable, they do not go to the root of the matter of the successful marriage.

• • •

After all, for what are you girls seeking? Is it social position, the pleasure of being able to display a beautiful home, the life of ease made possible by servants?

• • •

Or do you seek a mate, comradeship, pride not so much in the HOUSE as in the HOME?

• • •

I wouldn't quibble about age. Some girls are as sensible at eighteen as others are at thirty. Many women of forty have the mental rating of a child of twelve.

• • •

Age of the body in years doesn't mean much, after all. If we could apply psychological principles to the examination of a life mate we would be on safe ground—but, unfortunately for science, love is blind.

• • •

Blind, that is, to the obvious. I believe that love can see things that calculating thought could not encompass. I believe many a woman has accepted a man in whom she saw possibilities not uncovered up to that time, and has brought them to triumphant success.

• • •

I have often wondered why the wives of men in low-paid, menial, or merely laboring jobs did not pull them out of the rut. They COULD, you know! How could a man live with a woman of high ideals and not catch the vital spark of ambition?

• • •

Surely, I'm idealistic! Thank heavens I am! If one is to look only at the materialistic things, one will never get past the unfortunate state of the second couple of whom I told you—and from that may my guardian angel deliver me!

• • •

I don't think "Ella May" meant her letter in just this way, but it suggested the train of thought.

• • •

I most certainly agree with her when she writes of the man's obligations. He should, and if love is there he WILL, be willing to give up his bachelor ways to spend his evenings with his wife, either at home or in company with her elsewhere.

• • •

And during her supreme trials he will be sympathetic and considerate. His lodges and societies and men-friends will fade into the background. He will live for HER, just as SHE is going down into the dark vale for love of HIM.

• • •

And then, however they start, young or old in years, poor or rich in money, they will find the love haven for which they steered, and life and love will be far sweeter because they have been through the tribulations together.

• • •

Don't you agree, "Ella May" and neighbors?

SWAGGER SPORTS TYPE

THE STYLE every smart woman is including in her wardrobe for sports, travel or street is the swagger two-piece model sketched with simple slip-on blouse and all-around plaited skirt. A belt holds in surplus fulness through the hips. It is serviceable made of angora wool jersey in wood-violet shade, and by way of contrast, a second skirt can be made of flat silk crepe in purple shade which is used to pipe neckline and belt. Beige silk crepe printed in orange and soft brown is chic, the blouse of which can be worn with separate skirt of beige or brown silk crepe. Sheer tweed and georgette crepe also suitable and wearable.

THE PATTERN No. 3295 is exceptionally simple to use, because it has Picture Lesson Chart telling how each part is joined in Picture Dressmaking Lessons, which prove of real service to beginner, and save so much time for experienced sewer. It is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew, and designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a patttern.

buying economy. An ice plant is urgently needed in order to preserve perishable foods in the best condition and in order to enable the management to obtain the best prices on meats, fruit and so on. Incidentally it may be mentioned that everything used at the hospital is bought locally, the grocery and provision merchants being patronized in turn.

In addition to these mechanical difficulties, the kitchen staff labors under the difficulty of dullness and lack of ventilation. The floor is rough, making it difficult to keep clean, and though everything in the kitchen is spotless, it seems to the visitor that modern equipment and furnishings would make the task a great deal easier and more efficient.

Ten Fires To Feed

The householder visiting the basement of Nicholls Hospital would be appalled by the number of heating plants he would see. There are ten fire boxes into which coal is shovelled in order to heat the antiquated building and supply the very necessary hot water. This is not only lacking in efficiency, but it is very expensive.

Alongside the furnaces is the chute for soiled clothes. The clothes fall into a little room and from there are piled on a wheel barrow, wheeled the entire length of the building out into the open air, across a street, and up a steep incline to the laundry. After being washed in the laundry with equipment sufficient only for about one half the work, the clothes are brought back by the same method to the storage closets.

In the basement, too, is the X-Ray room, which is already cramped for space, and the dark room for developing the X-Ray negatives— a dark room no bigger than that used by the average amateur photographer.

All the ashes from the furnaces are carted down the corridor past these rooms and it is utterly impossible to preserve that cleanliness and freedom from dust so essential to the proper working of an X-Ray department.

Near the X-Ray room is a small cubby-hole used for storing clothes of patients. The best use possible has been made of the space available and clothes are carefully kept in sanitary bags, but the space and equipment are very far from ideal. In a modern hospital there would be a reception room in which the patient's outdoor clothes would be removed, to be transferred immediately to a sterlizing room and then placed in lockers to be kept until the patient needs them on exit. The reception room, by the way, is considered one of the prime requisites of the up-to-date hospital. Except in emergency surgical cases where there is shock, the patient is thoroughly bathed before being dressed in the regular hospital garments and transferred to the ward. In connection with the reception room, too, there should be a special apartment for emergency operating.

In the only children's ward in Nicholls Hospital there are five cots and there is not a single room in the entire hospital available for isolation of young patients who are suspected of having a contagious disease. The children's ward, commonly known as "twenty-six" is bright and cheerful, and the two young patints there yesterday seemed quite contented with their lot, but the ward is far too small and the lack of isolation facilities is a serious handicap.

Another evidence of congestion in the hospital is the fact that in the women's surgical department there is not a single bed vacant in a private or semi-private ward. The bathing facilities too, are utterly inadequate and for a long time the private baths have had to be used. Even these do not prove sufficient for proper comfort of the patients.

Larger Quarters Needed

The heart of the modern hospital is the operating room and while Nicholls Hospital has made the most of its available space, it must be admitted that the operating room is wanting in those qualities which are considered so essential to modern surgery. The supreme idea in the construction of the operating room is cleanliness, with light a very important secondary consideration. The Nicholls operating room is well appointed in both these particulars, but is sadly lacking in space. There should be an ante room in connection with the operating room in which certain surgical operations could be performed to better advantage than by using the large operating room. There should also be in connection with the operating room a series of rooms for the sterlization and storage of dressings for the anaesthetizing of patients, which, in modern practice, is no longer done in the operating room as formerly; for the transfer of soiled dressings and other such material, so as to be sure that the sterlizing room will be saved from all contact with possibly infected matters; and sometimes with temporary rooms for the treatment of shock after the operation so that the patient may not have to be moved far nor subjected to the almost inevitable draughts of corridors and elevators during removal after the operation until the reaction has begun.

Until a short time ago, Nicholls Hospital was fortunate in having a room for the special application of plaster casts and care of patients requiring this treatment, but owing to the lack of space accommodation in the wards, it has been necessary to press this plaster cast room into use as an extra ward for two patient.

This whole matter of lack of space is a very serious problem. About it Mrs. E. M. Leeson, the hospital superintendent remarks, "We are registered a 90 bed hospital, but this includes 4 beds in tubercular wards, two in a small room in an outer building for cases of infection, and twelve cots in the nursery, besides two beds in the outer corridor for sick nurses. This leaves seventy beds for adult patients. You can readily see all kinds of patients cannot go in the same ward, men and women must be provided for separately, so that frequently we are obliged to refuse patients while we still have a few empty beds. For some years our four public wards have each two beds more than the Health Department allows. Now, there is seldom a time that our three-bed wards have less than four beds and our two-bed wards less than three beds. To-day we have four patients in crowded semi-private wards and one mother in the plaster cast room waiting for an empty private room. Also a diabetic patient has been waiting since last Friday to get a room so that he may have treatment and diet. This is not unusual. Last year I refused many patients, not even having an extra bed to place in a corner anywhere.

With the hospital so crowded it is impossible to keep the patients properly placed. Very frequently mothers are in the surgical ward and several times in the medical ward. This is against Hospital regulations and increases our work tenfold."

Air Space Lacking

Ventilation is one of the most important requirements for good hospital work. To secure this, patients must have a definite amount of air space. It has been decided by experts that the minimum square feet of floor space and of cubic feet of air for each patient must, according to age, be in accordance with the following table:

Minimum Square Feet of Floor Space	Adults	Children	Babies
In private rooms	90	75	55
In Wards	80	65	45

Minimum Cubic Feet of Air Space	Adults	Children	Babies
In private rooms	900	675	500
In Wards	800	600	400

Experience has shown that in wards there should be at least eight feet from centre to centre of beds. If there are two rows of beds in the ward, then the ward must be at least 24 feet wide, for the beds should not be placed neared than 1½ feet from the wall. The beds themselves should be 6½ feet long, with 8 feet of corridor space between them. It is utterly impossible with the present space available in Nicholls Hospital to meet these requirements.

On the third floor of the old building—said floor being extremely squeaky, by the way—are the dormitories for the nurses and attendants whose duties require them to be in the hospital at all times and others for whom there is no accommodation in the nurses' residence. The rooms can be compared only to those to be found in a third-rate hotel, without either space or beauty.

Another matter which means great trouble to the nurses, is the absence of proper sterlizing rooms on each floor. Absurd though it may seem to the business man or plant manager, nurses have to come from three different floors to a room on the entrance landing in order to sterlize equipment. Medicine cupboards are placed in corridors where they are very much in the way of patients being wheeled between wards and of other wheel traffic. Besides, this practice is contrary to the best rules of hospital administration, since medicines should not be available except to those charged with their care and administration.

To sum up conditions as they were found at the hospital yesterday, the kitchen built forty years ago with the idea of taking care of fifty persons is now called upon to supply meals for up to one hundred and fifty persons; the sink is no larger than that of an ordinary kitchen; the dining rooms are full to overflowing and when extra classes come in the meals must be served in relays; utility rooms are sadly lacking on the ward corridors; there are no dressing rooms to prepare for surgical dressings; the offices are inadequate; there is no reception room; no record room and no telephone switchboard.

The staff deserves the greatest credit for carrying on in the face of these inadequacies, but if the people of Peterborough are to be served in the way that this staff is capable of serving them, then to the munificence of Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls whose bounty has provided and maintained the hospital up to this time, ratepayers must add the amount needed to modernize the building and bring the equipment up to date.

NEED OF VISION IS SUBJECT OF FINE ADDRESS

Rev. David Wren Speaks To Employees of C.G.E. in Legion Hall.

FORMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

"Lives Must Be Invested in Job We Alone Can Do," Says Speaker.

The need for vision and imagination was the theme of an inspirational address delivered by Rev. David Wren to the employees of the Canadian General Electric plant at a meeting of the Foremen's Association held in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening.

A man's character and life could be definitely gauged by his answer to the three questions, "Where do you live? What do you do? and What do you see?" stated the speaker. In expanding the meaning of these questions it was stated that the first meant more than merely on what street or neighborhood the person was domiciled. The second meant infinitely more than the daily work, more than mere mechanical or physical labor. The third was greater than that retained on the retinue of eye and gained by mere physical observation. The type of life we live can be determined by the energies we release.

Invested in the Job.

"Our lives must be invested in the job that we alone can do and no one else in just the same way that we can do it," said the speaker. "There is something that you can do that no one else can do and if you do not do it it will likely remain undone," he continued. This was considered the greatest challenge the life holds to human beings and ordinary to accomplish it in a fitting manner clear vision of the future was needed. All the best things in life have first been seen in imagination and then worked for accomplishment by the man of vision.

"I pity the man who does not see the best things in the life around him," declared Mr. Wren. In illustration he told of two men who went to Chicago, each bringing back widely varying reports on the life of that city.

The kinds of vision were divided under three heads: physical, spiritual and intellectual. Dealing with the last the speaker described it as "the scholar's vividness of imagination." The power to visualize and project ourselves into the state of to-morrow.

Taking Greece as an example of the great strides made in the world of thought and the wide trail blazed in wisdom and knowledge of the fine arts by that country while her youth was taught to think, and the decay after these gave way to the desire of luxury, the speaker said that Canada would only advance in so far as her people had visions of the to-morrow.

PLOT FRUSTRATED TO KILL KING BORIS

Police Find Several Bombs in the Royal Railway Coach.

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 19 (AP)—Police announced to-day they had frustrated an attempt to assassinate King Boris when he returns to Bulgaria with discovery of two unexploded bombs in the king's private railway coach last night.

The bombs were of obsolete type but sufficiently powerful to have wrecked the railway coach, police said. Their statement added that they had received warning certain communists intended to take the life of the king if the bombs failed to explode.

King Boris was welcomed to Brussels yesterday by King Albert of Belium, who met him at the railroad station as he arrived from Berlin. He has visited various European courts, during his trip, with gossip of a possible engagement to Princess Giovanna of Italy recently negatived by reports that religious obstacles would prevent the marriage.

DAY IN PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, Ont., April 19 (By The Canadian Press).—To-day the Senate will not sit.

The House of Commons will consider estimates and probably Canadian National Railway legislation.

Yesterday the Senate debated the matter of the claims of Prince Edward Island for additional subsidies in lieu of lands given to the western provinces after Confederation. The question was raised by Senator J. J. Hughes, and replied to by Senator Dandurand.

The House of Commons, following tributes to the late Dr. Edwards, former member for Frontenac-Addington, went into committee of supply and discussed the post office estimates.

CENSORS ARE CRITICIZED

Mode of Censuring Literary Work in England Arouses Warm Discussion.

SOME DENUNCIATION

LONDON, April 19 (By The Canadian Press)—Literary censorship is becoming one of the most debated subjects in England as a result of the banning of a number of books recently. The latest novel to come under official disapproval is "The Sleeveless Errand" by Norah C. Jones.

In a recent article on the subject in one of the London illustrated weeklies, Gilbert K. Chesterton discusses the subject at some length and finds that most persons who talk about censorship are in a hopeless muddle. He says if his books have to be censored he would much rather have them dealt with by the Spanish Inquisition than by the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks.

While professing no admiration for the Inquisition, Chesterton says they at least acted on certain definite principles which everyone knew and understood. At the present time not even themselves knew on what principles the authorities acted in declaring books objectionable.

Hopelessly Confused.

Mr. Chesterton says there are three grounds on which a book dealing with sex might ostensibly be declared objectionable but that these grounds were hopelessly confused together in the public mind. One was that objectionable doctrines were preached in the book, another that the book contained passages calculated to excite appetites or desires regarded as anti-social or immoral, and the third that it contained vulgar words and expressions. Each ground was quite separate and distinct in itself, said Chesterton, but yet very few of the people who either opposed or upheld the banning of a particular book could say on which ground it ought to be or might be denied circulation.

With regard to the first the writers say the authors of so-called immoral books in many cases are merely giving expression to the doctrines which if not preached are practised in many classes of society. He claims a writer can not be blamed for advocating a doctrine which is practised in private life by a large section of the population. As to the second it is very difficult to say when a passage is objectionable as the state of the mind of the reader is always a dominant factor in the effect produced. In discussing the third he points out that words in themselves are nothing apart from the meaning attached to them and if the idea conveyed is one commonly entertained it does not make it objectionable in an author to express it in words which may happen to be frowned upon by convention.

The chief fault Chesterton has to find with present attempts at censorship is that they are based on no definite moral principles but merely on the shifting sands of convention and manners. Taking Shakespeare as an instance he illustrates the difference between convention and morals.

He says many expressions in Shakespeare's plays would certainly be frowned upon by present-day convention. They may or may not have been unconventional in Shakespeare's time. They may be wrong now though right when they were used and though they may become right in the future. But if Shakespeare neglected his wife that would be wrong then, it would be wrong now and it would be wrong for all time.

TO ADJOURN CHICAGO CASE

Charles Evans Hughes, Special Master, Sails for Geneva on May 1st.

Washington, D. C., April 19 (CP)—Charles Evans Hughes, special master who is holding hearings in the Lake Michigan diversion controversy, indicated to-day that another week would be set aside for hearings. Yesterday it was determined that the hearings would be discontinued to-morrow, following cross-examination of engineers for the complaing Great Lakes States.

The change in plans was brought about largely at the request of Hamilton Ward, Attorney-General of New York, who expressed a desire to have rebuttal testimony from the Chicago sanitary district submitted before Mr. Hughes sails for Geneva on May 1.

The rest of the hearing, under the proposed programme, will be given over entirely to engineer witnesses, and, if time remains, the states of New York, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and Wisconsin will close.

SOCIAL EVENING.

Carpet Ball Contests Held By Members of Eastern Star L.O.B.A. 525.

Victors by 11 points over the ladies an enjoyable game of carpet ball was played between the guests and members of Eastern Star L.O.B.A., 525, at a social evening held recently. Following the conclusion of the contests a dainty lunch was served.

methed of reduction of armaments based on the proportional principle. At the same time when the international disarmament convention convened there was nothing to prevent the conference taking the Soviet proportional principle and its numerical co-officient into consideraton, the bureau pointed out.

Holds Optimistic View

The conviction that naval disarmament difficulties between the great powers would be overcome, was expressed by Lord Cushendun, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs of Great Britain. But while these difficulties were obstructing progress, he declared there was no reason why, in his judgment, the commission should not get along with limitation of land and air armament.

Lord Cushendun strongly urged that the commission should go ahead with its work of preparing a draft convention on disarmament. "We are prepared to make great sacrifices to reach the agreement we desire," he said. "Unhappily, the efforts to remove naval difficulties have not yet been successful. We have not yet succeeded in coming to an agreement but we ask the commission to carefully consider this: That although there has not been an agreement it is necessary to remember that outside the commission altogether, the chief naval powers have actually effected a large and important measure both of reduction and limitation in naval armaments."

ASSOCIATION MEETS.

The regular meeting of the King George Home and School Association was featured by a talk on "Friendliness to Foreigners" given by the Rev. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, and by a delightful musical program which included a vocal solo by Miss Daisy Davidson, a reading by Jean Parnell and a piano solo number by Tom Allen. A. McFarlane also spoke briefly on "Early Progress in Peterborough," a stunt was put on by the Senior Fourth class and a parade by the boys of the same class.

The chair was taken by the president of the association, Mrs. E. Scott and routine busines was transacted. Attention was drawn to the large amount of work done in relief matters, by the society.

EVERY FEATURE of the Ford Car makes for Safety

Ford

PROTECTION to driver and passengers has been a vital consideration with Ford engineers. The body is all steel and the windshield of shatterproof glass. A fully enclosed six-brake system grips with silent power under any headway. Three-quarter irreversible steering responds to the lightest touch, while the steering wheel remains rock firm and unaffected by rough road conditions. A one-piece gas tank is separated from the engine by a solid steel dash.

Come in and arrange for a demonstration. You will know then that a really fine car is established in the light car world.

APPROVES EXAMINER CAMPAIGN TO BEAUTIFY THE CITY LAWNS

Citizen Says Such an Effort Has Been Needed for Years.

SOME HINTS

Seed Should be Scattered Generously and Ground Well Rolled.

"The Examiner is to be congratulated for starting this campaign," said a Dalhousie street resident the other day. "It has been badly needed for a long time."

He was just putting into words the thoughts of many citizens whose lawns have been destroyed by thoughtless or careless persons who walked on them. The following have joined the campaign since the last list was published:

Stanley Armstrong, 524 Rogers street; Mrs. Jean Wagar, 105 Lock street; T. J. Burke, 103 Smith street; H. Goodwin, 519 Chamberlain street; E. J. Ferguson, 658 Armour road; Maurice Dixon, 554 Chamberlain street; Mrs. Walter Whitehead, 253 Wolfe street; Mrs. G. Payne, 197 Bethune street; Mrs. C. E. Rogers, 581 Douglas avenue; W. H. Young, 592 Chamberlain street; William H. Brady, 154 Hunter street east; James Foster, 578 Stewart street; Joseph Johnston, 19 Park street north; George Walton, 187 Aylmer street.

Other citizens desiring to help along the good work are invited to bring in the coupon, or send it, with a two-cent stamp to cover postage, and receive two "Please Keep off the Lawn' signs' free.

A Few Hints

Most people have some kind of lawn, but nearly everyone sees need for improvement. Some have been trying for years to make the lawn really good, without success.

It is said by experts that the best way is to make a new lawn, but even with moss-covered or bare expanses, this will not appeal to many householders. If the lawn is very bad, of course, this would pay in the long run, as patching would never bring success.

The lawn that has simply become run-down is the principal trouble in Peterborough, and this may be brought back to beauty in one season without much of either work or expense. The first requisite is rolling and fertilizing, and this should be followed up by judicious watering, rolling and mowing during the season.

If your lawn has run to weeds, scratch the surface well with a rake, remove the coarse weeds, and seed with good grass seed, using about half the quantity necessary for a new lawn. The same rule holds good as is taught in Sunday school—the best way to keep evil things out of the mind is to occupy it with wholesome thoughts—and the best way to keep weeds out of the garden is to fill it with good grass.

In seeding, broadcast about one quart of seed to three hundred square feet. Don't seed on a windy day. Keep the hand low, and scatter the seed well and evenly. If you sow thickly, the weeds will have less chance, and the grass leaf will be finer—don't forget that seed is cheaper than the labor that would be necessary to dig out the weeds later! Some believe in covering the ground twice, using half the quantity of seed each time. The second half is sown while you walk at right angles to the first. After the seed is scattered, rake the ground lightly so as to just cover the seed, then roll.

Don't cut until the new grass is about three inches tall—and see that the knives of the mower are not too close to the ground—not lower than two inches.

Rolling Important

Rolling is important if success is to be made certain, but so few have rollers that this is often neglected. It would be nice if those who own rollers would loan or rent them to neighbors. It seems so extravagant to have a roller for the average small lawn—and yet that lawn needs this attention as much as the larger. If you have a roller, be friendly and offer its use to your neighbors, in the interests of a more beautiful street and city.

Whatever your plan, this year, do SOMETHING to make the lawn beautiful—and join The Examiner's Beautify Peterborough Campaign!

In Police Court

William J. Montgomery, the man of many aliases, appeared in police court this morning after a week's remand, elected summary trial and pleaded guilty to four out of five charges of forgery preferred against him, and ranging over a period of the last five years On the fifth charge, he apparently had some doubt as to its authority, and after pleading not guilty, he was remanded until next Wednesday, for trial, and for sentence in the other four charges of which the most serious was his recent attempt to pass a worthless cheque for $1,500 on a local car dealer.

Runners Have Passed Through Eight States

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 19.—(Canadian Press).—After two short jumps of 35 miles each, the runners in C. C. Pyle's transcontinental foot race to-day faced a 54 mile trek to Brazil, their last control point to Indiana.

Pete Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, still held to his lead in elapsed time although Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., winning the last three hops has narrowed the margin. Salo is less than three hours behind Ed. Gordner, Seattle, Washington, negro who holds second place. Phil Granville of Hamilton, Ont., finished twelfth yesterday and slipped back to seventh place in elapsed time of 146:17:57.

The Pavement Pounders enroute to the Pacific Coast, have covered 805 miles in their nineteen days of running, passing through eight states.

COUNCIL FORMED IN YEAR 1848 AT SENECA, N.Y.

Interesting Resume of Achievements of National Council of Women Given.

DRAMATIC ORIGIN.

Organization Has Had a Hard Struggle, Declared Mrs. R. G. Smythe.

An interesting resume of the achievements of the National Council of Women through the years since its formation, was given to members of the Local Council of Women at their meeting in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., yesterday afternoon, by Mrs. R. G. Smythe of Toronto, who proved herself to be a fluent speaker and one possessed of wide knowledge of her subject through her many years of association with the Council and her five years' experience as president of the Provincial Council of Ontario.

There was a very lorge attendance of members of the affiliated societies, to whom tea was served at the conclusion of the meeting, the arrangements being in charge of Mrs. J. D. Deyell. The chair was occupied by the president, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, who introduced the speaker and moved a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of her brief and interesting talk.

Prior to the address, Mrs. Edwards read an outline of a proposed observance of Mothers' Day, in connection with the National Council's campaign in the interests of the Maternal Mortality investigation. This was sent to the local convenor of this committee, Mrs. N. H. Sutton, by Mrs. A. Plumptre of Toronto, National Convenor of the committee engaged in an investigation of the large number of deaths in Canada through Maternal Mortality.

Reports and minutes of the previous meeting were also presented by the treasurer and secretary, Mrs. E. Wand and Mrs. K. S. Wightmand, and Mrs. A. Mowat, corresponding secretary, called the roll.

Mrs. Smythe's Address

"There is something about the National Council of Women that stirs the blood, quickens the pulse and awakens the imagination" said Mrs. Smythe. "It had a dramatic origin and a very democratic platform that served as the basis, many years later, of the constitution of the League of Nations, in its ideas of representation of minor, as well as larger, societies. In its early years, it had a hard struggle against popular prejudice and its fight throughout has been in the interests of women and of children. It has also had a hard struggle to maintain a sound financial basis."

The speaker went on to outline the origin of the National Council of Women in 1848 at Senecca, New York, when a small beginning was made which afterwards spread and grew until it embraces now forty-two Councils in as many countries of the world.

Mrs. Smythe itemized achievements of the various Councils as including legislation which provides for police matrons, women as factory inspectors, the formation of Associated Charities, the teaching of domestic science and manual training in the schools, the raising of the age of consent to eighteen years the establishment of the Victorian Order of Nurses, an amendment to the Vagrancy Act by means of which homeless persons may not be placed in jails, working for custodian care of the feeble-minded, the establishment of the Red Cross Society in Canada through the formation of thirty branches of this organization during the Boer War, the establishment of supervised playgrounds, changing the law in respect to chattel mortgages with benefit to women, an Act to compel relations of the poor to contribute to their support, petitioning the Government to establish a Department of Public Health, working for women in the suffrage movement, an amendment to the law which now allows women who are not heads of households to homestead, having mothers appointed as joint guardians of their children, an act respecting wife desertion, inspection of maternity boarding homes, the act with regard to Mothers' Pensions, appointing matrons for ships and trains enquiry into food storage and appointment of inspectors, for storage plants, agitation for equal moral standards for men and women, appointment of a women magistrate and establishment of a woman's court, legislation with regard to the Minimum Wage Act, provision for medical attention for mothers in outlying districts, censorship of moving pictures, inspection of lending libraries and agitation in regard to pernicious literature and its distribution.

Eight Major Issues

The eight major achievements which are credited to the work of the National Council of Women were itemized by Mrs. Smythe as being the teaching of domestic science and manual training in the public schools, the establishment of the Victorian Order of Nurses, the establishment of supervised playgrounds, the Mothers' Allowances legislation, the provision for medical attention for mothers in outlying districts, the Produced in Canada movement and its encouragement, the furtherance of Public Health activities and the agitation for woman suffrage.

Mrs. Smythe also referred to the pressing need for suitable offices and equipment for the National Council and its executive and impressed upon her hearers the necessity of each member contributing within her means to the establishment of the Nationol Fund which will take care of this work for all time, if the required sum of $200,000 be raised, to allow of an approximate annual income of $10,000.

HEAVY FIGHTING REPORTED IN CHINA

Firing Continued All Last Night Around Ichang—Women Seek Refuge.

SHANGHAI, April 19.—(C.P.)—Fighting was in progress on both banks of the Yangtze Klang to-day between Shasi and Ichang, Hupeh Province.

Fifteen thousand troops of the Wuhan opposition were attacked from the east by Nationalist forces and from the west by loyal Szechuanese troops. Firing continued all last night around Ichang.

Japanese women and children took refuge aboard a Japanese warship in the river.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

QUEST - - - By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox" "Humoresque"

Gringle, with a growing hunger at his heart for he knew not what, searching the wide world over.

Almost satisfied—by a flaming field at sunset—a black-eyed, slender girl—marble halls of ruined Rome—the beauties of a great picture.

But never quite satisfied. His quest through the years leading him on and on back to the beginning.

YOU could not live in a so-called sane world, a work-a-day universe of steel and five-and-ten-cent-stores and garages and street cars and silos and hand-laundries and motion-pictures and cigarette-coupons and be considered sane yourself, if you went through life with an utter disregard for the things that seem to matter so terribly to all the whirligig universe around you, and with a strange quest in your mind all your own.

That was precisely what happened to a man named, or nick-named, "Gringle." Nobody seemed to know him by any other name. Probably because this one had had a sound to it of a man who would grin at life. And then, since he never had any checks to sign or any deeds on property or any income tax or any other complicated negotiations, another name was not necessary. On those rare occasions when it did become necessary, he usually made up one.

It happened this way: When Gringle was what the world would call a safe and sane young man and just about to enter into the practice of law in a middle Western city where you did precisely what your neighbor did, when he did it, how and why he did it, he woke up one morning with the strangest lilt of a melody running through his brain. And the curious part of it was that Gringle was not a musical person. Folk music had always appealed to him, but there was nothing in his make-up to suggest a man who was ultimately to become slave to a melody.

Melody is scarcely the word. And yet, none other seems so well to define it. All that Gringle knew from that tortured and ecstatic morning that he awoke with a clear stream running like spring water through his brain, was that when he came face to face with what in life corresponded to the rhythm in his heart, he would know it, whether it were song or landscape, beauty or beast.

That morning, the beginning of Gringle, the safe and sane world about him seemed a little queer. It meant bitter days and finally years of disappointment to a family who had looked to him to follow the tradition of becoming a successful lawyer in a town where his name had been respected for generations.

It marked the gradual disintegration of a well-groomed, average American young man, into a strange-eyed youth with hair that fell to his shoulders and open collars that revealed a beat of excitement perpetual in his throat. It marked the beginning of the Gringle of the open road. A vagabond-de-luxe, with money in his pockets. His family saw to that and besides there was an inheritance from a grandfather that supported him sumptuously. But Gringle had a light in his eyes of one constantly eluded. Perhaps a little deluded. A man with a quest.

Sometimes, on the edge of a field of an evening, overlooking a universe inflamed with sunset, it seemed to Gringle for a fleeting moment that perhaps there lay his fulfillment. That perhaps just luminous beauty, like a country-side at sunset, could still the running ache in his heart. But the next morning, in the sweet couch of a hay rick or in some farmhouse where he had found a night's lodging, there it was again. The yearning, the sense of searching for someone, the desire.

Along the roads of those many years there had been girls. Farm wenches. Painted girls on stoops at dusk. And because he had money in his pockets, girls of his own social class to whom he was bizarre and interesting and a little wildly poetic.

Once, in a slim, dark flash of a girl who had served him sweet cider behind a bar in a rural tavern, he felt sure that here, at last, he had found the peace of beauty and the beauty of peace.

They were married and for two months the hallucination almost endured and then she went off with the son of the bar keeper for whom she worked. One year later, by one of those dramatic mischances that occur infrequently enough to keep them remarkable, Gringle, stumbling into a church to escape a rain storm, found himself attending her funeral.

There followed eighteen years of the open road. The long hair reaching to Gringle's shoulders had become gray and matted. His thin, ascetic face burned with the fierceness of his quest. He had written a book of poems which had been published anonymously, and while he slept in hay ricks he was discussed in drawing rooms. His shirt fronts, revealing the beat in his throat, were perpetually torn open as if he craved the cooling of air. He was like a man with a thirst that had never been quenched.

He beat his way to Europe on a tramp-steamer. He bought his way to strange ports in de luxe cabins. He roamed the aisles of Greek temples. He stood before the Mona Lisa. The hanging gardens of Babylon. And the glory that had been Rome's.

Somewhere, in marble halls and the lanes of forests, in the cerulean blue of lakes, there waited a panacea for this seeker. Paris, Constantinople, Florence yielded him not what he sought. He became a little grayer, a little more ostracized by the strangeness of his make-up and his personality. Terribly tired.

Quest was licking him. The years of social ostracism, of mental torment and spiritual hunger had gone for naught. At sixty, Gringle was where he had started when he had awakened with a gnawing of the melody at his heart, except that thirty-five years had taken their toll of his vitality, his youth, his courage and his hopes.

One day, when he was sixty-three, on one of his rare visits to his home city, he stopped at the side door of a white frame house on the outskirts and asked for a drink of water from a spring that looked tempting. A woman with a white frill cap on her thick white hair handed him a cool, tin dipper. He had gone to school with her when her name was Taddy Lane.

Suddenly, looking at her while taking the cool dipper from her hands, Gringle knew that an ecstacy was lighting his heart. Here was the melody!! Here was Life waiting for him at the point from which he had started his quest.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE OCEAN OF THE AIR

Men have gone down to seas in ships
  And women watched upon the shore,
But now into a new sea slips
  Some mother's son forevermore.
Once women watched for husbands' sails
And shuddered with the wintry gales;
  Now to some hope some woman clings
  And listens for the whirr of wings.

Some cloudland now envelops him,
  Whom once a headland hid from view,
Some ocean vaster and more dim
  Than any sea man ever knew.
Here is a darker mystery
Than any wave embroidered sea,
  A deeper doubt when mortals fare
  Into the ocean of the air.

And so it was, and so it will,
  And so it has been from the first:
Men always look beyond the hill,
  And men for new adventure thirst.
Yes, men are always finding things,
New seas for sails, new seas for wings,
  Finding new joys in some new deep,
  And giving hearts new cause to weep.

Hollingsworth Holds Maple Leafs To Six Hits

ORIOLES WIN SECOND GAME BY TWO RUNS

Hollingsworth Plays Spectacular Game in Baltimore's 4-2 Victory Over Toronto.

SKEETERS WIN 5-4.

Reading and Rochester Play to 5-all Tie in 13 Inning Stalemate.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 19.—The good right arm of Jack Hollingsworth, former Bison, swung between the Leafs and victory in the second game of the series here yesterday. The Orioles won, 4 to 2, beating Jess Doyle, who had hoped for the successful start in his bid for the $1,000 bonus which is to be his if he scores 20 victories this season.

Hollingsworth held the Leafs to six hits, and only one to the seventh inning. That was a bunt which the speedy Joe Rabbit laid down along the first base line in the third and the speed merchant raced to second when "Holly" thew the ball into right field. Holding the Leafs to six hits and two runs is not all that Hollingsworth did to aid his own cause. As a matter of fact, the Oriole right winger was just about the whole show in the snubbing of the opposition.

HOMER ACCOUNTS FOR WIN.

JERSEY CITY, April 19.—(Canadian Press.)— Larry Westmoreland, batting for Lefty Shoffner in the ninth inning, slammed out a home run with one on and gave Jersey City the opening game over Buffalo by a score of 5 to 4 here yesterday.

BATTLE TO TIE.

READING, April 19. — (C.P.) — Reading and Rochester played a 5 all 13-inning stalemate here yesterday afternoon in the second game of the series. The game was called on account of darkness after the Keys had come from behind three times to tie the score.

TOURNAMENT OFF TO GOOD START

Six Boxing and Two Wrestling Bouts At Port Arthur.

PORT ARTHUR, April 19. (C.P.)— Three crafty mittmen and a hardy grappler from Manitoba carried off victories in the eight bout Dominion boxing tournament last night. More than 1000 fans at the opening of the three day title tourney, saw one Winnipegger crowned welter wrestling king, and a trio of boxers advance in their divisional elimination. Results:

Discussion Likely At C.O.B.L. Meeting

KINGSTON, April 19. — The meeting of the C.O.B.L. to be held in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. on Saturday afternoon will likely boil over with discussion regarding th entry of Kingston into the league, for the Twenty-First Battalion Club, who are sponsoring the idea of re-entering the league will fight hard for recognition.

Kingston have always been of strength to the C.O.B.L. and in most of the years were too good for the others. Last year they fell on evil days and never got started again. Near the end of the schedule, financial matters were so bad that the team could not finish the season. They stuck to the league when Oshawa bolted and joined the Toronto League, but when the Motor City team found they weren't good enough for the brand of ball played in Toronto, they got back into the C.O.B.L.

This year Oshawa, along with Peterborough, will likely oppose the return of the Limestone City to the C.O.B.L. As a matter of fact, if the teams west of Belleville are no better than they were in 1928, Kingston fans think the league will no be very successful. Just what attitude Belleville and Deloro will take remains to be seen, though they may side in with the two Western teams rather than see them drop out of the league.

WINS ON FOUL

PARIS, France, April 19.—(Canadian Press).—Frankie Genaro, of New York, won on a foul in the fifth round of his 15-round match with Spider Pladner, of France, claimant of the world's flyweight title, here last night.

RUTH CLOUTS FIRST HOMER

Big Bambino "Mobbed" By Enthusiastic Friends at New York.

YANKS WIN OUT 7-3.

NEW YORK, April 19. —A successful effort by the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox to open the belated Major League baseball season in New York today was dwarfed by a demonstration for "Babe" Ruth, the world champions' bridegroom and home run hitter, immediately after hostilities closed on the field. Hundreds of fans surrounded the big "Babe" as soon as the final Red Sox out was registered and he literally had to be rescued from his friends. The Yankees won their first game of the season by 7 to 3, but to a portion of the crowd of approximately 35,000 this was only an incident. Ruth was vital and he was caught before he could reach the Yankee dugout.

Possibly the slugger's friends were trying to extend twofold congratulations on his marriage yesterday and the inauguration of another home-run campaign by a circuit clout on his first time at bat today. They milled about the big outfielder and he seemed frightened. There was a wild look of terror on his face as he tried to evade the none too gentle back-slappings from hundreds of cold hands. Ruth finally reached the steps leading to the clubhouse, and the crowd then turned its attention to his bride, satisfying itself with cheers at a fairly respectable distance.

The season was opened two days late, but it was sent away with a flare of trumpets and participation of baseball notables.

The sun remained away, but the customers came. Before play began, Commissioner W. M. Landis presented the Yankees of 1928 with gold wrist watches, emblematic of their championship rating. The Stars and Stripes and world championship pennant were run up.

Ruth soon showed that his new stance by which he purposes to hit his many balls to left field to the confusion of teams looking for them in right is no joke. On his first chance, with his left foot far back to the batter's box, he hoisted one of Ruffing's curves far into the left field bleachers. Ira Flagstead, patrolling that section at the time for the Red Sox, is a man thoroughly home-run wise, and he took only two steps toward the sands before giving up that quest as hopeless. Later the big "Babe" flied to centre and drew two bases on balls.

Lou Gehrig, the other member of the Yankee home-run duo, had no plans for hitting home runs to left but he drove one into the right field bleachers.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

On Wednesday, April 17, seventeen bowling teams had already sent their entries in for the annual bowling tournament to be held at the Duffus Recreation Academy from April 20 to 27. This entry list is already larger than last year's, and several more teams are expected before Saturday noon.

Bill Prindible and his two aides, Vern Beavis and 'Red' Hollingsworth are spending a great deal of their time at the alleys lately, most likely this trio is planning a clean-up on the prize money in the coming tournament.

A team from the Duffus Alleys journeyed to the Queen City last Saturday to compete in the annual bowling tourney at the Olympia Alleys. This team was comprised of some very snappy pin spillers, but they kept so quiet about their trip that it took a week to find it out, and a search has failed to uncover the score sheets.

Four teams in the Ladies' City League crashed the pins in the final games this week, and the pin boys are glad that these heavy hitters are through for the season. The Columbians, after a perfect season of consistent bowling, won their way to the championship of the first half, while the Quaker Oats team carried off the honors in the second half. This week's battle between the Columbians and the Quakers was one of the best duels of the season, although the Columbians were superior throughout, winning three games to take the first money and the trophy.

The De Laval ladies and the Westclox team were second place winners in the first and second halves respectively and staged a three-game duel for second place in the league. The clockmakers took the first two games, but a smashing rally on the part of the De Laval team which piled up a big lead in the third game, gave the latter total pinnage and second place money.

De Laval — G. Gollop 314, F. Giroux 408, Naomi Horne 445, Helen Risko 541, T. Pearson 502.

Meaford Curlers Elect Officers

MEAFORD, April 19. —(Canadian Press).—The Meaford Curling Club held their annual meeting much earlier than usual this year, and elected officers for 1929-30 as follows:—Hon. President, J. S. Wilson; President, Edgar Brown, Vice-President, Lavern Douglas; Secretar, J. H. Canteion; Treasurer, D. A. Ferguson; Chaplain, Rev. J. R. Morden.

SOCCER SEASON OPENS SATURDAY

Canadian General and Brinton Meet in An Exhibition Game —Kick-off at Three.

The soccer season opens on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park when an exhibition game will be played between the Canadian General and the Brinton Peterborough A. A. Kick-off is scheduled for three o'clock prompt.

A large number of fans is expected so that they may get an idea of the respective elevens in the six team league. It will be a good practice game because the two contestants start the league schedule next Saturday afternoon. The Brinton team goes to Deloro, and the Canadian General tackle the Canadian Packing eleven at King Edward Park.

The Canadian General team for to-morrow will be as follows:

Boton, Goal; J. Figg and F. Wade, backs; J. Bruce, Harry Mann, and George Blowers, halves; A. McPhate, G. Lovatt, A. Mitchell, Rankin and Alex. Burgess, forwards. Reserves, A. Wilson, J. Murphy and George Wassell.

All players associated with the Brinton Peterborough eleven are requested to be at the pavilion not later than 2.45 promptly, so that the team may be chosen, if not picked before that time. Alex. McKinley has kindly consented to act as referee.

PLAYS AT BELLEVILLE

MARMORA, April 19. — Deloro football team commences its season on Saturday, playing an exhibition game in Belleville against the Canadian Legion team of that city. Deloro's team for Saturday's game was selected at a meeting held on Wednesday evening.

BRAVES BEAT ROBINS 13-12

Boston Easily Subdues Brooklyn in Free Hitting Tussle.

ATHLETICS WIN 8-2.

BOSTON, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Boston opened its twice postponed baseball season yesterday under frigid conditions. The Braves gave the few fans who turned out a bit of cheer by taking the free hitting game from the Brooklyn Robins by a 13 to 12 score. A shivering crowd of 5,000 saw the game and the brief opening ceremonies.

RALLY IN FIFTH.

WASHINGTON, April 19 (Canadian Press).—A six-run rally in the fifth inning by the Philadelphia Athletics was the margin of their victory over the Washington Senators yesterday as they took the second game of the opening series, 8 to 2.

BROWNS BUNCH HITS.

ST. LOUIS, April 19 (Canadian Press). — The St. Louis Browns bunched hits yesterday and chalked up their third consecutive victory over the Chicago White Sox to make a clean sweep of the opening series of the season. The score was 4 to 1.

INDIANS TAKE SECOND WIN.

CLEVELAND, April 19 (Canadian Press).—The Indians won their second victory in three days by nicking Owen Carroll and Frank Barnes for 14 hits in six innings for an 8 to 4 decision over Detroit.

GIANTS TROUNCE PHILLIES.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—(Canadian Press).—The belated opening of the National League season in Philadelphia saw the Giants win a weird game from the Phillies by 11 to 9 yesterday before 8,000 hardy but half-frozen fans. The customary opening ceremonies were held before the game.

CUBS BEAT PIRATES 11-1.

CHICAGO, Ills., April 19 (Canadian Press).—Sheriff Black oiled up his handcuffs, his vicious mates snapped them shut and the Cubs handed the Pittsburgh Pirates another unmerciful 11 to 1 beating yesterday.

It was a repetition of Wednesday's massacre, and the result gave McCarthy's heavy hitters a two to one edge over the Pirate brigade in their opening series.

Jack Fogartly Sets New "Crucifix" Lift" Record

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 19 (Canadian Press). — Jack Fogarty, Sault Ste. Marie, broke the world's record for the "Crucifix Lift" here Wednesday, when he lifted 78 pounds, at the Y.M.C.A. Circus. Owing to the fact that the feat was not witnessed by members of the executive of the Continental Weight Lifters' Association, it will not be officially recorded.

In the "Crucifix Lift" two weights are brought from the floor to a position above the head in one movement and are then slowly lowered to the side. When level with the shoulders the referee counts two and the "lift" is concluded.

The record stands with a lift of 73 pounds for a man weighing 122 pounds. Fogarty lifted 78 pounds and weighs but 117.

CIRCUIT CLOUTERS.

The busting twins of the world's champion Yankees, "Babe" Ruth and Lou Gehrig, broke into the Big Six for the first time in their delayed opening game yesterday and promptly assumed places near the top. The Babe cracked out his first homer of the year in his initial appearance at the plate. Lou delayed his four base hitting until the sixth inning, but added a single in three tries to head the Big Six.

"Goose" Goslin kept up his .500 pace through his second game to tie with Ruth, hitting safely twice in four attempts. Rogers Hornsby got one hit and two runs in a pair of official times at bat, holding the next place. Paul Waner and Jim Bottomley failed to hit.

RUNNERS ARE IN TRAINING

C.G.E. Track and Field Club To Hold Paper Chase To-morrow Afternoon.

STIMULATE INTEREST.

Consistent with the widespread interest being taken in track and field sports throughout the province are the activities of the local C.G.E. runners who are training faithfully, and with a great deal of enthusiasm, at the Y.M.C.A. every Monday and Thursday. The old-timers in this branch of athletics have added many younger members to their crowd, and the youngsters are beginning to enjoy the sport.

The officers of the club have planned several contests for the Saturday afternoons in the near future, such as games of paper-chase, hare and hounds, or short road races, which should stimulate competition and encourage many other fellows to participate. The first of these will be held on Saturday afternoon, April 20, starting from the Y.M.C.A. at two o'clock, if weather conditions are suitable, and any of the "Y" harriers who would care to be present are invited to do so.

Further particulars of this race may be obtained from Herbert Tranter or Dick Bates.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

Something quite novel in theatrical attractions is the appearance on the stage of the Capitol Theatre for the last half of this week of the gentleman who styles himself "The Masked Hercules" and who does some astonishing feats of strength. He is a man of apparently boundless strength and he bends iron bars between his teeth in about the same fashion that another man would crack a peanut shell. With him is a lady who explains the various feats and he also gathered on the stage last evening a quartette of gentlemen from the audience to assist in holding several of the larger bars. His performance ranges from grave to gay in its two contrasting elements, for the strong man is also a skilful embroiderer of paper. His steel fingers do rapid manipulation for a few minutes and the watchers see "The Star of Bethlehem" and other patterns emerge from the Toronto Star Presumably the local paper is not strong enough in tone for such use, or would the contrary be the case?

The Masked Hercules has powerful teeth which he uses in bending bars from ¼ to 1¼ inches in diameter, into circles and semi-circles and the likeness of croquet hoops. He also wraps them in bracelets about his wrists, without any apparent discomfort and bends a 3-8 inch bar across the muscles of his stout left arm.

The same arm serves him for a striking bit of performance, when he breaks a broom handle across it, splintering the stout wood into pieces. It is supposed to take a pressure of between five and six hundred pounds to break a broom handle in this way. Another feat is the bending, across the back of his neck this time, of a bar 1¼ inches in diameter.

The feature picture is one of those spooky affairs which have attained such a wide popularity in screendom during the past few years. It is entitled "The Last Warning" and stars Laura LaPlante. The action deals with the mysterious death on the stage, of John Woodford, hero of a heavy drama and the subsequent closing of the theatre for many years, while the murder remains unsolved.

Then Woodford's friend, Arthur M'Hugh takes a hand, re-opens the house, and puts on "The Snare," Woodford's original play, in an effort to discover the criminal in the old mystery. The action of the piece plays about this situation and the usual mysterious secret passages and shadowy hands and unforseen accidents, occur, with the delightfully shivery background of the back-stage atmosphere to lend its attraction to the tale The ending is dramatic and quite satisfactory to the lovers of the piece, who have been under a cloud of suspicion.

—Jeanette.

PLAYER-PILOT OF LEAFS

Steve O'Neill, leafs' new manager in characteristic attitude behind the plate as he will be seen in many a game at the Fleet street stadium. Toronto, this coming season. O'Neill was never in better shape and the veteran declares that he will catch the majority of the games played by the Leafs.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Johnny Miles will attempt to win the Boston Marathon again today against a strong field of long distance performers.

JIMMY HALL BACK.

Jimmy Hall, one of the best ball players ever developed on local diamonds, and who cavorted in left field for the Central League team, will be back permanently in this city within a day or two. He was a big help to the Petes from the first time he stepped on the diamond while yet a youngster, being reliable at the bat, and there wasn't a better fielder in the league. It is not baseball that is bringing Jimmy Hall back, but a legitimate business move, but he will certainly be a welcome member on the ball team.

CITY LEAGUE CONCLAVE.

The number in attendance and interest shown in the City League meeting to be held on Monday night in Duffus' Bowling Academy will determine greatly whether every youngster in the city, who desires to play organized baseball or not, shall have such an opportunity. A small group of men have always been to the front in putting over the City League teams, but the support of the rank and file of the fans is needed. Anyone understanding the game, who would be willing to take on the job of coaching a team of coming stars would be most welcome at the meeting.

BABE RUTH IN DECLINE (?)

Babe Ruth is not old, but he has been on the peak of the baseball heap so conspicuously for the last five years that the fans are shaking their heads, and saying each spring: "Well, this season will end the Babe." In discussing his chances this year, John Kiernan, of the New York Times, gives his own novel opinion on this topic, thusly: "The truth is that the postponement of the formal opening may have hurt the Yankee chances for a pennant. It is urged that one reason why the Hugmen may slip a bit this year is that Babe Ruth is growing older. It can be demonstrated scientifically that he is a day older to-day than he was yesterday. Thus the Yankees have been weakened by the postponement."

After perusing some of the mournful stories of the decline of the great Bambino, the only conclusion is that he will be playing the outfield with white whiskers in July, and will be carted up to the plate in a wheel chair in September.

It is just possible that he will last out the season, however. They were all set to bury G. H. Ruth on several previous occasions, but the funeral had to be postponed. Just when they had him counted out, and were thinking of nice things to carve on his athletic tombstone, the proposed corpse broke out in a rash of home-runs that set a new record in the annals of baseball. He may be a candidate for the baseball cemetery, but he looked very much alive when he stepped up to the plate at Ebbets Field, and on his first trip of the year to the plate in a major league park, hit the ball far over the right field wall for a rousing home run.

SANDE AS POPULAR AS EVER.

Earl Sande, the jockey, still enjoys popularity with the racing crowds that was his when he was the foremost American rider. All this popularity is not alone from his skill in the saddle, but as well for his many fine traits as sportsman, says an American writer. When he first showed his racing as an owner, last fall, he was accorded a tremendous welcome by the racing crowds. He was again acclaimed when he rode his own horse, Hermitage, at Havre de Grace, Tuesday.

DEFEAT FOLLOWS CHANGE OF TACTICS.

Lack of training and shortness in condition that goes with it is given as the reason for "Frency" Belanger's defeat by Harry Hill of Montreal. That is not fair to Belanger, although he is open to criticism from another angle. Belanger has done plenty of road work, and has trained hard for his bouts ever since last summer. That lack of condition has not been his trouble is shown by the fact that in every bout, win or lose, he has been able to win the last round by a wide margin. A boy in poor condition "fades" at the end of the bout. Here's the trouble: When Belanger was working his way to the top he tore into his opponents like Dempsey, punching freely with both hands, and giving his foes not chance to get set. Since he won the world title he has fancied himself a boxer, or, at other times, waited for an opening instead of making it as formerly. Time after time with the opposing boxer backed against the ropes or in a corner he had held his punches until the other man has manoeuvred his way out of the difficulty, and "Frency" has had to start all over again. His opponents, in the bouts he has lost, have earned a commanding point lead, and Belanger, apparently realizing this too late, has gone after them in the closing rounds, punishing them without securing the knockout which by that time was necessary to give him the victory.

Seven Out of Ten Are Victims But Writer Tells How "Uratabs" Bring Swift, Amazing Relief With Renewed Vital Force

"No one knows better than I, the horror of joyless days and sleepless nights. There have been times when I felt hopeless and helpless—and when my weakness caused me the most intense humiliation. Only those who have gone through such tortures can possibly realize my great satisfaction when Dr. Southworth's URATABS brought me quick relief. URATABS ar truly wonderful, and I give them full praise." Such amazing evidence serves as convincing proof of the power of URATABS to relieve those distressing ailments so often a handicap to those in middle life.

Overworked, sluggish Kidneys, and Bladder Weakness, bring on so many distressing ailments which so often lead to serious diseases that every sufferer from Lameness, Pains in back and down through groins, scanty but frequent urination, "Getting-up-Nights," Nervous Irritability and Lack of Force—should try the amazing value of Dr. Southworth's URATABS at once! Bond's Drug Store or any good druggist will supply you on a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

His Imperial Highness the Grand Duke Alexander Michailovitch photographed at the great Windsor Street terminal of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal at the time of his recent visit to Canada. He is one of the few remaining Grand Dukes in the line of succession to the lost throne of the Czars. He is a cousin of the late Czar Nicholas II, and a brother-in-law as well, as he married the Czar's eldest sister Xenia Alexandrovina. Through his wife he is a first cousin of King George.

DOMINION LINOLEUM

Design illustrated is Dominion Linoleum No. 5267, available in one other colouring, No. 5268.

Dominion Linoleum is appropriate to every room. Living room, dining room, nursery, bedroom, hall, kitchen . . . artistic designs and colourings lend distinction and charm to each.

And the cost is surprisingly moderate . . . especially when you think of the years of wear Dominion Linoleum always gives . . . and the hours of tiresome housework it saves you.

Dominion Linoleum comes in convenient widths and is quick and easy to lay.

Other Beautiful Dominion Floors

Dominion Inlaid Linoleum, with the famous Domolac Finish, lends distinction to any room. Lasts a lifetime. Moderately priced. Dominion Linoleum Rugs in standard sizes at popular prices enjoy wide favour for their notable beauty and durability.

OBITUARY

THOMAS WEDLOCK.

There passed away yesterday afternoon, Thomas Wedlock, aged 63, at his late residence, 184 Reid street. Mr. Wedlock had been an invalid for the past ten years; formerly he had been the proprietor of the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company. He was born in Keene and lived in that village until 15 years ago, when he took up business in this city.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, one son, William G., of Oshawa; two daughters, Mrs. W. E. Gillot of Oshawa, and Miss Helen C., at home; also one brother, William Wedlock, of this city, and one sister, Mrs. P. I. MacKay of Boston, U.S.A.. One son, Richard, paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War.

The funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence to the Little Lake cemetery, with the Rev. W. McDonald officiating.

BIRTH.

REID—At Timmins, Ontario, on April 14th, to Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert A. Reid, late of Lindsay and Peterborough, a son. Both doing well.

DEATH.

ABBOTT.— Entered into rest on April 18th, 1929, Charles Christopher Abbott, dearly beloved husband of Frances H. Macaulay. Funeral from his late residence, 203 King Street East, Kingston, on Saturday at 2.30 p.m.

The annual Easter thankoffering meeting of the St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held in the church parlor on Tuesday afternoon. During the devotional period, every member took part in the responsive reading. The scriptural reading was taken by Mrs. J. Forbes Allan, while the following ladies read the prayers of Jesus: Mesdames H. Tremain, W. Zeihr, T. Emerson, A. Porteous, C. R. Banks and R. G. Allan

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park sang most beautifull, "Fear Ye Not, O Israel"; and a poem, "The Crowning Wonder," was read by Mrs. R. G. Allan.

A play entitled, "The Opening of the Mite Boxes," was most interestingly given, the characters being: Mrs. Leader, Mrs. J. Forbes Allan; Mrs. Critical, Mrs. C. R. Banks; Mrs. Regret, Mrs. W. Zeihr; Mrs. Careless, Mrs. Emerson; Mrs. Trueheart, Mrs. A. Porteous, Mrs. Easy, Mrs. H. Tremain; Mrs. Wise, Mrs. J. John; Mrs. Joy, Mrs. Dr. Edwards; Mrs. Selfish, Mrs. Henry; Mrs. Mistaken, Mrs. Saltman; Mrs. Doleful, Mrs. Gillespie.

POST OFFICE ESTIMATES ARE AGAIN HELD UP

Premier Suggests To Mr. Veniot Consideration of His Proposals Be Deferred.

FOUR DAY FIGHT.

No Verbal Support For Postmaster-General Comes From Cabinet Colleagues.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 20.—(Canadian Press).—The greater part of four days was spent this week by the House of Commons in discussion of the post office estimates and when there appeared late last evening to be no hope of passing them it was decided to shift to other business. Up to that time while much information had been obtained during these extended debates no actual progress had been made in the advancement of government business since the week began.

The postponement of further consideration last night of post office estimates followed a suggestion by the Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King drew attention to the motion standing on the order paper that the debate, precipitated by the amendment of H. A. Stewart, (Conservative, Leeds) to the motion to go into supply, reviewed. Under the rules of the house, a motion moved on Wednesday as this had been, was automatically dropped, if not proceeded with. However, the postmaster-general was willing to have the question revived, but the rules of the house should be adhered to. Hon. Hugh Guthrie who was leading the Conservatives at the moment did not agree with this interpretation of the rules.

Reported Progress

"I have understood, possibly without foundation," said the Prime Minister, "that until this particular motion is disposed of honorable gentlemen oppose do not intend to permit the passage of any of the estimates of the postmaster-general. In the circumstances I think we are simply taking up the time of parliament to no advantage in continuing further at this time with these estimates and I suggest to the postmaster-general that at this stage he move that the committee rise and report progress."

The committee then took up consideration of the construction program of the Canadian National Railways.

While the cabinet's legislation program was thus being held up by the onslaught of the Conservative members on the administration of the post office department of which Hon. Peter Veniot, Postmaster-General, is the head, private bills ran into quite as baffling a jam when an attack was made on the erstwhile practice of the house to give divorce bills second reading en bloc. This fight was lead by J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre), with Henri Bourassa (Independent-Labelle) as his chief assistant.

As an outcome of this opposition to the divorce bills which blazed forth every time private bills came before the House, only five private bills made any advance during the week. Two of these were divorce bills which were given second readings after the House had divided. The other three were non-contentious bills which had been fortunate enough to find a place on the order paper ahead of the 49 remaining divorce bills already awaiting second reading.

Postmaster Questioned.

The discussion on the post office estimates yesterday were along the same lines as yesterday. Member after member proceeded to question the Postmaster-General as to the dismissal of appointment of some postmaster or post mistress in that member's particular riding. It covered a great deal of territory. D. J. Kennedy (U.F.A., Peace River) had complaints from his riding. Ontario members took up a number of Ontario cases.

H. A. Stewart (Conservative, Leeds) said that from Oct. 1, 1926, to Feb. 1, 1928, there had been 421 postmasters dismissed, which he figured was one for each working day. Apparently the Postmaster-General thinks that the day is lost when he does not dismiss a postmaster, Mr. Stewart observed.

Replying to this questioning, Mr. Veniot submitted a great deal of correspondence as to his reasons for dismissing the officials asked about and promised to provide more as soon as the files could be prepared.

After the House got away from the estimates in the final hour last night it passed most of the Canadian National Railway branch line plan.

Physicians Blame Milk

Dr W. J. Bell Issues Official Statement On Situation in Ekfrid Township.

BODY IS EXHUMED.

Medical Men Believe Disease Did Not Spread Because Of It Being Contagious.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20 (C.P.).—Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, in an official statement today relating to the situation in Ekfrid Township, Middlesex County, where a mysterious epidemic claimed the lives of four persons and was responsible for the illness of half a dozen others, declared that district doctors are convinced that the epidemic has been checked and that health authorities are concentrating their effort on the milk supply in the belief that the origin of the malady may be discovered.

The opinion of health officials, based on investigations they have conducted, said Dr. Bell, is that disease did not spread because it is contagious but that the illness of all victims arose from a common origin.

Body is Exhumed

"At Exeter the body of the elder Brown lad was exhumed," said Dr. Bell, "and the doctors found acute congestion of the brain, indicating severe toxemia (blood poisoning) and also marked congestion of the right lung with less congestion in the left lung. The doctors are not prepared to say that the bronchial development was a primary conditdion."

"A specimen of blood was taken from the heart ten minutes after death, and it showed streptococcus veridans. This is almost the same organism that was found in the throat. However, the doctors are not prepared to attack special significance to this because they feel that the presence of the organism was more in the nature of a terminal invasion rather than as a primary bacteria invasion which led to the death of the lad."

A terminal invasion of organizers, Dr. Bell explained, is an invasion that occurs when the patient is near death and serves to cloud the real primary cause of illness.

"The doctors have come to the conclusion," continued Dr. Bell, "that the disease did not spread through personal contact. They believe the deaths resulted from some common origin. The elder Brown boy, although he attended the funeral of Miss Sinclair, he stayed outside and

ACKERMAN DAMAGE ACTION FOR $15,000 AGAINST CITY WILL BE HEARD ON TUESDAY

Megill Will Hang In Regina On July 26

SHAUNAVON, Sask., April 20. — (Canadian Press). — Found guilty for the second time of murdering Anna Goff, 10 year old orphan, in June last, William Megill, 27, was sentenced by Mr. Justice Taylor, Friday, to be hanged in Regina, July 26. After being found guilty the first time the court of appeal ordered a new trial. Megill's counsel made a plea of insanity as a defense.

Mr. Justice McEvoy Will Preside at Non-Jury Sitting of Supreme Court.

RESULT OF FLOODING.

Company Claims It Suffered As Result of High Waters in Jackson Park Creek.

When Mr. Justice McEvoy of Toronto ascends to the bench in the Court House on Tuesday next he will open the regular non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court, which has but one case slated for disposal. That single case, however, will attract considerable attention, in that the plaintiffs are the B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company, Limited., bringing action against the corporation of the city of Peterborough, for $15,000 damages, claimed to have been suffered by that company as a result of the flooding, in the spring of 1928, of the Jackson's Park creek. It is understood that S. T. Medd, K.C., assisted by Toronto Counsel, will represent the company, while Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, also likely to call in outside counsel, will appear for the city.

Due to Several Causes.

In its claim, which is a rather lengthy document, the Ackerman firm alleges that the damages suffered were due to several causes, including the deviation of the creek from its natural course, by the city, as well as some obstruction of the creek at a bridge on Dalhousie street, near the Ackerman plant.

The company therefore claims $15,000 damages, and the cost of the suit, an injunction restraining the city from damming or continuing to dam the waters of the creek causing it to flow over the plaintiffs' said lands, and, finally, it seeks a mandatory order requiring the city to remove any obstruction it has placed in the said stream whereby the waters are prevented or hindered from flowing past or away from the company's land, or to provide another channel for the back.

The city's defence, equally lengthy, is based chiefly on the contention that had the stream been allowed to follow its natural course, the flooding might have occurred quite as easily. It further states that since the Ackerman property is located on low-lying land, proper precautions should have been, but were not, taken by the company.

GERMANS HOPE NEGOTIATIONS WILL CONTINUE

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht Must Make New Offer To Allied Experts.

CRITICISES PARIS PRESS.

German Delegate Is Attempting To Transfer Onus Elsewhere For Breakdown.

PARIS, April 20 (Canadian Press). —If Dr. Hjalmar Schacht and the German delegation wish to prevent final collapse of the reparations negotiations, it appeared to-day, they must make the Allied delegates a new offer, changed in both tone and character from that which precipitated Thursday's rupture.

Only the Germans seemed to-day to have the faintest hope that the breakdown, impending yesterday until the death of Lord Revelstoke permitted the conference a week-end recess, would not eventuate when the experts convened in plenary session again on Monday morning.

To Shift Blame.

The situation, to the Allied delegates, appeared to be that the German spokesman, having fortified his position at home with defiance of the creditor nations Thursday, sought

THREE WOMEN ARE BEING HAILED HEROINES OF BATTLE OF SASABE

Twenty Mexican Rebels Were Killed in Unsuccessful Attack.

ATTENDED THE WOUNDED.

Leaders Fled to United States' Soil To Escape Capture By Federals.

TUCSON, Ariz., April 20.—(C.P.)—Three women were hailed to-day as the heroines of the Battle of Sasabe (Mesquite) Sonoro, in which about 20 Mexican rebels were killed and wounded in an unsuccessful attempt to repulse an attack by 195 Federal soldiers.

The women, Mrs. Arthur Hardgrave, wife of the former President of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. A. Hardy, wife of a San Fernando, Ariz., physician, and Mrs. James H. Jones, a guest of Mrs. Hardy crossed the border into Sasabe after the battle yesterday and attended and cheered the wounded fighters.

18 Fled to United States.

Eighteen of the rebels, commanded by Lieutenant Encarnacio Rojas, fled to the United States' soil to escape capture by the Federals and were held for internment. The rebels said between 30 and 40 of their comrades had been taken prisoners by the loyal troops.

The fight began at dawn, when the Federals advanced upon 80 rebels entrenched at Sasabe. In two hours the town was in Federal hands.

Federal accounts of the casualties and captured varied somewhat from those of the rebels. Loyal soldiers said eight rebels had been killed and ten wounded as against two Federal dead and five wounded. The Federals said they had captured six rebels and had taken 26 horses, one truck, seven rifles and 3,000 rounds of ammunition.

FASCIST RULE IS LAUDED BY KING

Victor Emmanuel Claims Italy Is Unified Nation Physically and Spiritually.

SPEAKS TO LEGISLATURE.

ROME, April 20 (Canadian Press). —Italy's soldier king, Victor Emanuel III., in a ringing speech before the twenty-eighth Italian Legislature to-day attributed Italy's "high place" in the family of nations to its seven years of Fascist rule.

The speech was made amid scenes of magnificent splendour after he and his Queen, Helena, and Crown Prince Humbert had headed impressive processions through the streets of Rome to the Quirinal Palace. He was cheered to the echo by both legislators and the monster crowds which lined the streets.

At the outset of his 30-minute address the King referred to the concordat with the Vatican, signed at the Lateran Palace. He said that as a consequence of two major events of the past few weeks—the national parliamentary election and conciliation with the Holy See—Italy had become a unified nation, not only physically, but spiritually.

Premier Mussolini called the roll of the new Parliament himself, administering the oath as he did so, while His Majesty smiled. Each member as he arose to take the oath gave the Fascist salute.

Giant Liner Leviathan Sails With Supply of Liquor

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 20 (Canadian Press). — The giant liner Leviathan left for New York this morning with a stock of liquor aboard for sale to its passengers.

Ship's officers refused to discuss the quantity of liquor put aboard. The loading was done with the utmost secrecy, officials at the pier refusing to give any information.

It was learned, however, the supply had been estimated so as to have little left over when the liner reached the 12-mile limit, where what is left will be thrown overboard.

TRENT CANAL POWER SUBJECT OF QUERY

E. A. Peck, M.P., Places Queries On Order Sheet of House of Commons.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 20 (C.P.).—Water powers on the Trent Canal system are the subject of enquiry by E. A. Peck (Cons., Peterborough) in a number of questions placed on the order paper of the House of Commons.

"What water powers, developed or otherwise, on the Trent Canal system, are still undisposed of and in the hands of the government," Mr. Peck asks. "What action, if any, is the government taking to sell or otherwise dispose of these powers?" he further enquires, "What applications, if any, have been received by the government for the purchase or leasing of these powers respectively?"

The Unconquered Dead

". . . . defeated, with great loss."
—From German Report.

Not we the conquered! Not to us the blame
Of them that flee, of them that basely yield;
Nor ours the shout of victory, the fame
Of them that vanquish in a stricken field.

That day of battle in the dusty heat
We lay and heard the bullets swish and sing,
Like scythes amid the over-ripened wheat,
And we the harvest of their garnering.

Some yielded. No, not we! Not we, we swear
By these our wounds; this trench upon the hill
Where all the shell-strewn earth is seamed and bare,
Was ours to keep; and lo! we have it still.

We might have yielded, even we, but death
Came for our helper; like a sudden flood
The crashing darkness fell; our painful breath
We drew in gasps amid the choking blood.

The roar fell faint and farther off, and soon
Sank to a foolish humming in our ears,
Like crickets in the long, hot afternoon
Among the wheat fields of the olden years.

Before our eyes a boundless wall of red
Shot through by sudden streaks of jagged pain;
Then a slow gathering darkness overhead
And rest came on us like a quiet rain.

Not we the conquered! Not to us the shame,
Who hold our earthen ramparts, nor shall cease
To hold them ever; victors we, who came
In that fierce moment to our honored peace

—John McCrea.

(The Canadian Legion will honor the men who fell at Ypres by holding a memorial service in Mark Street United Church tomorrow.)

VETERANS TO HOLD SERVICE RECALLING BATTLE OF YPRES

Legion Invites All Returned Soldiers To Join in Church Parade.

FOURTEENTH YEAR.

Creed and Class Are Sunk in Contemplation of Crosses of Flanders.

Peterborough veterans of the Great War will tomorrow pay tribute to Ypres Day, a day of memories that are sad and glorious.

For several years, the annual Church Parade of the Canadian Legion has been arranged for the Sunday nearest to the date of the Second Battle of Ypres, April 22, commemorative of the sacrifice and triumphal battle against odds of that day. This was Canada's first great battle, and is remembered because through it the war first struck at Peterborough homes through the casualty lists.

The Church Parade, however, is not confined to members of the Legion. It is yearly joined in by larger and larger numbers of unattached veterans, who appreciate the spirit of the day and are glad to unite again in honoring their fallen comrades. And who can doubt that as they march their ranks are swelled by the spirits of others whom they left to hold the Ypres salient forever sacred to Canada?

Amid earth's vagrant noises, they caught the note sublime:
To-day around them surges from the silences of Time
A flood of nobler music, like a river deep and broad.
Fit song for heroes gathered in the banquet-hall of God.

The old spirit of the Canadian forces lives again in the annual parade in another way too. The rifts of denominationalism are forgotten, as all ranks and creeds march together, and together remember their comrades of war years. In 1928, the parade was to St. James' Church in 1927 to George Street Church, in 1926 to St. Paul's Church, in 1925 to St. Peter's Cathedral. To-morrow it will join with Mark Street Church.

Units from the several militia regiments in Peterborough will participate. The Third Prince of Wales Dragoons, Fourth Field Battery, Canadian Artillery, Peterborough Rangers and Number Three Company, Canadian Machine Gun Company, will all participate. The order of parade and the order of service are printed in another column.

Again, symbolism will be in the service, through the presence of two men in service uniform, with steel helmets. They will stand with reversed arms throughout the service, recalling the fact that this is a service of remembrance for their fallen comrades.

The Canadian Legion section of the parade will be under command of President John R. Heron. He has extended an invitation to all veterans and interested civilians to join in the service.

Memorial Church Parade

At the Cenotaph

Militia units and Legion will parade at 10.20.

Bands will be on the lawn in rear of the Cenotaph; Cavalry, Artillery and Machine Gun detachments east of the Cenotaph; Infantry detachment west of the Cenotaph, and Legion on Murray street. Unattached officers in front of the Legion.

The bands will play a selection.

The President will place a wreath on the Cenotaph, in behalf of the Legion Other wreaths may be deposited.

DEATH BY DROWNING.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20.—(C.P.) —A verdict of death by drowning while in a convulsive seizure was returned by a coroner's jury here yesterday at the inquest into the death of George M. Hendry Toronto, whose body was found in Grenadier pond, Toronto. Hendry disappeared from his home here on March 31 and his body was found in Grenadier pond a week later.

First Positive Step Quickly Achieved by League Conference

Nations Are Committed At Disarmament Conference To Abstain From Use in War of Asphyxiating, Poisonous Or Similar Gases and All Analogous Liquids.

SOVIET REPRESENTATIVE URGES DELEGATES TO APPEAL GOVERNMENTS TO RATIFY GENEVA ANTI-GAS PROTOCOL

President Loudon Refuses Soviet Representative the Right to Speak On Question of Procedure and Publicity When Chemical Warfare Is Being Discussed.

GENEVA, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—The Preparatory Disarmament Conference achieved its first positive step to-day in approving two paragraphs of its draft treaty dealing with chemical warfare, these paragraphs commit the nations to abstain from the use in war of asphyxiating, poisonous or similar cases and all analogous liquids or sustances as well as to abstain from the use of bacteriological means of warfare.

Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian delegate who had previously announced that the Soviet representatives had decided to stay at Geneva although they believed nothing would be achieved unless the Soviet program for partial disarmament were adopted, again took the floor and urged the delegates to address an urgent appeal to all governments to ratify the Geneva anti-gas protocol.

Decision Coming Monday

Decision as to whether to make the chemical warfare prohibition an integral part of the proposed treaty will be taken Monday afternoon when the next meting will be held. President Loudon announced that Turkey had ratified it, making thirteen ratifications in all.

Early in to-days' meeting the question of publicity for armaments, representing the German project, was disposed of by the Disarmament Commission by tabling it for reference to a sub-committee or later discussion in connection with limitation of effectives.

Shortly after the action was taken M. Litvinoff arose and demanded Loudon, the President of the Conthe right of speech.

"On what subject?" Johnkheer ference, who had been criticized privately for allowing the Russians to monopolize the conference, and for general lack of firmness, asked.

"I want to speak on procedure and on the question of publicity,' Litchinoff replied.

M. Loudon announced they had already begun the discussion of chemical warfare and that it would be necessary to get the permission of the commission.

"Well," rejoined the Russian, very stiffly, "If I must get the permission of the commission every time I want to speak, then I won't speak.

He sat down amid embarrassing silence.

"I am very sorry," remarked M. Loudon coldly, "but we absolutely must get on with our work."

Shortly after the incident the Soviet delegation distributed a five page typewritten statement in which they said that while the commission's attitude justified their withdrawal from the conference they had decided to remain since they never wanted it to be said a disarmament conference had failed because the Soviet had not participated.

Count Von Bernstorff, German delegate, introduced an amendment to the commission's draft treaty on chemical warfare which prohibits the use of "air weapons," including dropping of explosives or gas bombs from airplanes. It would also prohibit employment of bombin gplanes which are guided by wireless.

LOCAL SOCIETY SHOULD HAVE 500 MEMBERS

Rev. George Tebb Gives Illustrated Lecture in Library Hall.

BURLINGTON'S EXAMPLE.

Benefits Derived From Horticultural Organization Are Outlined By Speaker.

The illustrated lcture on "Canadian and English Gardens" by Rev. George Tebb of Burlington at the Public Library last night under the auspices of the Peterborough Horticultural Society with William H. Young presiding, was attended by a fairly large number of those whom the subject actively interests.

In his introduction Rev. Mr. Tebb alluded to Peterborough's plans for an Old Home reunion this summer, and suggested that the Horticultural society should have a membership of 500, and should make a special effort in planting and generally cleaning up for the time when many people will come back to renew old friendships and associations and incidentally to see how the old town looks.

"In a walk around your city" he said, "I saw some board fences and I thought I'd like to have the chance to take a pail of whitewash and write on them "what do you think of this for old home week?"

Burlington's Example

Burlington has a population of just 3,000 and its Horticultural society has 500 members ,while the local society has enrolled up to the present for 1929 just 200.

Rev. Mr. Tebb's first picture showed a long street in Burlington lined with tall maple trees planted by some one who probably did not live long enough to see the beauty of their maturity. The planting of shade trees, especially on newly-opened streets, should be one of the interests of a horticultural society, the speaker advised. Later in his address, he deplored the thoughtfulness of motorists who despoil the woods of their flowers, usually throwing them away wilted to die in the dust of the roadside. He also suggested that it would be better for the preservation of the flowers that are tended only by nature if prizes were not offered for bouquets of wild flowers by various exhibition boards.

Some of the accomplishments of the Burlington Horticultural Society were depicted on the screen, the reclamation of a long stretch of beach littoral being particularly noteworthy, as shown in the pictures of the park that had been developed with its shrubs and flower beds and trim lawns.

Iris Bed a Specialty

A slide that aroused the aesthetic emotions of the audience was a Corner of Rev. Mr. Tebb's garden of irises comprising 400 named varities, Another of equal interest was a broad tapestry of asters which had been grown by a Burlington man who had previously known nothing of their culture. Still another picture which caught the breath of the aesthetes was the transformation in an old clapboard house which had once been a hotel, but was falling into ruin as a result of disuse and neglect. No one could have recognized it in the splendid residence of its reincarnation under an exterior of stucco and other decorative embellishments that had a magical and altogether charming effect of an old colonial house with terraced lawn.

CARS COLLIDE ON CHARLOTTE

Two Automobiles Damaged At Corner of Rubidge and Charlotte Streets.

NO ONE INJURED.

When David Andrews, of 164½ Simcoe street drove his touring car south on Rubidge street, approaching the Charlotte street intersection shortly after twelve o'clock today, he failed to note the progress east of a car driven by William Whittington, R.R. 3, Peterborough, on the latter street. The result was a stiff crash that toppled the Whitting car over on its side resulting in the expected damages to both vehicles, and a 100 per cent scare for Mr. Whittington's two daughters, who were in the car with him. And to cap it all, many dozens of eggs, intended for marketing in the city, were crushed beyond repair.

KILLED BY DERRICK.

QUEBEC, April 20. — (C.P.) Edouard Beaupre, aged 23, of Riviere A' Pierre, was killed yesterday when a derrick fell on him while he was drilling in a stone yard.

Cavan Farmer Held up by Three Men

BANDITS RIFLE THE POCKETS OF CHARLES SANDERSON WHILE HE IS GOING TO DAY'S WORK

Alarm Was Not Sent in Until Farm of Wilbert Larmer Was Reached.

LITTLE SMALL CHANGE.

Thugs Disappeared Along the C.N.R. Track—Police Start Search.

MILLBROOK, April 20 (Examiner Correspondence). — A hold-up was staged near this village on Friday morning, when three men, apparently tramping it, attacked Charles Sanderson, who was walking down the C.N.R. track to his work at Wilbert Larmer's farm, Seventh Line, Cavan.

The biggest of the men caught Mr. Sanderson by the throat and held him while the other two rifled his pockets. Some small change was all the money carried, but evidently determined not to go empty-handed the men took pocket knife, pipe, tobacco and matches; in fact, everything the pockets contained.

Unfortunately, it would appear, Mr. Sanderson waited until he reached Mr. Larmer's before telephoning Chief Natttress of the hold-up; an earlier call from the nearest farmhouse after he had left the track might have given opportunity to catch the men as they passed the C.N.R. station here.

It is known that they abandoned the ties at Dawson's crossing, and proceeded north. Chief Nattress has been busy on the case, but so far no further trace of the hold-up men has been found.

FINANCIER MARRIES

NEW YORK, April 20 (C.P.) — Henry L. Doherty, 58, president and director of the Cities Service Company, and nationally well known figure in the oil and public utility industry, was married to Mrs. Percy F. Eames, aged 40, widow of a former official of the International Harvester Company, on December 31, 1928, in Toronto, Ont., it was announced here yesterday.

Mother Of Large Family Shot By Unidentified Man

ST. LAURENT, Man., April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. I. Richard, an old resident of this village, was shot to death yesterday morning by an unidentified man who is said to have fled to the bush after the killing. The murdered woman's children, who were playing in the yard at the time, were witnesses to the slaying. A posse of citizens is being organized here to hunt down the killer.

Provincial police are on their way to the scene to investigate and the district coroner is conducting an enquiry to determine the exact cause of death.

Mrs. Richard was the mother of a large family. Her husband was employed in the village.

AUSTRALIAN BOYS CONTINUE TRIP SUNDAY

Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, Says Disease Not Contagious.

OBSERVE ROOM-MATE.

Death of Young Starchan Was Due to a Type of Blood-Poisoning.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20 (Canadian Press).—On his return last night from Niagara Falls, where he consulted with Dr. Logan, medical officer of health, regarding the death of William Strachan, 17, member of the "visiting Australians" party, Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy-Minister of Health, attributed cause of death to "streptococcus septicaemia"—a type of blood-poisoning. The infection in this case, he believes, was transmitted through an infected throat.

"The trouble is not contagious in the sense of a communicable disease," Dr. Bell said. "While the lad who was immediately associated or billeted with young Strachan is under observation, he will probably go on with the party to Detroit on Sunday. It is in his own interests we are detaining him, and not because we fear the disease is a communicable one. We do not want these visiting Australian boys neglected. We are prepared to observe this room-mate of young Strachan's and see that he is given the best of care and attention," Dr. Bell said.

Dr. D. H. Logan of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who is investigating the causes of the lad's death, said that the death did not resemble in any way the fatalities in Ekfrid Township, near London, where five persons died from strepto-coccus germs. No autopsy was performed, Dr. Logan said.

BEER TASTES SAID TO DIFFER

Dominion Government Is Attempting To Collect $421,000 From Carling Brewery.

CANADIANS LIKE ALE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20 (Canadian Press).—Discussions of the tastes of Canadians and the citizens of the United States, as catered to by Carling's Brewery, London, and of methods undertaken by the company to prevent imitation of their products in the United States market, featured yesterday's session of the hearing into the Dominion Government claim against the company for $421,000 in unpaid sales and gallonage taxes.

The company, in combatting the claim, seeks to show that the products on which the taxes are claimed were exported.

W. N. Tilley, K.C., and Major James Clark, counsel for the company, introduced into the evidence yesterday the matter of varying beverage tastes between the two nations. Mr. Tilley claimed that Canadians quenched their thirst with an ale made largely from malt and hops, but that United States customers of the company was made from a large proportion of rice, as made by the brewers of Milwaukee and St. Louis before prohibition in the United States. He detailed the company's efforts to manufacture a product suitable to palates in the United States and gave this as strong evidence that the beverage on which taxes are claimed was exported to the United States and net "short circuited" back to Canadian consumers. Mr. Tilley held that 95 per cent. of the company's United States trade was in lager beer, while 95 per cent. of the Ontario and Quebec trade was in ale.

"We export daily anywhere from 4,500 to 5,000 kegs of lager to the United States," he said.

NEWS IN BRIEF

300 CHILDREN VACCINATED.

ST. THOMAS, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Dr. D. A. McKillop, M.O.H., had an overflow of children to vaccinate at the Board of Health free clinic. The number of children vaccinated at the free clinic is now near the 300 mark. The Ekfrid situation is believed to have caused the increase in the number of children.

SAVED BY CIGAR.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., April 20.—A cigar, which George Beaudoin of this city was asked to take to the smoking compartment of a train bound for Maine, probably saved his life. Shortly after he had complied with the request a bullet crashed through the window and flattened itself against Beaudoin's seat.

TOUGH SITUATION.

LEWISTON, Idaho, April 20.—Ray Farrar recently went to the home of Mrs. John Hall, his former wife, to give some toys to his daughter. He became ill and was quarantined there with small pox. Hall, arriving home, was refused permission to enter his home. Which left Mrs. Hall in the house with her divorced husband and the other husband out in the cold.

HE LEADS DOG'S LIFE.

ATLANTIC CITY, April 20.—In response to Mrs. Albert Gildersleeve's court plea seeking separate maintenance, it was revealed by Gildersleeve that between himself and his wife's collie dog, he ranked second in her regard. Gildersleeve charged that the dog got all the juicy steak and he got all the gravy.

KILLED BY MOTOR TRUCK.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20.—(C.P.)—Zeba Casconi, four years of age, was killed here yesterday when struck by a motor truck, in front of her home. She died on her way to the hospital.

ARRESTED IN CALIFORNIA.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 20.—(C.P.)— The arrest of Charles W. Lloyd, 32, said to be wanted in Chicago in connection with the St. Valentine's Day massacre, in which seven men were lined up and shot to death, was disclosed here early today.

MUST PAY GOVERNMENT

OTTAWA, Ont., April 20 (C.P.)— Frowde Limited, successors to the Waterloo distilling firm of Joseph Seagram and Son, Limited, are condemned to pay the government the sum of $101,641 with interest, in a judgment of the exchequer court handed down yesterday. This amount represents arrears of sales tax.

NEWSPAPER OWNER DEAD.

LONDON, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Hildebrand Harmsworth, brother of Lord Rothermere, noted British newspaper owner, died in London yesterday, aged 57.

Sir Hildebrand joined his brothers, Lord Northcliffe and Lord Rothermere, in journalism at the age of 16. He started the new Liberal Review in February, 1901, and later, 1908-11, was the sole proprietor of the Globe.

PRIVY COUNCIL IS CRITICISED

Japanese Councillor Resigns On Account of His Statement.

OVER KELLOGG-BRIAND PACT

TOKYO, April 20.—(C.P.) — Etsujiro Uehara, Parliamentary Counsellor at the Foreign Office, resigned his post with the government to-day on his own initiative.

Though reasons were not assigned for his action it apparently was due to an interview with him published in the Japan Advertiser of April 14, in which he attacked the Privy Council's opposition to ratification of the Kellogg-Briand Pact so long as it included the phrase: "In the name of the people."

In the interview Uehara asserted: "It is the Council which is jeopardizing the sovereign power of Japan and not the Premier." This was strongly resented by the Privy Council.

It was feared the Council's opposition, which is both anti-government and anti-treaty might be increased. Presumably, however, the voluntary resignation will ease matters.

The Weather

TORONTO, Ont. (Meteorological Office), April 20 (Canadian Press).—Pressure is low over Newfoundland and from the Great Lakes to southwest states, also over Alberta, while high pressure covers the northern part of the continent. Showers are occurring this morning in South-Western Ontario, but the weather over the Dominion has been mostly fair, with a tendency towards higher temperature.

Forecasts.

Lower Lakes—Moderate to fresh easterly to south-easterly winds; unsettled to-day and Sunday, with occasional showers and probably local thunderstorms.

Georgian Bay — Fresh easterly winds; mostly cloudy to-night and Sunday, with showers.

Northern Ontario—Fair to-day. Sunday—Mostly cloudy, with showers in southern districts.

Manitoba—Mostly fair and rather cool to-day and Sunday.

MINISTERED TO CONGREGATION FOR 46 YEARS

Rev. D. A. Thomson, D.D., Completes 46 Years in Christian Ministry.

HELD IN DEEP ACCORD

Minister Went to Hastings as a Student on April 14, 1883.

Rev. D. A. Thomson, D.D., of Hastings, who was in the city this morning on a sick call to an old friend, completed last Sunday, April 14th, to the very day 46 years in the ministry with the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Hastings.

Rev. Dr. Thomson went to Hastings as a student, beginning his duties on Sunday, April 14th, 1883. It was his first and only call in a long life time devoted to the service of God, and the fact that he and his congregation, which necessarily changed with the passing years, have labored together in deep accord and a mutual respect which has been unshaken in all that time, is an enviable proof of his sterling character, his broad sympathies and his splendid citizenship. For Dr. Thomson is loved by all the people of Hastings, who know him so well, but also by a legion of friends in the county of Peterborough and far beyond it.

His retirement was announced for some time this Fall because of his desire to rest after toiling in the heat of a long day, but it is possible that he may continue in the work of the church, according to a strong sentiment in his Presbytery. In that event there is no doubt but that his preference would be to remain in Hastings.

Exports of electrical equipment from the United States during November, 1928, attained a new high record since the post-war period.

PRINCE HENRY PASSES AWAY

Only Brother of Former Kaiser Dies From Pneumonia.

CONNECTED WITH NAVY.

HEMMELMARK, Germany, April 20 (Canadian Press). — Prince Henry of Prussia, only brother of the former Kaiser, died here to-day of pneumonia.

Prince Henry devoted his active life to the Fatherland in the naval service. He enlisted in the navy upon completing his education in 1877. Advancing rapidly through the various commissioned grades, he attained the rank of admiral in 1906, and was made chief of the active high seas fleet. Three years later, in September, he retired from that command and became inspector-general of the navy with the rank of grand admiral.

During the World War Prince Henry confined himself to the role of observer on various battle fronts. After the revolution in Germany he retired to his estate at Hemmelsmark near Kiel, from which he emerged only occasionally.

The prince never played much of a role politically. However, he was despatched at various times on important missions of a political nature, but always was bound closely by instructions from his brother so that he had no opinion of his own to register.

Went to Russia in 1896.

His first assignment of this sort was in 1896, when he represented his imperial brother at the coronation at Moscow of Nicholas II. of Russia. Six years later, in February, 1902, the prince visited the United States on what has been regarded as the most important diplomatic mission of his career.

Delegated by his brother to attend the launching and christening of the Kaiser's yacht Meteor at Jersey City, Prince Henry sailed from Germany on the new liner Crown Prinz Wilhelm of the North German Lloyd. Theodore Roosevelt was then president, and as a sign of German-American friendship delegated his daughter Alice, now Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, to christen the Meteor. Prince Henry made an extended tour of American cities and everywhere was accorded enthusiastic receptions.

Three and one-half years younger than the former Kaiser, Prince Henry was born August 14, 1862, in the new palace at Potsdam. He was the second of five children of the late Emperor Frederick III., his mother being Princess Victoria, daughter of Queen Victoria of England.

With the former Kaiser he attended the "gymnasium" or high school at Cassel and then began his long service in the navy. By 1855 he had attained the rank of rear-admiral, and was assigned as marine inspector and later as commander of the second Far Eastern cruiser squadron.

Departing for the Orient in December, 1897, Prince Henry assumed command of the East Asia fleet. Two years later he was promoted to vice-admiral, and in 1901, a year after his return to Germany, he was raised to the rank of admiral. He served as chief of the marine station of the Baltic until 1906, when he was given command of the active high seas fleet.

In 1887, Prince Henry married Princess Irene of Hessen, a daughter of Grand Duke Ludwig IV. of Hessen and Princess Alice of Great Britain. They had two sons, Prince Waldemar, born in 1889, and Prince Sigismund, born in 1896.

EDWARDS' FUNERAL TO BE HELD SUNDAY

Special Train Will Take Conservative Members From Ottawa to Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., April 20.—(Canadian Press).—According to present arrangements, the funeral of Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P., is to be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Queen Street United Church. The main arrangements for the funeral are being made for the Orange Order tohrugh the Deputy Grand Master through the Deputy Grand Master T. Ashmore Kidd, M.L.A. It is expected that Rev. Dean W. Saunders, Grand Chaplain of the order, will conduct the funeral rites.

It is also expected that many parliamentarians and high officers in fraternal organizations will be in the city for the service.

The remains of Dr. Edwards arrived in this city Thursday evening, having been escorted from Ottawa by Brig.-Gen. A. K. Ross, M.P., of Kingston, and W. E. Tummon, M.P., of Hastings.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Conservative members, headed by their leader, Hon. R. B. Bennett, and General A. D. McCrae, Chief Opposition Whip, will leave the Capital by special train at 9.40 Sunday morning for Kingston, Ont., to attend the funeral of Hon. J. W. Edwards. The Government will also name a representative to attend.

SURGEONS HOLD POST MORTEM

Search Is Made For Cause of Ekfrid Scourge in Willie Brown.

RESULT UNKNOWN.

MELBOURN, April 20.— (Canadian Press).—Six surgeons in a laboratory garb, who conducted a post mortem examination here yesterday afternoon on the body of nine-year-old Willie Brown, learned from their probe more than science has known before of the immediate causes of death following streptococci infection.

With the consent of his parents, the body of the little victim of the Ekfrid outbreak was taken from his grave in Longwoods cemetery to an undertaking establishment here. The autopsy was directly in charge of Dr. A. J. Slack, acting chief of the institute of Public Health at London, assisted by Dr. E. P. Johns pathologist from the same institution.

All physicians refused to make known the definite results of their examination, but in Melbourne last night it is stated that the effects on various organs of the boy's body were so severe as to amaze even the experienced autopsists.

THORNEDALE, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—George Semple, age 6, son of Robert Semple, is dying at St. Joseph's hospital, London, from a mysterious disease which medical opinion attributes to the same species of streptoccoci which has already claimed four lives in Ekfrid township. He is the second child to be taken to a London hospital in three days. Walter Noble died Thursday from what physicians stated was diphtheria.

Your Opportunity to find out the DIFFERENCE

Final Week of

PLYMOUTH

"Learn-the-Difference"

FORTNIGHT

Come In—See—Hear—Learn! Drive a
PLYMOUTH

Only a few days left to learn the high points of the full-size Plymouth's superiority during "Learn-the-Difference" fortnight.

Here is your chance to find out for yourself what scores of your friends and neighbors have learned—the decided difference between Plymouth and any other car in its price-class.

We know that fifteen minutes behind the Plymouth wheel will convince you that Plymouth is not only different in the big obvious things, but different also in the little things that mean so much in the pleasure and convenience of driving a motor car.

NO OBLIGATION
We are eager to have you realize the many outstanding advantages of the Plymouth. Come and drive the car—see for yourself how and why it excels. There is not the least obligation. Come in today!

We know you will recognize Plymouth is a full-size car, not a miniature—in point of size and seating space it overshadows every other offer at this price.

We know you will recognize Plymouth has distinctive Chrysler-like style and manner, and richness and dignity not to be found in other low-priced cars.

We know you will recognize Plymouth is typically Chrysler in performance—so swift in traffic, so eager on hills, so easy to control and so safe with weatherproof internal-expanding four-wheel hydraulic brakes.

We could pack this whole page full of type telling why Plymouth is so vitally different—in style, quality, performance, dependability and economy. But a short five minutes' inspection followed by a brief drive will tell the story far more graphically—and completely.

That's the reason for Plymouth "Learn-the-Difference" fortnight—that's why we urge you to take advantage of this opportunity to learn the all-inclusive superiority of Plymouth—to see it, experience it, enjoy it.

Come in today! Get the facts! See us now—before the big event is over.

GILLESPIE GARAGE
'PHONE 950. 378 AYLMER ST., PETERBORO

WHATEVER there may be, of interest and help, in my article this week ought to be credited to our mutual friend, John Plane. Being in the neighborhood of his workshop, as I frequently am, I went in to inquire for his health and have a few minutes' friendly chat. It was then that he showed me a little printed messenger which bore the name of "Monthly Visitor." The sight of it let loose a flood of memories upon which I launched the good ship Imagination, and without ever leaving the presence of John Plane, or going outside the door of his workshop, I made a hurried, happy, wonderful voyage across the Atlantic to tread again the sacred soil of Bonnie Sotland. The years seemed to have been suddenly drawn aside like a curtain and I was a boy again in my father's house. I had just come in from play at the close of a long, long day! There it was! I had expected such an arrival and I was not to be disappointed. As long as I could remember it had never failed to put in an appearance. It was read with more or less relish by all who could read. Indeed it had to be read, whether relished or not, by all in our house who had mastered the rudiments of reading. It was known by all well-informed Scotsmen as the "Monthly Visitor," and is published by the Scottish "Monthly Visitor" Tract Society, under the care of R. Henderson Smith, 68 Hanover street, Edinburgh. The extent and value of its ministry will never be known on this side of Heaven.

A footnote on the little printed messenger says: "Those who feel disposed to aid the Society in continuing and extending the circulation of these Tracts, are requested to give their subscriptions or donations, however small, to the distributors of the Tracts." But that will scarcely be possible at this distance! However, there is a way to give some practical help by those who are interested and disposed to assist—communicate with the secretary, whose name and address I have already given.

THE MESSAGE ON THE ROCK.

Having been on the spot and seen the very rock of which the writer speaks, I can vouch for the truth of it and rejoice at the opportunity of bringing the message before the eyes and hearts of the readers of "Chips and Shavings" and "Musings at a Manse Window."

If you were to find yourself off the western coast of Scotland, near the pretty Clydeside village of Skelmorlie, you would see a great rock lying on the shore within fifty yards of the public road; and on that rock, painted in letters that can be seen and read from a long distance, are the words, "JESUS SAVES. JESUS ONLY."

It would scarcely be possible for anyone to pass along that coast road from Glasgow to Ardrossan without seeing that message, except in the darkness, or when the high tide has submerged the rock.

Simple is the truth proclaimed by those words, and yet it is the most profound and the most wonderful ever announced to the children of men—Jesus saves.

TESTED BY TIME AND TIDES.

This massive rock has been beaten and buffeted by the winds and waves of centuries, and worn smooth by the constant action of the sea; but, as the writer says, the storms cannot destroy it, any more than the tempests of the world's sin can overthrow the hope of humanity, which is founded on the Rock.

There are times when the winds are high and wintry blasts are howling along that Scottish coast. At such times the beaten foam drifts far inland and travellers fear and hesitate to make the journey along the sea road. Yet, that rock with its message is still there, unmoved and seemingly unmovable, silently but eloquently reminding us that in the most terrible storms of life, when no help can be found elsewhere, Jesus saves. When the hearts of some Galilean fishermen were chilled with terror by the sudden storm which threatened to send them all to a watery grave, He who could walk upon the waves hushed that storm to sleep as a mother does a child. And, blessed be God, He can still stand in the darkness, where evil passions rage, that threaten men with destruction, and say, "Peace, be still," and there is a great spiritual and emotional calm.

SUNSHINE AND SAILS.

When sunny summer days come to the Firth of Clyde and all the world seems at peace; when those lovely waters are dotted with white-sailed ships and everything is suggestive of pleasure, that lonely rock still speaks to men, although they be less inclined to listen.

In the very joyousness of the world's peace and loveliness men are often in greater danger of forgetting the things that make for their present peace and their eternal safety. They are tempted to think that the world is enough, that its transient glory can satisfy; and, almost unconsciously, they bow down to the idol of pleasure and allow the fetters of a pleasant slavery to be forged about the soul. At such times the ministry of that rock, upon which the summer sun is beating and around which the rippling waves are playing, is needed to call attention to the fact that Jesus saves from too great a love of the world and the things of the world; saves from a taskmaster whose way seemeth right, but the end whereof is the way of death.

SHIPS THAT PASS IN THE LIGHT.

On their way from the busy city out to the great deep, sea-going vessels pass this rock with its message about One who came to seek and to save the lost. Who can tell the effect of that message upon their crews as they go out to face the hazards of far oceans? It may be, that message, like a voice from the land they are leaving behind, goes with them to help them in facing the uncertainty of the unknown.

These are "they that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters, that see the works of the Lord and His wonders in the deep"; and in their outgoing they will gain courage and strength in the thought of that divine presence that goes with them, and in the knowledge that Jesus saves.

LOST SHIPS AND MEN.

Portincross lies some miles farther down the same coast. At this point, a little distance out at sea, and almost at the walls of the old castle that is built upon the rocks, lies a sunken Spanish Galleon, one of the vessels of the Spanish Armada which was wrecked in the year 1588, and went down with all on board. Recovered from this wreck in 1740 is an old rusted cannon which now lies on the grass land of Portincross. A proud galleon and well built, yet it could not resist the fierce battering of the Firth of Clyde when in an angry mood, and it went down to the death of every soul on board. But in the utmost hopelessness of a hopeless world, in the darkest despair that can ever beset a man, there is one power that can deliver, one hand that can be stretched forth to rescue the sinking soul—it is Jesus. He saves.

NOT BOUGHT WITH GOLD.

Probably it is true that great wealth was on board that ship, gold with which men make war, and with which they purchase pleasure, for which some are willing to sacrifice virtue, life and even the hope of eternal safety and glory; but the wealth of Spain could not save its seamen from that tragic death, any more than gold can buy deliverance for lost souls. The currency of this world counts for nothing in the redemption price of precious souls. It is the blood of Christ alone that avails here.

At times when one may hear the moaning of the sea along that Scottish coast, like the crying of some distressed soul; when the low soughing of the sea makes us think of the sobbing of some broken heart—amid it all, stands that silent rock with its magnificent message, as a message of cheer and comfort in the gloom, telling of a Saviour who can bind up broken hearts and bring consolation and peace to the sorrowing and suffering sons of men.

Sea birds settle on the top of that rock, children often play around its base, traffic thunders past along the road; and the many, passing that way with their cares, their hopes and fears, oppressed with the burdens of the world, or led astray by the glamour of the world's pleasure, catch a fleeting vision of those white words on the dark rock and read, whether they heed or not, the great and glorious secret of the ages, Jesus saves.

A SCOTTISH PARABLE.

On one occasion, a ship went down on the northern coast, and the ship-wrecked men clung to the sea-swept wreckage, and, from the shore, a strong swimmer swam out with a rope through the boiling surf. He reached the wreck, and one by one the men were safely brought ashore; but the brave swimmer, who had refused to leave the wreck till the last man was saved, was never seen again. It was supposed that he had been stunned by a falling spar and in an unconscious condition washed into the sea to perish. He had been the saviour of others, but it had been at the expense of his own life.

Of One who came, knowing that in no other way but by the sacrifice of Himself could He save others, it was said in cruel mockery, "He saved others, Himself He cannot save." Though they knew it not, and intended it not as such, they really paid the finest tribute that could have been paid to Jesus of Nazareth in that statement. Jesus went willingly to the cross, that through His death we might live.

THINK OF IT!

It is true that Jesus never trod our northern soil in the days of His flesh, nor proclaimed His message in our towns and villages, but from Palestine His word has gone out to all the earth. The central message of all, the story of redeeming love, is being everywhere proclaimed, not only in the printed page, but upon the rocks of the wayside, where even those who run may read.

Some there are still who read and laugh, some read and forget; but many so read that the word sinks down into the soil of their hearts, to bring forth a harvest of benediction in days to come.

How fitting it is that those words should be inscribed upon a rock, seeing that He is known as the Rock of Ages. There it stands, upon a Scottish coast, emblem of safety in a world of restlessness and danger. —Allan Fairbairn.

ANSWER'S TO LAST WEEK'S QUESTIONS

1. God's children are forbidden to hold consultation with people that "peep and mutter" as they are devil possessed.—Isa. 8:19. Deut. 18: 10-12.
2. King Saul received his death sentence at a Seance held in the home of a witch at Endor.—I Sam. 28:16-19.
3. God had given King Saul the priceless gift of His Holy Spirit. On account of his open wilful inflexible disobedience to God's explicit command the Spirit of the Lord departed from him, and an evil spirit from the Lord troubled him.—I Sam. 16: 14-15.
4. One would assume that King Saul spared the life of the witch on Endor in case of emergency; he believed in wizards otherwise he would not have consulted her, this was the leading of the evil spirit which possessed him. —I Sam. 28.
5. King Saul was the national leader of God's people, his open violation of God's command was a poor example to set before the people, as the crowd would do what the king had done; "You may be too big for God to use you, but you cannot be to small."—1 Sam. 3:8-14; 15: 1-23.
6. The Lord Jesus holds the keys of Hell and death, death cannot pass to those we love without His consent.—Rev. 1:18.

A Strange Happening

BISHOP LAMBETH and Wainwright had a great M. E. Mission in Osaka, Japan. One day the order came from high up that no more meetings would be allowed in the city by Protestants. Lambeth and Wainwright did all they could, but the high officials were obstinate and unrelenting. They then retired to the room of prayer. Supper time came and the Japanese girl came to summon them to their meal, but she fell under the power of prayer. Mrs. Lambeth came to find what the matter was and fell under the same power. They then rose and went to the mission hall and opened it: and at once commenced meeting. God fell upon the assembly and two of the sons of the city officials came to the altar and were saved. Next morning one of the officials in authority came to the mission and said, "Go on with your meetings, you will not be interrupted." The Osaka daily paper came out with box-car letters saying, "The Christian's God Came to Town Last Night." —H. C. M.

WHEN GRIT IS NEEDED.

MORDECAI was not afraid to identify himself with those who were unpopular and in affliction, although he was well aware of the risk he was running in doing so. If righteousness had been nothing more to him than an empty term he might have drugged his conscience and remained quiet. Talk is cheap and easy for a glib tongue, but if it is only talk it accomplishes little or nothing. When action is needed mere words are an insult. It takes real grit to identify yourself with an unpopular cause. —A. F.

SOMETHING FOR THE MANY.

The executive of the Chamber of Commerce has unanimously endorsed the proposition to spend $10,000 in improving Inverlea Park bathing beach.

As leaders in an organization that has as its aim the betterment of Peterborough and as business men able to visualize the importance even from a dollars and cents viewpoint of providing adequate facilities for healthful recreation, the members of the executive could not be expected to take any other stand.

The Inverlea Park by-law, more than any one measure upon which the ratepayers of Peterborough have been called to express an opinion, is of general interest and importance, for it involves a program that will be of benefit to practically every family in Peterborough.

There should be no hesitation in voting "yes" in the case of this measure, which guarantees better bathing conditions and a worth-while picnic and recreation ground, available for all our citizens.

We have spent money freely in many cases in the interests of the few; don't let this chance of doing something for many slip away.

THE LEGION CHURCH PARADE.

Following their usual practice of attending divine service on the Sunday nearest to the actual anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, the members of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion will hold their annual church parade on Sunday morning at Mark Street United Church.

It is expected that Peterborough's ex-service men will turn out in large numbers for this parade, which commemorates one of the most significant engagements in the World War.

The Second Battle of Ypres saw the Canadian army first engage world attention and win imperishable glory for itself by its gallant stand after the war's initial gas attack had opened a breach in the allied line.

Only the First Canadian Division, fighting its first major engagement, stood between the Hun hordes and the coveted channel ports, but the Dominion's citizen soldiers met the acid test like veterans and averted a disaster for the Allies.

The official report says of their great stand: "Their gallantry and determination saved the situation."

It is well then that this Canadian triumph should be remembered each year, not only by the men who fought, but by the whole country, and the Legion's church parade does a splendid service by concentrating public attention upon the anniversary.

NOT A HEALTHY CONDITION.

Empire Shopping Week, aimed at stimulating the purchase of made-in-Canada goods first and of made-in-the-Empire articles where the Canadian product is not available, is of peculiar importance this year.

Trade returns show that our purchases of United States goods are increasing much more rapidly than is American buying of Canadian products.

Thus in January and February we bought 25 per cent. more United States articles than we did in the same period last year, while Uncle Sam's purchases over here showed an increase of only 8 per cent.

In the first two months of the year trade between the two countries left a balance unfavorable to Canada of six to three million dollars.

That is not a desirable condition.

If we go on at the rate at which we started out throughout 1929 our total purchases of American goods will climb over the billion dollar mark, while the United States will not spend much more than half of that in Canada.

And the figures do not tell the whole story.

The bulk of our purchases consist of manufactured articles, providing employment for United States workers.

On the other hand, much of the American buying here consists of raw materials, which are manufactured across the border and will be bought back by us, forming a large part of the billion dollar total.

THE HOSPITAL BY-LAW.

The case on behalf of the Nicholls Hospital by-law, which the Protestant ratepayers of Peterborough are asked to endorse on May 3, can be summed up in a few sentences.

Briefly, the building program proposed by the Hospital Board is necessary because the present hospital is inadequate to serve the needs of the community, in view of the increased use of hospital facilities demanded by the public to-day.

The facilities available are not suitable for present hospital requirements.

Segregation of the various departments necessary to ensure the best possible attention for patients is impossible.

Public wards in the present building have been crowded beyond the limit allowed by the Provincial Health Department.

The heating system is obsolete and expensive with seven different furnaces in operation.

The kitchen equipment, installed to accommodate 50 people, is now taking care of from 125 to 150.

The present hospital, as a matter of fact, has been left behind by reason of the advance in medical science and the increased demand for hospital services.

For forty-four years, thanks to the generosity of the late Charlotte Jane Nicholls, whose endowment of the institution represents an expenditure of between $400,000 and $500,000, Nicholls Hospital has been providing hospital accommodation at practically no cost to the ratepayers.

The time has come, however, when expansion and reconstruction must be undertaken and this community, which for nearly half a century has been served by Nicholls Hospital without any cost to taxpayers, will have to assume a share of the financial obligation involved and should do so in a spirit of hearty gratitude that Peterborough has been singularly fortunate in this respect.

The only other alternative is a demand upon the City Council for funds for patch-work improvements that would at the best serve only a short time—and there would be no economy in that course.

THE GRAIN GROWERS' MAGNA CHARTA.

It was a Progressive member of Parliament who, in a burst of magniloquence, once referred to the Grain Act as "the Magna Charta of the western farmers." As indicating the importance of the law which governs the administration of Canada's grain trade, the description was perhaps not altogether inapt, for there are few things within the jurisdiction of Parliament that are more vital in the interests, not only of the prairie producers, but of the Dominion as a whole, than the adequate and effective provision of machinery for the control and protection of one of our greatest sources of wealth.

To judge, however, from the chorus of complaint and protest which echoes throughout the corridors of the House of Commons these days and finds expression within the Chamber itself in fiery orations breathing the spirit of western revolt, the Grain Act appears to be regarded in some quarters as less a charter of rights than a code of iniquity, at least so far as its administration is concerned. Though carefully revised and, to a considerable extent, remodelled only four years ago, it is claimed by those familiar with conditions in the West that the Act in many respects has failed to measure up to the requirements of the wheat producers, that it does not adequately meet the situation created by the vast growth of the grain trade and modern methods of marketing, and, especially, that those entrusted with its administration have shown an incompetency which has wrought inestimable injury and generated widespread dissatisfaction.

To what extent these charges are well founded, the pending inquiry before the Committee on Agriculture will doubtless make clear. But a study of the history of the legislation affecting the grain trade, and of the complexities involved in the handling of a wheat crop that ranks as one of the world's wonders, is scarcely calculated to inspire complete faith in the ability of Parliament to frame an Act in every sense satisfactory to all the interests concerned.

Since the western farmer hitched his wagon to the stars in the political firmament and discovered that there was more virtue in qualifying for a Parliamentary indemnity than in raising a crop, he has developed a respect for the statute book that is almost touching. His belief in its efficacy as a means of protection, and as a panacea for all the ills that afflict his class, is such that he wants a law for everything, from the supply of seed, the regulation of the cost of agricultural implements, and the provision of credit facilities, to the storage of his product, its supervision in transit and its final disposal in the markets of the world. The results, with all the connecting links, embodied so elaborately in the Grain Act cause one to wonder how the western wheat producer ever contrived to exist before that massive compilation of legal and bucolic ingenuity first took legislative form nearly thirty years ago.

That he suffered injustices and endured hardships in those unprogressive days, when farming was an industry and not a political school, cannot be doubted. There are glib Progressive orators in Parliament to-day who can draw a pathetic picture of what the wheat growers of a former generation had to put up with in consequence of Parliamentary neglect and a lack of statutory safeguards. And they will tell you that it was because of the grievances which then existed, and which drove the victims to desperation, that Parliament was prevailed upon to embark upon a course of legislative enactment designed to regulate and control the grain trade.

From that day to this, process of extending, amending, revising and amplifying the provisions of the Grain Act has been almost sessional. Special and select standing committees of Parliament have time and again reviewed its scope and overhauled its definitions. One Royal Commission after another has investigated its operation and adjudicated upon its effectiveness. And the various farmers' groups have fallen foul of one another in their eagerness to reconstruct its machinery to meet all needs and conditions.

The result is a maze of definitions, interpretations, regulations, restrictions and inhibitions relating to every conceivable phase and detail of wheat production, handling and marketing, which is as incomprehensible to the unbucolic mind as the Einstein theories are to the thresher of grain. And notwithstanding all this elaborate network of legislative supervision, the complaint from the West, voiced in no uncertain terms, is that there is still something very far wrong, if not in the Act itself, at all events in its administration. Evidently, the grain growers' Magna Charta has yet to emerge.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One per cent. of the people in Canada pay income tax, and, as the Financial Post points out, that is why so many people—the other 99 per cent. to be exact—like it.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY FEELING BECOMES WEAK AS HABIT BECOMES STRONG

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

Monotony is the bugbear of modern life. We dread it, fight it, and go to any length to avoid it. Even murder is resorted to as an antidote. There never was a time when monotony was so thoroughly detested on every hand.

This is because we are not rational. We do not live by our brains and intelligence. We crave excitement and live mostly by our emotions. Monotony means the absence of the emotional element. It is a condition or state of mind in which no feeling is experienced.

A particular thing produces monotony when it lulls our sensibilities. It is a stimulus without a response, a cause without an effect. It is like talking to a man who makes his lips go but utters no audible word.

Repetition is the most common cause of monotony. The new, the strange, the novel produce a shock, a kick, as the phrase goes. In experiencing a great deal of resistance is encountered which passes off in the form of feeling, a stirred-up state of mind. Familiar experiences lack this resistance. We know what to expect. There is no shock to the system. The mechanism is all set and ready. The reaction is mechanical.

As habit becomes strong, feeling becomes weak. Feeling tends to disappear from a habitual act. Whenever a nervous current traverses a nervous pathway it modifies the mechanism, wears out a groove so that another current of equal intensity encounters less resistance. After a while the resistance becomes so small that no feeling is experienced. A crude illustration is afforded by the marking of a course by the first onrushing of overflowing water. This is accompanied by a lot of commotion and the clearing of the zigzag passage which in time becomes so well marked that the stream flows on without any fuss.

It is in the interest of economy of effort and efficiency that habits tend to eliminate feeling. The excess energy used up by way of feeling and emotion is an unnecessary waste. By eliminating it the act becomes mechanical, hence more efficient and free from the caprice of feeling. But it also robs the act of excitement to the doer.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, sending self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XIX.

The waitress brought the bill and Hambledon paid it, while Ana sat as if she were in a dream, watching.

"Whether you will come back with me, or if I go alone." Of course those words were just her own imagining. Anthony had not really spoken them. How could he mean that he wanted her to go back to Rhodesia with him when there was Mollie and the General?

The waitress left them alone again, and Hambledon looked at Ana.

"Well?" he said.

His eyes were hard, almost challenging, and Ana paled. She felt as if she had suddenly been brought up against an unknown force which would surely beat her in the end. Hitherto she had only known this man as gentle and kind and easy-going, but now she recognized in him something dominant and entirely different against which she might pit her strength in vain.

It seemed impossible to argue or to reason with him, and she caught her breath with a little gasp almost as if she were drowning, as she answered:

"You will go alone, of course."

"I see." He spoke quite casually; he even laughed as he rose to his feet. "Well, we'll go along if you are ready."

They went out into the street again, Ana walking mechanically, hardly conscious of her movements.

"Whether you will come with me, or if I go alone."

Her whole being clamoured to answer: "I will come with you, of course. You knew I would come with you. Why did you ask?"

But she dared not. There was Aunt Hilda to consider, and all the petty conventions among which she had been brought up and which stood between her and happiness like sentinels with drawn swords. Ana knew she would never have the courage to defy them all, no matter how great her longing to do so. She argued fiercely with herself as she walked blindly along through the sunshine by Hambledon's side.

"What do you care for the world? or convention? or Aunt Hilda? What does anything matter compared with this man? His little finger is more to you than all the world."

Yes, that was true, and yet—yet—— Hambledon spoke suddenly.

"There is a post office on the other side of the road. I will go and send a wire to your aunt."

Ana tried to say no, but her lips felt too stiff to form the word; she followed meekly and stood beside him while he wrote out the message. He did not even show it to her before he handed it in.

"What did you say?" Ana asked, and he answered: "I said you would be home late, and that there was no need to wait up for you."

"Oh!" Ana felt like a child in his hands. For years Miss Sawyer had dominated her and bent her to her will, but this was quite different. It was happiness to be ordered about by Anthony—happiness which could not last, which was too beautiful to last.

They came out again into the sunshine.

"And now where shall we go?" he asked. "You know London better than I do. Is there anywhere where one can get away from people?"

"There is the park—parts of it are quiet and beautiful."

"Very well."

They took a taxi to St. James's Park and walked across the grass. There was a flaming bed of dahlias on one side. Hambledon stopped to admire them.

"That's a fine colour," he said. He indicated a copper-tinted flower.

Ana made no answer; her thoughts were in a whirl. How could he speak so calmly after what had just passed between them? She almost hated him for his apparent unconcern.

"Don't you like that colour?" he asked.

Ana looked up at him with passionate eyes.

"How can you talk about things like that after—after what you have just said?" she demanded fiercely. "Do you think I am made of stone that it doesn't matter to me how you—if you——" She broke down ignominiously.

Hambledon took her arm and led her across to a seat under a wide-spread tree.

"Do you think I am made of stone, either?" he asked. "Do you think it's been a light matter for me to have to make up my mind to this? I've always tried to do the right thing—perhaps I haven't succeeded—and now I don't care any more if it's the right thing or the wrong. I'm entitled to something out of life. I've not had much happiness so far, and neither have you. What wrong shall we be doing if we throw in our lot together?"

"Mollie——" Ana began helplessly.

He laughed bitterly.

"She cares no more for me than that"—and he snapped his fingers. "If I were a rich man no doubt it would be different—but I'm not and never shall be."

Ana tried again desperately; she felt as if she must fight him for every inch of the ground.

"It shows you still care for her to be so angry, and because you are angry you are unjust—you imagine that things are worse than they are—you imagine——"

He looked at her steadily.

"Do you think that Mahon is the first man she has brought into my life?" He shrugged his broad shoulders. "I've lived with Mollie for seven years, remember, my dear."

"I do remember, and that's why you mustn't judge her hastily; why you must wait and—oh, you must wait."

"I have waited, and now I am sure, though before I met you I admit it didn't seem so important somehow—I just shrugged my shoulders and put up with it. Once—out in Rhodesia, there was a fellow who—well—we won't talk about it any more. But I've done with decency, if it's decency to keep one's eyes shut and grin and bear an empty life. I'm going to secure something for myself now. I'm going to secure you."

"You never will," Ana said with white lips.

And he answered quietly, "We shall see."

They sat in silence for some minutes, then Ana said again:

"Why don't you speak to her? Tell her what you know, or what you suspect?"

"I am going to as soon as she comes back to Lyme. She will lie to me, of course, as she has done before. I've pretended to believe her before, but now I've done with pretence." His hand fell suddenly to hers, imprisoning it in a hard grip. "Don't let's throw away a thing that could be so beautiful," he pleaded. "What is it you are afraid of? Don't you trust me? Or don't you care enough?"

"It isn't either; it's just that—only just that I don't think it's right."

"You mean because I'm married?"

"Yes."

"Do you think it's right of Mollie to do the things she does?" he asked tensely.

Ana looked away from him.

"I don't believe she is bad. She's just vain and easily flattered."

Hambledon struck his clenched hand on his knee.

"She's cheated me. Right from the start she's cheated me," he said fiercely. "I suppose I was the fool to put up with it, but I was too indifferent till I met you. I didn't care—it made so little difference—it wasn't as if I was ever jealous—and I had the boy to think of."

"You've got him to think of still."

"He is more fond of you than he is of his mother."

Ana cried out sharply: "Don't say that. I won't let you say it."

She believed he was deliberately tormenting her. Didn't he know—surely he must know what a temptation it was to cast everything to the winds and throw in her life with his.

What greater happiness could any woman desire? She looked at him with anguished eyes.

After all, as he had said, what wrong would they be doing to seek their happiness together?

It was easy to argue like that, but Ana could not convince herself. Her narrow upbringing had drawn a definite line in her mind between right and wrong. There was no halfway. Either a thing was right or it was not; either one was committing a sin, or one was not.

She clenched her hands together in physical pain.

"I can't, I can't," she said almost in a whisper.

"Very well!" He spoke quite calmly; he took a cigarette from his pocket and lit it. "Then I shall sail in a fortnight's time."

"Anthony!" There was a sob in Ana's voice.

"It can't matter to you whether I go now or a month later," he said harshly. "If it did, you would not ruin both our lives for a petty convention."

"How do you know it would not ruin both our lives if I came with you?" she pleaded.

He turned and looked at her with such an expression of faith and love in his eyes that she closed her own against them.

"Isn't that rather futile question?" he asked whimsically. "I'm not a romantic man—at least I wasn't till I met you. I used to laugh when people talked of love at first sight and affinity and all that sort of stuff, but I shall never laugh again. You were made for me, Ana, if ever any woman was made for a man. You know without being told how happy we should be together."

Yes, she knew well enough. She felt like a child standing on tiptoe striving to see over a wall into a beautiful garden which might be hers if only she had the courage to enter it. But the wall was so high and difficult; the wall hemmed her in on all sides.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SUNDAY, APRIL 21, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as an unfavorable day in planetary government, a time for reading and mild recreation.

Under this direction of the stars there is likely to be a mental revolt against what is old and for this reason the churches may not be well attended.

While the mind will be attuned to intellectual and spiritual things, nature will speak more effectively than preachers while this rule continues.

Restlessness and discontent should be banished from the mind for the vibrations today tend to destructive rather than constructive thought.

Introspectionshould not be indulged in today, since the mind is likely to dwell on unpleasant memories. The sway may be depressing to the aged.

Troubles over aviation restrictions and much competition is foretold by astrologers who prognosticate the beginning of collissons in the air.

attitudes of mind among persons of all ages is predicted.

Prevalence of pessimistic and critical

Inclination toward selfishness and self centeredness is likely to be emphasized at this time.

The rule may be particularly unfortunate for the young who will be tempted to underestimate the wisdom and intelligence of their parents while this configuration prevails.

By this same sign it behooves parents to keep abreast of the times and to fall in step with progress.

Southern India and Ceylon now are subject to sinister planetary conditions making for unrest and multiplying difficulties for government officials.

An earthquake is forecast for Italy which will reflect in its political conditions something of the disturbance shown by nature.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a changeable year in which sudden events alter their plans, but success will be within their reach.

Children born on this day probably will have a high sense of honor and will readily accept responsibility. They may be too much inclined to leave certainties for uncertainties, for they are likely to love adventure.

Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) was born on this date 1835. Henry Wheeler Shaw (Josh Billings) another American humorist, claimed this as his birthday, which also was the natal day of Immanuel Kant, 1724, distinguished philosopher.

MONDAY, APRIL 22, 1929

Sinister stars rule today, according to astrology, and the wise will be careful not to take any risks.

Under this direction of the stars there may be a strong urge to speculate, but the judgment is likely to be untrustworthy.

The stock market may have a special lure at this time when there will be fluctuations in many reliable shares.

Oil again comes under a peculiar sway making for changes in big corporations and new conditions that affect the people.

This is not a fortunate day for aviation or for business matters connected with airplanes, but it is merely a temporary depression.

Women should attend strictly to household or personal affairs today which may be unlucky in love as well as in financial interests.

Weddings will be numerous with the beginning of summer, it is foretold, and marriage contracts will be more lasting than they have been in recent years, if the stars are to be relied on.

While there will be an increase in the number of divorces, the seers explain, the disrupted families will belong to distant troths.

Care of the health again is enjoined, for the planets seem to presage epidemics for the summer and among them a new disease that is the result of modern habits of life.

Nervous disorders are to be much discussed at this time when return to the simple life will be constantly preached.

Gardening now is to become the fad of young and old, it is prognosticated, and the United States is to outdo other countries in floriculture.

New Fashions will stress flowers in novel ways, and girls will benefit from association with nature.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of fierce competitions and jealousies, but prosperity is indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be fond of travel and keen to enjoy all the pleasures within reach. The subjects of this sign are generally charming and lovable, although they may be selfish.

Lindley Murray, famous grammarian, was born on this date, 1745. Bishop Alexander Griswold, 1766, and Matthew Harris Jouett, 1788, artist, claimed this as their birthday.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

The church Parade to-morrow merits the attendance of every member of the Legion, demonstrating as it does, that our memory of our fallen comrades has not faded, and reviving memories in the minds of civilians.

• • •

This Church Parade is arranged for the Sunday nearest to the anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, April 22, when the Canadian troops barred the enemy from the channel ports and saved the little strip of Belgium, and probably much of northern France.

• • •

It commemorates an epochal day in the history of Canadian military prowess . . . but, more than that, it serves as a memorial day for all Canadian soldiers who found a long resting place in France and Flanders.

• • •

As such, it should be widely observed, and by none more sincerely than the Canadian Legion, the only organization exclusively charged with the maintenance of such memories.

• • •

The president has made a personal appeal for a worthwhile attendance to-morrow, and the executive joins him in urging every member who possibly can, to join in the parade and service.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A DROP OF OIL

Now for a week
The office door has had a squeak,
And someone now and then observes
It's rather hard on people's nerves,
Yes, from that sudden sound we shrink,
But no one ever seems to think
To stop his toil
And give the door a drop of oil.

A drop, indeed,
Is all the grating hinges need
To bring the busy office balm,
Renew its peace, restore its calm.
But you will find it often true
That no one does what each could do,
And so the day
Is filled with discord all the way

And so with life
Around an office, petty strife
Fills hearts with hatred and with doubt
That one wise word could straighten out.
One understanding word could soothe
Some hurt, and make the world run smooth,
One drop of oil
Make easier the whole day's toil.

CONTRACT IS LET FOR NEW PLANT AT COPPER CLIFF

World Demand For Nickel Has Increased More Than 100 Per Cent.

TO MAKE NITRE CAKE

President Announces Plans at Meeting of Industrial Nickel Shareholders.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20.—C.P.).—A contract has been consummated with Canadian Industries Limited under terms of which that company will erect a chemical plant at Copper Cliff to manufacture nitre cake, a necessary flux in nickel refining, it was stated by J. L. Agnew, who acted as chairman, at the meeting of shareholders of International Nickel held here yesterday. The meeting was further adjourned to June 19.

"World demand for nickel has increased more than 100 per cent. during the last year, and at the present time demand, is fully up to productive capacity," Mr. Agnew's statement said. "We are meeting this situation by constructing three more electrolytic units at Port Colborne, which should be available by the fall of this year," the statement continued.

Increased 60 Per Cent.

"The new smelter at Copper Cliff which, since the original plans were completed, has been increased 60 per cent. s being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

"At the present time all of the company's mines, smelters, and refineries are operating to capacity. Additional facilities are being improved to meet the rapidly increasing demand for nickel.

"In the annual report it was stated precious metals and values in the Frood ore were to be determined by smelting average samples of ore from various locations in the mine. While the work has not been completed, initial assays indicate satisfactory results, and when final results are obtained, shareholders will be advised."

The report says the contract with the Canadian Industries Limited calls for a sufficient and continuous supply of nitre cake for ten years, subject to renewal upon favorable terms. Sulphuric fumes from the smelter will be used by the Industries Limited for the manufacture of sulphuric acid, necessary in the production of nitre cake.

Heavy Rains In West Averages Wheat Lower

Chicago, Ill., April 20. — (C.P.) — Heavy widespread rains over domestic winter wheat territory did a good deal to turn wheat prices sharply downward to-day. The plentiful moisture was expected to increase likelihood of a large crop. Opening 1-8 to 7-8c off, wheat rallied somewhat but then dropped lower than before. Corn displayed strength, starting 1-8 to 1c higher and subsequently holding near the initial range; oats were easy; provisions likewise tended to decline.

Dominion and United States Income Taxes

May 1st is the last day for Canadians to claim a refund of United States income tax paid when cashing coupons of bonds of American corporations in 1928. Forms upon which to make a claim for the refund of such taxes and illustrations indicating the method of filling out such forms will be furnished on request.

Dominion income tax returns must be made by April 30th. Tables which will be found useful in the preparation of these income tax returns are also available at our office.

GREAT CANADIAN ACHIEVEMENTS

Since the beginning of the present century, the material development of Canada has been greater than that of any other country for the same period. This is a broad statement, but it can be confirmed by considering the actual facts. Twenty-five years ago, Canada was not a serious factor in the field of agriculture, manufacturing, finance or international trade. In that comparatively short period, this has all been changed, and from a position of comparative insignificance, this country now stands amongst the foremost nations in all lines of endeavour. In agriculture, we now stand second in production and first in export; in manufacturing and finance, we hold fifth position, which is also our position in respect of our total international trade. No other country in such a short period has ever developed so rapidly, and it is confidently predicted by some of the world's greatest economists that the next twenty-five years will be productive of even greater results.

To every Canadian, this record must be a source of pride and gratification, but progress of a material nature, while essential, is not sufficient in itself to justify any claim to greatness. The body must be clothed and fed, but it is equally important that the mind should be developed, and this development depends upon immaterial things such as drama, music, art and literature. A people, therefore, to be truly great must advance culturally as well as materially. This being the case, it follows that our industry, whose business it is to care for some of the cultural necessities of mankind, must be classified as an essential industry.

It is important, therefore, that we should pause and consider whether we have been as progressive as the other essential industries of this country. For many reasons it is not possible for anyone to answer this question in respect of the public entertainment industry of Canada as a whole, but a brief history of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, will show conclusively that this company has not lagged behind.

Mr. N. L. Nathanson, in 1919, convinced his associates that the time had come when a distinctively Canadian public entertainment company should be formed, and as a result, Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, came into its official being on the 23rd of January, 1920, on which date the company's charter was issued by the Canadian Government. At that time the group of theatres operated by Mr. Nathanson and his associates numbered 16 in Ontario, with a total seating capacity of about 15,000, and the gross admissions did not amount to $1,000,000.00. That is only nine years ago, but to-day the company owns, operates or is substantially interested in 160 theatres, with a total seating capacity of 170,000, and the total gross admissions for the current year are expected to reach approximately $15,000,000!

Just examine these figures:

	1920	1929
Number of theatres	16	160
Seating capacity	15,000	170,000
Gross admissions (approximately)	$1,000,000	$15,000,000
Attendance (approximately)	2,500,000	30,000,000

And the end is not yet—for the company has plans for a great building and development program; has already installed more than twenty "Movietone" equipments, and has 60 additional equipments scheduled for installation during the current year.

To-day "Capitol Entertainment" is shown from Montreal to Victoria in the finest, largest and most modern theatres in Canada, and by this time next year our chain will actually extend "From Sea to Sea."

The recent acquisition by Mr. Nathanson and his associates of a large block of this company's stock, formerly held by American interests has already been announced. The result of this transaction—possibly one of the most important "deals" carried out by Mr. Nathanson or any other Canadian—is that the control of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, is assured to Canada. In carrying to a successful conclusion this most important transaction, Mr. Nathanson was actuated by the resolve that this great and essential industry should remain permanently Canadian.

It can be confidently stated that the public entertainment industry of Canada has kept pace with the other great essential industries, and that Mr. Nathanson and his associates in Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, are justified in feeling that the development of this company is a great Canadian achievement.

Alfred P. Sloan Predicts Another Record Year in Automobile Production.

NEW YORK CURB.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 20.—(C.P.)—The stock market made the best progress of any Saturday session in weeks to-day, with profit taking easily absorbed until the last hour, when some irregularity appeared. Trading, however, was still carried on at a moderate pace, with total sales for the two hour session running to about 1,200,000.

The slight improvement in the credit situation, with a 7½ per cent. call money rate carrying over the week-end, more optimistic reports from abroad over the probable outcome of the reparations conference, and another assortment of highly pleasing earnings reports for the first quarter, prompted bullish activity.

The new record automobile output as announced by the Department of Commerce, caused some misgivings as to how long this industry can maintain its terrific rate of activity. Hudson, however, in reporting the best earnings in its history for the first quarter, stated that the number of cars in the hands of distributors and dealers was below normal, and Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, predicted another record year for his company.

MUSICAL RECITAL.

Entertaining Hawaiian Program Provided By Lionel C. Chapman and His Pupils.

Although it was not a large, it was an appreciative audience that gathered last evening in the hall of the Conservatory of Music to attend the recital of Hawaiian music presented by Lionel C. Chapman and his pupils. Features of the musical entertainment of the evening were the selections played on the Butterfly Electric banjo and the new Pearl Flash guitar.

Mr. Chapman played some beautiful Hawaiian music on various instruments used for producing the strumming, haunting melodies of the South Sea Islands. He proved himself to be an expert player, and his pupils also showed careful tuition in their rendition of popular numbers on Hawaiian instruments.

One of Mr. Chapman's most attractive selections was the "Monika" number from the opera that tells the story of a Hawaiian maiden and her unfortunate love affair. He also played the always popular "Aloha Oe" farewell, "Moonlight and Roses," "That Shy Violet of Mine," "My Black Bird is a Bluebird," and "Sue, Just You."

A trio composed of Donald Greene, violinist, Jack Thackeray, 'cellist, and Harold McFarlane, pianist, also assisted with the program.

A number of pupils of Mr. Chapman played in ensemble numbers, which included music of a favorite and also jazz type, and a quartette of Hawaiian guitars included Mr. Chapman and three pupils: Miss Thorn, Fred Lewis and Ralph Agnew.

CURB RUMORS PLAY BIG PART IN THE ADVANCE

Issues Registers Gain of 4½ Points in 6,900 Turnover.

GENERAL LIST INACTIVE.

Oil Group Holds Generally Firmer Tone in Morning Session.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20 (C.P.).—Riding on a wave of optimism regarding the results of the meeting of directors next Monday, Hiram Walkers alone occupied the spotlight on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Rumors of stock-splits, mergers, and heavy earnings, are said to have caused the big demand for the stock on the local exchange to-day. After opening at 77½, Walkers in a turnover of more than 6,900 shares climbed up for a further gain of 4½ points to a peak of 80½.

The rest of the list was inactive, especially International Nickel, which had a turnover of only 1,800 shares, holding fractionally lower at 45⅝.

Though the list bore a somewhat stronger appearance, no particular group gave indications of any definite trend. Standard Steel made an addition advance of 3 points to 56, while F. N. Burt, in light trading, was up the same amount to 71. Lake Superior 1¼ to 25¼, Dufferin Paving 1 to 32 and Page Hersey a point to 134.

The oils were generally steady, North Star improving 50 cents to 20.50, while International Petroleum was ¼ stronger at 55¾. Imperial and British American were fractionally lower at 116½ and 51¾ respectively.

YOUNG PEOPLE THRONG CHURCH

Week Day Services Brought To Close in St. James' United Church.

SPECIAL SONG SERVICE.

The closing weekday service of the great singing revival was Young Peoples' Night at St. James Church. The whole middle section was reserved for 'teen age girls and boys, and was literally packed. Every inch of the auditorium was filled, making it difficult for the speakers to get through the crowd to the platform, where they were joined by Rev. Dr. Moore and Rev. William Allan. Both Mr. Dibble and Mr. Mustaine were in specially good form, inspiring a spirit of music throughout the audience. One of the opening groups of songs was "When Jesus comes into my heart." This was followed by many request songs, the first being the Fortieth Psalm. The next group was "Just let Jesus into your heart," sung by the girls of the congregation, and "Fishers of men" by the boys, being first sung as a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Dibble.

Several other request solos were generously given by Mr. Dibble, including "Just Now" and "Will the Circle be unbroken." One of his feature songs was entitled the "Devil Song," a composition by Edward McConnal, son of a Southern Baptist minister, who after his conversion composed many gospel songs while in evangelistic work with Mr. Dibble.

A marvellous picture hangs in John Wanamaker's store in Philadelphia, depicting the Green Hill, the three crosses, and the faces of the mob. With the picture in the minds of his audience Mr. Dibble sang softly and sweetly, "There is a Green Hill."

Speaking of the new standard in popular songs, he attributed this to the radio. "Sonny Boy," one of the loved of these was very effectively rendered. Rev. William Allan offered the evening prayer, and Mr. Dibble again sang the appealing hymn, "Jesus is standing in Pilate's Hall."

Instructive Address.

In the wonderful words, "Follow Me," Mrs. Dibble presented the message "Christ's challenge to you."

Her words were chiefly addressed to the large body of young people present. She took her scripture lesson from the story of the rich young man who came to Jesus with the question, "What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?"

When Jesus was pointed out as the 'Lamb of God" to the two young disciples by John the Baptist, John and Andrew followed Jesus and spent many hours of fellowship with Him. Again, when they met at the seaside Jesus said to them "Follow Me and I will make you fishers of men." These words of invitation, challenge and command we find over and over, given to those with whom He came in contact. Jesus Christ is not the womanish effeminate person some artists would have us believe He had a strong, rugged body, a keen mind and a strong character. His courage and magnetism, authority and mastery drew crowds about Him. This same invitation is coming forth from God's word to-night.

This fine, clean, moral religious young man came running to Jesus because he felt that God required something more of him. Jesus gave him the ten Commandments, but the young man had fulfilled all these. When Jesus said "One thing thou lackest" and this was supreme love.

The young man feels that he cannot meet the test, for he has great possessions. He wanted eternal life but was not willing to pay the price no doubt he found there was nothing in all the world so disappointing as sin.

The story of the Prodigal Son was that of a young man who wanted to have his fling. Because of the glamor of sin he wasted his substance, his youth, mind, character, physical power and everything fine about him. Money was the least of it all. When he came to himself, he went back to his father.

Had we met him on the way and asked if he got what he went for, he would have said "No."

When the bars of character come down, sin comes in. These are days of drifting, of too much carelessness and not enough firmness against sin It costs something to follow Jesus. It means 'giving up,' but Jesus has promised riches eternal."

Mrs. Dibble told of the testimony of the conversion of many young people, one of whom said "Jesus is the 'best friend and best pal a boy ever know."

Every girl and boy sometime must stand at the fork in the road toward right and wrong. The road to sin is wide and pleasant but offers no hope for the future life, while the right road, though narrow, offers peace, happiness and life everlasting.

Mrs. Dibble then made a strong appeal to the young people to make a decision for the Christian life.

There will be no service to-night excepting a prayer meeting from 7.30 to 8.30, under the guidance of Rev. Mr. Dudgeon and Mrs. Dibble.

On Sunday morning Mrs. Dibble will preach as usual, supplemented by Mr. Dibble's service of song.

At 3.30 there will be two great mass meetings, one for women only, in St. James' where Mrs. Dibble will speak on the subject, "A Great Woman." The other, for men, will be in Park Street Baptist Church; Mr. Dibble speaking on the subject, "When a Man's a Man."

In St. James' Church, at 6.45, an hour's song service will be held. Immediately after dismissal the congregation will withdraw to George Street United Church, where Mrs. Dibble will give her farewell message on "The Most Precious Thing on Earth or in Heaven."

CHURCH SOCIETY HOLDS BANQUET

Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet Staged Under Auspices of Trinity Church W.M.S.

ENTERTAINING PROGRAM.

A "Mother and Daughter" banquet was held in Reid Street Hall last evening under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church At 6.30 over three hundred mothers and daughters assembled round the festive board. The tables were very attractive with fluted crepe paper, runners of mauve and yellow, central silver basket of yellow daffodils and pussy willows, silver candlebras holding yellow candles, with small individual candles at each place for the daughters and taller ones for the mothers. The guests were received by Mrs. A. F. Bookhout, president of the society assisted by Rev. David Wren.

During the supper hour community singing of such old favorites as "A Long, Long Trail," "Smile Boys, Smile," "Just a Song at Twilight" and "Old Folks at Home" was indulged in, with Miss Mable Clarry leading and Miss Frances McFadden presiding at the piano.

Rev. David Wren, pastor of the church, acted as chairman and toastmaster. After giving a few introductory remarks he called on the girls of C.G.I.T. to put on a candle ceremony, which Mrs. Bookhout was asked to explain. One girl held a tall candle representing Jesus, the light of the world, and the other girls lighted their candles from this, carrying the light to the different tables, representing the nations of the world, where they lighted the candles. The mothers' candles were lit from this light and the daughters lighted theirs from their mothers. The mothers rose, repeating the following pledge: "We, the mothers, hereby pledge our help to the Lord Jesus Christ in making girlhood more beautiful. To our own daughters we pledge our love and comradeship, to all other girls of whatsoever nationality we pledge a helping hand and a kindly word. We will honor the name of mother."

The girls in turn, rising repeated their pledge: "To my mother I will be true and loving. To every other mother I will be kind and thoughtful. To every other girl with whom I come in contact I will try to teach the nobler life in order that the motherhood of the land may grow more pure and more Christ-like as the years go by. I will honor the name of daughter."

A toast to "the King" was proposed by the chairman and responded to by singing the National Anthem.

A toast to "Our Church" was proposed by Mrs. F. Neal who referred to the broadening out to all United churches and to all churches in any land, in as far as they stand for the worship of God. This toast was replied to by singing "The Church is o Foundation."

A taast to "Our Mothers" was proposed by Miss Lila Giles and replied to by Mrs. Lane, who compared the daughters to beautiful flowers, which add beauty and grace to all around us.

Mrs. W. Hohner and Miss Gertrude Hohner delighed all with a beautiful duet.

Miss Alma Blanchard favored the audience with a fine solo.

Mrs. J. P. Moore proposed a toast to "Our Daughters," which was responded to by Miss Olive Armstrong.

Mrs. Alfred Barton proposed the toast to the gentlemen who had waited so efficiently. This was responded to by Wilfred Derry.

The (Rev.) Mrs. Charles Carscallen, head of Whitby Ladies' College, was the outstanding speaker of the evening, giving a very clever and well arranged address entitled "Somebody Else's Shoes," bringing out the thought that we would catch the vision or viewpoint of other folk if we were in their positions or in their shoes. She received great applause, which her talk certainly merited.

DIES FROM FALL

QUEBEC, Que., April 20 (C.P.).—Elzear Belanger, aged 44 died here yesterday four hours after he had fallen from a ladder and sustained severe injuries.

THE BIG SWING is to ESSEX THE CHALLENGER

Hear the radio program of the "Hudson-Essex Challengers" every Friday evening.

It Challenges Your Interest in These Important Ways

EASY TO BUY

For Instance, the Coach $350 Down, and Monthly Payments of $63.63.

Your present car will probably cover the entire first Payment.

The H. M. C. Purchase Plan Offers the lowest available finance terms on the balance.

EASY TO OWN

On our own streets Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 24 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Hundreds of records all over the country during "Challenger Week" prove Essex economy. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car they ever tested.

Essex the Challenger sweeps aside the barriers of price class. It challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in. That is why the big buying swing is to Essex. That is why motorists by thousands are switching from past favorites, and trading in their present cars for the big values Essex the Challenger gives.

J. RILEY HALLMAN TO SING AT TRINITY

Soloist Has Established a Reputation As An Outstanding Chorister.

The City of Peterborough is more fortunate than most cities of its size in having so many beautiful and commodious places of worship. Rarely does one find so many church buildings so chaste in their proportions and so splendidly equipped for the tasks which belong to them.

These churches are exceedingly well blessed in the very fine choirs which assist in the service of song. The choirs of Peterborough compare favorably with the choirs of much larger cities. Trinity choir has in recent years sought to develop a type of music which has very greatly assisted in the development of a reverent and worshipful type of service. By the interjection of a few musical features the service has been greatly enriched and the beauty of the service has meant much to the character of the worship from Sunday to Sunday.

The choir has presented such works as The Messiah, Stainers Crucifixion and other works of the great masters. The choir is now preparing the cantata Esther, to be given in the early autumn. In addition, once a month there has been brought to Peterborough one of the outstanding soloists of the Dominion, whose singing has been greatly enjoyed by the large congregations gathered to hear them. On Sunday, April 21st, J. Riley Hallman of Toronto, is to be the guest soloist for the day. Mr. Hallman came recently to Toronto from the west, where he had established a reputation as an outstanding chorister. He is a member of the Adanac Quartette, which sang in Peterborough at one of the recent Chautauqua programmes. He is heard frequently over the radio as one of Toronto's radio artists. He is possessed of a splendid tenor voice of rich quality and will be heard with pleasure and profit by music lovers in Trinity church at both services to-morrow.

Women of America are now using less foreign perfumery and toilet preparations than a year a o.

FRENCH EX-SERVICE MEN VISIT LONDON

French ex-service men made a pilgrimage during the Easter season to London, England, where they paid homage to their dead British comrades at the cenotaph and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Westminster Abbey. The photo on the left shows the pilgrims at Westminster, with Big Ben in the background, while the photo on the left gives a view of the band of the 110th regiment of the French infantry led by the Guards Band of the British army.

It isn't just the weather

50¢

THERE'S a definite medical reason for your Springtime lassitude and "all tired out" feeling—it isn't just the weather. Your body tissues are not being supplied with the oxygen they vitally need. Our Canadian winter conditions have devitalized your blood. This is why a tonic in the spring-time is so essential to sustained good health.

Thousands of people have found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to be the ideal Spring tonic, creating red, oxygen-carrying blood and re-building your vigor and vitality.

Mrs. A. Merritt, of Welland, says: "Again last Spring I became ill. I could not do my work; was pale, weak and tired all the time. I took a few boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they soon made me strong and happy again."

CHAMPION of the world in speed and stamina!—and its style bespeaks its standing. Nothing made by man ever went so far so fast as did a strictly stock model Studebaker President Straight Eight when it sped 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes.

Low-swung on its costlier double-drop frame, this Canadian-built President in every line declares its demonstrated fleetness and staying-power.

Riding ease unknown until Studebaker introduced ball bearing spring shackles, is enhanced by Houdaille double-action hydraulic shock absorbers. The velvet smoothness of 115 straight-eight horsepower is matched by responsive obedience.

A World Champion truly—in looks, in deportment, in comfort. And at Studebaker's new low price a champion most certainly in downright car-for-the-money.

GEORGE STREET CHOIR CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

High Standard of General Excellence Set By Last Night's Program.

ASSISTED BY ORCHESTRA.

Elocutionary Numbers Were Also Contributed By Miss Evelyn Miller.

A high standard of general excellence was set and consistenly maintained throughout the entire concert, given last night as one of a series which have been presented during the winter season by the choir of George Street United Church. Under the baton of G. F. Liddle, organist and choirmaster, the choir undoubtedly attained an even greater success than in the preceding concerts, while the assistance of the Sunday School orchestra, conducted by W. H. Cunningham, as well as the well-chosen elocutionary numbers contributed by Miss Evelyn Miller, tended to "break" the choir program at the most pleasing intervals.

While counter attractions throughout the city were conducive to a smaller audience than had been expected, the gathering in the Sunday School hall where the concert was held, proved a decidedly appreciative one, and unstinted applause and demands for encores were the rewards of the choir for each musical effort.

Choir Well Balanced

More apparent than on previous occasions was the even balancing of the various sections of the choir as heard last evening, while an intelligent appreciation of each changing phase of the various numbers made less difficult the duties of Conductor Liddle. All this, and more, was evident in the opening number, "Festival Te Deum" (Buck), in which the choir met generous approval, which was not lessened by a splendid rendering of "The Cherubic Hymn" (Gretchaninoff), and even later in the program the ever-popular "Going Home" of Dvorak's. All three selections, when combined on a single program, afforded a scope for almost every phase of choral ability of which the George street choir last night proved possessors. Mr. Liddle accompanied his singers throughout the evening.

The other musical body contributing to the program in such enjoyable proportions was the Sunday School orchestra under Mr. Cunningham's direction. Following the opening remarks of welcome of the chairman, the Rev. J. E. Todd, the orchestra swung into its opening march number "Great Divide," with "Old Faithful" march as an appropriate encore, while later in the evening it was heard to render in an equally capable manner, a selection entitled "Enchantment"; a second, "Hunting Song," and a final contribution known as "Golden Sceptre." Miss Evelyn Miller, a talented young elocutionist and a member of the choir, was heard on two occasions, her first choice being the stirring "Legend of the Bregenz," and her second the more humorous "Limitations of Youth."

Other Numbers

Most advantageously placed throughout the program were solo, duet, quartet and double male quartet numbers of a calibre quite up to the high standard of the evening. Soon after the opening orchestral selection, Mrs. W. McKee Bingham made her first individual contribution, singing Nevin's "'Twas April," and as an encore "Who'll Buy My Lavenders" (German). And sharing the solo honors with Mrs. Bingham, Douglas Carlisle sang in splendid voice on of his favorites, "Mary of Argyle," which he followed with an encore. Miss Constance Lewis and G. F. Liddle were the accompanists.

Mr. Carlisle was also a valuable contributor along with Mrs. G. F. Liddle, the two contributing a vocal duet, "The Lord is My Light," which also merited the insistent demand for an encore. Mrs. Bingham afterward proved the versatility of her talent with an elocutionary selection "Sunflower Time," and also Portia's speech from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," while Mrs. Liddle, apart from the duet above referred to, sang a most pleasing solo toward the close of the program.

Group Numbers Enjoyed

There was a most apparent improvement in work of the choir quartet and double quartet as it sang last night, in comparison with many of its past efforts. A more confident reliance one upon the other, careful attention to harmony, and keen appreciation of every value all tended toward the genuine enjoyment of the quartet's number "Sweet and Low," with encore; and the double quartet's two stirring selections, "Ye Mariners of England," and a descriptive piece entitled "A Hunting Scene," by Bucalossi.

Refreshments were served at the close of the entertainment which was indeed a most successful one in point of satisfaction to choir and audience alike.

The personnel of the quartet and double quartet was as follows: John Miller, James Spencer, Edwin Rowe, Sydney Mitchell, Arnold Lillow, Douglas Carlisle and W. H. Cunningham.

The New Gillespie Garage and Chrysler Show Rooms

The illustration above shows the new local home of Chrysler cars, including the Plymouth, operated by J. L. Gillespie, with W. E. Robinson as his capable assistant. Situated on Aylmer street, just north of Simcoe, these modern Chrysler quarters, widely known as the Gillespie Garage, stand on the site of an old Free Methodist church, purchased by Mr. Gillespie in 1916 and converted into a garage with a small repair shop in the rear. This was the year Mr. Gillespie assumed the Chrysler cars agency. Enlarged during the winter of 1922-23, and again extended in 1925, the repair shop now covers an area of 100 by 50 lineal feet.

This winter the old church building was demolished and the present handsome and commodious structure erected. Modern in design and built of tapestry brick, its two ground floor front windows present a copper-bound plate glass spread of 252 square feet, with 100 square feet of glass in the south side wall. Gas and oil are served beneath a large protecting canopy facing Aylmer street.

The interior is bright and cheerful, with its grey stuccoed walls, relieved by a band of dark oak at a height of four feet from the floor, its pure white ceiling, floor covering of quarter inch Dominion battleship linoleum, and heavy corrugated rubber runners. There are 40 by 40 lineal feet of car display area, with a cosy rest nook for visitors.

The hardware is of burnished copper.

In the rear one sees the main office and spacious stock department for Chrysler repair parts and general accessories, all being stored in steel equipment and steel bins. The service counter is also of steel. The office is paneled with rich chestnut which also finds a place in other decorating features. Seventeen drop ceiling lights brilliantly illuminate the whole ground floor at night.

By this new building Gillespie Garage gains a roomy second story for the storing of cars, to which autos gain access by driving up a ramp under their own power. Dominion tires and other service materials find storage in a model basement.

This is the story in brief of a successful business venture which started in an exceedingly modest way. In 1916 but two men were employed, while to-day a staff of 16 hands are kept busy. The original unpretentious premises have grown into one of the best-equipped garages in the country, and Chrysler cars are now housed in an up-to-the-minute home, of which Mr. Gillespie has every reason to be proud. Enterprise, business acumen, highly-skilled mechanical service and courtesy have been combining factors in the substantial growth of Gillespie Garage.

any fish from a boat or other floating device, or through the ice, in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Northumberland, Durham and the waters of the River Trent in any county during the close season for the taking of bass and maskinonge.

"In addition to this Regulation there is a close season for the taking of Pickerel by any means during the month of April in all that part of the province lying south of the French and Mattawa Rivers."

Members of the executive of the local association state that this clears the vexed problem of pickerel fishng here. They interpret it to mean that during April no fishing for pickerel can be done, but during the months when the bass and maskinonge fishing is closed pickerel fishing can be done from the shore, and during the open months for bass and maskinonge the pickerel fishing can be carried on from a boat or floating device.

Reward is Offered.

The Peterborough Fish and Game Association are aware that there has been some illegal fishing going on in local waters recently and they are going to make every effort to have this stopped. They are offering a reward of $25 to anyone giving information of persons breaking the game laws. This is also meant to stop the smuggling of fish into the local market, which the association states has been going on during the spring.

The association has taken steps in the effort to secure the armouries for more casting demonstrations and practices. It is likely that the casting lessons will be carried on at the armouries every Saturday evening if the association is successful in obtaining the use of that building.

PRESIDENT OF MUSIC CLUB RE-ELECTED

Annual Meeting of Society is Held in Studios of Conservatory of Music.

SEVEN MEETINGS

Total Receipts for the Year Amounted to $447.32, With Balance $31.96.

Miss Mabel Clarry was re-elected as president of the Women's Music Club, at the annual meeting of the society held yesterday afternoon in the studios at the Conservatory of Music.

The other officers for the coming year are as follows: Mrs. R. Gliddon, honorary president; Mrs. J. F. Allan, first vice-president; Mrs. N. B. Buchanan, second vice-president; Mrs. G. E. Porter, secretary, and Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, treasurer.

Members of the executive are: Mrs. W. Blackwell, Mrs. G. N. Gordon, Mrs. L. A. Potvin, Mrs. J. H. Vernor, Mrs. W. A. Logan, Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Madam Masson, Mrs. W. F. Butcher, Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, Miss Lillian Hurley, Miss Florence Gladman, Miss Annie Wood and Miss Margaret English.

Members of the program committee are: Mrs. R. Gliddon, convenor; Mrs. J. F. Allan, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, Mrs. W. R. Widdess and Miss Florence Gladman.

Mrs. N. D. Buchanan is convenor of the social committee, with power to name her own assistants.

The meeting was presided over by Miss Clarry, who made the announcements, and Mrs. W. D. Scott, convenor of the nominating committee, with Mrs. W. A. Sanderson and Miss Mary Stratton as the other members, took the chair for the election. The report of the committee, read by Mrs. Sanderson, was unanimously adopted by the meeting.

The report of the activities of the past year was read by Mrs. G. E. Porter and Mrs. T. H. Gillespie gave the financial statement.

Owing to a change made this season, from fortnightly to monthly meetings, there were only seven events of the Women's Music Club this winter. Mrs. Porter spoke of the programs at each meeting.

Treasurer's Report.

The financial statement showed a balance from last season of $36.76, and total receipts from fees, recitals and a bridge party amounting to $447.32, making a total of $484.08.

Total disbursements were $452.12, leaving a balance on hand at present of $31.96.

Miss Clarry thanked the members for her re-election to the office of president, and also spoke gratefully of the "helpful and gracious assistance" given by the executive and club members during the past season, and especially of the assistance given by the former president, Mrs. J. F. Allan. The efforts of the convenor of the social committee, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, were also mentioned as being particularly helpful, Mrs. Buchanan having contributed largely to the success of the meetings by her very artistic arrangement of the tea tables and the hall during special recitals.

Mrs. J. F. Allan voiced a tribute of praise to Miss Clarry for her "tactful and efficient service" during the year, and spoke of the excellent work done by the secretary, Mrs Porter, the treasurer and her assistant, Miss Annie Wood and Mrs. Gillespie, and the convenor of the social committee, Mrs. Buchanan.

A very enjoyable musical program, which added much to the interest of the annual meeting, was arranged by Mrs. W. R. Widdess, and included vocal solos by Mrs. Hazel Davidson-McClelland and Miss Daisy Davidson and piano selections by Miss Margaret Widdess. The accompaniments were played by Gwen Mary Donley.

Mrs. McClelland sang, "As I Went a-Roaming" and "Lassie o' Mine"; Miss Davidson's songs were Mendelssohn's composition, "On the Wings of Song," and "'Tis Spring," and Miss Widdess played some of the ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde" and "The Nightingale." The soloists and accompanist were cordially thanked by Miss Clarry at the conclusion of the meeting, when afternoon tea was served.

DEPARTMENT GIVES RULING ON PICKEREL

Deputy Minister Answers Query of Fish and Game Association.

CLOSED SEASON IN APRIL.

Local Organization Offers Reward For Information On Illegal Fishing.

The Peterborough Fish and Game Association has at last succeeded in getting a definite and official interpretation from the Department of Game and Fisheries with regard to pickerel fishing in local waters. The first ruling handed down by the Department was obscure, and left the local fishermen in doubt as to the time of the closed period. The new interpretation of the rules says clearly that there is only one month, April, in which pickerel fishing is closed.

The letter from the Deputy-Minister of the Department follows: "I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 10th inst., and in reply would inform you that the Department has applied for an Order-in-Council, under which the Regulations covering the fishing for Pickerel in Peterborough, would be as follows.

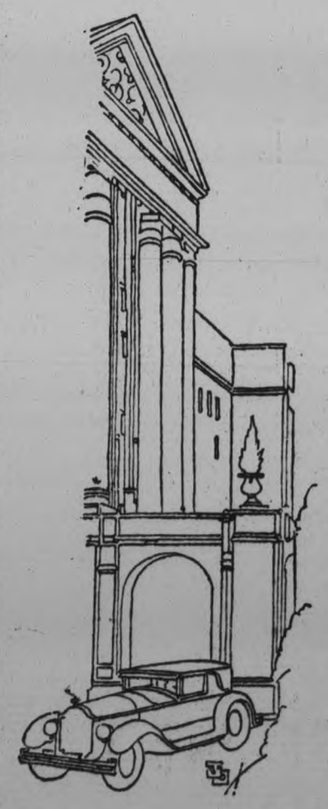
If your car needs tires -it needs- ROYAL MASTERS



BEGIN the motoring season by making sure your tires are in first class shape or by getting new ones. Any Dominion Tire Depot expert will give them a thorough, conscientious overhauling. Perhaps replacements are not necessary.

If you do need new tires, by all means equip with Royal Masters, made by the Dominion Rubber Company and sold by Dominion Tire Depots.

They cost more — certainly. But they cost less per mile, less per year. They bring safety, security, freedom from trouble.

Not one Royal Master in a thousand will ever puncture.

Not one in five thousand will blow out under two years of service.

The Royal Master was built without regard to cost. It is the greatest tire the world has ever known. It will outwear any other tire.

Equip your car with Royal Masters, and enjoy trouble-free motoring, not only for this year but for a long time to come.

On New Cars

Royal Masters cost more than any other tire made and you cannot expect them as standard equipment on your new car.

Any dealer will, however, be glad to equip your new car with Royal Masters as an extra. You will find the additional cost one of the best investments you have ever made.

EIGHT PLANES JOIN SEARCH

Hope For Finding Missing Australian Aviators Is Fast Dwindling.

FACE STARVATION.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 20 (C.P.).—Eight airplanes yesterday hunted the immense, sparsely inhabited bush of the Northern Territory of Australia for Lieutenant Keith Anderson and Robert Hitchcock, who vanished ten days ago into the wilderness which they were searching for a trace of Captain Kingsford-Smith's airplane, Southern Cross.

Captain Kingsford-Smith and his three companions are to-day in safety, but hope for finding the men who attempted to rescue them is fast dwindling. It was supposed that Anderson and Hitchcock might have come down in the lonely country west of Tanami.

Starvation threatens them as it did Kingsford-Smith, who to-day recounted his misadventure on a flight from Sydney to Wynham, Western Australia, to Col. Mansfield, director of the rescue operations, at Derby.

THE MEMORIAL TO DR. VOGT

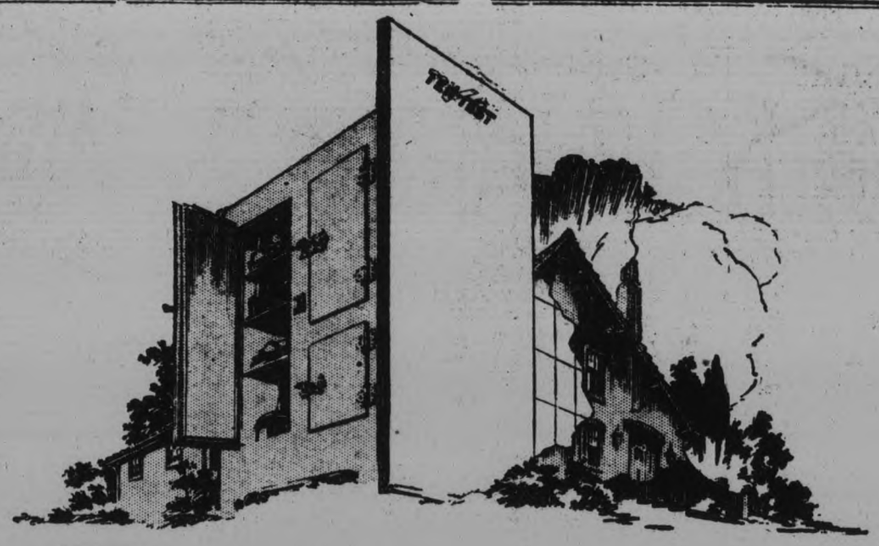
Editor of The Examiner:

With hundreds of musical people I was privileged to attend the unveiling of the memorial window to the memory of the late Dr. Vogt, in St. Paul's Church, Toronto, last Wednesday night. Never in my long experience in musical life have I witnessed such an impressive service. There was an air of mystery, a strangeness, about it, that was wonderfully appealing. The church was packed to the limit. The total number to see the unveiling and to hear the colossal work of art, Bach's Mass in B minor, that preceded it, was about 4,500. Some 2,000 of those who attended a public rehearsal on Tuesday were unable to gain admission to the formal affair. The vast audience was placed without a scramble. Among the thousands present were hundreds old members of the Mendelssohn Choir as far back as 1894—the marvellous choir which was inaugurated by Dr. Vogt and conducted by him for many years. The writer was present at the first concert that the choir gave, and has attended, with perhaps one exception, every concert of the choir to the present day.

The Mendelssohn Choir, now conducted by Dr. H. A. Fricker, assembled to its place in the church on this occasion, for the singing of the Mass, without fuss and almost without notice. It was the first complete doing of the Mass in Canada. A symphony orchestra occupied the fore-stage. The choir was built up in a tierage across the chancel, hiding all but the Gothic tips of the reredos. The members were dressed suitably in black and white. The only note of positive color that the church possessed was the grand old Union Jack that draped the memorial window. The imposing architecture of the great church lent an aid of grandeur to the scene and seemed also in some way to exemplify the choral greatness of the man in whose honor the Mass was sung. Profundity and power were voiced by the great organ, played by Thomas J. Crawford. The entire atmosphere of the occasion was perfect for the rendering of the Mass in B minor, which was composed in the very church in Leipsic, where Dr. Vogt first learned the art of choral singing, and which, incidentally, the writer of this letter had in years gone by, when a student in Germany, the privilege of attending hundreds of times.

When the Mass was done the vast audience rose, and the dedication followed. In procession, President of the Choir, G. H. Parks; Conductor, Dr. Fricker; Honorary President, Sir Joseph Flavelle; Lieutenant-Governor Ross, Col. Fraser, Rev. Canon Cody and the Wardens, passed quietly to where the Union Jack hung draped. Swiftly all the lights went out. All faces turned to the window for the ceremonial—the saying of the Te Deum by Canon Cody, of the dedication apostrophe by the Governor, the prayer of dedication by the Rector, the dropping of the flag, and the rich glow of the new window lighted from without. When the lights again were turned on, the procession moved back again to the front, and the choir and audience sang the fine old tune "Now Thank We All Our God"—a fitting finale to an affair of indescribable grandeur.

—Rupert Gliddon.



To-day the Warmest homes are built like a refrigerator

WHEN you buy, build or remodel your home, take a page from the book of the refrigeration engineer. See to it your walls are insulated . . . that your home is protected against HEAT and COLD and SOUND by TEN/TEST.

TEN/TEST places an impregnable barrier of insulation between the temperature you want and the temperature you don't want. That's why TEN/TEST, used in place of ordinary wood sheathing, keeps your house warm in winter, cool in summer and QUIET all the time. For TEN/TEST is sound absorbing, too.

Before you build or remodel, or buy, be sure to learn more about TEN/TEST. Many a non-insulated home is paying the price of TEN/TEST . . . without enjoying its advantages. Ask your architect or contractor. And write for the free booklet, "TEN/TEST and the Most Wonderful Adventure in the World."

Locomotive Loses Its Wheels and Coaches Pile Up in Ditch.

TWENTY INJURED

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 19 (C.P.).—Fourteen persons were killed and twenty injured in a railroad wreck between Iquique and Antofagasta late last night.

The locomotive of the train lost its wheels in some unexplained fashion and the cars which it was drawing piled into it and overturned. The third car of the train was the most badly smashed.

A relief train carrying physicians and Red Cross equipment was dispatched from Baquebano station to aid those injured.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

If you're Looking for CHARACTER

THERE are people who look for "character" in the car they buy. They want performance. They expect appearance. They appreciate luxury. But they demand individuality.

It was for such people that this finer Oldsmobile was created.

Leaving aside its astonishingly low price (now lower than ever) Oldsmobile is an exclusive car . . a car of character and distinction. It is a fine car with all the engineering excellence all the distinguished style, all the quiet elegance and luxury, with all the easy mastery of miles and minutes, and all the desirable attributes of a fine car.

And the attraction that Oldsmobile possesses is more than the result of its 62 h.p. high-compression engine . . more than its handsome Bodies by Fisher . . more than its Lovejoy Shock Absorbers and scores of fine car features. It is the blending together, in one easily attainable car, of all the qualities which spell "character" in an automobile.

A New Job For The Club

Things had come to a pretty pass with me. What I mean, I was worried. Not so much that I knew what I was worried about—but everything that had happened around this old river bank in the last few months had got my mind in a whirl, and I didn't know whether I was coming or going, half the time.

No use to beat about the bush—Little Gil was the cause of it. Not that I worried about the little beggar coming through all right—trust him for that, all right! I knew Gil had what it takes, and I just knew he wouldn't fall down. But the other things, threatening the peace and quiet of our club—old Jacobi, the tramp who had threatened to burn our clubhouse down, for one; and Jeckerson, the Watertown detective who kept on calling me up every day about the King of the Hoboes—and I was putting him off, day by day, telling him to let me have my own way, that sooner or later I would help him solve his mystery of the King of the Hoboes—

But by Jinks! I knew who was King of the Hoboes. Little Gil's old Daddy Joe! And I couldn't let Jeckerson take the old man away from Little Gil. No. Something was wrong, somewhere. If Old Daddy Joe was so good to a little boy like Little Gil so good, I say, as to make Litle Gil stick up for him and say he was the best man in the world—well, then Old Daddy Joe couldn't have done anything that Jeckerson should want him for.

Yet I was worried. I knew something was wrong. What was it? Everything about this strange adventure with Little Gil and his hobo friends was queer. Even Little Gil was queer. There was something ghostly about the little fellow. I think I loved him as well as I could have loved a brother—I, who never had a brother nor sister—and yet there was something that made me afraid of Little Gil. "Shucks!" I would say to myself. "It's nothing. You just don't understand that little boy, Hawkins. He is something like you've never seen before. But he is good, honest, fair and square—"

Yea, I knew all that. I knew he was true blue. I could read it in his eyes. But there was something about Little Gil that gave me the creeps. Not always, you understand—but times when he would sing. Seemed like he could sing only when the spirit was on him; and then he sang beautifully. Lew Hunter could get him to sing—everybody knows Lew's enthusiasm could get anyone to sing—but when Gil sang, it was always the old songs, and always he would seem far away from us—he would have that far-away look in his eyes, and we knew that while he sang, Little Gil wasn't even thinking of us boys, or our clubhouse, or anything else around him. And that last time, when he sang "Oh, Promise Me" for Shadow Loomis—I could have sworn there was a ghost in the clubhouse with him, and Little Gil knew there was, for he seemed to call to it. I get the creeps every time I think of it.

"That reminds me," said Shadow Loomis, as we talked about it today, after meeting. "He sang that song for me, Hawkins."

"Yeah," I said, "you lucky guy! He wouldn't sing one like that for me."

"Well, I don't want him to sing any more ghost songs for me," said Shadow, slowly. "I could hardly get to sleep that night, for thinking of it. The kid is odd, I'd say. I never believed in ghosts—up till that time, when he sang that ghost-song. Gosh!' It was beautiful, wasn't it?"

"Even if it does give me the crèeps," I said, nodding, "I'll admit that much, Shadow. It was about the most beautiful song I ever heard. I don't think I'd ever heard that song before, but I knew in a moment, that it was an old song. Leave it to Gil to know all the old ones! All the old ones. He's smarter than we are, there. There was some sense to that song, too, Shadow. By Jinks! I don't think I ever heard a song with such beautiful words—full of meaning—"

"The meaning," broke in Perry Stokes, "was for Shadow, sir. It was his promise, you see. That was why Little Gil picked out that song, sir, 'Oh, Promise Me,' he sang. And that is just what he wanted to remind Shadow of every time he remembers that song, sir."

Shadow nodded.

'Well, I promised him," he said; "the little kid knew he had me where I couldn't say no. I promised to keep my hands off that Little Lord Harry fellow, or whatever his name is, who lives with that Englishman up in the green mansion. I promised him even I wouldn't say anything to the Little Lord—even when I ought to shake the life out of him for the cut he gave me with his riding whip. But I'm not so dumb, either. Hawkins, you didn't promise Gil anything."

I looked up quickly.

"What?" I asked. "You want to get me mixed up in this, Shadow?"

"You'll have to do what I can't do because I promised, Hawkins. You'll have to stop that little Lord Harry, somehow. It's fair and square, isn't it? You don't want him to get away with it, do you—swiping me across the hand with that whip? Look at this mark."

He held up his hand. The red welt was plainly visible across the back of his hand and on up the wrist.

"No," I said, shaking my head. "It wasn't fair, Shadow. He must be made to know, somehow."

"Well," said Shadow, getting up; "I've got to keep my promise to Little Gil. Wouldn't break it for a farm and ten pigs thrown in. To tell you the honest truth the way I feel, I'd be afraid to break that promise. Afraid," he started to the door; his hand upon the latch, he turned. "Afraid he'd raise another ghost, with one of his strange songs."

"I shall be glad to help you, Hawkins," spoke up Perry; "together we can find the lad, sir, and make him understand that he must not try such tricks again, sir—"

"You'll keep out o' this, Perry," broke in Shadow, gruffly; "it's no job for you to fool with—only Hawkins knows how to handle something like this. So you keep your hands off, see? Let the Seckatary go—alone. Un'erstand?"

Whether Perry understood or not, Shadow did not wait to know. He went quickly out and shut the door behind him. Perry turned his eyes from the door to me; and I saw in them a gentle reproof for Shadow, which gave way quickly to a look of alarm for me.

"Don't worry, Perry," I said, with a smile; "fair and square, now. Shadow is right. We boys have got to stick together. I'm mad about that welt he's got on his arm. I'm sore at that Lord Harry person, too. I've not forgotten the time he came in here and acted smart, and tipped over our table upon us and sent us all sprawling. I'm going to hunt him up, Perry—"

"But a fight, sir! You don't want to run into a fight, Hawkins. Maybe the boy knows more tricks than you do, sir. He may give you a good beating, sir—"

"I'll have to take it, I guess, Perry," I said; "there's a good boy. Get my coat behind the door, will you? No use talking further. My mind's made up."

Perry sighed as he went to get my coat. I closed the book upon my desk, and put away my pen and ink. Without a word Perry helped me into the coat, and followed me to the door. I turned upon him suddenly—

"And don't you dare to come sneaking after me!" I said, shaking a finger under his nose. "I'll be able to take care of myself, and I won't need any help."

"I hope so, sir," he said, softly.

* * *

It was a pleasant hike through the woods. Springtime in full bloom again, the trees and bushes in all the glory of their new green, and the sweet songs of birds overhead. It seemed like no time at all until I stood at the gate of the grounds on which stood the red and green mansion in which Sir Eustace and his household now were making their headquarters. I stopped for a moment at the lodge-keeper's cottage, and peeped in the window. Old Daddy Joe—who was keeping for Sir Eustace now—was alone. He sat in a low chair, staring into the ashes on the hearth, and he was singing in a low voice—

"Silver threads among the gold
Shine upon my brow today,
Life is fading—fast—away—"

"Hello!" I said, cheerily. "Old Daddy Joe, for a fact!"

He looked up, startled. Then he smiled, broadly.

"You be the one they calls Seckatary," he said, in a gentle voice. "I know ye. My boy been tellin' me 'bout how good you fellers been to him. Up in thet shack, the clubhouse Gil calls it. He shore is strong fer it. He even talks erbout you in his sleep. He says 'Seckatary Hawkins'll do this an' Seckatary Hawkins'll do that.' Sech like he talks in his sleep—"

"You must sit up beside his bed to hear all that!" I said, with a laugh and a wave of my hand.

"Yeah," he says, nodding, "I do jest that. I cain't fer the life o' me git that little kid out o' my mind. Seems like ever' night I est got to sit and watch 'im fer a hour er so, atter he's asleep. Looks so lamblike when he's a-sleepin,' Gil does. Makes me think allus o' the time when he was little, when I had to hold him in my arms and croon to him around the campfire o' nights, till he fell ersleep. Blessed little cuss he was! Growin' big now—don't know wot I'll do when he grows up—"

"It's from you he learns those old songs, then?" I asked. "All the old ones, I mean. We boys have noticed it. I guess he remembers when you used to croon him to sleep around the old campfire—"

"No, no," Old Daddy Joe was shaking his head; "no, no. I never sung a song in my whole life before Little Gil come. Thet's the funny part o' it all. He got me to a-singin'—jest now when you come up, I was sittin' here and thinkin' how old I'm a-gittin' an' my hair is all gray and silver now, an' I jest been a-thinkin' life is goin' purty fast—ain't much more left for me. An' so I was jest a-singin' one o' the old songs Gil taught me—"

"Gil taught you?"

"Shore! That boy knows more songs 'an you kin shake a stick at. Jest knows 'em, thet's all. He been singin' 'round yere so much, I got the habit myself. Sometimes in the middle o' the night he wakes me up wit' his singin'; an' there he'll be, sittin' up in bed, like he had a nightmare, but singin' fit fer the angels. Ah, my boy is some boy, Little Gil is!"

"You bet he is, Daddy Joe," I said softly; "I'd like to know more about him—"

He turned a sharp look at me.

"Why?" he demanded sharply. "Ain't I good enough fer him, you mean?"

"Oh, no, don't take it that way, Daddy Joe," I said; "you know I didn't mean that. I'd just like to know more about him because—well, because he's so interesting. His singing, for one thing. It's the most wonderful thing I ever saw or heard—"

"Saw or heard?" broke in Daddy Joe. "You mean you saw something?"

He was looking at me testily now. And then I knew, too, that Daddy Joe had seen ghosts when Little Gil sang. But I thought it best not to say any more about that.

"Oh, you know what I mean," I said; "his voice—"

"His voice!" Daddy Joe's words were full of sorrowful meaning. "Yeah, his voice! Too bad he didn't have more than a poor ol' tramp to take care o' him. Well, you're right, son. Whether you say it or not, you're right. I know I ain't good enough for Little Gil. He's a nine days' wonder, that young 'un—but I jest cain't give him up—I tried, God knows I tried—fer his own good—so he could git a chanst to make sutthin' o' hisself—but no. Always we got to come back to each other. Gil, little chap, he says he cain't git erlong without Old Daddy Joe. An' the good Lord knows I jest cain't do a day's work, when he ain't erbout."

He straightened up and turned a look at me that seemed to pierce me through.

"Beggin' yer pardon," he says, "I don't mean to be rough, but wot did you come here for? I got to ask you that—ever time somebody comes, I am afraid they want to take Little Gil away from me. Now I know you didn't come fer thet—your eyes got a good look in 'em boy,—tell me I'm right—tell me you ain't bringin' no bad news to me—"

His voice rose higher at each word. I was startled, and I knew he saw it in my eyes.

"No!" I almost shouted the word at him. But it was lucky that it happened so. Daddy Joe nodded his head and seemed changed. Relieved, perhaps. "I didn't come here for anything like that, Daddy Joe. I like Little Gil—every boy in our club likes him. We want to help him all we can. We'd like to know more about him, he's so interesting. Poor kid, he hasn't got any mother, like we have—"

"Hasn't he?" asked Daddy Joe, with a sad smile. And then he turned away from me, and stared again into the ashes on the hearth. "Well," he continued, softly, "if you want to help 'im, as you say, don't try to find out any more erbout 'im. He's my boy, don't fergit thet. An' I'd give my life fer 'im, I would, so 'elp me! So you see, how it is."

He turned away from me now, and though it seemed to me that the interview was ended, I walked over to him and laid my hand on his shoulder.

"Daddy Joe," I said, "we boys wouldn't let anybody take him away from you."

He turned swiftly, and there was a happy light in his poor old eyes.

"Lor' bless ye!" he cried, and with that, then, to my surprise, he threw his arms about me and I saw tears come into his bleary eyes.

"Lodge-keeper!" cried someone outside the door. "I say, where do you keep yourself, fellow? I've been calling you an hour, it seems—"

We both turned to see Sir Eustace himself standing in the doorway.

"I say, lodge-keeper, have you seen Lord Harry about anywhere this last hour?"

Old Daddy Joe was on his feet, and bowed respectfully.

"No, sir, I haven't," he answered; "one cain't jest keep track o' thet young 'un, sir."

"No, one can't," repeated Sir Eustace, with a wry smile. "The little mischief! I wish you would keep a better look-out on him, lodge-keeper. He's a constant worry to me, y' know. First thing y' know he'll be into devilment, and somebody'll be looking for him—"

"I've been looking for him," I broke in, with a smile. "That's why I'm here. Just stopped to talk with Old Daddy Joe, here, but what I came for was to find Lord Harry—"

"You mean you came to invite him to your clubhouse?" broke in Sir Eustace.

"I came to give him a good licking," I retorted, "that is, if I'm big enough to do it!"

Sir Eustace looked at me with big eyes and a broad grin.

"By St. George and the Dragon!" he exclaimed. "Can I believe my ears? Do you mean to say, young sir, that you are offering me your services?"

"I don't know what you mean by that," I answered.

"I mean just this," he said, "that Little Lord Mischief—I mean Lord Harry, of course—I always call him Lord Mischief, because he has no sense of responsibility, sir, and is always upsetting this and turning over that. Why, not long ago, he dashed into the dining room and pulled off the table cloth and all the dishes on it, and, mind you, there were a dozen guests gathered around the table at the time, and he left 'em all sprawling—"

"Exactly, Sir Eustace," I cut in, "he came into our clubhouse while we were holding a meeting, and gave us a few wise-cracks—"

"Wise-cracks?"

"You know—those things kids say when they think they are being smart. You can't blame Lord Harry for it—it's catching, I suppose. But when we went after him, he just tipped the table over and sent us all sprawling—"

"He'll do it every time!" exclaimed Sir Eustace, bringing his hands together in a resounding smack. "He leaves 'em all sprawling, as you say. I'd give a hundred pounds to cure him of that—"

"A hundred pounds of what?" I asked, for now I was interested.

"Pounds! Pounds! Don't you know what money is, boy?"

"Money? Pounds of money? What kind, gold or silver—"

"You're stupid. In your American money, about five hundred dollars—"

"Go on, Sir Eustace. We boys will cure him for you for that!"

"Good! It's your job. Cure Lord Harry of his mischief, and you'll get the money."

Which we did.

OMEMEE BRIGADE FIGHTS BAD FIRE

For a Time Elevator Was Seriously Threatened By Flames.

OMEMEE, April 20. — (Examiner Correspondence.)—Only efficient work on the part of the volunteer fire brigade here under the direction of of Chief C. L. Morcombe, saved John Dettler's grain elevator from being burned when fire consumed a pile of railroad ties near the elevator yesterday afternoon. A strong wind fanned the flames toward the elevator. The pile of ties were completely consumed and one of the outbuildings of the elevator was partly burned.

The fire caught unnoticed to the railroad ties when section men lit the grass along the right-of-way. The large pile of ties were in proximity to the elevator and the flames were threatening to spread by the wind to it.

The fire brigade, aided by citizens of the village, put a line of hose on the elevator and succeeded in saving it. The water was pumped from neighboring wells and it is said that two wells were pumped dry by the continued operation of the pumper.

The New McLAUGHLIN-BUICK is the New Style

THE unprecedented popularity of the 1929 McLaughlin-Buick unquestionably establishes it as the new order of motor-car style.

The new Masterpiece Bodies by Fisher are revolutionary, it is true. Revolutionary in the majestic beauty of their appearance. Revolutionary in the richness of their contours and colours. Revolutionary in the spaciousness and sheer luxury of their interiors.

Revolutionary, in fact, in ALL the characteristics which make twice as many people choose McLaughlin-Buick as any other car at or above its price.

A Fundamental Economic Fact No Motor-Car Buyer Can Ignore

IN THE purchase of a motor-car—or any other commodity—the most vital and compelling factor, regardless of any other consideration, is intrinsic value.

No business institution can ignore this truth and survive. No motor-car buyer can afford to ignore it.

It is the only sure basis of sound, judicious buying.

The principle underlying this fundamental economic fact has long been a tradition and a faith with the Cadillac Motor Car Company.

The buying public understands and appreciates this. It realizes that the highest quality product—the product of greatest intrinsic value—is inevitably the most economical product.

That public has actually itself evaluated Cadillac and La Salle—and not the Cadillac Motor Car Company. It knows full well the traditional excellence of Cadillac-La Salle craftsmanship.

It sees at work in Cadillac and La Salle the vast buying power of General Motors deliberately planned to permit value-giving in excess of any other standard. And it quite logically concludes that no other manufacturer can produce as fine a car as can the Cadillac Motor Car Company without exacting a price premium that would make the product prohibitive.

That the public has confirmed its judgment is attested by its loyal allegiance to Cadillac and La Salle and by the new hosts who are constantly flocking to Cadillac-La Salle ownership.

This is proved by the fact that in 1928 Cadillac-La Salle dollar volume exceeded the dollar volume of any manufacturer in the fine car field; and Cadillac-La Salle's business in Fleetwood custom-built models—the very ultimate in luxurious motoring—exceeded the custom-built business of all other American motor-car manufacturers combined.

In fact, the whole and incontestable truth of the matter is that to-day Cadillac and La Salle actually command preferred position and dollar volume dominance in the fine car field.

And the Cadillac Motor Car Company is the only motor-car company in history that has achieved this preferred position in the quality field and this dollar volume dominance solely because of intrinsic value.

It is the enthusiastic satisfaction and loyalty of the Cadillac-La Salle public that has inspired and, in a very real and literal sense, created the characteristics that make Cadillac and La Salle the finest and smartest cars on the streets of the world. It is this enthusiasm and this loyalty that have made it possible for the Cadillac Motor Car Company to be constantly raising quality, constantly increasing value, constantly giving more and more for the purchaser's dollar—

More in fine manufacturing; more in beauty, exemplified by Cadillac and La Salle's exquisite Fisher and Fleetwood bodies; more in brilliant performance, through the high refinement and efficiency of the superbly smooth Cadillac-La Salle 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder power plant—

More, too, in progressive engineering as most recently evidenced by Cadillac-La Salle's three ultra-modern and exclusive safety features—the Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission, Duplex-Mechanical System of Four-Wheel Brakes and Security-Plate Glass in all windows, doors and windshields.

It is perfectly obvious to all the world that this process has been continuously widening the value gulf between Cadillac-La Salle and cars aspiring to compete with them, until today it is revealed—more emphatically than ever before—that Cadillac and La Salle have no real rivalry.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, April 20.—While trade at the opening of the cattle market on Monday of this week was slow on a somewhat heavy offering of near 3,000 head, prices were firm on all grades of killers. Tuesday's opening trade was slow also, but a fair clean-up was effected before the close. A light run on Wednesday strengthened the position of most killers, and prices for the week showed an advance of a shade to 25 cents per cwt., handy and weighty butcher steers and choice heifers showing to the best advantage. Heavy steers were scarce and not any too popular, and slow trade in this class was reported at other markets. A few choice heavies, however, sold up to 10½ cents per pound, with unfinished stuff downward to 9½ cents. Choice weighty and handyweight steers were in good demand at 10¼ to 10½ cents, and some light weights made as high as 10¼ cents per pound. From 9½ to 10 cents per pound was paid for the bulk of the butcher steer offering and none showed lower than 8¾ cents per pound. Plain to choice heifers made 8½ to 8¾ cents, with a few fancy up to 10 cents. Butcher cows and bulls of good to choice quality made 7½ to 8½ cents, and the odd kosher cow sold up to 9 cents per pound. Bologna bulls were firm at 6¾ to 7 cents per pound. Baby beeves were a fair size offering of around 150 head for the week and sold more readily than last week at a general improvement in value, the bulk moving at from 10 to 12 cents per pound.

Fresh milkers were steady up to a top of $100 each, and springers showed a slight advance at the top, best forward kind making $125 each. Common cows were not wanted for dairy purposes, but thin cows were taken at 5¾ to 6½ cents per pound to go on grass.

Stockers and feeders were in demand, but shortkeeps were hard to win away from the butcher buyers. Good feeders under 1,000 pounds sold at 9 to 9.60 cents, and stockers brought from 7½ to 9 cents, according to quality.

Calf supply was heavy, amounting to some 3,300 head, with volume of plain calves showing seasonal increase. Good to choice veals were active and stronger, gaining $1 per cwt. in the week's trading, largely as a result of good demand for export, which accounted for 1,400 head in the week. Choice veals closed at 15 to 16 cents per pound, with the odd price up to a top of 17 cents. The bulk of the run was plain to medium and sold at 8 to 14 cents per pound.

Sheep and lamb receipts included a couple of loads of choice feed lot lambs which sold at 15¼ to 15½ cents, restoring the top of a fortnight ago, while other yearlings of medium quality sold at 14½ cents. Spring lamb prices were unchanged at $12 to $16 each. Sheep sold steady at 8 to 9 cents per pound for good light ewes, with culls downward to 4 cents.

Hog receipts at 6,700 head were the heaviest for a week of this season, though 500 were received on through billing. Bids at the opening were 12¾ cents for w.o.c. selects, but few sales under 13 cents, w.o.c. were made. Packers raised their bid to 13 cents on Wednesday, and hogs closed firm at that level. Some 1,300 hogs in this week's offering arrived by truck. Road hogs sold at 12¾ cents per pound, or the usual 25 cents per cwt. below weighed off car price.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Responsive to break-down of war-debt parleys and to indications that bullish effects of farm legislation would be remote, grain values underwent setbacks yesterday. On the general drop in prices May delivery of wheat fell to below any level heretofore reached this season Subsequently, in various quarters, however, the collapse of the Reparations Conference was interpreted as likely to improve domestic credit conditions, and a decided rally in grain prices followed.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Thursday's finish to 1 cent lower, with corn varying from ¼c decline to ⅝c advance, oats 3-8c. off to ⅜c up, and provisions unchanged to 7c down.

Wheat, although afterward recovering most of the early losses, exhibited much nervousness right up to the day's finish. Profit-taking on the part of previous sellers was a strengthening factor in the late dealings. There were also advices at hand that unseasonably cool weather is causing delay to seeding of spring wheat both north and south of the Canadian line.

Corn and Oats Easier.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness, but received good support on the price breaks. Cash corn was in demand, country offerings were small, and weather conditions were unfavorable for field work

All deliveries of rye sold yesterday at the lowest price level yet for the crop. Neither domestic nor foreign demand for rye was apparent. grain.

Provisions reflected weakness of grain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 20.—Improvement in the demand for butter was reported here yesterday by the wholesale trade. There was an irregular trend to values, with sales being made at prices all the way from 39 to 42 cents, the former being for fresh-made Quebec butter, and the latter for New Zealand finest. The general market was quoted at 40½ cents, as compared with 41 cents Thursday. Receipts were 1,205 boxes.

The cheese market was quiet, and prices were nominally unchanged. Receipts were 57 boxes.

Strong Demand for Eggs

Egg prices to the retail trade were also unchanged yesterday, although a good demand was reported. In wholesale car lot way, brokers reported a little firmer feeling with prices for shipment slightly higher. Ontario fresh eggs were 31 cents for extras and 29 cents for firsts, f. o.b., Ontario points. Western eggs for shipment were also up a cent at 29½ cents for fresh firsts, plus Manitoba freight at 3¼ cents per dozen. Receipts were 4,399 cases.

The potato market was unchanged with New Brunswick Green Mountains at 50 cents per 90 pounds in bulk, and Prince Edward Island potatoes at 60 to 65 cents for whites and 65 to 70 cents for Green Mountains in bags. Demand was steady, and receipts sufficient.

Poultry and grain prices were steady, while beans and peas were unchanged.

Cheese, Westerns, 22c; butter No. 1, pasteurized 40½c; eggs, fresh extras, 33c to 34c; eggs fresh firsts 31c to 32c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Man., April 20.—The wheat market wiped out an early decline of one cent on yesterday's market, and moved forward 1⅝c from the bottom levels. Prices eased slightly near the close, and final quotations were unchanged to ¼c higher. Weakness at Chicago was reflected here.

Advances of ¼c to ½c were recorded in the lower grades of cash wheat. High grades were unchanged.

Coarsegrains trading was dull, with prices fractionally lower on all the grains.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 20.—The activity in wholesale produce during the week was featured by heavy receipts of fresh eggs, and an easier price movement in the butter market.

Storing of fresh eggs has become fairly general throughout the past two weeks, with the result that large receipts are now in the hands of warehouse dealers. This has been due to increasing production, and reports from Ontario points indicate that production is far ahead of the same period last year. Part of the heavy shipments that reached the market this week were accounted for by the accumulated supply throughout the country. Eggs that should have reached the market a week ago were held back, due to the flooded condition of the roads and the uncertainty of rail transportation.

Egg Prices Steady

Prices held steady during the week, and dealers are now quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras, 25c to 27c per dozen; firsts, 24c to 25c, and seconds, 21c to 22c.

The feeling exists in wholesale circles that, although eggs are now much below price levels of a year ago, if supplies contisue to increase, prices will go still lower before eggs are purchased in large quantities for storage purposes.

Storage Is General

A review of the conditions existing throughout the Dominion indicates that storage is becoming general, and that prices in most centres are lower than is usually the case in the middle of April.

Toronto quotations to the retail trade closed yesterday at the following levels: Fresh extras, per dozen, in cartons, 34c; loose, 32c; firsts, 30c, and seconds, 27c.

Butter Is Reduced

The strong feeling that existed in the Toronto wholesale butter market a week ago disappeared in subsequent trading, and prices were reduced considerably during the week. Small shipments reached local dealers daily, but the supplies on spot were more than sufficient to meet the demand.

Prices on the Montreal market were also much easier, due to the fact that increasing supplies relieved the scarcity of a week ago. There was an easier undertone at the close of local trading on account of dealers expecting definite word of a large shipment from New Zealand, which has been en route for some weeks. The demand for butter from the retail trade has been confined to small lots, as retailers are operating in hand-to-mouth fashion in expectation of approaching increases in domestic production.

Quotatons

Butter prices for supplies delivered in Toronto were quoted at 42c to 43c for No. 1 finest creamery, with No. 2 grade creamery at 41c to 41½c per pound. Quotations to the retail trade held steady at 47c per pound for No. 1 creamery prints.

The cheese market was quiet, and prices were unchanged at 21⅝c per pound for No. 1 large colored, waxed, Government-graded supplies, delivered in Toronto.

Trading was quiet in the poultry market, with prices unchanged from the previous week.

Her Sore Back was Quickly Relieved

Dodd's Kidney Pills were Recommended by Friend

"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for Sore Back and Kidney Trouble. I was not at all well," writes Mrs. M. Nesbett, 272 Bell St., Ottawa, Ont. "A friend told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and I must say I do feel well since I have been taking them. There is nothing better for Sciatica. My husband was very bad with it, and all he took was Dodd's Kidney Pills and he is fine now."

Backache is generally Kidney Ache. This pain usually indicates some disorder of the Kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills relieve Backache by toning up the Kidneys to do their work of straining all the impurities, all the poisons, out of the blood.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS OF CANADA, LIMITED

"Custom-Built" Designers created the new Willys-Knight "70B"

Men of long experience in the "custom-built" field designed the new-style Willys-Knight Six. Their artistry is quite apparent in this triumph of modern beauty.

Grace of line, richness of color, perfect symmetry and proportion distinguish the new-style Willys-Knight Six as the outstanding creation of these style specialists, and make available—at a remarkably low price—the style and richness previously associated only with costly, custom-built cars.

A great automobile—a great engine—no valves to grind, no costly carbon removing. Practically fool-proof and wear-proof. No Willys-Knight motor, so far as we know, has ever worn out. And to all these advantages add the fact that this car holds top place in resale value because, in terms of years, its usefulness is far beyond that of the average car.

Be sure to see the new-style Willys-Knight Six, and arrange for a demonstration at your earliest convenience.

Willys-Knight 70-B Coupe $1420, Coach $1420, Roadster $1420, Sedan $1545, Touring $1325. Willys-Knight 56-A Coach $1220, Sedan $1345. Prices F.O.B. Factory, Toronto, taxes extra.

REGULAR MEETING WIDE-AWAKE GROUP

Routine Matters Discussed at Millbrook Meeting of C.G.I.T.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 20. — The weekly meeting of the Wide-Awake group of Canadian Girls in Training, was held at the leader's home on Wednesday evening, with fifteen girls (including one new member) in attendance. The president, Miss Wilma Fallis, took the chair.

The objective for the contribution to the National Girl's Work Board, was reported as fully reached when the offering had been received, and the treasurer, Miss Alvira Davis, will remit the amount, six dollars, to Toronto at an early date.

The chapter, "How Does your Garden Grow?" was read from the new Girls' Own Book, and the reports on current projects which the group has had under way showed satisfactory progress made.

The devotional period was opened with the formal ritual, and "Daughters of the Morning," a missionary leaflet on girls' work in East Africa, with C.G.I.T. group among those of teen age, was read by paragraphs by a number of the members.

The Scripture lesson was from Genesis, chapters 37 and 45 ,and was read alternately; the talk and discussion centred on lessons from the life of Joseph, though time did not permit to touch on only a few of the points suggested.

A contest, "A Bunch of Flowers," with a sing-song from the C.G.I.T. Song book, filled out the recreational hour happily at the close.

Personals.

Mrs. R. H. Edmunds has returned home after a pleasant visit with relatives in Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howe, Messrs F. Cook of Chicago, E. L. Burnham, and V. Nattress, motored from Toronto on Sunday, and spent a brief time with friends in town.

Rev. Andrew McLaughlin of Grafton, Rev. F. G. McKee of Baltimore; and F. Gardiner, president of the Young Peoples' Society of the Cobourg Presbyterial, were in town on Wednesday, in connection with business for the United Church.

Mrs. (Rev.) Carscallen, of the O.L.C., Whitby, who addressed the combined missionary organizations of the United church, on Sunday, was the guest of Rev. W. W. and Mrs. Jones at the parsonage during her stay in town.

The many friends of Miss Gladys Tucker, pupil-teacher at the Ontario Ladies' College ,Whitby, and formerly of Millbrook, when her father, Rev. S. T. Tucker, was pastor on this circuit, will regret to learn that she has been compelled to take a six months' complete rest, under her doctor's orders, because of a threatened nervous break down. Miss Gladys is now at her home in Dorchester, near London, Ont.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure e weet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

MOUNT PLEASANT

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 20— (Examiner Correspondence).— Mrs. George Jamieson entertained the members of the Women's Institute on Wednesday, April 10th, at her home. Six members answered the roll call with several practical "Hints on House cleaning."

During the business hour, Mrs. T. C. Morden and Mrs. G. Jamieson were appointed to buy the lining and batting for a quilt to be quilted some afternoon as soon as possible. Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. Morden were also appointed to buy some new furnishings for the Women's Institute Hall. An invitation was read from the Bethany Institute asking Mount Pleasant to join with them at their summer series meeting. It was decided to accept the invitation and to also have an evening meeting as planned which is to be a joint meeting with the men of the community. The program consisted of a reading, "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning" by Mrs. H. Gardiner; Mrs. Henry Lowes gave an interesting talk on "How our meetings were conducted when we first organized our branch" and she also read a paper on "meats", which was prepared and read by her at one of these meetings when the Institute was still in its infancy. Other numbers were, a reading, "Let Daddy in" by Mrs. Brown and a paper, "An aim or a purpose in life" by Mrs. Thomas Graham.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Jamieson served dainty refreshments.

LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, April 20.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Town Hall. Business of importance relating to the district meeting and the summer speakers was discussed.

Mrs. A. E. Higgins read a paper on poultry raising which was prepared by Bruce Charlton, and Mrs. Walter Preston gave a poultry talk prepared by Russell Little. These papers gave some interesting information regarding the care of poultry and the progress made in recent years which has resulted in this being taken up as a separate business and not a by-product of the farm yard as formerly. Some valuable information regarding feeding, housing and caring for chicks and fully matured fowl was given by these gentlemen who have made a careful study of the question. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered them.

The following is a paper on the poultry industry prepared by Bruce Charlton and read by Mrs. Higgins at a recent meeting of the Women's Institute::

Few people are aware of the importance of poultry as a producer of wealth or the possibilities of it as a source of income for the individual So great has been the development of this gigantic industry that many a farmer, busy with his more familiar grain, fruit, or cattle, has not realized the change in the once humble products of the poultry yard. Years of experiment, study, development, and improvement in poultry breeds and equipment have resulted in big profits for the poultry man.

The most important things to consider when building a poultry house are fresh air, dryness, sunlight, convenience and space enough to accommodate as many birds as you want to raise. Good ventilation is necessary and if the house is always dry the hens do much better and are less liable to become diseased.

Caring for the Laying Hens.

A pullet should not be forced to lay until matured. This usually takes about six months. If your pullets start laying before they are matured, take away dry mash and feed only grain, but be sure to feed enough grain at the evening meal. After pullets are matured let them have access to dry mash. Feed all scratch grain in deep litter, summer and winter, so the hens will get exercise working for their food.

Keep a good dry mash in open hoppers at all times. Always provide either milk to drink or meat scraps or tankage mixed in the mash. Never use musty or mouldy grain. Give light feedings of scratch grain in the morning to encourage mash consumption. Supply fresh water at least once daily. Keep oyster shell and grit where the hens can always get them.

Caring for the Chicks.

Where the flock is not too large, hard boiled eggs, chopped up fine, shells and all, and sometimes mixed with bread crumbs, is very good first food for baby chicks. One-half ounce of feed for each twenty chicks four or five times a day is all they should have until they are about ten days old. Feed just as much as the chicks will eat in five or six minutes, and take away what is left.. Never feed young chicks by a dry a mash feeder; they will eat too much and mash will sour in the crop, causing bowel trouble, then chicks will die in a short time.

After chicks are eight weeks old they may be put on range, and fed in hoppers both grain and dry mash. When chicks are confined cod liver oil should be used as it prevents leg weakness, like the sun does when the chicks get outside.

Dry mash for laying hens: 700 pounds yellow corn chop, 500 pounds shorts, 300 pounds ground oats, 150 pounds alfalfa meal, 7 pounds fine table salt, 50 pounds bone meal, 3 gallons cod liver oil, 25 pounds milk to 100 hens daily.

Sprouted oats, cabbage, or mangels are good greens and essential to heavy egg production in winter.

Grain for laying hens: A mixture of 50 per cent. whole and 50 per cent. cracked corn fed morning and evening.

Dry mash for chicks: 70 pounds yellow corn chop, 30 pounds middlings, 1 pint cod liver oil, 4 pounds fine oyster shell, 4 pounds bone meal, ½ pound table salt. Grain, fine cracked corn.

The following paper on poultry was prepared by Russell Little and read by Mrs. Walter Preston at the meeting:

The Rearing of Chickens.

As brooders are becoming more common every year I will speak particularly of their use. Where one is raising one hundred chickens or more it is both advisable and economical to use a brooder. You can have your chickens hatched earlier in the spring by this method, and it is the early pullet that lays in the winter months when the price of eggs is highest. Early chickens also seem to develop into healthier and bigger birds than those hatched late in May or early in June. It is not necessary to have a special building in which to operate your brooder, but the warmer the building is built the more economically the stove can be run and the less trouble you will have in regulating the temperature during weather that is changeable or windy. This is most important since the chickens must be kept comfortable whether they are reared with a hen or under a brooder.

It is advisable to light your brooder stove a couple of days before putting the chickens in the building so as to dry out the place and regulate the damper of the stove to maintain a temperature of 100 degrees F. one foot from the stove and two inches above the floor under the canopy. During the first weeks regulate the temperature by the action of the chickens. See that there is plenty of heat to keep the chicks warm under the canopy, with enough room outside the canopy to get away from the heat, ordinarily you can decrease the warmth about five degrees a week; after eight or nine weeks no artificial heat is needed, depending on the weather. For the first few days to prevent the chicks from crowding in the corners and chilling, have a wire netting two or three feet outside and around the canopy. Use one-half inch chick wire one foot wide for this purpose. Enlarge this enclosure a little at a time so that when the chickens are ten days or two weeks old they will have the run of the entire building. It is advisable to make the four corners of the building round by placing wire across each. This is most important as chickens have a decided tendency to crowd and trample one another when cold or frightened. It is best to buy a coal stove brooder with a rated capacity for five or six hundred chickens even though you only intend to raise one or two hundred. By doing this you can take care of the changes of temperature more readily and the chickens are not so liable to be crowded as they grow bigger.

The feeding of chickens is most important and most people have pet ideas of their own on the subject, so naturally I hesitate to state any hard and fast rule. Practically every farm paper has suggestions in it from time to time and most brooder companies send along with the brooder a book that thoroughly covers the feeding of chicks. I feel safe in giving a few "don'ts":

Don't feed the chickens too soon. (It is best to have them making enough noise that you know they are really hungry before feeding them.)

Don't feed too much. (It is better to have them wanting more than to overfeed.)

Don't feed too often. (Feed four times a day for the first few days, then three times. This given the chickens' small stomachs time to digest food properly.)

Don't feed soft or sloppy foods. (This causes diarrhoea.)

Don't give the chicks water that is too cold to drink. (Take the chill off by adding a little warm water.)

Don't give the chicks milk or buttermilk in tin utensils. (Use earthen or granite, unless you want to kill your chicks.)

Don't expect to raise 100 per cent of your flock. (You should feel satisfied with 75 per cent.)

There are several poultry mashes on the market that prove very successful, and where one is raising small flocks of one or two hundred chicks it is just as economical to buy your chick feed already mixed as it is to mix your own, and it is a great deal less trouble.

Mr. Little gave a dry mash for chicks formula similar to Mr. Charlton's, with the addition of 2 pounds of fine charcoal.

Unless you have the time to look after the chicks properly it is a waste of money and energy to try to do so, for they pay dividend according to the amount of attention they get.

It would be cheaper to buy pullets ten weeks old that are over the dangerous stage than to try to raise chickens and lose half of them owing to a lack of proper attention and equipment. One must always remember that he is imitating nature and often it is the small things which make the difference between success and failure. One cannot be too particular in sanitation, feeding, and housing of his chickens for they will show the result of the care they received by laying at the time of the year when one likes to be able to tell one's neighbors, "My pullets are laying."

MILLBROOK.

A suggestion comes from a Western Ontario Institute to devote one meeting in the year to an exhibition of handicraft, each member bringing at least one article, such as a bed spread, a quilt, a hooked rug, or a braided one, a fancy tea cloth, with serviettes to match, a hand bag or shopping bag, tray cloth, dresser cover, cushion cover, etc., to the gathering, and giving patterns, or instructions, in connection with the making of same.

This makes not only an interesting meeting, but a most instructive one as well, and there will most likely be a large attendance, and much enthusiasm shown.

Have some member gave a paper on "Canadian Handicrafts," and let the exhibition of articles, with discussion, follow. There will be no formality and some excellent suggestions for the prize list to be offered at the fall fair will likely be secured.

A trained nurse is sure to be in every locality, even the smaller communities, and rural sections; why not have her give a practical demonstration of First Aid at an early meeting Let the members ask questions, and jot down in note book many of the points stressed, so the knowledge gained will be available for practical use when demand occurs.

All Institutes are urged to place the League of Nations to the fore in their programs; information may be secured from Toronto, and literature will be sent upon request, the payment of twenty-five cents securing a membership in the league; the promotion of world peace is a live subject at present, and all young peoples' societies in the various churches, the missionary organizations and even the schools, are being asked to bring this subject, with the work which the League is accomplishing, before their membership and scholars, in order that the spirit of antagonism to war may be tremendously increased in strength.

A "Young Mother's Meeting" was successfully put on recently in one Institute, the members coming under this heading presenting the entire program, pianos duets, solos both instrumental and vocal; readings, choruses, and a timely paper on "Home Influence," with a social hour at the close, filled out the time pleasantly and profitably, and the gathering was voted one of the best the branch has ever sponsored.

WARSAW

The annual business meetings of the Branch Institutes are soon being held.

As a rule the Institute officers are quite careful to have their reports ready, indeed, sometimes when Institute members are at other business meetings they feel that if it were at an Institute business meeting things would be done in a more business-like way.

The treasurers' reports come out to the cent, and the treasurers have ever been careful to have their reports audited. Sometimes there has been difficulty, but a careful auditing has always found the trouble, and records are correct. Only once was it found that the treasurer had twenty-six cents more cash than she could account for. The trouble lay in the fact that she sometimes put small amounts of Institute cash in her own hand bag, and sometimes had a few cents of her own there which she did not take out.

Annual meetings can be very interesting affairs, when the work of the year is reviewed and discussed. From month to month members sometimes forget, but the annual meeting brings forgotten items to mind. It also should stimulate for more and more community good.

After the Branch annuals are held, and all reports in, the District annual is held. There are held in different places each year. Since this District was organized the annual meetings have been held at Norwood, Belmont and Warsaw. This year it will likely be at Lakefield, where there is a junior Institute as well as the regular. The other two branches in the district are Havelock, which was organized about a year ago, and Apsley, which was organized last Fall.

At the Branch annuals every paid member has a right to vote. Any new members who have paid their fees, and thus become actual members, two months before an annual meeting have their vote at that meeting and may be carried over as actual members until the next annual meeting.

Only those who are elected to represent their branches are entitled to vote at the district meetings, though all members of Institutes, and others are welcome, and entitled to be present at all the sessions. There are usually some excellent addresses given.

The Mirror of the Mode
By Mary Marshall

The close-fitting lace bridal cap is provided with a chin strap of white tulle fastened at the side with orange blossoms. The tulle veil is attached to the back of the cap. The bouquet is of white hyacinths.

Fashions in bridal attire launched by Easter Brides are always watched with keen interest by the brides-to-be of June who this year must have been struck by the simplicity of the gowns and the conservatism of the accessories.

Some of the new gowns are decidedly long. Patou sponsors a model in white satin that comes to the ankles all around and has a skirt made full by the insertion of many godets. Other of the new gowns display the uneven hemline—some being almost knee length at the front and touching the floor at the back where the fullness of the skirt is lost sight of in the drapery of the long train.

A charming net bridal veil to be worn by a June bride consists of an arrangement of seven circular capes, each somewhat longer than the one just on top. All seven are attached to the close-fitting lace cap—the shortest one being only deep enough to cover the shoulders—and the last one extending two or three yards on the floor at the back.

The correct footgear for the formal white bridal costume is satin slippers of just the same shade of white satin as the gown. Stockings are of the very faintest nude.

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

A Series Giving Hints on Arranging Parties.
By LAURA.

SATURDAY, APRIL 20.

Often it is difficult when entertaining children to get something new in the way of games, so this week I have collected together a few games for children.

Noah's Ark: Someone is chosen or appointed to be Noah, who then names all the other players, each becoming an animal. Noah then calls out the various names of his animals, whereupon they respond by giving the sound which that particular animal would make. In the midst of Noah's roll he may suddenly decide to call "Flood." Then all the animals must run to a certain space which has previously been indicated as the ark. The first animal to be caught by Noah before it reaches the safety of the ark must take his place for the next round of the game.

Flower Garden Game: All the players, except one, sit around in a circle. The one who is it, goes around and whispers into the ear of each the name of the flower that she is to represent in the garden. "It" then retires from the ring and enters again saying, "As I walk around here in my flower garden, I am looking for a rose and a violet or a lily and a snapdragon, or any other floral combination." As soon as she mentions the names of the flowers, the two in the circle who represent those flowers must change places, the one who is "It" trying to get one of their chairs. If she succeeds the child who finds herself without a chair must be "It"; if not, she must continue until she does get a chair. Whenever the one who is "It" says "Here comes a whirlwind," all the flowers must change places and, in the general scramble, the one who is "It" can usually manage to get a chair.

Jack and the Beanstalk: The necessary materials for this game are a quantity of soft beans and a few boxes of toothpicks. Arrange on the floor as many mounds of beans as there are children present. Then place about a dozen toothpicks by each mound and a small piece of modeling clay in which one toothpick (the beginning of a beanstalk) stands upright. Each child is asked to build a beanstalk as fast as he can by adding to the upright toothpick. He can join the toothpicks by means of the beans, first a toothpick, then a bean, etc. Five minutes is allowed for this purpose, and a prize is awarded to the child who makes the tallest beanstalk in that time.

Who Has Left the Room: One of the children is chosen to be "It" for the game. He then closes his eyes and the group points out one of its number to leave the room. "It" opens his eyes and is given a few minutes to guess who is missing. If he cannot guess in the time allowed him by the group he shuts his eyes again and the child who has left the room returns, taking his place among the rest. "It" then opens his eyes again and tries to discover who has returned. If he guesses rightly at once the person guessed becomes "It" for the next game. If he fails to name the right one he must take another turn.

THE SATURDAY MARKET BASKET

Housewives will not find many new arrivals on the market this week and those new arrivals of a few weeks ago are much lower in price now. Strawberries, which two weeks ago, were 25 cents a pint box, are now selling for 20 and 21 cents.

Bananas range a great deal in price, from 10 cents a pound to 25 and 29 cents a dozen. Oranges range in price from 15 to 60 cents a dozen. Lemons are priced from 23 to 28 cents a dozen and tangerines are 25 and 35 35 cents a dozen. Grapefruit may be had 2, 3 and 4 for 25 cents.

Eating apples are 40 and 60 cents a dozen while cooking apples range in price from 40 to 65 cents a peck. Spys are 75 and 80 cents a peck and Snows are 75 cents a peck. Russets are 60 cents a peck.

Potatoes are 15 and 20 cents a peck and sweet potatoes are 2 and 3 pounds for 25 cents. Spinach is quoted at 19 cents for two pounds. Turnips are 20 cents a peck and parsnips are 40 cents a peck. New carrots are 10 cents a bunch, and new beets are also quoted at this figure. New potatoes are 20 cents a small measure.

New cabbage is 4 pounds for 25 cents and cauliflower heads are 25 and 35 cents each. Green peppers are 10 cents each. Celery is priced at 15 and 20 cents a head while celery hearts are priced at 2 for 25 cents. Tomatoes are 20 and 25 cents a peck.

Cucumbers are 10 and 15 cents each. Head lettuce is 15 and 20 cents a head, while they are quoted by some merchants at 2 for 25 cents. Leaf lettuce is 5 cents a bunch. Radishes, cress and green onions are 5 cents a bunch. Rhubarb is 3 bunches for 25 cents.

Cranberries are priced from 28 to 33 cents a pound. Cooking onions are 3 pounds for 20 cents, and Spanish onions are 2 pounds for 25 cents. Cocoanuts are 10 and 15 cents each.

IN WOMAN'S REALM.
By JEANETTE.

"I've fought the wind and braved it,
I cringe to it no more!
I've fought the creeping fire back and

To celebrate the three hundred and sixty-fifth anniversary of the birthday of William Shakespeare, who was born at Stratford-on-Avon on April 23rd, 1564, and whose death occurred on April 23rd, 1616, the members of the Dramatic Study Club of the Women's Art Association have planned an ambitious program for next Tuesday evening in the hall of the Conservatory of Music.

This will take the form of a presentation of scenes from several of the great Bard's plays and promises to be a very interesting affair.

From "The Tempest" act three of scene one will be given, where Prince Ferdinand, shipwrecked on the coast of the enchanted isle, is led by strange music sung by Ariel, the island sprite, to the cell of Prospero. It scene two of the same play, Miranda, with only her woman intuition to guide her, plays the part of Eve in a love scene with the Prince.

Scene two of the third act of "As You Like It" will show the meeting of Orlando in the Forest of Arden with Rosalind and Celia.

Scene four of the third act of "Othello" shows the Moor, and with jealously and grief at finding his wife's handkerchief in the room of Cassion and the second act of "Romeo and Juliet", scene five, portrays the episode of Juliet and her nurse in Capulet's garden

The fourth scene from the second act of "Henry Eighth" shows the trial of Queen Katherine

In the second portion of the program, the opening scene, number five from the first act of "Twenfth Night" brings in the Duke Orsino, and the second scene shows the Lady Olivia receiving Ceasario as a messenger from her rejected lover, the Duke. From "King John," is enacted the fourth scene of the third act, where the Lady Constance bewails the loss of her son, Prince Arthur, in the presence of Cardinal Pandulph.

In the first scene from the second act of "Merry Wives of Windsor", Mrs. Page and Mrs. Ford receive duplicates of Falstaff's letter and this is followed by the fifth scene from the first act of "Macbeth." showing in two episodes the Weird Sisters and Lady Macbeth, reading her husband's letter contaning the fatal prophecy.

In the fourth scene of the third act of "Henry Fifth," there is a lesson in English at the French Court between the Princess Katherine and her lady-in-waiting, and the program ends with the second scene from the fourth act of the "Merchant of Venice," where the runaway lovers meet at Belmont, on their return from Venice. A tableau forms the conclusion.

At the recent shower held at the home of Miss Margaret Hamilton under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association, in aid of the new Summer Camp of the 'Y' at Stoney Lake, it is interesting to note the large number of useful article received for the replenishment of the linen and jam closets. The committee is very grateful for the donations.

The list includes 2 dozen wash cloths, 3 boxes of soap, one hammock, one red table cloth, 36 pillow cases, 19 linen towels, 30 cotton towels, 35 bath towels, 7 pairs of curtains, one white and one colored spread, 3 dozen table napkins, 11 cotton sheets, one white tablecloth, 6 rag mats, one pair pillows, 2 sofa pillows, 4 pairs flanellette blankets, 7 pairs blankets, one set of bowls, 4 bake dishes, 2 pitchers, one picture, also many jars of fruit and canned goods. The sum of $32.75 was received in cash and there were splendid donations from several stores, including one pair of Hudson Bay blankets and four point blankets from the Hall Store, blankets, towels, wash cloths, mats, tablecloths, serviettes and curtains from the Teco Store and towels from the Robert Fair Store. The Wohelo Club of the 'Y' gave a hammock.

INSTITUTE MEETS.

Little Business Transacted at Meeting of Seymour West Society.

Campbellford, April 20 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Since both the president and the secretary were unable to attend the meeting, there was very little business done at the April session of the Seymour West Women's Institute. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Watters at half-past two Thursday afternoon. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Cecil McCulloch recorded the afternoon's activities. The meeting followed the usual program, opening with the Institute oath and the Lord's Prayer. After the minutes had been dealt with, such business as could be transacted was brought before the members. It was not of an important nature. Mrs. Gordon Shearer's solo was greatly appreciated as was also the paper given by Mrs. Taylor (nee McConnell). Mrs. Taylor is a former member of the institute here and at the present time is visiting relatives and friends. Her home is in Shillington in Northern Ontario. The subject of her address was "Training a Perennial Border." It was generally discussed by the members in open session. Lunch was served by the hostesses. Before adjourning it was decided that the next meeting would be held May 9 at the home of Mrs. Thomas Dunham. This will be the annual meeting for the election of officers and other important business. It is being held earlier in the month than usual in order to leave later dates open for other activities of the Institute.

BRIDGE PARTY.

Members of Campbellford Bowling Club Hold Social Evening.

Campbellford, April 19 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The officers and members of the Campbellford Bowling Club entertained a number of invited guests in the Parish Hall, Rear Street, recently. The front of the room was decorated with pussywillows and the twenty-one bridge tables were attractively arranged. Lunch was served by the ladies of the club after the cards were played. The prizes for the highest scores were won by Miss Florence Thomas and F. C. Bonnycastle. Mrs. Stuart Shea won the consolation prize. Mrs. S. H. Neale and N. A. MacCall won the lucky draw.

The annual Examiner party was held last evening in the Paragon Hall, when the employes of the various departments of The Examiner Printing Company get together for a jolly evening spent in dancing and playing cards. There was a good attendance of about sixty people and arrangements were looked after in capable style by a committee which included Mrs. B. Morrison, Miss Mareta Collins, Messrs. F. Gray, J. Cullen, A. O. Phillips and F. Scates. Perdie Mowry supplied the guest orchestra of the evening, Maurice Watson's aggregation of skilful players, who supplied excellent music for dancing, with Joe Nazimok playing violin. During the evening, Mr. "Bill" Roberts, one of the senior and popular members of The Examiner staff, gave several comic songs in his own inimitable style. Prizes for cards were won by the Misses Marie Rishea, Gladys Heath and Mareta Collins and Messrs. Neil Clarke and Norman Killingbeck. The lucky number prizes were won by Miss Mareta Collins and Mr. N. Killingbeck.

Under the auspices of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., a very successful bridge party was held last evening in the hall of the Canadian Legion. Arrangements were in the hands of a capable committee, headed by Mrs. J. J. Craig, with Miss Mayme Montgomery, Miss Hazel Buller and Miss Linden Hall. Mrs. R. C. Cummings had charge of refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Carl McLean, Mrs. Joseph Wearing, Mrs. N. C. Staples and Mrs. Gordon Hill. The guests were received by the Regent of the Chapter, Miss Olga Johnston, and Mrs. Fred Hooper. The hall was attractively arranged with many overhead pennants and the orchestra stand was bright with lighted floor lamps, palms and ferns. The bridge tables had a cheery note with their checked gingham covers and candy-holders in papers of pastel tints. Over 40 tables of cards were played, the prize-winners being Mrs. C. E. Graham and Mr. A. J. Reynoluds (first prizes); Mrs. L. A. Potvin and Mr. Stanley Kernaghan (second prizes); Miss Kathleen Benson ((consolation), and Mrs. D. W. Clark (lucky number.) Dr. J. J. Craig made the announcements, and also thanked those present for their attendance in the name of the Chapter. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. George A. Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McGee, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Claude V. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bradbury, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Potvin, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. A beautiful and spring-like note was struck in the artistic and pleasing arrangement of the tea-table in the studio of the Conservatory of Music yesterday afternoon, when tea was served at the conclusion of the annual meeting. Arrangements were in charge of the Social convenor, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, whose artistic arrangement of the table came in for a deal of praise from the members present. A very unique and effective idea drapped the table in a brown cloth of crinkly paper, crossed by a long streamer, from end to end, of soft green paper. The center piece was a large flat bowl of cream Austrian pottery holding flower and water in which tiny white swans floated. The flowers, which were intermingled by springeri fern, were yellow daffodils, rose and white tulips, and mauve iris. In two little flat bowls, also filled with water and surrounded by bright orange paper in floral design, were tiny mauve and yellow crocus. The two large tea trays were fringed by springeri fern. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. A. Sanderson and Miss Mary Stratton, assisted by Mrs. W. Blackwell, Mrs. T. H. Gillespie Mrs. B. Rose, Mrs. W. Denston, Mrs. W. J. Kent, Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, Miss Mabel Collins, Miss Margaret Widdess, Miss Daisy Davidson and Miss Gladys Renouf.

A very enjoyable event of last evening was the banquet in the gymnasium of the Collegiate Institute, when the executive of the P. C.I. Literary Society entertained the members of the cast in the recent Collegiate play, also all those who helped in its presentation, the school orchestra, and several of the committees who have assisted in the work of the Literary Society during the year. About one hundred people were present for a very sumptuous repast which was followed by a jolly dance in the gymn, with excellent music supplied by Mowry-Steer with their Silver Collegians. The tables were most attractive in their decorations in the school colors of garnet and grey, with streamers of the two colors centreing the table, and rose tulips and rose candles in silver holders. Arrangements were carried out by girl pupils of the school, headed by Miss Jean Puttick, treasurer of the Literary Society. Mr. Reg. Howden, president of the 'Lit', presided and a short program was carried out, opening with the toast to King and Country, voiced by Mr. Howard Macdonald and responded to in the usual fashion. A violin solo was played by Mr. Arnold Spencer and then Mr. L. J. Pettit presented the medals to the winners in the recent oratory contest, Miss Bertha Edmonston receiving the senior award and Mr. Bert Munro the junior medal. A reading from the works of Sir J. M. Barrie was given by Mr. F. J. A. Morris and then Mr. H. R. H. Kenner proposed the toast to the officers and members of the Literary Society. The guests present included Mr. Kenner, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Pettit, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. A. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. V. R. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. R. Cummings, the Misses P. Faint, Edith Murphy, A. Storey Gordon Roper Wilfred Preston, James Turner, Scott Medd, Albion Lord, Douglas Bethune, Leigh Glover. The officers of the Literary Society included Mr. Reg. Howden, president, Mr. Hedley Vickers, vice president, Mr. Foward Macdonald, secretary and Miss Jean Puttick, treasurer.

Fashion's Forecast

IT'S SPORTIVE!

THE STYLE No. 3330 emphasizes its chic one-sidedness by scalloped outline with grouped plaits in skirt. It is navy blue faille silk crepe so serviceable for street, office or travel. The scallops are piped in chartreuse green which appears in sportive monogram motif at right side of bodice, neckline and also in novelty buttons. Wool jersey, sheer tweed, crepe marocain, printed silk crepe, and wool crepe are appropriate.

THE PATTERN is extremely easy to use for it has a Picture Dressmaking Chart which shows in detail every step in the making, which is most interesting and helpful. It is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew, and is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. In the 36-inch size 2 7-8 yards of 40-inch material with 2½ yards of binding is sufficient.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

A NEIGHBOR who signs herself "Garden Lover" requests rules for running a small flower show, and, in the hope that it may stimulate other districts to similar effort, I am printing the outline here.

• • • • • • •

I think it would be just wonderful if every section of the city would run its own little show, in some neighbor's house, and then enter in the city-wide competition.

• • • • • • •

There would be a lot of interest, and we would learn, in the smaller displays, just what we could do in the larger.

• • • • • • •

A flower show properly organized and efficiently conducted, is unquestionably a powerful stimulus to better gardening. The best that local skill can produce is always an excellent object lesson and stimulates others to greater efforts to bring their gardens to a higher standard.

• • • • • • •

Proper organization is as needful for a small show as a larger one. The exhibit committee of the garden club should be in charge. The chairman of this committee should keep a complete record of all transactions.

• • • • • • •

First, the date should be set that best favors the flowers to be shown. Prepare, publish and distribute schedule for competition as early as possible in advance of proposed date of show in order that exhibitors may have ample time to prepare for and grow the flowers.

• • • • • • •

Prepare a schedule of classes for competition, i.e., a ase of asters, a basket of marigolds or zinnias, a mixed bouquet of annuals, bouquet of annuals and perennials, basket of blue and yellow flowers, etc. The nature and number of classes should be decided upon.

• • • • • • •

Be explicit in specifications of details, that is whether or not it is to be a spike, a spray or an individual bloom, three blooms or six blooms. State the amount of table room or square feet given to each exhibitor. If appropriateness of containers and color effect of scarf under bouquet count, this also should be stated clearly.

• • • • • • •

All entries should be made in writing to the secretary at least two days in advance of show. A set time should be specified when all exhibitions must be ready for judges and a stated time given for removal of exhibits at close of show. In cut flower exhibits, it should be clearly set forth as to whether exhibitors are to provide their own vases.

• • • • • • •

The secretary should have a class book paged according to schedule, one class on each page and each exhibitor's entry as received. From this record exhibitors' cards are then made out. Each card should be inserted in a plain envelope on the face of which there should only be the class number in accord with the schedule and exhibitor's number in accord with the entry in the class book. This is a most efficient system and conceals the identity of exhibits till judgement has been passed, after which the cards can be withdrawn and displayed upon the winning exhibits with the reward attached.

• • • • • • •

Procure the best judges obtainable, and they should not enter the show until it is ready for awards to be made. As soon as the judges have made their awards, the secretary should enter them in the class book beside the names of the fortunate winners and this book is then a complete record of the show.

• • • • • • •

The prizes may consist of: money, one, two, or three year's subscriptions to a gardening magazine, a flower container, a book on gardening, a rare peony root or iris root.

• • • • • • •

A most simple flower exhibit can nicely be held on a broad non-windy piazza, a few boards and barrels covered with green or gray burlap or cambric and five or six dozen glass fruit jars or milk bottles, with ribbons to be attached to the winning flower. An exhibit of gladiolas, tulips, dahlias, sweet peas, roses and delphinium, is simple and lovely held in this manner.

• • • • • • •

In September a successful show may be made of fruits and vegetables, both canned and fresh. Picture a basket of purplish corn, delicate green heads of lettuce, purplish red egg plant, a creamy yellow squash and the purple blue flower of artichoke.

• • • • • • •

Simple exhibits of this kind may be judged as follows:
25—Proportion; 25—Composition; 25—Perfectness of material; 25—Color harmony.

• • • • • • •

I am sure the Horticultural Society would be only too willing to help out any neighborhood organization in such a project.

(1) This is a smart summer ensemble of blue pin-checked crepe and offers an interesting color contrast in its blouse of peach crepe. Feminity in this lovely creation is enhanced by the jabot. (2) Here is a tailored frock of white rayon crepe, with a sleeveless jacket of pastel crepe adorned with minute flower design. It is ultra-smart for golfing. (3) This chic ensemble combines two of the most pleasing spring colors, having its skirt and full length coat of basket weave material and the blouse of white satin embroidered in blue.

OLD SONGS

NOT UNDERSTOOD

(Contributed by "Orange Blossom")

Not understood, we move along asunder,
Our paths grow wider as the season's creep—
Among the years; we marve' and wonder
Why life is life, and then we fall asleep.
Not understood.

Not understood, we gather false impressions,
And hug them closer as the years go by;
Till virtues often seem to us trangressions,
And thus men rise and fall, and live and die.
Not understood.

Not understood. Poor souls with stunted vision,
Of measure giants by their narrow guage,
The poisoned shafts of falsehood and derision
Are oft impelled 'gainst those who mould the age.
Not understood.

Not understood. How trifles often change us,
The thoughtless sentence, or the fancied slight,
Destroy long years of friendship, and estrange us,
And on our souls there falls a freezing blight.
Not understood.

Not understood, how many breasts are aching
For lack of sympathy. Ah! day by day,
How many cheerers hearts are breaking,
How many noble spirits pass away,
Not understood.

O, God, that men would see a little clearer,
O udge less harsh b when they cannot see,
O, God, that men would draw a little nearer
To one another—they'd be nearer Thee
—and Understood.

"Saves a Shovel a Day"

Would You Sell Your Health for a Few Dollars . . .

Hacking coughs, bronchial troubles, flu, grippe and the dread diseases they lead to are frequently caused by faulty heating systems. Doctors confirm this. A proper heating system must provide moist air, circulating air, and warm air. Warm air heating is the only system that gives you these three essentials and the Findlay Furnace installed on scientific B.T.U. principles does it best.

Those who have received our book "Heat and Health With Warm Air" tell us it has given them an entirely new angle on the question of home health and comfort. This book is not the ordinary type of "free booklet". It is frequently referred to by experts as the best ever published on this subject. If you are thinking of installing a furnace or if your present furnace is not 100% efficient by all means let us send you a copy of it now.

The Findlay is More Than a Furnace

The Findlay Warm Air Heating System starts with a flawless, modern dust-proof, leak-proof furnace. But it is more than just a furnace—it is home comfort, family health, fuel economy. Installed under the direction of a Graduate Engineer it is fully guaranteed to heat every room properly. Before you decide on a furnace, investigate the Findlay. It will pay you well.

Old Home Week News

(By J.R.H.)

Contributions Welcome

No. 17 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO April 20, 1929

REGATTA COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Water Sports Committee on Wednesday evening, it was decided to hold the regatta on the river off the lower wharf, on Tuesday afternoon, July 2, and the committee determined to make this one of the outstanding events of Old Home Week.

Some of the events to be handled are: ;Men's single; men's double, tandem; mixed; ladies' single; ladies' double; gunwale race; crab race; tilting; log rolling; hurry, scurry race, hydroplane contest; free-for-all; and motor boat race.

The course will be laid out so that spectators can see both the start and the finish in every possible case.

There will be a special Johnson Motor cup for a real power boat contest, open to entrants from any part of the country.

It is somewhat disappointing to notice that in the report of the committee no mention is made of events for old boys and girls. Water sports were much more popular here twenty or thirty years ago than to-day and no doubt many of the visitors would get a real thrill out of competing again on the water where they enjoyed so many youthful days.

Conservatory to Celebrate

To be held jointly with the Old Home Week celebration is the twenty fifth anniversary of the foundation in the city of the Conservatory of Music.

This should be of great interest to music-lovers of Peterborough, as it is the intention of the director, R. Gliddon, to invite as many as possible of the ex-teachers and ex-pupils of the Conservatory to come to the city and attend the double celebration.

There will be special musical programs arranged for the event also. The first meeting of a tentative committee took place this week to make arrangements for the Conservatory's celebration, and further announcements will be made after the next meeting on Monday.

From Alf. Merrick.

Who is there amongst us who has forgotten Alf. Merrick? He is snugly fixed at San Diego, California, but he remembers the Old Home Town, and expiates accordingly. Is willing and able to burst into song and story in its praises. Here is what he writes in a personal letter to Mayor Denne:

"It gave me a big thrill to receive the invitation to attend the Old Home Week in Peterborough, June 29 to July 7, and I certainly wish I were able to attend. It does not look as if I could make it, but I am sure I want my name on the mailing list, and will be a very interested observer of events from a distance."

"John C. Alford, of this city, who has received notice, tells me that he expects to be there. Another old boy whose name should be on the list is John D. Bell, 614 Standard Bank Building, Vancouver, B. C.

"It has often seemed to me that Peterborough neglects a wonderful opportunity to capitalize on the fact that Peterborough leads the world in the manufacture of the famous canoes. Peterborough canoes are seen and talked of positively everywhere that there is water for small boats, and a canoe is something which lends itself peculiarly well to a type of advertising 'that gets across,' and which would boost the name PETERBOROUGH throughout the world.

"Best regards to yourself and family and all old-timers, from this family. Yours sincerely,

"ALF. MERRICK."

Suggests Publicity.

Having been asked the question as to how Peterborough, the Old Home Town, compared with other places of similar population, and some such situation, Mr. Merrick adds his opinion:

"Peterborough is absolutely unique in its abundance of beauty, opportunity, friendliness and progressiveness. The wooded country, rolling hills, smooth roads, wonderful shaded streets, the river vistas, and the nearby lakes, are not surpassed in all Canada, and seldom in the United States. I have a very soft spot in my heart for Peterborough, and hope I may never get over it. I feel that Peterborough with its wonderful opportunities, and its natural blessings, could with the use of a little money, and a good publicity agent, quickly become internationally famous — 'there's a reason.'"

DO YOU REMEMBER?

—Old Photo by R. M. Roy.

An old school group. Do you know where, when, and who? A lot of these boys and girls will be coming back for Old Home Week.

The HEART of OLD HOME Week

AT last week's meeting of the Central Committee instructions were given to send a letter to every committee chairman asking him to plan some distinctively OLD HOME feature in his program.

On Thursday not a single report included anything in the nature of OLD HOME features; evidently the chairmen haven't yet received their notices.

The central theme of this week is OLD HOME, and everything else should be built around that. Old Home features can't be used merely as fillers, to fill in odd gaps in the program.

If Old Home Week doesn't take the visitors and present citizens back thirty years IT WILL BE A FAILURE, no matter what the gate receipts may be. The visitors will go away dissatisfied, and the people who reside here will have seen nothing different from a hundred other shows that mark exhibition week and midways.

This isn't a complaint. It's a sermon. And the sermon is based on the prophesy that Old Home Week cannot be successful unless it is OLD HOME week.

A splendid program has been arranged. There will be something to interest everyone.

The one thing lacking is the HEART of the whole thing—the BIG IDEA for which Old Home Week stands.

Meetings

Chairmen are invited to send in notices of meetings of their committees, for insertion in this column.

Dance Committee, Monday, City Hall, 5 o'clock.

Water Sports Committee, Wednesday, City Hall, 8 o'clock.

Central Committee, Thursday, Cit Central Committee, Thursday, ity Hall, 8 o'clock.

Send in your ideas for Old Home Week at once ,so that the committees may work on them.

From British Columbia

Mrs. C. P. Taber, Fraser Mills, B.C., was formerly Mabel Chastey of 635 Union street. She left here in 1911, but was back for a visit in 1918. "The Old Home Town is OK," she says.

From Humboldt

R. Norman Bell, Humbolt, Sask., formerly of 492 George street, left here in 1902. He is now manager of the Bank of Montreal in his town.

INVITATIONS THRILL

J. H. Quinlan, Kinistino, Sask., who left here in 1912, is now a bank manager. His wife was formerly M. E. Theobald.

He Is Enthusiastic.

"Writing from Brantford, where he resides at 197 Park Avenue, George H. Williamson, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., says about Peterborough: 'If I forget thee, let my right hand forget its cunning," and goes on to remark that this is the city where he found a large experience and formed lasting friendships.

Mr. Williamson formerly resided at 162 Smith Street, and his wife was Blanche Brown.

Invitation Carried a Thrill.

"You cannot imagine what a thrill it gives us to receive an invitation of this kind," says Dr. Elmer S. Best, 801 Yeats Building, Minneapolis, adding: "Though it is now twenty-five years since I left Peterborough, yet it always remains the 'Old Home Town' to me. I am going to try mighty hard to be with you."

From Vancouver.

William George Elliott, who formerly resided at 93 Aylmer Street, and 543 Harvey Street, married Olive Goodfellow, also of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott reside at 2079 46th Avenue West, Vancouver.

From Toronto.

Ivy Wilson, 277 Lisgar Street, Toronto 3, left her home at 50 Jackson Avenue in 1927, and is now a clerk with the Robert Simpson Company. Her parents still reside in the city.

From Campbellford.

J. C. Birmingham hasn't far to come home since he now resides at Campbellford. He was formerly employed with the Peterborough Hardware Company, and is now proprietor of a hardware store in Campbellford. He left here in 1914.

Left Here in 1894.

John W. Reid, a son of Alexander Reid, Peterborough, left here on March 20, 1894, and is now a merchant and farmer at Bonners Ferry, Idaho. He married a Wyoming girl, Jean Maltby, and his son is now twenty-three years of age. Mr. Reid was honored this year by being selected Grand Master of the I.O.O.F. for the State of Idaho.

Two sisters and three brothers, Ernest, Bob and Ed. Reid, and Hattie and Annie Lockington, all reside in Peterborough.

"We'll Be There"

Mrs. Charles Green, 1335 Temple avenue, Detroit, Mich., left here in 1919, and now declares, "We will be going down for Old Home Week."

Pleasant Recollections

"I have many pleasant recollections of Peterborough," says Mrs. C. E. Hoult, Toronto, formerly Mae Edwards of Sherbrooke street, who left here 19 years ago.

Nothing should be arranged for Old Home Week that will detract from its success. Holidays, camps and tours should be postponed, because everyone taken away from the city lessens the success of the week.

Some people may soon become tired of looking for OLD stuff, if the trail doesn't become hot.

ROUNDHOUSE FIRE BEING INVESTIGATED

Fire Chief Gimblett Is Suspicious About Recent C.N.R. Blaze.

That the recent fire in the shack next to the C.N.R. roundhouse was a case of arson, is the suspicion of Fire Chief George Gimblett.

The Chief said to-day: "We have been investigating that fire and all signs go to substantiate my suspicions that it was a case of arson. However, as yet, we have not succeeded in proving our suspicions, but the investigations will continue until something definite is obtained.

The Chief said that his suspicions were first aroused by the finding of some cotton waste soaked with kerosene in the corner of the building where the fire first originated. This waste, it was said, smelt strongly of kerosene, and was only partly burned.

The Chief expects developments very soon as a result of further investigation by the Fire Marshall's Department.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS WIN GREAT PRAISE

Many Mothers Always Keep Them in the House.

Thousands of mothers state that they know of no other medicine for little ones to equal Baby's Own Tablets—that they always keep the Tablets in the home as a preventive of childhood ailments, or if sickness does suddenly grip their little ones they feel safe with such a remedy at hand.

Concerning the use of the tablets Mrs. Donat Ploudre, Tingwick, Que., writes: "I have nothing but praise for Baby's Own Tablets. They are the only medicine I have ever given my two little ones and I am glad to state that the Tablets have always kept them in perfect health. I feel so safe with the Tablets that I always keep a box in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and thus banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever and make the cutting of teeth painless. The Tablets are absolutely safe, being guaranteed free from all injurious drugs. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

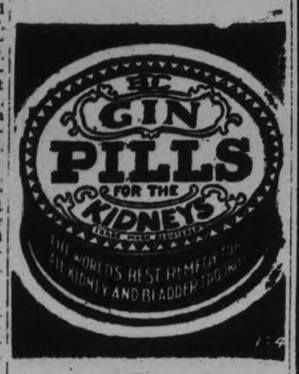
AN ATTRACTIVE TRANS-CANADA TOUR

A very attractive tour from Toronto to the Pacific Coast, to be personally conducted by Dr. W. E. Hume, has been arranged to leave Toronto July 11th, returning August 2nd, a total of twenty-two days of delightful travel by rail, steamer and automobile.

The party will journey via Canadian National trains and boats, visiting Jasper National Park, Banff, Lake Louise, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria and Prince Rupert. Especially attractive features will include three full days at Jasper National Park; the Triangle Tour of British Columbia through the Canadian Rockies, with its 500-mile steamer sail in the scenic seas of the North Pacific Coast; a visit to Wainwright Buffalo Park in Alberta; the great lakes cruise from Port Arthur to Sarnia, and, of course, interesting sight-seeing trips by automobile at stopover points. Dr. Hume is well and popularly known throughout the city and district, and this, together with his own previous travel experiences, ensures for all members of this party a delightful trip. Write for a descriptive folder to Trans-Canada Tour, Room 100, 6 King street West, Toronto, or apply to any Canadian National Agent.

Around the City

The Caledonian Choir met in the Moose Hall for their usual monthly practice this week. A few old favorite pieces were selected and practiced. This choir is making good progress, and the outlook is very encouraging, but the conductor, A. Clark, would like it still further augmented and would welcome a few more voices. During the summer monthly meetings will be held, and it is proposed that the next meeting be in the form of a 'novelty night,' at which the presence of every member and any new members is greatly desired.



500 MEMBERS NECESSARY FOR LIVE SOCIETY

screen lingered around the cathedral city of Peterborough where Rev. Mr. Tebb was born, and passed on to Leicester, then to Kent, Suffolk, Kew Gardens and some other beauty spots of the old land. The formal gardens, lily ponds and rockeries were masterpieces of the professional florist's art enchanting appurtenances of mansions, palaces and estates of the rich.

A vote of thanks by Mr. A. Mowat, seconded by F. D. Kerr, K. C. was expressed to Rev. Mr. Tebb by the chairman.

Rev. Mr. Tebb was advertized and actually is an expert under the Ontario Department of Agriculture and in that respect is a public servant responsible to the government of the province. If some of his witticism were not embarrasing to the audience, such as this gem:—"I used to love my garden
But now my love is dead
Since I found a Bachelor's Button
In Brown-Eyed Susan's bed"—one of them at least might possibly prove embarrassing to Rev. Mr. Tebb if any person of a certain religious denomination were to take the allusion seriously and to protest to the Hon. John S. Martin that it gave offense, was entirely unwarranted, and altogether unbecoming of a paid representative of a cabinet Minister of the Ontario Government whose personal utterances and conduct have won for him universal respect and goodwill.

Tracing the history of the Horticultural Society in the province since its founding twenty-five years ago, he stated that the membership had grown to number 80,000 in 327 societies, and that two years from now would assuredly reach 100,000. He emphasized his belief that Peterborough needed many new members in its society. Pressure is being brought to bear on the provincial government to increase the grant of $20,000 to the society, he said, since the government was leaving the job of decorating the roads and highways to the Horticultural Society. He believed that a short course should be established at O.A.C. in Guelph for the teaching of horticulture and by this intensive training more specialists and teachers would be sent out through the province.

Dealing with the duty of beautifying the highways with flowers and trees, Mr. Tebbs said, "We must show the tourists by our gardens that Canada is not a land of ice and snow but a land of flowers and sunshine."

Beauty for Old Home Week

"The membership of your society in Peterborough should be at least five hundred if the great work of cleaning up your city so that the Old Boys who are coming home to your celebration may not feel ashamed of the people who were left behind to care for Peterborough." Mr. Tebbs said that he had preached at the close of the war that the people must beautify Canada so that the returning soldiers would feel proud of the land they had fought for.

Many of the slides showed some of the beauty spots of Burlington, the speaker's home town, and in each case care was taken that the before and after effect should be well pointed out. One important duty that the Horticulturist members are doing in that town, it was said, was the replacing of all the trees that were destroyed by wind or died of old age. Hard maples were held up as the best shade trees for highways and street.

"Cleaning up and planting flowers is contagious," said the speaker; "if you improve your place, your neighbor, not to be outdone, will try to bring his property up to the mark set by you or even strive to surpass your effort.

Speaking on the need for the protection of our wild flowers, Mr. Tebbs said, "The motorists are ravaging us of our wild flowers by tearing them up wantonly and they are strewing them upon our highways from their cars."

RUBBER SEED WAS SMUGGLED FROM AMAZON

Local Man Suggested to Late Sir Henry Wickham Rubber Plantation Idea.

70,000 SEEDLINGS RAISED.

Brother of William Grieve Helped Finance Great British Project.

In connection with the following article referring to the death of Sir Henry Wickham and his relation to the plantation rubber industry, the manner in which Sir Henry crashed into the rubber industry makes an interesting story.

When William Grieve of Peterborough was on a visit to the Old Country in 1892, the question of the shortage of rubber was taken up, and he suggested the district on the Tapajos River where the best rubber grew, and a brother of Mr. Grieve and two other gentleman financed Sir Henry in the undertaking to get the seeds.

These seeds were first started in Kew Gardens and from the supply 70,000 rubber seedlings were raised.

These were eventually transplanted in a number of British possessions and as a result the great plantation rubber industry of Sir Henry Alexander Wickham was the outcome.

Sir Henry Alexander Wickham, who died recently in London in his 84th year, was the man who, in face of extraordinary difficulties, succeeded in smuggling seeds of the Hevea tree from the Upper Amazon and so laid the foundation of the vast plantation rubber industry. Looking every inch a pioneer, broad-shouldered and heavily built, with an extraordinary long and wavy moustache, his physical strength was as great as his resolution. To these qualities he owed his escape from the many adventures which he encountered in his wanderings.

Began Experimenting

While a planter in Brazil, he began experimenting with rubber trees, from seeds gathered in the forests, and speedily became convinced that it would be possible to cultivate them and introduce them into other parts of the tropics. Returning to England, he tried to interest capitalists in the scheme, but was treated as a visionary.

As a result of the publication of his book, "A Journey Through the Wilderness," in 1872, and with the help of Sir Joseph Hooker, then director of Kew Gardens, who had been urging the Government of India to take up the cultivation of rubber, he was commissioned by the India Office in 1876 to collect seeds of the Hevea Braziliensis. The Brazilian Government were doing their best to conceal the existence of these trees, and would certainly have forbidden the export of any seeds. Fortunately, Wickham was not hampered by any definite instructions. He went to Santarem and waited. One day a steamer appeared, the first of a line for trading on the upper reaches of the Amazon. When her freight was discharged the supercargoes all deserted, and she was left on the captain's hands. Wickham at once chartered her for the Government of India, and then started up the Tapajos river in a canoe to gather the seeds. Reaching the high tableland between the Tapajos and the Madeira, after many narrow escapes from drowning,he struck into the primeval forest and with the help of Tapuyo Indians, gathered the seeds, which the native girls packed between layers of wild banana leaf in baskets of split cane.

Speed Was Necessary

Everything had to be done against time, but at last the baskets of seeds were brought back into the canoe and safely hung up in the empty ship. At Para, Wickham obtained clearance, explaining that he was in charge of delicate botanical specimens for Queen Victoria's garden at Kew. There, to the delight of Hooker, he deposited his treasure, and in a fortnight there were 70,000 little rubber plants flourishing in the glasshouses. From this stock sprang up all the Hevea trees of the whole plantation rubber industry. Many people are probably, even now, under the delusion that the vast rubber industry of the East is the product of indigenous trees.

In 1911 at an international rubber banquet in London, tribute was paid to Wickham's achievement, and the Rubber Growers' Association of London and the Planters' Associations of Ceylon and Malaya presented him with 1,000 guineas and an annunity: authorities of Kew Gardens received a piece of plate in acknowledgment of their services.

Wickham was at one time Inspector of Forests and Commissioner of Crown Lands in India and a police inspector and magistrate in British Honduras. For half a century he was an explorer and pioneer planter in Central America, Australia, New Guinea, and the Pacific Islands. In the Birthday honors in 1920 Wickham received a knighthood. He married in 1871, Violet Cave, daughter of Mr. C. Carter. In addition to his book, already mentioned, he published in 1908, a work on the introduction, plantation and cultivation of Para (Hevea) rubber.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND HIS SNEEZE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate)

Sometimes Uncle Wiggily wore glasses. This was when he thought he would have trouble finding adventures. Other times the old gentleman rabbit did not wear glasses over his pink, twinkling nose. This was on bright, sunny days when he could see well with his own eyes. At such times Mr. Longears left his glasses home on the mantel shelf to watch the clock tick.

This story is about one of the days when Uncle Wiggily wore his glasses.

It happened early in the morning, when the sun was warm and bright that Uncle Wiggily thought he would hop out and look for an adventure. But as adventures had been very scarce of late he put on his glasses.

"Oh, thank you, Uncle Wiggily!" chirped Nellie.

"For," he said to himself, "even though the sun is bright, I shall need my glasses to find an adventure. I don't know why it is, but my adventures seem to be getting smaller and smaller. Soon I shall need stronger glasses to see them."

However Uncle Wiggily wasn't unhappy. He sang and whistled as he hopped along and pretty soon he met Dickie and Nellie Chip Chip, the sparrow children. Nellie was crying.

"Oh, my dear, what's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"She lost her penny that she was going to buy an oatmeal lollypop with," sang Dickie.

"I didn't lose it—you lost it!" said Nellie and she cried more tears. "You lost my penny, Dickie Chip Chip, and you know it," said the little girl bird.

"How did it happen?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Mother gave us each a penny this morning when we started for school," explained Dickie, "and she said we could buy lollypops."

"And I let Dickie carry my penny with his, under his wing," said Nellie, "and just now he looked and there was only ONE penny under his wing, instead of TWO, and he said it was MY penny that was lost."

"So it was!" chirped Dickie. "I'm awful sorry, but it was Nellie's penny that I dropped and lost."

"How can you tell it was Nellie's penny when all pennies looks so much alike?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"'Cause I know—I'm sure it was Nellie's penny," said the boy bird. "But she needn't worry. I'll give her some of my lollypop."

"You won't need to do that," spoke Uncle Wiggily, his eyes twinkling behind his glasses. "I have an extra penny and I'll give that to Nellie for the one you los , Dickie."

"Oh, thank you, Uncle Wiggily!" chirped Nellie and she was very happy and so was her brother for he liked lollypops very much.

So when Uncle Wiggily had given Nellie a new penny both sparrow children were happy and they were going to fly on to school when Nellie whispered to her brother:

"Uncle Wiggily did us a big favor. Don't you think we ought to do one for him?"

"Sure!" said Dickie. "But what can we do?"

"Maybe his shoe lace is untied, or something like that," sang Nellie softly, "and we could tie it fo him."

But when they looked, both of Uncle Wiggily's shoe laces were tied so they could not do that favor. And they were wondering what they could do when, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily sneezed. It was a large, loud sneeze for the sun tickled his eyes.

And, a he sneezed his glasses flew off his pink nose and bounced up over a high fence near where he had met the sparrow children. It was a tight fence, so Uncle Wiggily could not crawl or burrow under it to get into the field where his glasses had bounced. And it was such a high fence he could not jump over. And it was such a strong fence that he could not gnaw a hole through it.

"Oh, dear! How am I ever going to get my glasses to look for an adventure?" sighed the old rabbit gentleman.

"Now we have a chance to do Uncle Wiggily a favor" chirped Nellie.

"How?" asked her brother.

"We can fly over the high fence," went on Nellie, "and we can pick up Uncle Wiggily's glasses in our beaks and fly back with them to him. Come on. We'll have time before the last bell rings."

Over the fence flew the sparrow children. They saw the glasses, picked them up together in their beaks and flew back with them.

"Oh, how kind of you!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Now I can see to look for an adventure." So he hopped along, Dickie and Nellie went to school with pennies to buy oatmeal lollypops and everybody was happy.

The watch and clock industry of Germany is highly concentrated, about 70 per cent of the production coming from the Black Forest region.

It is understood that the Playfair interests have completed arrangements for the consolidation of the businesses of five towing and wrecking companies in Montreal, Toronto, Sarnia and other places, thereby effecting a consolidation of practically all these businesses from the port of Montreal to the head of the Great Lakes. It will link up powerful shipping and financial interests with the towing and wrecking business. It is understood that the board of directors will include: (1) John C. Newman; (2) James Playfair, president; (3) Noah Timmins, president of the Hollinger Mines; and (4) Senator Donat Raymond, director of the Imperial Life Assurance Co. of Canada.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

The pin boys will have a heavy session of it from now until next Saturday night, stacking up the pins for the husky trundlers who have entered the tournament at the Duffus Recreation Academy.

More than 25 teams have entered this year, and, judging from the amount of enthusiasm shown, the results of this tourney should go down in history as being one of the heaviest hitting contests ever held in the local alley.

Gene Hurtubise and his stalwart gang of bowling knights crashed their way to the championship of the Wednesday Night League at the K. of C. Alleys. Fred and Joe Jones, Clint and Milo Heath and the Brioux brothers, backed up by little Gene, were too strong for the rest of the teams.

Bert Duffus and Tommy Ryan are in a deadlock for first place in the Monday Night League down at the Knights, and if some pin smashing records are not chalked up when these two gangs lock horns, it will certainly surprise us.

Toronto and Peterborough teams from the C.G.E. bump the alleys tonight at the Duffus Alleys, and a hot battle is expected.

ATTEMPT TO FORM CABINET.

VIENNA, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Otto Ender, Governor-General of the Province of Vorarlberg and a member of the Christian Socialist party, to-day agreed to try to form a Cabinet, to succeed Dr. Ignaz Seipel, who resigned recently.

ONE OF THE FAVORITES

STORM QUEEN,

Three-year-old, by Uncle John Overseas, by Charles Edward, entered for this year's King's Plate, was probably the most active home-bred juvenile to sport silks last season. This filly faced the barrier on no less than twenty-one occasions and failed to catch the judge's eye first in any one of those starts. Her record shows her finishing second three times, third in five of her efforts, and being unplaced in the remaining thirteen starts. This filly is the sole nominee of George H. Sparks and is being prepared for her Plate engagement by J. Akens.

CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE NOTES

At last night's meeting the transfer of four players to Peterborough was approved by the O.B.A.A. executive. All four are former residents who have returned home. Roy Smyth from Oaklahoma City, Johnny Marchen from Smiths Falls, Fred Hickey from Renfrew and Lambert Collins from Deloro.

Vic Hamilton, Tommy Holyman and Max Swanston are representing the Peterborough Central Ontario League Club at the Central Ontario League meeting in Belleville to-day. The chief topic of interest is the application of Kingston for re-admission, which is sure to be refused in view of the opposition of the Oshawa and Peterborough clubs.

The Kingston press agent who has been loading the Toronto papers with propaganda had better get his dope right. He says that Kingston stuck to the Central loop while Oshawa deserted in favor of a Toronto league and then, finding the League on that occasion and then were glad to come back to the Central League. There's not a word of truth in the whole statement. The only year Oshawa played in a Toronto League was two seasons ago when the Central didn't operate, and as for finding the opposition too strong, it should be remembered even in Kingston that Oshawa won the Toronto section of the Lakeshore League on htta occasion and then was beaten by the Petes, who went on and eliminated St. George's, the T.A.B.A. winners. As a matter of fact the Ponies have quit cold twice, last year when they failed to finish the schedule and several seasons ago when they won the Central title and then dropped out of the playoffs, leaving the Central loop without representation in the Ontario series.

Manager Max Swanston of the Petes has been busy signing players this week and while the roll is not yet compelted, the following list is already available:

Pitchers—Al Heckman, Jeff Hardill, Roy Smyth, Angus Macdonald.

Catchers— Max Swanston, Doug. Hatton.

Infielders and Outfielders — Fred Hickey, Hap Harrison, Fred Ash, Ray Rose, 'Red" Hollingsworth, Johnny Marchen, 'S'hockey" Mein, Tommy Marchen, "Shockey" Mein, Tom-Jimmy Hall, Beavis, Jake Hall, L. Hollingsworth.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Four local men left this morning by motor for Hamilton, where they will attend the "Mad Fourth" reunion being held there to-day and to-morrow. They were C. B. Williams, Clarence Massey, James Jacobs and Gilbert Winstanley.

Mr. S. A. Maguire is spending the week-end in Toronto.

Yesterday the members of the Campbellford Tennis Club got out their racquets and shoes and tried their hands at the game after a long winter. The courts were in good condition and the regular activities of the club may be considered to have begun for the season.

An eighty-foot washout is all that separates the local motorists from the provincial highway at Brighton. This is at the spot where the spring freshet destroyed the piers of the county bridge and swept the entire structure out of place. So far no noticeable move to repair the damage has been made other than a temporary foot bridge. The four-mile detour on either side is still the only means of getting through. The bridge itself is constructed of fence wire, poles, inch lumber and ordinary wire. The whole is anchored in place by a logging chain snubbed to a post placed for the purpose.

GERMANS HOPE NEGOTIATIONS WILL CONTINUE

now to prolong the conference only to attempt a shift in blame for its breakdown, and further strengthen himself and his confreres in Berlin.

After his uncompromising attitude of Thursday they will require more than plagatory words and complaints of "ministerpretation" to be convinced of Dr. Schacht's good faith in wishing resumption of negotiations, some close to the conference said today. A new offer, with its guise of "ultimatum" and uncompromisingly low figures eliminated, might serve.

In the 36 hours succeeding the German bombshell in the session of Lord Revelstoke's sub-committee on Thursday, Dr. Schacht made numerous statements interpreted as efforts to transfer elsewhere the onus of having broken up the conference. One journal to-day quoted him in one such:

Not Last Word.

"I never said our proposals of Wednesday constituted the German delegation's last word."

He was asked if the German delegation was ready to make fresh proposals. He hesitated and then answered:

"Please understand, I never considered the present conference as a market place where bids and offers would be handed about. Our proposals were conceived in the same spirit as the Allied memorandum to us; they were merely one of the phases of a long discussion of figures which we had officially initiated only the preceding week. I have always manifested ardently a desire to achieve a clear-cut result and I have always said I would be the last man to leave the conference."

Then he said, "I am ready to discuss all suggestions the Allies may make in answer to the proposals I submitted them."

His interviewer observed they had found them quite inadequate, to which Dr. Schacht rejoined, "Believe me, the criticisms I found in this morning's Paris press are quite premature. I insist on that word."

"Cultures have been made of the organisms taken from the blood and they have been injected into guinea pigs and rabbits. The animals showed no ill effects in 24 hours, showing that the germ that was found is not an acutely virulent organism."

No new cases have been reported to the Department of Health.

LONDON, Ont., April 20 (C.P.).—Steady improvement in the condition of Georoge Semple, aged 6, son of Robert Semple, in St. Joseph's hospital, suffering from a disease which medical opinion attributes to the same species of streptococci which has already claimed four lives in Ekfrid township, is noted by specialists battling to save his life. His condition is much improved to-day.

Edward Sinclair, young Ekfried township farmer, who is in Victoria Hospital suffering from streptoccus remains unchanged. His mother and sister have already succumbed to the disease.

NEURITIS? Sciatica? Rheumatism?

T-R-C's are wonderful for Neuritis. Mr. W. H. Davis of Grand Bend, Ont., had this so badly that his wife had to dress him. T-R-C's made him well. He says, "My wife also used them for Arthritis. LEAFS WIN AT BALTIMORE BY 2-1 SCORE

TWO HOMERS FEATURE TILT

Chambers Holds Toronto Club To There Hits in Third Game.

ROCHESTER WINS OUT.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 20.—(C.P.)— The Leafs clipped Andy Chambers, Baltimore's good right-hander, for only three hits in the third game of the series here yesterday, but two of the hits were liners into the right field bleachers by Fred Bedore and Les Burke. The ound-tippes spoiled a swell pitching effort by Chambers, and gave the Leafs a 2 to 1 victory, their second of the set, with one game to play.

BIRDS EVEN SERIES.

READING, April 20. — (Canadian Press.) — Rocheser evened the series with Reading at one-all by taking an 11 to 5 decision from the Keys here yesterday. Rochester pounded out 16 hits off there Reading pitchers, while Tex Carlton and Carlisle Littlejohn held Reading to 11, four of which came in the final inning. Hawks hit a home run with Quellich on first base in the fourth inning.

ROYALS WIN SECOND.

NEWARK, April 20.—(C.P.)—The Montreal Royals made it two straight over Newark Bears here yesterday by the score of 6 to 4.

GIANTS SWAMP PHILLIES 14-5

Heavy Hitting of New Yorkers Only Feature of the Game.

TAKE EARLY LEAD.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—(C.P.)—The Giants pounded the Phillies for the second successive time to take a 14-to-5 victory. The heavy hitting of the New Yorkers was the only feature of the game. They hammered out 20 hits off Roy, Elliott and Collins. Starting with seven runs in the opening inning, Jimmy Welsh contributed a homer to this onslaught. The Phils got three runs in their half of the first, added another by Cy Williams' homer in the sixth, and one more in the seventh.

Hits Into Sun Field Aid Yanks To Win 2-1

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 20. — (Canadian Press). — The Yankees had the best of a pitching duel between Waite Hoyt and Jack Quinn yesterday and defeated the Athletics 2 to 1. A series of freak hits into the sunfield in the seventh and eighth gave them their counters when the Philadelphia fielders lost the ball in the sun. Hoyt gave only four hits and winn five.

SENATORS WIN FIRST FIXTURE

Washington Defeats Boston 3-1 After Losing First Two Games.

INDIANS RALLY TO WIN.

WASHINGTON, April 20 (C.P.)—After dropping the first two games of the season to the Athletics, the Washington Senators finally broke into the win column yesterday with a 3 to 1 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

CLEVELAND, April 20 (C.P.).—The Cleveland Indians came from behind in the last three innings to snatch a 7 to 4 victory from the Detroit Tigers yesterday. The decision gave the Tribe the series three games out of four.

St. John Trojans Lose First Basketball Final

WINDSOR, April 20 (C.P.).—The Trojans from St. John, N.B., were buried under an avalanche of baskets in the first game of the Eastern Canada Senior basketball finals last night against the Windsor Collegiate Alumni, Dominion champions. The score was 58 to 29 in favor of the alumni.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the big leagues has got under way, so even though the weather as this is wrote feels like just before Christmas summer can't be so far off after all. They wasn't nothing striking about the opening day performances, Mac, except old Mister Grover Clevelander only allowed 5 hits in his 1st start. This is the bird some folks has said is a booze hound. Well, if that's true—and Alex. says it ain't—it reminds me of the old nifty Abraham Lincoln is said to have pulled about Gen. Grant. You remember somebody told Lincoln that Grant liked his liquor too much, and Honest Abe come back with the statement that he'd like to know the brands Grant used so he could give it to the rest of his generals. Most of the big league pilots would be glad to supply their throwers with any kind of beverage that would make them toss 'em past the batters the way the ancient Mister Alexander can and does.

Mister O'Neill's Leaves got away to a nice start, too, Mac, thanks to the Rabbitt punch, which ain't barred in baseball even if it is frowned on in other sports. I for 1 didn't think the Toronto crew looked very strong, but anybody is liable to make a mistake—that's why they put rubber mats under cuspidors—and mebbe Mister O'Neill will round out a winning machine in spite of the fact that the spring crop of ivory didn't produce many prize performers.

Here in town, Mister Sporting Editor, Mister Swanston, the leader of the Central Ontario Leaguers, ain't been idle, and from the number of players that has already signed on the dotted line, the Petes' skipper is going to be ready for action when the bell rings. The cry for young material is going to be answered this year, Mac, for it looks like the Petes will have plenty of youthful performers. Mister Swanston's recruits include 4 members of last year's Royals—Mister Doug. Hatton, catcher; Mister Red Hollingsworth, infielder, and Mister Beavis and Mister L. Hollingsworth, outfielders. Then he has other youngsters in Messrs. Shockey Mein, Johnny Marchen and Hickey, a young first baseman from down Renfrew way, and they may be others soon, while the coming back to town of none other than Mister Jimmy Hall is as welcome as Mister Baldwin's lifting of the tea tax musta been over in the Old Country. With no losses from last year's squad and all this new material, including Mister Hank Smyth, erstwhile local pitcher who has been pastiming out in the wide open spaces of the American West for quite some time, Mister Swanston is in better shape to face a campaign than the Petes has been for many a moon, and they is likely to be quite a changed line-up in action when Victoria Day rolls around.

As this is more like rugby weather, the agitation what is going on about the forward pass in football ain't much outa season at that. Personally I'd like to see them give that forward toss a try out, for it looks like something that would add speed and the surprise element to the fall pastime, and the fans will welcome that change. Football rules, Mac, is like the prescriptions the doctors write in Latin—nobody but them and the druggist know what they mean. The average bird that goes to a football fracas has only a hazy idea of what the code is, and they is times when neither the officers or the players seem to know a great deal more. In spite of that, however, the game is developing a bigger following each year, and there is no doubt that the opening up of the play by allowing the forward pass would be a mighty good thing.

The schools announced this week, Mac, that they're going to play hardball again. That's a occasion for 3 rousing cheers. The dropping of the regulation game for the picnic brand was a mistake, and I'm glad the schools is back to the real stuff again. I read in some paper the other day that Canada deserved credit for making softball and 5-pin bowling popular. That's banana oil. Both of them games is all right mebbe, but it looks to me that when hardball and ten pins was dropped in favor of the new brand that folks was looking for something softer and easier to play. Across the line they're not satisfied with anything but the real article, but we're content to play the modified form of both games here, mainly because they're soft. And our dads used to ride 100 miles a day on a bicycle or chase each other up and down a field in the July sunshine armed with a lacrosse stick that bounced off beans and massaged ribs with equal force.

Well, life's like that, ain't it, Mac, and you nor me can't change it, so I might as well turn off the switch right here.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

New Westminster Adanacs Win Western Championship

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., April 20 (C.P.).—New Westminster Adanacs, British Columbia title holders, won the Western Canada basketball championsnip here last night when they defeated Winnipeg Toilers, 22 to 8, in the second and final game of the play-off series. As the Toilers won the first game Wednesday night by a margin of one point, Adanacs annexed the series, 44 to 31, and won their way into the Dominion finals.

Hafey's Two Homers Features Card Win

CINCINNATI, April 20.—(Canadian Press)—Hafey's two home runs featured yesterday's game here in which the Cardinals defeated the Reds 9 to 4. Both teams fielded raggedly and received poor pitching. Pittenger starred at bat for the Reds with three singles. Ford, leading fielding short-stop last year, made two errors.

MILES BREAKS OLD RECORD

Victor of 1926 Race Lowers Mark Set By Clarence DeMar.

CANADIANS MAKE GOOD.

BOSTON, Mass., April 20.—(C.P.)—Little Jimmy Miles, now of Hamilton, once of Sydney Mines, reeled them off yesterday in record-breaking style and crossed the finish line in the Boston Marathon, the winner for the second time in four years. The Canadian legs and heart and lungs carried the diminutive lad 26 miles, 385 yards, in two hours, 33 minutes, 8 4-5 seconds. They broke the record made last year by Clarence DeMar, six times winner, by almost four minutes. Miles incidentally acquired the National Amateur Athletic Union's Marathon Championship, which goes over the border for a year to repose under the Maple Leaf with various other titles held by Percy Williams and Ethel Catherwood.

Miles is the sixth Canadian to win the historic marathon and the second Canadian double winner. Caffrey of Hamilton, won in 1900 and returned the next year to win again. Miles won in 1926, setting up a record which was voided when the course was measured and found short.

Another good Canadian, William Taylor of Sydney Mines, upheld the prowess of the Maritimes by taking sixth place in yesterday's race. He ran a heady and gritty course, but did not have the speed of the leaders. Montreal was represented by G. Routsalaines, who slipped in behind Taylor and following him was a Britisher, Roland O'Toole of St. John's, Nfld. The French-Canadian led the man from the island by about two minutes.

Karl Koski, of New York, was second and Willie Kyronen, his Finnish-American club mat, third in the race of 1929. Whitey Michelson, of the Millrose' A.A., New York, who raced shoulder to shoulder with Miles for 25 miles, landed fourth place in 2 hours, 37 minutes, 22 1-5 seconds. The Boston race has always been Whitey's "Jonah," though he was much more impressive yesterday than in previous years.

Boston Braves Winners Twin Bill From Robins

BOSTON, April 20. —(Canadian Press). — The Braves celebrated Patriots' Day by riding roughshod over the Brooklyn Robins in morning and afternoon games. The morning decision was taken by 6 to 5. The winning run crossed the plate with one out in the ninth, when Bisonnette fumbled Richbourg's grounder and let Hearn score from third. Some 20,000 fans saw the afternoon contest, in which Ed. Brandt held the flock to three hits. The Braves won by 5 to 1. Dazzy Vance was the losing pitcher.

HART RESIGNS MANAGERSHIP

Believed Probable Joe Cattarinich Will Take Over Helm of Canadiens Club.

CLEGHORN AS COACH.

MONTREAL, Que., April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Cecil Hart, for several years manager of the Canadiens club in the National Hockey League, resigned yesterday. Mr. Hart, who was persuaded to continue at the club's helm during the season just closed, feels that it is too much for him to handle the team and spend so much time away from his business.

It is regarded as probable that Joe Cattarinich, senior partner of the noted sport triumvirate of Cattarinich, Dandurand & Letourneau will take over the team, and the possibility is advanced that Odie Cleghorn, former manager at Pittsburgh, will be signed on as coach.

CROTHERS WINS DOMINION TITLE

Ontario Featherweight Champion Wins At Port Arthur.

MATHIESON A VICTOR.

PORT ARTHUR, April 20. (C.P.)—The East and West stand even last night in the jousts for 1929 Canadian mitt and mat titles, with only one more night of battling remaining. Featherweight and bantam boxing crowns were assured to-night for the east, while the featherweight wrestling championship went to the Prairies to join the welter mat title.

Bac kto Montreal Harold Stewart, only 1928 champion to show during the first two nights, will carry his featherweight crown, dented only a little in his final encounter with George Holden of Winnipeg. A linotype operator, Bobby Crothers, of Sarnia, gained the bantam boxing title by defeating Arnie Johannesson, the Winnipeg Icelander, in the final. Both bouts were settled on judicial decisions.

Boxing.

Featherweight semi-final: George Holden, 125, Winnipeg, defeated Jimmy McComb, 125, Fort William. (Technical knockout in third round.)

Flyweight semi-final: Malcolm Mathieson, 107, Toronto, defeated Tommy McLean, 112, Port Arthur. (Decision.)

Bantam final: Bobby Crothers, 118, Sarnia, defeated Arnie Johannesson, 117, Winnipeg. (Decision.)

Featherweight final: Harold Stewart, 125, Montreal, (Dominion champion 1928), defeated George Holden, 125, Winnipeg. (Decision.)

Welterweight semi-final: Stan Seymour, 145, Montreal, defeated Percy Brown, 143, Melville, Sask. (Knock-out in second round.)

Wrestling.

Featherweight final: Johnny Raho, 131, Regina, defeated George Gauthier, 134, Kenora. (Two of three periods, decision.)

Heavyweight semi-final: Eino Mahlo Port Arthur, defeated Herman Heisman, Port Arthur (one fall, 1:11.)

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

RONALD COLMAN COMES TO THE CAPITOL ON MONDAY, AS A FEARLESS SEA ROVER IN THE FAMOUS TALE BY JOSEPH CONRAD "THE RESCUE." IT'S THE FIRST STARRING PICTURE OF THE FAMOUS LOVER.

The first individual starring picture of a screen actor who has long been considered one of the most prominent in the films comes to the Capitol theatre on Monday in Joseph Conrad's "The Rescue" with Ronald Colman as its star. In this picture the screen's great love appears as a fearless sea rover. This is the first picture Colman has made since his appearance with Vilma Banky in Goldwyn's United Artists picture, "Two Lovers."

To make the picturization of this romance of the Java seas which was Joseph Conrad's favorite among all his adventure stories and which he considered his masterpiece, Samuel Goldwyn secured the services of Herbert Brenon, director of "Beau Geste" and "Sorrell and Son", and chose it to introduce to the United States his latest find, Lily Damita the French danseuse and picture actress who has been the sensation of European films for several years.

Duke Kahanamoku, the famous swimming champion, Phillip Strange and Laska Winters are other names prominent in the film world who have important roles in "The Rescue."

The picture was filmed on Santa Cruz Island, the least inhabited members of the Catalina group off the California coast. An entire fleet of yachts, sailing vessels and subsidiary craft was gathered together for the production. The climax of the location work came when a 250-foot schooner, filled with dynamite, was exploded off the island, at a cost of $50,000 for 25 feet of film.

The story of the famous Conrad romance concerns an English trader and free-booter who has become involved in native wars, trying to repay a native Rajah for his past services in assisting him back to the throne from which he has been exiled. The appearance of an English yacht on the scene of these contraband operations brings complications in the shape of a beatiful Frenchwoman of the yachting party with whom the trader falls in love. The struggle between his obligations to his native friends and his love for Mrs. Travers gives Colman an admirable opportunity for the fine acting for which he is noted.

"The Rescue" is the sixth picture that Colman has made for the Goldwyn studios, the others having been as a co-star with Vilma Banky in "The Dark Angel," "The Night of Love," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Magic Flame" and "Two Lovers."

THREATENED BREAK IN ONTARIO AMATEUR BASEBALL AVERTED

O. B. A. A. Allows T. A. B. A. To Lengthen Championship Series.

EXECUTORS APPOINTED.

All Certificates Presented Were Passed With Exception of Two.

TORONTO, April 20.—At a meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association officials here last night the request made by the Toronto Association that the local championship series be lengthened was granted, but the T.A.B.A. champoins must be ready to take part in the O.B.A.A. series against the winners of the Central Ontario League after Sept. 12. This decision practicaly means that there will be no severance of relations between the O.B.A.A. and the T.A.B.A. over the senior-intermediate certificate tax legislation.

President Arthur Hilmer of the Ontario Association announced the appointment of T. J. Burney of Copper Cliff and Alex. Clunes of Blenheim to the executive. Two more will be added in the near future.

A number of committees were appointed for organization and other purposes.

All certificates presented were passed except those for Thomas Boucher of Oshawa and John Destefano of Capreol. Further investigation will be made in regard to these players. Boucher hails from New Haven, Conn., and Destefano from Detroit.

The following certificates were passed:

To Deloro—Harold Buck of Kingston.

To Peterborough—Lambert Collins of Deloro, Fred Hickey of Renfrew, Roy Smith of Oklahoma City, and John Marchand of Smith's Falls.

To Oshawa—Russell J. Wells.

To Toronto —Lawrence Joyce of Kingston, James Rasson of Toronto, Earl Cook of Stouffville, P. E. Gibson of Belleville, Herbert T. Moore of Walkerville, J. J. O'Neill of Oshawa.

To New Toronto—Gerald Blevins of Midland.

To Mimico—Albert Yarnell of Welland.

To Creighton Mines—G. Sloane of Timmins, and G. H. Valin, P. T. Hackett, Harry Cowden, E. G. Fitzjohn, John S. Murray, H. Rothwell and Joe Chisholm, all of McIntyre Mines.

To Sudbury— Adelard Boulay of Timmins.

To Burlington—L. A. McIntyre of Beachville and Albert Peer of Oakville.

To Hamilton— Frank A. May of Port Dalhousie, Dalton Kerkup of Barrie, Robert Little of Milton, Brian Pembroke and Tom Patterson.

To Bridgeburg—R. C. Jacks of Deloro and Edgar Mellanby of Hamilton.

To Galt — Gordon Bradshaw of Brantford, S. M. Pickering of Brantford, A. Watts of St. Thomas.

EIGHT TEAMS COMPOSE LOOP

Annual Reorganization Meeting of City League Will Be Held On Monday Night.

MORE SUPPORT NEEDED.

The importance of attending the City League baseball meeting Monday night in the board room of the Duffus Recreation Academy at eight o'clock is apparent to all baseball fans. It is readily pointed out that more players must be developed and the promotion of younger players is essential. If the proper enthusiasm is shown on Monday night there should be a good representation of the eight teams that make up the league at present. With no trips outside the city until the O.B.A.A. play-offs the expenses of the teams are not heavy until the finals; nevertheless some support is needed during the summer months and the gate receipts should be large enough to take care of that.

In the junior section Jack Deannard promises a comeback with as strong a roster as that of last year, while the Royals, who lost some of their players through the age limit, are expected to be in the field again.

The Moose entry will be back as strong as ever with added strength both in the infield and the outer garden. It is altogether considered likely that the Kiwanis will sponsor a team in this series.

Last but not least in the league comes the bantam section, composed of four teams with a probable fifth entry this season which played some of the best baseball that was seen on the local diamonds last year. Canuck Club have already held a practice, and East City Maple Leafs will be out as strong as ever. While it is not yet known as an authentic fact it is altogether likely that Riley & Hickey will again sponsor a team in this loop.

OSHAWA OPPOSES KINGSTON ENTRY

Trip To Limestone City Too Expensive For General Motors Club.

OSHAWA, April 20. — (C.P.) — The proposed entry of Kingston into the Central Ontario Baseball circuit, has become the object of opposition by the General Motors Baseball Club here. The local club has decided that the trip to Kingston would be entirely too expensive a proposition for the locals as it would add much mileage to a schedule that already includes four teams at a considerable distance from each other. The local delegates to the Central Ontario League meeting in Belleville to-day, W. L. Mitchell, E. Kallman and D. McCallum, have been instructed by the local club to oppose Kingston's entry into the league. The delegates will also uphold the double schedule as against the single one, and will uphold a play-off between the first and second teams at the end of the straight playing season.

Elizabeths Win Easy Victory Over Ottawa

TORONTO, April 20. — (C.P.) — Toronto Elizabeths won an easy victory over the Ottawa Britannias here last night in the first game of their two game series for the Dominion Junior Basketball Championship, when they overwhelmed the Ottawa quintette 47 to 19. The "Lizzies" thus have a 28 point margin to take into the final game here to-night. Total score in the two games counts.

St. Louis Browns Drop First Game Of Season

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—The St. Louis Browns lost their first game of the season yesterday, the Chicago White sox taking the final of the series, 5 to 4. The Six were held scoreless until the eighth when Crouse and Metzler hit home runs, Metzler's blow coming with one on, to drive Coffman from the mound. Doubles by Clancy and Kamm knotted the count. Then in the ninth, Cissell and Metzler worked a double steal, Cissell coming home with the winning run.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

JOHNNY SALO THREATENS TO OVERTAKE DERBY LEADERS

New Jersey Policeman Within Twenty-five Minutes of Second Place.

GARDNER INJURED.

Granville Finishes Fourth in Yesterday's Run To Retain Seventh Position.

Brazil, Ind., April 20 (C.P.).—Johnny Salo's threat to grab second place in the Bunion Derby was the centre of attraction to-day as C. C. Pyle's transcontinental foot racers prepared for a 34-mile run to Marshall, Ills.

By winning four consecutive laps, the Passaic, N.J., policeman is within 25 minutes of Ed. Gardner, Seattle, Washington, negro, who is second in elapsed time. Gardner, hampered by a painful leg, ran eighth in the race from Indianapolis yesterday.

Even Pete Gavuzzi, the bearded Italian from Southampton, England, who holds a lead of almost four hours over Gardner, has kept an eye cocked in the flying Salo's direction. Yesterday, as on the few previous laps, Gavuzzi kept step with Salo until the end of the day's run neared.

Phil Granville, of Hamilton, Ont., finished fourth in yesterday's run and retained seventh position in the elapsed time of 155:13:17.

The standing in elapsed time of the ten leaders follow:

Pete Gavuzzi, England	131:34:02
Ed. Gardner, Seattle, Wn.	135:20:45
John Salo, Passaic, N.J.	135:44:37
Giusto Omek, Italy	145:06:01
Sam Richman, New York	148:48.35
P. Simpson, Burlington, N.C.	153:55:28
Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ont.	155:13:17
M. B. McNamara, Australia	169:59:02
Arthur Newton, S. Africa	170:10:19
Herbert Hedeman, N. Y.	170:56:18

Goodness Doubly Assured

Deeds, not words, build a good name! The name of Dodge Brothers stands for endurance, trustworthiness, long life. Its reputation for dependability rests on a solid and unshakable foundation of years of honest motor car manufacture. The name of Walter P. Chrysler stands for style, for engineering leadership and integrity. His genius has been proved by a long succession of achievements that have virtually revolutionized motor car construction and design. That is why the new Dodge Brothers Six is so outstanding in character and behavior. The sturdiness so long associated with Dodge Brothers cars is a guarantee of its stamina. Its vivid style and spirited performance typify it as a Chrysler creation.

U.E.L. PLAN BIG CELEBRATION

Aircraft Exhibition Will Be One of Main Features at Deseronto.

JUNE 16 TO 19

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 20 (Canadian Press). — Plans for one of the most attractive exhibitions by aircraft held in the Dominion are included in the draft program for the United Empire Loyalist celebration to be held at Deseronto, Ont., June 16-19. The Dominion Government has consented to send several airplanes to the celebration.

Premier W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada and Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario have been invited to the celebration.

The first day of the celebration on June 16 will be quietly observed in the churches, where it is expected a number of Loyalist clergymen will fill each pulpit in Deseronto that Sunday.

Monday, June 17, has been set apart as a military day, the subcommittee in charge of arrangements plans to hold a grand military display in which a Toronto regiment and several other regiments from this district will be asked to participate.

The corner-stone of a U.E.L. monument will be laid on Tuesday, June 18, and the following day a pilgrimage will be made by automobile to the old church at Adolphustown, built by the United Empire Loyalists in 1792 on Paul Huff's farm. A public gathering will be held in the church, the land being given by Paul Huff.

Anglican Churches were erected about the same time by U.E. Loyalists at Kingston, Bath and Niagara, but these original buildings have ceased to exist. Many of the Roman Catholic U.E. Lovalists went to what is now New Brunswick, Montreal, or Quebec City, and there erected churches. The Indian U.E. Loyalists on the Brantford Reserve erected the first U.E. Church in Canada in 1788, but that has long since disappeared.

As evidence of the good feeling existing between the Roman Catholic and the various religious denominations in the early pioneer days, Protestants in Montreal and Quebec City were permitted to use parts of Catholic religious edifices for worship. The erection of churches by the U.E. Loyalists under great difficulties shows that the Loyalists possessed strong religious sentiments. Addresses by prominent persons will be given in the forenoon every day of the celebration.

FOUR SUSPECTS ARE ARRESTED

Believed To Be Members of Gang Which Held Up Beamsville Bank.

CAUGHT AT WALKERVILLE.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 20 (Canadian Press).—The peaceful community of Walkerville was stirred to-day by the arrest of four men who were suspected as members of the gang responsible for the robbery of the Beamsville branch of the Bank of Commerce Tuesday. The quartette will be held in custody for further investigation, although Chief of Police James Smith is doubtful as to his original theory.

The suspects were registered as: Robert Walsh, 25, of Brantford; John Doleman, 25, and John Troskesky, 22, both of Montreal, and Nikolai Youloff, 25, of Toronto. They were arrested at the Walkerville ferry dock and claimed they had been waiting merely for a chance of smuggling themselves over the river into Detroit. Youloff is a Macedonian. The Montreal men are Czechoslovakians, and Walsh is a native of Brantford.

Michigan License On Car.

The men, arriving at the ferry dock in a blue sedan, bearing a Michigan license, first attracted the suspicion of the Customs officers. Walkerville police were notified and the arrests were executed quickly. Walsh was driving the suspects' car. The description of the men tallies with that of the gunmen responsible for the Beamsville enterprise.

Walsh has admitted, police said, to a two-month jail term last year in Toledo, Ohio, for theft of an automobile. He claimed, also that he had been offered $5 last night to drive the sedan empty over to Detroit.

Told Confusing Stories.

The other men told confusing stories. They do not speak much English. They were seeking employment, they said, when "picked up" by a fourth man who drove them around for two hours until they encountered Walsh. They drove around again until the mysterious fourth man alighted and Walsh drove the car to the ferry dock when their arrest followed, they said. The financial resources of the alien trio was $50.

The four men were viewed at noon by Windsor detectives, who voiced satisfaction that they were not wanted by them.

Investigation will be continued by Inspector Arthur Moss of the Provincial Police.

The first alarm clock appeared in 1420.

The Osteopath is a Specialist in the same sense that the oculist and the dentist are specialists and his ministrations are quite as efficacious in their sphere as are those of either the dentist or the oculist.

In fact in the communities where osteopathy has been practiced for a longer period, the osteopath has assumed all the duties of a family physician.

If you are not having the success in the matter of health that you would desire, it would pay you to consult your local osteopath.

MAN IS BURNED TO DEATH IN CAR

Automobile Swerves, Strikes Street Car and Immediately Bursts Into Falmes.

FIREMEN WERE TOO LATE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20 (Canadian Press). — J. W. Barnes, president of the Ese Manufacturing Co., was burned to death early to-day when the car he was driving crashed head-on into a west-bound street car on the Bloor Street Viaduct. According to information given to the police Barnes was driving in an easterly direction at a smart rate of speed, when his car swerved, colliding with the street car, the impact being so tremendous that the latter was lifted bodily and thrown across the rails blocking both east and west tracks.

Within a few moments the automobile and the front portion of the street car were a mass of flames, with the street car uppermost. Barnes pinned underneath was held imprisoned while the flames enveloped him. The crew of the street car and twelve passengers escaped by climbing through windows and with others endeavored to rescue the motorist, but their efforts were unavailing owing to the terrific heat.

The flames roared unchecked until the arrival of the fire reels, but the firemen were too late to effect a rescue.

CALEDONIAN CLUB HOLDS CONCERT

Woodmen of the World Hall Filled To Capacity For Social Evening.

Last night the Woodmen of the World Hall was filled to capacity with an appreciative audience of Caledonians, who had the pleasure of listening to a very enjoyable concert of a high order. Robert Veitch, president, presided, and conducted the meeting in his usual happy style. A vote of thanks for all the artists was very heartily responded to. After the concert the executive served refreshments, then dancing was engaged in to music supplied by Robert Gilmour on the melodeon and W. Dougall at the piano.

The program was as follows:

Bagpipe selection—A. Milne.

Songs—"The Wee Hoose 'mang the Heather" and "When I Meet MacKay," by R. Hendry.

Songs—"The Irish Emigrant" and "The Anchor's Weighed," by Mrs. Lister.

SWIRLING WINDS DRIVING RAIN SCORCHING SUN

IN Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter the elements swoop down upon your home—destroying your property and your comfort. A defective roof then becomes a menace which puts the walls, ceilings and interior decorations of your entire house in jeopardy.

Guard against this danger. Re-roof right over old wood shingles before it is too late—with Brantford Asphalt Slates.

Re-roofing with these beautiful slates NOW will save you endless trouble and expense in months to come. Your home will be secure from Weather's most devastating assaults. And you will have a roof that is fire-safe, colourfully picturesque and unneedful of repairs for a long period of years.

Brantford Asphalt Slates can be obtained in many pleasing colours or combination of colours. Ask the Brantford Roofing dealer to inspect your roof and submit estimates of cost. Also write for free booklet "Beauty With Fire Protection"—a comprehensive treatise on the proper type, finish, design and colour for your roof.

LITTLE GIRL IS RESCUED BY BOY

Tot, While Playing On Bank Of River, Loses Her Balance and Falls In.

ALARM IS RAISED.

WALLACEBURG, April 20—(Canadian Press).—Ruby Harper, aged two and a half years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Harper of Tupperville, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon, when she fell into the river Sydenham, near her home.

It is believed that the child, while playing on the river bank, lost her balance. A man called Perry, working on the opposite bank, noticed the child in the water and called for help. Harold McClure, aged 14, son of Mrs. Jas. McClure, who was at his home close by, rushed to the scene and diving into the water, brought the child to safety. She was in an unconscious condition.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

A man, beast, or shrub, that is dead is lifeless. To say a man is alive when he is dead is a lying absurdity. The sentence passed upon Adam for disobedience was that Adam would die, not part of Adam, but all that went to make up the man Adam, no part of Adam being excepted. Satan deceived Mother Eve, lying to her, saying man would not die. For many centuries Satan's agents have been deceiving the people, by telling them that it is only a part of man dies, the other part, that they are pleased to call the soul, they say it can never die. This is a direct contradiction of the Word of God. The Scriptures say that there is no part of man remains alive, after the breath goes out of the body, Ps. 141:4; Man is a soul, and the soul that sinneth shall die, Ezekiel 18:20. An untruth that has been taught us from our earliest infancy, is extremely difficult to relinquish, even when we are convinced that it is a lie.

PRICE OF EGGS IS MUCH LOWER

Butter Brings 45 Cents a Pound On Local Market.

CHICKENS 35 CENTS.

There was much doleful shaking of heads among the vendors of eggs at the farmers' market this morning, with plenty of the commodity unsold at a late hour. Prices ranged from 23 to 26 cents a dozen and wholesale prices for quantity buying placed them at 20 cents a dozen.

A foreign lady claimed that she bought 23 dozen eggs at 20 cents a dozen and paid the total of $4.60 for them. Then she asserted that a count showed 23 half dozens, instead of dozens, with half the total number lacking.

The note of spring was in the sale of various seeds and the many pussy willows on view.

On the open market, one man had clover seed which was offered at $15 a bushel.

Foliages were on sale, in the basket section, in small plants that were priced at 25 cents apiece, one sample having the attractive name of angel-wing."

Out of doors, potatoes were $1 a bag and russet apples were 60 cents a peck. Spies were 75 cents a peck. White beans were 15 cents a quart and watercress was 25 cents for three bunches.

Red onions were 65 cents a peck.

Little pigs were $12 and $13 a pair.

The auctioneer had various articles for sale. One interesting exhibit was a big, rangy bay horse that went through its paces many times before the hammer finally knocked it down at $100.

WEDDING BELLS

RODGERS—BASSETT.

MADOC, April 29. — (Examiner Correspondence). — At St. John's Church, Madoc, on Wednesday April 10, a very pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. G. Landsbury when Marguerite Josephine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bassett, of Madoc, was united in holy matrimony with Frederick James, son of Mrs. Margaret Rodgers and the late Wesley Rodgers, of Tweed.

The young couple were attended by Miss Margaret Kingston, of West Huntingdon, and William Bassett, brother of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers left by motor for Niagara Falls and Toronto. On their return they will reside in Tweed.

LYNCH—HEFFERNAN

A pretty wedding took place on Tuesday, April 9th, at the Church of the Sacred Heart, when Gertrude Bridget, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heffernan of Otonabee, became the bride of William Albert Lynch of Hastings. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien.

The bride wore a lovely gown of beige georgette with hat, shoes and hose to match and carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses and maidenhair fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Muriel Lynch, sister of the bridegroom, was in blue georgette with hat to match and bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The brother of the bride, Mr. Francis Heffernan, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, the bridal party motored to the home of the bride where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate friends.

Mr. Lynch and his bride left later by motor for Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their return, they will reside on the bridegroom's farm at Asphodel.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a pearl rosary, to the bridesmaid a brooch of white gold, and to the best man a set of gold cuff links.

OBITUARY

MRS. BRIDGET O'BRIEN.

The death occurred at her late residence, 541 Gilmour street, Saturday morning, of Mrs. Bridget O'Brien, widow of the late Cornelius O'Brien.

Funeral will be held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John S. Condon, lot 11, concession 1, Douro, on Monday morning, to St. Joseph's church. Interment in St. Joseph's cemetery.

WALTER COTTON

There passed away in Toronto last evening Walter Cotton, a former resident of this city. He was employed in the C.G.E. here.

The remains are being brought to this city on the noon train Monday and the funeral will be held at 3 p.m. Monday afternoon from Comstock's Undertaking Parlours, 305 Water Street to the Little Lake cemetery.

The service will be under the auspices of the Masonic Order.

Ill Health Envies Good Health

Just as poverty envies prosperity. To enjoy life and succeed in your undertakings you need good health. One way, and a most logical way, too, of helping yourself to health is to keep your spinal nerves free of irritation and pressure. Because if a nerve is constricted it cannot supply its quota of energy to the tissue cells. This means lessened capacity for work and lessened resistance to disease. Your nervous system controls the activity of every part of your body. Therefore, it is important that no nerve impingement exists along the spine.

FOR YOUR HEALTH NEEDS, TAKE CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS.

NEWS IN BRIEF

STEAMER IS DAMAGED.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 22. (C.P.)—The steamer John O. McKellar, bound from Sarnia, Ont., for Middlesborough, arrived here last night for repairs, her propeller blades having been damaged by ice off Cape Race.

INQUIRY OPENS.

LONDON, April 22. (C.P.) — A searching inquiry into the sinking of the British steamship Vestris off the United States coast last November, with the loss of 115 lives was opened in London to-day at the instance of the Board of Trade.

RAILWAYMAN DEAD.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 22.—(C.P.)—J. E. Nelson, superintendent of the Canadian National Railways at Hornepayne, Ont., died suddenly at his home there on Sunday night, according to word reaching here.

He was 63 years of age, and a native of Grand Forks, Minn.

THREE KILLED AT RAILWAY CROSSING.

READING, Pa., April 22 (Canadian Press).—Three persons were instantly killed to-day when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania railroad express at Dauberville crossing, eight miles north of this city.

SECOND ARREST MADE.

WELLAND, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press).—The second arrest in connection with the armed hold-up of 14 Chinamen here last week was made at Buffalo last night when Percy Chandler, negro, was taken into custody. The local police have been notified that he will waive extradition. Provincial police at Bridgeburg have been asked to bring Chandler to Welland.

EXPERTS ADJOURN

PARIS April 22—(Canadian Press) The final showdown of the reparations conference was once more delayed this forenoon when the experts met in plenary session at the hotel George V but almost immediately adjourned until 11 a.m., tomorrow.

PASSES AWAY IN PULPIT

LONDON, Ont., April 22.— Rev. Williamn Merton Shore, 80, retired clergyman, died in the pulpit of the Epiphany Manor Park church, here last night. He was conducting the evening service of the church. He was seized with a heart attack. Mr. Shore was one of the oldest rectors in the district.

OSHAWA MAN ELECTROCUTED.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press). — Oliver R. Moynes, 38, Oshawa, was electrocuted here yesterday morning when he accidentally touched a 4,400 volt wire on the other side of the post.

KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press). — William James McInnis, 74, was killed here yesterday afternoon when struck by an automobile. It is alleged the car got out of control of the driver, and mounted the sidewalk, striking McInnis and crushing his head.

David Menzies, 61, driver of the car, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter. He was released on bail of $5,000. An inquest will be held on Thursday.

GAS EXPLODED IN HOME.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press).—One person was seriously injured and one slightly burned in a gas explosion here on Saturday night in the home of John Kozah. Mrs. Bella Kozah suffered severe injuries and was rushed to the hospital, where her condition is said to be fair. Mr. Kozah was not seriously injured.

VANDALS DAMAGE CHURCH.

WINNIPEG, Mar., April 22 (Canadian Press).—Police last night were searching for vandals who held a party in Parkview United Church, St. James, a suburb, early yesterday. After a drinking orgy, the vandals smashed the organ and a piano and started a fire in the church basement, which caused damage estimated at $3,000.

Rev. O. Coleman, secretary of the Manitoba League Against Alcoholism, is pastor of the church.

Big Powers Favor Plan

Britain and United States Join Hands in Favoring Naval Disarmaments.

INCLUDE ALL CLASSES.

U. S. Delegates Urge That a Bold Course Be Taken at Conference.

GENEVA, April 22 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — Britain and the United States joined hands before the League of Nations' Preparatory Commission on Disarmament to-day in a stand not only for limitation but for reduction of naval armaments.

"Let's take a bold course," urged Hugh S. Gibson, United States delegate, in submitting new United States proposals, "and begin by scrapping the term limitation in order to concentrate on a general reduction of armaments."

Given Cordial Welcome.

To the American proposals, Lord Cushendun, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs of Great Britain, gave a most cordial welcome. "I am in the fullest agreement with Mr. Gibson," he said, "when he says that in naval matters we desire not only limitation but reduction. That is also the desire of the British Government and we desire that limitation and reduction to be applied to all classes of vessels—to all classes of vessels," he emphasized.

"And if in some negotiations which have taken place we have provisionally, at all events, consented to a scheme of reduction which left any class of vessels outside, it was not because we considered it an ideal solution of the problem, but merely because in the interests of agreement we were willing to forego some part of our ideal in order to get agreement," he added. "We have never concealed the fact that we desire to get agreement on limitation and reduction as applied to all classes of vessels."

Sought some Solution.

The American proposals dealt primarily with naval armaments. Mr. Gibson declared that the American government has found no reason to modify its view that the simplest, most fair and most practical method was that of limitation by tonnage and

THIRTY-TWO LIVES ARE LOST IN SUNDAY'S STORMS IN STATES; DAMAGE TO PROPERTY IS HEAVY

Thirteen Persons Are Killed When Tornado Strikes Arkansas.

MISSISSIPPI RISING

Colorado and Wyoming States Are Piled High With Snow.

CHICAGO, Ills., April 22 (C.P.).—Outbursts of elements floods, tornadoes, and wind, hail and rain storms—took 32 lives in the midwest, southwest and south over the weekend; injured two score persons or more, and did hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of damage.

Arkansas tornadoes killed 13 persons, 11 of them negroes working on a plantation at Tillar. Property damage was reported from other sections of that state. Arkansas also was fighting against the rising waters of the Mississippi River, 500 workmen re-enforcing the levee at Knowlton's Landing near Snow Lake. After many hours' work, engineers believed that the danger of a break at that point had been averted.

Half Million Damage

A 15-minute storm at Louisville and at New Albany, Ind., across the Ohio River, cost two lives and did property damage of approximately a half a million dollars. Wind and hail shattered window in many buildings. At Walton, Ky., two boys were killed when lightning struck a barn on which they had perched to watch a ball game.

Five negroes were killed and 25 persons were injured when another of the series of tornadoes that cavorned about the south and southwest struck Dahomey, Miss. A twister also descended upon Wham, La., but no loss of life was reported there.

Two Killed at Oak Ridge

Two persons were killed at Oak Ridge, La., when a tornado struck there yesterday afternoon. Two negroes were killed on plantations near Shaw, Miss.

Colorado and Wyoming were piled with snow in some sections, while Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri were having flood and tornado worries.

Three Indians were killed in Oklahoma tornadoes. A man was killed in a storm at Reece, Kas. A baby was crushed to death in a Texas storm, and a boy drowned at Wyandotte, Okla. Reece and Molivar, Mo., were particularly hard hit by the midwest storms.

Mississippi on Tear

CANTON, Mo., April 22 (C.P.).—The Mississippi was on a tear again today, throwing its strength, intensified by waters from swollen tributaries, against the levees here and on the Illinois side of the river. The Canton levee crumbled yesterday, flooding more than two hundred homes.

The Canton break followed a similar one in the Fabious River levee which flooded 4,000 acres of farm land. The Fabius is a Mississippi tributary, and the break occurred near the point where it empties into the larger stream. A portion of the Mississippi levee was dynamited last night so that the Fabius overflow could escape. It was expected that this would equalize the pressure and save other levees in the flood district.

Record Price Paid For Pair Of Muskrats

LINDSAY, Ont., April 22. — (Canadian Press)—The demand for Rice Lake Muskrats is increasing, and with a shipment by a local company to-day to England, the record price of $50.00 a pair was paid for breeders.

These muskrats have already been shipped to Belgium, Germany and other foreign countries.

Rotarian Dr. Morrison Discusses Movement For International Peace.

ERIE CONFERENCE.

Rotary Club Expects To Have Delegation of Ten at Least.

The Kellogg Peace Pact and its effect in promoting world peace were interestingly discussed by Rotarian Dr. M. A. Morrison in a thouhgtful address at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club.

Rotary is keenly interested in the subject of international peace, the promotion of which is one of the organization's primary objects, and to-day's address was part of the educational program along this line laid down for the current year.

President W. R. Morris read a letter from J. A. McKone thanking Rotary for a donation of $65.00 toward the funds of the Boy Scout Association. President Morris thoroughly endorsed the Scout movement.

SMALLPOX QUARANTINE AGAIN ENFORCED AT FRENCH SEA PORTS

Three Rules Concerning English Passenger Traffic Made Effective Yesterday.

HIGHER DEATH RATE.

Action Follows Failure of French and British Officials to Reach Agreement.

PARIS, April 22 (C.P.).French quarantine on travellers entering the country from England has been enforced again, with more stringent requirements than ever.

Under rules laid down and made effective yesterday travellers from England by the channel ports must either show a certificate of smallpox vaccination within recent date, submit to medical examination, or carry a sanitary passport to be presented to the medical authorities of each French city they visit for a fortnight.

FAIL TO AGREE

The action was taken by Louis Loucheur, Minister of Labor and Health after failure of French and British Health Department representatives to agree at Calais yesterday to a proper method of preventing spread of smallpox from England to France. Previous similar orders, requiring the vaccination to have been within the past 30 days, were suspended temporarily after diplomatic representations by England.

HIGHER DEATH RATE

LONDON, April 22. (C.P.) Clamping down once more of quarantine restrictions on British travellers by France has occasioned considerable surprise and resentment here.

It was hoped that when the restrictions were lifted last year a way would be found to prevent their becoming necessary in the future. When physicians stated all danger from the cases brought to England aboard the Tuscania was past, it was believed particularly there was no further necessity for the restrictions.

It was officially announced there were but 202 mild cases of smallpox in London on Saturday, and that France's death rate from smallpox from 1919 to 1927 was 2.9 per million persons, whereas England's was only 0.46.

The new regulations required certificates of "within recent date," with the exact number of days allowed to be fixed at a conference at Calais Tuesday.

Clemency Is Refused To Murderer Of Four

OTTAWA, April 22 (C.P.).—The law will take its course in the case of Vernon Booher, sentenced to be hanged on Wednesday next for the murder of four persons. Booher was sentenced at Edmonton and the original date of execution was set for December 15 last. A reprieve was granted, however, until April 24. The crime for which Booher will pay the death penalty on Wednesday was committed in July of last year. He was charged with the murder of his mother, his brother-in-law and two employes on the farm, Wasyl Rozak and Gabriel Crombey.

STREET FLOODED.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press).—Canal Street, Tilburn, is one foot under water to-day as a result of heavy rains which flooded the sewage system.

BOATS FIGHT HEAVY SEAS

Coast Guard Cutter is Attempting To Tow Rudderless Freighter.

SHIP GOES TO RESCUE.

BOSTON, Mass., April, 21.—(Canadian Press).—Radio messages received here to-day said that the West Hika, rudderless freighter, and the coast guard cutter Mojave, which had been aiding the boat to port were fighting heavy seas which made progress impossible. The attempt to maintain a course was abandoned in a 50-mile gale and it was feared the towline would break.

The cutter Acushnet was expected to arrive on the scene tomorrow. The boats were about 160 miles southeast of Boston.

Thousands Of Acres Of Low-Lying Lands Are Flooded In Western Peninsula

WINDSOR, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press). — Thousands of acres of low-lying land in Essex and adjoining counties were under water to-day in the wake of the heavy rains which swept intermittently over the district during the week-end.

Slight improvement was noted in the county situation to-day as the waters receded in flooded areas.

Several sections of land around Tecumseh were under water yesterday, but the situation was not serious. Reports indicated, however, that residents were getting muddy water through water taps, but this was clearing up to-day.

At Sandwich, where Friday night's rainfall overflowed the banks of the Detroit River along the low-lying river front, the situation was unchanged to-day.

All low-lying areas between LaSalle and Amherstburg along the Detroit River were inundated. Low spots between Windsor and Leamington and Kingsville were flooded.

At Kingsville the water rose over the Government dock on Saturday night, but dropped back about two feet early on Sunday morning.

The River Canard and Turkey Creek reached high levels, and adjacent territory was under water to-day, but the damage was not heavy.

WAR VETERANS AND MILITIA HONOR CANADA'S WAR DEAD

Inspiring Church Parade Is Tribute To Men Who Fell At Ypres.

CENOTAPH SERVICE.

Soldiers' Memorial is Centre of Impressive But Short Ceremony.

An inspiring picture was painted yesterday, with a beautiful spring-like day as its background, when hundreds of veterans of the Great War, escorted by units of the Peterborough Militia Garrison, paraded to Mark Street United Church in memory of the men of Canada's First Division who fell at the Second Battle of Ypres.

Fourteen years ago to-day the Germans loosed their first great gas attack, overwhelming the troops on the left of the Canadians. Stepping into the breach, the newly-arrived Dominion forces held the line against fearful odds, in a battle that has been told of again and again, and will continue to be extolled for its bravery and sacrifice as long as the Empire endures.

That the memory of these men is still green in the breasts of their comrades was indicated yesterday by the big number joining the parade, and that the story of the heroism of that day has inspired the hearts of the youth of to-day was shown by the splendid parade of militia units.

Lt.-Col. D. J. Lawrie, O.C. 4th Field Brigade, Canadian Artillery, senior active garrison officer, was in command of the parade, with Captain G. Monkman, Peterborough Rangers; Major H. Dodds, No. 3 Company, 4th Battalion, Canadian Machine Gun Corps, and President John R. Heron, Canadian Legion, in command of individual units.

The parade was impressive; impressive in its simplicity, in the number of veterans with ribbons and medals that attested long and faithful service in the Great War and other campaigns. Although the veterans marched in mufti, their stride and bearing marked them as old soldiers. And then, indicating that while they do not expect or look for war, they would be ready to serve also in case of need, there were scores of youngsters in the khaki of the militia units, smart and well-trained. It was an inspiration to stand on the sidelines and see march past those to whom life has given its greatest thrill, and those for whom life is yet to open its fullness.

At the Cenotaph

The Cenotaph, at the Canadian Legion Hall, is peculiarly the veterans' memorial. Partaking somewhat of the simplicity of those other white crosses they left in France and Flanders to mark the resting places of their fallen comrades, its very lack of adornment is eloquent. Beneath is the empty tomb, symbolic of the graves of all comrades, and above is the Cross of Sacrifice; the memorial it at once a tribute and an inspiration.

Jogo Wins First Place In Metropolitan Race

EPSOM, Eng., April 22.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The great Metropolitan Stakes, famous long-distance spring handicap, was won this afternoon by T. Richards' Jogo, who finished a head in front of Lord Derby's Servus. Ponorog was third, another four lengths back, and 13 ran the two and a quarter miles.

Jogo, a five year old bay horse by Son-in-law, out of Slovene, started at 100 to seven against; second at five to one, and third at 100 to six.

The race was established in 1846.

PARKS TO FACE WINDSOR TRIAL

Officer of Border City Force Has Gone To Moose Jaw To Get Man.

BOASTS OF CRIMES.

The elusive John Parks, whose chase has led half-way across the continent, and who was finally nabbed yesterday in Moose Jaw, will not be brought to Peterborough immediately to stand trial for jail breaking and car thefts. An officer of the Windsort police force is even now speeding over the rails on his way West to bring back Parks to Windsor to stand trial there for theft, according to a telegram received by Chief Newhall at 2.15 this afternoon from Moose Jaw.

The telegram is from Chief J. Fyvie of the Moose Jaw police, and states that an officer of the Windsor police is already on his way to Moose Jaw with a warrant in his pocket, charging Parks with theft and burglary in Windsor.

Boasts Of Crimes.

Parks, who when here was a most talkative prisoner, and boasted of his many crimes and escapes, has apparently lost none of his loquaciousness throughout his long rambles, because the telegram states that Parks admits his jail breaking and car thefts in Peterborough.

The local police are not sorry that an officer will not be despatched from here to bring back Parks, although they are not certain of the priority claims of the Windsor police upon his person. He will likely stand trial in Windsor and then after serving his sentence there, be handed over to the local police.

While it is a matter of months since John Parks made good his sensational escape from the Peterborough County Jail, by sawing his way through his cell bars, climbing to the roof and thence to freedom by way of the jailer's residence verandah, several later chapters in his career as a fugitive have kept him almost constantly to the fore in public interest. Sheriff F. J. A. Hall and Walter Jackson, both of Peterborough, have not forgotten how Parks used their cars in escaping from this city; a line of connecting offences against service stations and stores along the lakefront between here and Oshawa traced the way he had gone, and finally his successful game of hide-and-seek with Aylmer and railway police around the western Ontario village, during which he successfully escaped, taking with him his youthful fiancee, marked Parks as a character worthy of the closest attention from all arms of the law.

COACHES DERAILED AT CAVAN STATION

Early Morning C. P. R. Train To Toronto Meets With Accident.

When the Ottawa-Toronto train reached Cavan station about five o'clock this morning, two coaches left the rails, believed due to a broken rail, but fortunately, the remainder of the train stayed on the track and no one was injured. There was little delay since the train from Montreal, following a short time, was able to pick up the passengers and passing the derailed train by a siding, proceeded to Toronto.

Elusive Bandit Puts up Struggle In Western City

John Parks, Peterborough Jail Breaker, Captured in Moose Jaw When He Attempts To Dispose of a Windsor Automobile.

PEARL BOWERMAN, SWEETHEART OF FUGITIVE, FOUND TRAVELLING WITH MUCH WANTED MAN

Jail-Breaker Is Wanted On Half-dozen Charges in Ontario—Frankly Recounts Adventures Since Escape From Custody Last December.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., April 22 (Canadian Press). — Jack Parks is now in the cells of the police station here awaiting an escort from Ontario.

Parks made a desperate effort to escape from Inspector Bell and Detective McLellan of the city police force, who effected his arrest at a motor car exchange, where the wanted man was endeavoring to dispose of the car which he is alleged to have stolen. On being accosted, the escaped prisoner started up the car, but Inspector Bell switched off the ignition and Detective McLellan covered Parks with a gun. Parks refused to leave the car and had to be dragged out of the vehicle after being handcuffed. The car in which he was travelling was stolen from its owner, Oscar Fleming, whose name Parks assumed during his flight at Windsor, Ont.

With him in the automobile was Pearl Bowerman of Malahide Township Ont., a girl of 17 years of age, who states that she has known Parks for some years. Parks was travelling in the name of Oscar Fleming, whose coupe car he admits he stole from Windsor, and which, together with the Bowerman girl, he made his way to Moose Jaw, via Chicago. The girl told the police that they crossed into Canada at Emerson, Man.

Trying to Sell Car.

At the time of his arrest here Parks was trying to dispose of the car at a motor car exchange. His money was exhausted. The couple reached Moose Jaw on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and at 4 p.m. word reached the city police that they were headed west. The arrest took place before 5 p.m. and information was at once telegraphed to Windsor. Parks stated that after his escape from Peterborough jail he made his way to the United States, afterward doubling on his tracks and returning to Windsor, where he met the Bowerman girl He was on remand awaiting trial for alleged automobile theft when he made his jail-break. He admits two previous convictions for automobile theft, and states that he has been a rum runner.

No Charges Against Girl.

ST. THOMAS, April 22.—Provincial and county police officers stated last evening that there is no local charge against Pearl Bowerman, 19 year old Malahide Township girl, who disappeared with John Parks, the elusive Peterborough jail breaker, early in March. Word came to-day that Parks is under arrest in Moose Jaw, and that the automobile he was driving carried Windsor, Ont., licenses. Inquiry was made if the local police wished the Bowerman girl also held.

Parks overtook the girl on the road to Aylmer early last month, after calling at her home, and drove away with her in a green coupe. Parks is wanted locally on at least five charges of burglary and theft of automobiles. Captain H. O. Taylor, of the M.C.R. Police Department, having at least three charges against the fugitive.

OLD RESIDENTS ARE 50 YEARS WED TO-DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Heenan, 797 Water Street, Celebrate Diamond Wedding.

BORN IN CITY.

Mr. Heenan Is One of the Oldest Employees of the Canadian General Electric.

Fifty years ago to-day, April 22, 1879, Mary Ann Cain became the bride of Patrick Heenan in St. Peter's Church, the Rev. Father Lynch performing the ceremony at that glad occasion. To-day, Mr. and Mrs. Heenan and their children, grandchildren and many friends are celebrating the Golden Anniversary of that wedding day at their home, 797 Water street. During all those happy fifty years the couple have resided in Peterborough.

Mrs. Heenan was the daughter of Patrick Cain and Mary Sullivan, of Harwood, and she is seventy-three years of age. Her husband is seventy-seven and was born in East City, the son of Michael Heenan and Ellen McMann. Mr. Heenan is, without doubt, one of the oldest employees of the C.G.E., having worked in the transformer department for the past thirty-six years.

Ten Children.

Ten children, five boys and five girls, compose the Heenan family, and five of the children still survive. They are: Mrs. F. Karney, East City; Mrs. Jack Anglesey of Detroit; Irene, who is employed at the C.G.E., at home; Mrs. R. Donoghue, Sherbrooke street; and Vincent, of Toronto. In all there are thirteen grandchildren.

Every member of the family was expected home to-day for the big dinner that had been prepared to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary. Mrs. Heenan expected in all that fifty persons would sit down at the table.

Mrs. Heenan, in speaking of the fifty years of happy wedded life that she had lived, admitted that she could not understand why so many modern couples were seeking divorce. She said that it was easy matter to be happily married and smile through all trouble together if each were not too selfish.

Mrs. Heenan is a lover of flowers and she spends most of her spare moments in looking after her garden and plants. Both Mr. and Mrs. Heenan are looking forward to Old Home Week when they expect to renew their friendships with many of their old friends.

VENIZELOS WINS IN GREECE.

ATHENS, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Announcement was made today that the Government ticket of Premier Venizelos had carried seventy seats in the Senatorial elections held Saturday, against 22 for the Opposition.

First Divisional Court Reserves Judgment In Connection With Grafton Church Appeal

TORONTO, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press). — The First Divisional Court to-day reserved judgment in the action brought by John Aird and other members of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Grafton, in which they claim ownership of the church and manse property.

The appeal was taken from the judgment of Mr. Justice Rose dismissing plaintiffs' claim. The plaintiffs contended that when the properties were deeded in 1844 by John Grover, it was provided that the Westminster Confession of Faith was to be the rule by which the public worship and divine service was to be conducted. They claim that their congregation which voted against entering the United Church adheres to the Westminster Confession of Faith and is consequently entitled to the church property under the deed.

Attorney-General Price Appeals Decision Of Border City Magistrate

TORONTO, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press). — Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General for Ontario, stated to-day an appeal is to be made against the decision of Magistrate D. M. Brodie, of Windsor, who dismissed a charge under the Liquor Control Act against H. J. Bohne, head of the American Legion in Windsor, on April 15.

At the time, the case aroused much interest in the Border Cities, in which the magistrate found there was not sufficient evidence to convict under sections of the Act. A number of men were found drinking beer in a hotel, and in the defence, Bohne, it is stated, claimed the men were his guests.

The appeal will go before the County Judge of Essex County.

Bandits Get $60,000 in Toronto

Money Car Is Held Up

Four Masked Men Stop Automobile Coming From Mimico Club House.

POLICE PURSUIT FRUITLESS

Money Stolen Was in Sixty United States' Bills of $1,000 Each.

TORONTO, Ont., April 22.—(Canadian Press).—Four gunmen held up the 'Money Car" of a reputed gambling resort on the outskirts of the city yesterday morning and made away with a sum reported to be $60,000.

According to the county police the car carrying the money had proceeded a few miles down the highway from Mimico to Toronto at 6.30 a.m. yesterday following the breakup of a "crap" game when an automobile carrying the gunmen swerved across its path. The men in the "money car" were forced to alight and hand over proceeds of the game to the gunmen. As the robbery was being carried out County Constable Travener of Islington drope up. He stopped to investigate and two of the masked men pointed either rifles or shotguns at him. The driver of the constable's car managed to pass the bandit car and drove the constable to a store near the scene of the robbery. Calls were sent to Hamilton and Toronto police.

Constable Returns

Ten minutes later the constable returned to the scene of the robbery but both the "money car" and the bandit car had disappeared. The constable reported that the bandit car had its markers obscured.

The Globe says to-day that Joseph Attleman, formerly of Rochester, N.Y., was the heaviest loser. The bulk of the $60,000 according to The Globe was in $1,000 bills and was the property of Attleman, said to be a partner in the club where the game was conducted.

The newspaper says that it learned that Saturday night was the biggest night in the history of the club and that the "big money" was on hand.

The Globe quotes Frank Burrows, said to be Attleman's partner, as stating last night that he had just heard of the robbery but did not think the amount reported as stolen was correct.

The Mail and Empire, in reporting the hold-up, says that $55,000 was the amount secured by the bandits. This newspaper states that six men were in the car which the robbers stopped on the road, and that they were "frisked" until the bandits came to the "banker" of the game, who was carrying the large amount of money.

The Mail nd Empire says that the victims reported the robbery to the police, but withheld their names.

"In the underworld, however, it is whispered that smart racketeers watched big-time gamblers playing for high stakes through Saturday and Sunday morning," the Mail and Empire says. "When the money man, a Vancouver player of international repute, had 'taken' most of the money, the racketeers left the building and waited at a convenient spot. It is stated none of the men, travelling with the money man, lost their meagre bank rolls."

The Globe says that it is believed the bandits were members of a Montreal gang.

SMALL BOY IS INJURED

John Nixon is Badly Burned When Gasoline Drum Explodes.

AT ROSENEATH

ROSENEATH, April 22.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—John Nixon is still confined to his bed with a sore leg, the result of a gasoline drum explosion. John, with other school lads, had been playing ball on the Agricultural grounds, when through curiosity and mischief, one of the boys lighted a match, there being enough gasoline to blow the drum to pieces, setting fire to Billy Halstead's clothing and singeing several others. John was the most unfortunate, having to be taken home and medical attention given him.

Six Passengers Killed In Airplane Collision

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 22.—(Canadian Press). — Six persons met death here yesterday in the most disastrous airplane accident in the history of San Diego, when a large passenger ship of the Maddux Air Lines, Inc., bound for Phoenix, and a pursuit plane with army insignia crashed in mid-air over the eastern section of the city. Both planes were badly crippled by the impact, hurled to the ground, at the side of a canyon.

HYDRO LEADER PASSES AWAY

P. W. Ellis, Chairman of Three Public Commissions, Succumbs After Operation

PROMINENT JEWELLER

TORONTO, April 22.—(Canadian Press).—P. W. Ellis, chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission and chairman of the Queen Victoria Park (Niagara Falls) Commission, died here yesterday. Mr. Ellis, who was in his 72nd year, was well-known in business circles, being a prominent jeweller of the city.

Mr. Ellis was a pioneer in the movement which resulted in the province acquiring a provincially-owned Hydro-Electric system. He was prominent in a score of public and private enterprises. His death followed a surgical operation.

Mr. Ellis had long been prominent in connection with the work of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He was its first president, and a member of the Executive Council when Dominion-wide organization was effected in 1901-2. He held office at various times as chairman of the Association of Workmen's Compensation Committee and chairman of the Association Tariff Committee. He was vice-chairman and treasurer of the Ontario Power Commission appointed by the municipalities in 1903, and a member of the first Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

Appointed in 1906, he founded the wholesale and manufacturing jewelry establishment of P. W. Ellis and Company.

Mr. Ellis was a native of Toronto.

He is survived by his widow, two sons and four daughters. Mrs. Ernest H. Finlayson, Ottawa, is a daughter. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

MOTORMAN IS UNDER ARREST

Following Accident on Toronto Street on Saturday, Charles Cairns is Arrested

BAIL OF $3,000 GRANTED

TORONTO, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press).—Stories told by eye-witnesses of the street car-automobile crash early Saturday morning on the Danforth Viaduct, which resulted in the death of John W. Barnes, driver of the motor car, led to the arrest early yesterday of the motorman of the street car, Charles Cairns. He was released on $3,000 bail.

Detective-Sergeant John Hicks, in charge of the investigation, reported that the four witnesses agreed that the automobile was west-bound on the Viaduct, that a blow-out had caused it to swerve into a light standard and across the street car tracks, and that the street car ran into it. The motorman had reported that the automobile was proceeding east across the Viaduct and that it had run into the street car.

Barnes was killed when he was pinned in the driver's seat of the automobile, which caught fire, following the collision.

An inquest will be held.

HOLD-UP MAN UNDER ARREST

Hamilton Police Believe They Have Solved Various Robberies

COLORFUL ARREST

HAMILTON, April 22. (C.P.) — After a chase of several blocks along alleys and over back fences, Detectives Duffy and Gillespie and Constable Rouse believe they have captured one of the two men who held up and robbed five pedestrians here since late on Friday night. The man arrested was Malcolm Young, Caroline Street, who is charged with assault and robbery.

Shortly after 9 o'clock last night Joseph Lucyezyn, who lives at 10 Windsor street, reported to the police that as he walked past an alleyway on Caroline street, north of Cannon street, he was attacked by two men who dragged him into the rear of the premises at 155 Caroline street. He raised an outcry however, and his assailants fled.

Constable Rouse was searching for the robbers when William R. Bradley, who lives at 146 Ferguson Avenue North, ran to the officer and said that he had just been held up and robbed by two men at Caroline and Cannon streets. Detectives Duffy and Gillespie arrived on the scene at this moment in response to Lucyezyn's call, and they were getting an accurate description of the assailants from Bradley, when he pointed to a man on the other side of the street, and the police officers set off in pursuit, said: "There goes one of them now!"

With that the other man fled and After a hot chase they caught the fugitive, who gave his name as Malcolm Young.

Five Robbed.

From late on Friday night until tonight five pedestrians in all were held up and robbed in the north end by two thugs. In each case the description of the man was the same. In each case, too, the robbers struck their victims cruel blows on the face with their fists. William Henderson, 148 James street North, said that he was held up near Mulberry and Bay streets and robbed of $15 in cash and an endorsed check for $16. He also was beaten almost senseless. John Maxfield, 59 1-2 Florence street, was felled by a blow at Caroline and Windsor streets, and was robbed by two men of all he possessed, which was $16. George Gibbons, 147 Mary street, said that he was walking near Murray and McNab streets, when two thugs set upon him and beat him terribly with their fists and then rifled his pockets of $20. The police were hopeful of arresting the second man, and were scouring the Caroline street district.

SIX ARE KILLED TEN INJURED IN ACCIDENTS

Week-End Auto Casualty List is Worst in Toronto's History

ONE IS MISSING

Three Motorists Are Placed Under Arrest Following Fatalities

TORONTO, April 22. (C.P.) — Six persons dead, ten injured, one missing and three under arrest, were the startling totals by which police records last night bore witness to one of the worst week-ends of accident and violence in the city's history.

The Dead.

William J. McInnis, 74, Toronto, struck by automobile.

George C. Bell, president of the L. S. Brach Company, of Canada, Toronto, found dead in a local hotel.

Mrs. Violet Henderson, 35, Toronto, found dead in gas filled room at her home here.

Frederick Hillman, Toronto, 50, fatally burned.

J. H. Trudgeon, 50, Toronto, succumbed to motor accident injuries.

J. W. Barnes, burned to death on Saturday morning when his motor car crashed with a street car.

Of the ten persons injured eight were hurt by motor cars. Among these was Patrol Sergeant William Gregory, traffic officer, who was struck by a woman motorist, now under arrest, while he was on point duty at St. Paul's church, Bloor street. Two other drivers are under arrest in connection with other accidents and a fourth is sought by the police.

The person listed as missing is Miss Jean Routcliffe, 22, of Toronto, who has not been seen since she left her home on Friday last.

The Weather

Meteorological Office, Toronto, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press). — Pressure is low over the Rocky Mountain States and off the Atlantic coast while a pronounced area of high pressure extends from the Gulf of Mexico northward across the Great Lakes to the Arctic.

Local showers have occurred in Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Western Nova Scotia, while in other parts of the Dominion the weather has been fair.

Forecasts.

Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay — Moderate northerly winds; fair today and Tuesday! not much change in temperature.

Northern Ontario, Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valleys — Moderate northerly winds; fair to-day and on Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

Superior — Moderate winds; fair to-day and on Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan — A few scattered showers, but mostly fair to-night and on Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

Alberta — Northerly winds; partly cloudy and cool to-night and on Tuesday; probably a few scattered showers or snowflurries.

NEWS IN BRIEF

PASSES AWAY IN HOSPITAL.

TORONTO, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press).—T. H. Trudgeon, 50, of Toronto, died in hospital here last night, following injuries received on April 6, when he was struck by an automobile.

Trudgeon and his wife both were injured when an automobile, which was struck by a motor truck, mounted the sidewalk and struck the pair. It was thought at the time that Trudgeon's injuries were not serious, but blood poisoning set in, which resulted in his death. Mrs. Trudgeon's injuries were not serious.

DIES FROM BURNS.

HAWKESBURY, Ont., April 22. — (Canadian Press).—Mrs. George Radford, 35, died here last night from terrible burns which she received when her clothes caught fire from the stove. She was immediately rushed to the hospital, but died soon after being admitted.

TIERS FOR THE JUNIOR

THE STYLE No. 2774 that copies the elder mode in double circular tiered skirt belted at normal waistline, with simple bodice with bateau neck trimmed with applied band with loose-hanging ends is quite a favorite with young ladies. No wonder! It's so sophisticated, smart and girlish. It chooses light navy blue silk crepe with tiny white polka-dots with plain navy blue contrast, so appropriate for now and all summer long. Printed dimity, organdie, taffeta, voile, handkerchief linen, printed cotton foulard, chambray, hecked gingham, and wool crepe are becoming abric that can be made at a real savin .

THE PATTERN is designed in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years and is offered a cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew. The miniature diagrams will ive yo an idea of simplicity of pattern which s illustrated in Pictures how each seam is joined, which enables little daughter to make it. All she will need to know is how to handle a needle.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

SPEAKING on the subject of marriage in Friday's Whatnot—the idea being brought to mind by "Ella' May's" letter, I began to wonder how many of us ever think of the customs of other countries along this line.

• • •

For instance down in North Africa, where Zulu brides are as numerous as our own in the month of June, courtship is of an entirely different nature!

• • •

Why there, if a man wants to court a Zulu girl, he sends her a message. If her answer is favorable, he visits her in person, and then nothing remains but the family conference where her purchase price is decided upon!

• • •

Her purchase price, mind you!

• • •

And then, on her wedding day—unlike our long-used customs, the girl is given a wedding string of pearls and is carried on the back of a strong woman to her prospective husband!

• • •

To walk, incidently, would be undignified, and not in keeping with the traditions of the best families—the upper class of Zululand!

• • •

However, the fashions there are just as important locally and as changeable in detail, and they amuse us no less than our fashions would amuse the bride of Zululand!

• • •

Oh, how her costume differs from ours!

• • •

The Zulu bride has her veil, only it is made of heavy beads which make it look more like a mask, and the rest of the bridal array is made up, according to the latest dispatches, "of a chic ensemble of cow's tails."

• • •

One of the latest fashions in Zululand prescribes a girdle of beads around the waist and a short grass skirt about ten inches wide. They wear gowns made of sheepskins, of course, which they dye with roots and berries, but the head and grass combination is quite the latest and more chic!

• • •

Ear and nose sticks and rings of metal and ivory, of course, are an old story. The woman of fashion now indulges in armlets of copper, brass and iron twisted about her wrist and wound up the forearm, similar ones being worn around the ankles, hundreds of them sometimes decorating the arms and legs of a real lady in Zululand!

• • •

Once married, the bride may discard her heavy disfiguring veil, but as a sign of her new state she beads every strand of her hair, twenty-four hairs to the thread, and if she can afford it, has a particularly heavy collar of brass or iron twisted around her neck and shoulders.

• • •

Cheaper bead collars may be worn, of course. But while they have the advantage of being removable, which the copper and iron have not, they are not nearly so rich or aristocratic.

• • •

Oh well, everyone is entitled to her own mode of dress—we're all human just the same!

When you're making up some of your frocks for summer, don't forget to send for this week's help. The instructions are for making the new bib collar—it is very simple, because all the diagram is there.

• • •

Everyone seems to be quite excited about getting out to the cottage again—I heard one woman telling her neighbor about her purchases for the cottage—"and the cutest little second-hand stove, you know, it won't take much to do all the cooking we'll have to do."

• • •

I began to wonder then, why it is that some women show far better taste in decorating their cottages than they do their homes. I don't mean the woman who had just bought the stove—oh no, her home is lovely!

• • •

It is certain that they spend less money, so it must be originality—there is a note of cleverness and distinction about them that you miss in their winter homes.

• • •

The only conclusion I have come to is that many woman think their cottage is a good place to try out some of their own schemes which they wouldn't dare try in the city. They might hesitate about having a floor painted black or blueish green, or curtains tinted in almost every color, but in the cottage—why that's the place to try it out!

• • •

People usually go to the cottage for a rest—to get away from the hustle bustle of the town life—and they do not want to have to fuss over the furnishings.

• • •

Let's have your ideas, some of you city neighbors—tell us what you have found to be helpful to you during the hot summer days.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

To-night (Friday) you have written in your Whatnot, just what I would like to say sometimes, regarding married life. You certainly have a wonderful insight into human nature to be able to see the different sides of life as you do, for in my own opinion I think people are much happier, without lots of money, gifts, showers, cars, etc., when they get married. If you haven't money to buy things for your home, or yourself, one usually tries to make the things they will need, and doesn't it give one a feeling of having accomplished something worth while when they get through?

I know we have to do some scratching sometimes to keep the kiddies and ourselves respectable, and at the same time try to buy our home, but we have our own two children, and if you know the families I know who have all they need in worldly goods, and no children, you would think we were very wealthy. I wonder, Marion, if you ever read the book of Canon Cody's, "The Master Revenge"? I have just finished reading it a second time (a thing I seldom do), but in my opinion, it is a wonderful book. What a noble character Nathan Strong is.

I wonder if the neighbors will laugh at the idea of sowing poppy seed away down in the vegetable garden? Some consider them a weed and a nuisance, but you can cut out all you don't want; but one here and there amongst the potatoes and cabbage looks nice and cheery first thing in the morning. Dont cut them for the house, just leave them in the garden. Do you know, Marion, I have wintered outdoors two English yellow primroses? I hope they will bloom nicely, as they seem a hard plant to winter in Canada.

Well, Marion, I must close, but will say you were my inspiration to-night, as I did not feel one bit like writing until I read your nice Whatnot.

Yours sincerely,
Primrose.

I'm very glad that you liked the Whatnot in Friday, 'Primrose," and I certainly enjoyed reading your letter. I think the idea of having poppies among the potatoes is very nice. I was told the other day that up at the Legion Hall they have some real poppy seed direct from France to sow. I don't know whether it's true or not, but it seems like a nice idea.

I hope the primroses come all right—did you take your name from them? I remember one spring I was in the Old Country when I saw primroses and bluebells over acres and acres of grcund. It was wonderful.

Come again, "Primrose."

You will find Domestic the perfect all-purpose shortening

Try This Domestic Shortening Recipe

Excellent Doughnuts

2 tablespoons Domestic Shortening
¼ cup Sugar
4 teaspoons Baking Powder
2 Eggs
1 cup Sour Cream
½ teaspoon Salt
3 cups Flour

Cream the Domestic Shortening. Add the sugar slowly and cream thoroughly. Beat eggs until light and add to first mixture and beat hard. Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder, and add alternately with the cream to the first mixture. Roll out on a lightly floured board to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with doughnut cutter and fry in deep hot Domestic Shortening. The fat is hot enough if it browns a cube of bread in 60 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar

CANADIAN housewives have home-tested Domestic Shortening for the last twelve months. They have decided that Domestic is the perfect all-purpose shortening.

And it should be! It took years to develop and perfect it.

Today Domestic Shortening is in a class by itself. Better shortening because it is a pure vegetable product made by a special process. It contains no animal fat. Good as the best butter but far more economical to use—it costs less than butter or lard—and you use less.

Use Domestic for every purpose. Wonderful for rich, flaky pastry and lighter cakes. When frying you can use Domestic over and over again—there'll be no taste, no odour. It never smokes at high temperatures necessary for good frying.

Because it is homogenized, Domestic Shortening adds smoothness and finer texture to cakes and pastry.

Sold by grocers and butchers everywhere in 5 lb. and 3 lb. pails and 1 lb. cartons.

Introducing Oilcloth into the Home

Oilcloth is now being used in many new ways. The new designs are so attractive that women are finding places to use oilcloth in every room in the house.

Among the new oilcloth materials we find many with the softness of heavy fabric or leather, but which still retain their wearing and water-resisting qualities.

They are perfect for use at summer cottages where you wish to make the place attractive and then give it as little subsequent care as possible.

Hot pots are the greatest enemy of oilcloth. I always like to keep a few thin boards handy in my kitchen to use for cake pans and hot pots when I take them from the oven or stove, because such sudden, intense heat is very harmful to the surface of any type of table.

The most outstanding advantage of oilcloth is the fact that it can be so easily cleaned. But it is simply appalling how quickly it loses its beauty if harsh cleaners are used. They scratch the surface and soon wear it entirely away. The directions I follow call for the use of Princess Soap Flakes because Princess suds gently dissolve all dirt and grease and leave the surface shining and clean. They will not harm the surface of any oilcloth. Think of all the laundering which might be saved by using oilcloth in the kitchen, the sunroom, and the porch. Line your cupboards and shelves with some pretty pastel shade, or a bright colour to match the colour scheme of your kitchen. Make a cloth for the table. For this, you might use the dull-finished version of the old-fashioned red check tablecloths of old French and Colonial days. Make cushions and slip covers for the porch chairs. And with the pieces that are left over cover your plant pots.

To clean all these things, it is only necessary to wipe them off with a cloth that has been dipped into a dish of warm Princess suds.

You can use Princess Soap Flakes for every household washing task. As Home Economics Counsellor, I have tested them in every way, and the result of years of experimenting is that I now recommend Princess Soap Flakes for washing everything; particularly for silk stockings, lingerie and other delicate things which require special care. A housewife who uses Princess Soap Flakes can keep her lovely linen and curtains, her china, glass and silverware and bright cooking utensils attractive for a long time.

Write and let me know if you would like to try Princess Soap Flakes, enclosing 4c postage, and I will see that a free trial package is sent to you. My address is 64 Natalie Street, Toronto 8, Ontario.

When linen has lost its original whiteness, it will be greatly improved by boiling in sour milk and Princess Soap Flakes. Linen should always be washed in Princess suds because they do not contain any chemicals which would leave yellow stains.

This Red Hand on top of the package guarantees it genuine.

PALMOLIVE PRINCESS SOAP FLAKES Made in Canada

A carefully made soap which will not give you red hands

Princess Soap Flakes do not contain any harsh chemicals or harmful free caustic—this big yellow package is full of pure soap. Because Princess Flakes are all soap, and not a lot of cheap chemical filler, they are economical. A few flakes go such a long way.

Guarantee

Palmolive guarantee to replace any washable garment which, by reason of its having been washed with Princess Soap Flakes has been damaged in texture or its colour made to run, provided such garment has been washed in accordance with instructions. We suggest that you test garments in plain, tepid water to make sure they are washable, and that the colour will not run.

HAMBURGER STEAK

(Contributed by "Primrose")

One pound of round steak put through the chopper. Season with salt and pepper, and onions cut fine. Add ¼ cup of sweet milk (no flour), and knead into cakes. Fry in a hot greased pan.

Note.—When the meat is cooked I usually drain my vegetable water on the meat (not cabbage), and thicken this for gravy.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Those who heard George Tebb, president of the Burlington Horticultural Society, speak here on Friday night must have come away with a new idea of the benefits such an organization when given enthusiastic co-operation can bring about.

What has been accomplished in Burlington, a town of 3,000 people, boasting a Horticultural Society with 500 members, can be duplicated locally if the community showed the same spirit in connection with the aims and objects of the Horticultural Society.

Here the society is endeavoring to get results with a membership of 200—whereas if it is to get anywhere near the Burlington standard it should have at least 1,000.

There is much beautifying that could be done here, many eyesores that might be removed, if it were possible to swing into the work a large and enthusiastic membership.

Rev. Mr. Tebb's address should be a source of inspiration to those who have been battling for a better Peterborough.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Although a local system of daylight saving has been several times rejected when submitted to the voters, there is a feeling that the verdict on this occasion may show a change.

This confidence is predicated upon the fact that it is proposed to have daylight saving in force only from the middle of June until Labor Day, and this confining of the system to the real summer weeks is expected to turn the tide of public opinion running the other way.

Many cities throughout Canada and the United States will operate on fast time during the summer, and it is significant that no community in which the system has been given a thorough trial has decided to go back to standard time during the summer.

In some cases the question is voted on at each municipal election, and there is no record of any city after trying daylight saving for a year or two having voted to abandon it.

On the other hand, the verdict has been so consistently in favor of summer time that some cities consider it a waste of time to vote annually on the question, and instead submit a daylight saving plebiscite every three years.

The present campaign has not so far developed any heated controversy, but interest in the by-law will doubtless increase as voting day draws near.

UNITING THE POLICE.

While the steps announced for the unification of the various police forces in Ontario under one control are satisfactory so far as they go, there will be disappointment that the incorporation of the traffic squad with the Provincial Police has not yet been arranged.

The traffic officers throughout the Province operate under the control of the Department of Highways—and there are many people who believe they should be transferred to the Provincial Police force under direction of the Attorney-General.

With central control it is obvious that better results could be obtained.

The Beamsville robbery is an example.

Had the various forces, provincial, traffic, county and municipal, been operating under one head, it is reasonable to believe that the escape of the bandits would not have been such a simple matter.

Under the present system, with different officers working independently of each other, it is difficult to avoid delay in co-operation—and before the whole machinery of the law can be arranged to work satisfactorily the crooks have shown a clean pair of heels.

Mr. Price is on the right track in seeking to centralize police work, and the maximum in efficiency will not be obtained until his full plan has been put into operation.

WE'VE ESCAPED LIGHTLY.

Peterborough has escaped so lightly in the matter of financing hospital accommodation up to the present time that the proposal to issue debentures for $300,000 to Nicholls Hospital should not be regarded as involving too heavy a burden.

Few centres in Canada have been so fortunate in this respect.

The generosity of one public-spirited citizen has given this community the benefit of hospital service for nearly half a century without any call upon the civic treasury—a condition that is difficult to duplicate anywhere in the country.

Where ratepayers in other cities have been called upon to raise funds for hospital service we have had 44 years' exemption from such demands.

There is no doubt that the suggested building program is badly needed; the present accommodation is inadequate and much of the equipment is obsolete, while the heating, culinary and other arrangements have not only outlived their usefulness but are needlessly expensive.

The Hospital Board has no other course than to urge the passing of this by-law and endorsement of its program, believing that the present conditions are not adequate to the needs of the community.

Ratepayers are urged to investigate conditions, and in the light of what they find decide as to how their ballots should be marked.

MR. CHURCHILL'S TEA.

When Mr. Winston Churchill sat down after his two-hour-long Budget effort yesterday, British Tories must have felt like saying with Sydney Smith, "Thank God for tea!" For the Chancellor of the exchequer, with that capacity for dramatizing issues that has always distinguished him, had cut $30,000,000 off tea duties with the stroke of a pen, thereby out-Lloyd Georging Lloyd George in a bold stroke for votes. Tea is as much a part of England as cricket, or rugby, or well-kept hedges. It is the one beverage equally honored in castle and cottage; and, apart possibly from Russia, there is no country in the world which makes such good tea or which consumes quite as much of it. It is to the Briton what coffee and pie are to our neighbors to the south.

Hence the electioneering importance of Mr. Churchill's stroke. The miner and the cotton worker drink as much tea as the Tory squire; but while the abolition of the duties may not mean much in the country house, it means a great deal in the miner's cottage; and it is in the miner's cottage that Mr. Baldwin must get votes. No wonder, therefore, that Mr. Philip Snowden, undoubtedly in chagrin, calls Mr. Churchill's speech an "election manifesto!" Mr. Lloyd George will be even more picturesque.

But it is not only in the matter of tea that Churchill has shown cleverness. His budget, in fact, has Balm in Gilead for all. For the citizen concerned about national credit he points to a reduction in debt. For the racing people—in England everybody bets on the Derby—the tax on racing bets is extinguished; for the apostles of economy there is smaller expenditure; there is a reduction in beer licenses of 25 per cent.; and there is something for the farmers and manufacturers.

Just how far all of this will go toward retrieving Mr. Baldwin's fortunes remains to be seen. But it is, at worst, a brilliant stroke—the old Churchill touch. Within the next week we shall see Mr. Lloyd George deploying his forces to meet the changed situation; and much will depend upon his attack. For the moment, however, Mr. Churchill has successfully diverted the national thought from the Lloyd Georgian employment policy; is riding out to the fray with flags flying and unafraid.—Ottawa Journal.

STAR SPANGLING THE ANTARCTIC.

To judge from the reports, which are being so elaborately broadcast from the ice-fields in the Antarctic by members of the Byrd expedition, much valuable exploratory work has already been accomplished, giving ground for the belief among supporters of the American enterprise that still greater results will be achieved in connection with the attempt to fly over the South Pole. Thanks to the radio and the American newspapers who are paying him by the word, Commander Byrd, modest hero as he is, has not been permitted to hide his activities in the darkness of the frozen south. Every move he has made, and almost every detail in the camp life of himself and his associates, from catching fish and feeding the dogs to aerial adventures and territorial discoveries, have been chronicled from week to week with a fulness which makes interesting, and often amusing, reading.

Apart from the recording of incidents and the revelation of wonders in the ice-zone that must make some of our Arctic explorers and patrols regret the romance they have missed in their work, one of the most entertaining features of the story emanating in almost daily instalments from the Antarctic is the facility displayed by the Byrd expedition in annexing large stretches of territory in that region to the United States. Since the Americans established themselves at the base from which they hope to make their aerial conquest of the Pole, scarcely a week has passed without an announcement of the discovery and baptism of new lands, accompanied by the intimation that they have either been claimed or formally appropriated on behalf of Uncle Sam. Indeed, at the rate at which the southern hinterland is being star-spangled and Old-Glorified, some people may be forgiven for wondering whether there will be enough flags left in the expeditionary equipment to go round by the time the Pole is reached.

Washington despatches indicate, however, that the annexation process so freely proclaimed is not being accepted without question or demur on the part of other powers having territorial claims in the Antarctic. By virtue of exploration and discovery both Britain and Australia have established jurisdiction in parts that have been authoritatively defined and officially recognized. Norway has substantial rights that cannot be ignored in view of Amundsen's achievement. France is asserting her claim to a strip of land discovered nearly a century ago, and among other countries disposed to challenge the pretensions of the American invaders are Chile and the Argentine. It is not surprising, therefore, to learn that the whole question of territorial jurisdiction over the Antarctic is engaging diplomatic attention and may become the subject of an international conference.

That method of settling territorial disputes may have its advantages, though history could be cited to show that it does not always operate without prejudice to some of the interests involved. But it is not the only way; nor, in certain circumstances, is it the most effective, as Canada has demonstrated by the policy successfully carried out during the past quarter of a century in relation to the consolidation and protection of her possessions in the Arctic archipelago.

When, a few years ago, the Governor of the State of Maine authorized Donald B. MacMillan, the American explorer, to annex, in the name of the United States, as many of the Arctic islands as he could locate in the course of his expedition to the north, that enterprising dignitary was somewhat disconcerted to learn that all the territory coveted had formally passed into the possession of Canada and was subject to the jurisdiction of the Dominion. He did not know that as far back as the year 1880 Britain had transferred to Canada the rights in the northern waters and islands acquired by exploration and discovery; nor was he aware of the fact that, since the present century began, measures had been taken by the Dominion Government to confirm and safeguard those rights by an expedient as simple and unostentatious as it was methodical and effective.

The story of how the veteran Quebec mariner, familiarly known as Captain Joe Bernier, hero of many an Arctic adventure, accomplished the work entrusted to him by the Government of authenticating Canada's claims to the northern hinterland, from 60 degrees west longitude to 141 degrees west longitude and as far north as the Pole, is a romance of maritime achievement compared with which the activities of more pretentious explorers seem almost commonplace. The way in which he did it was to voyage in successive trips from one end of the Arctic region to the other, stopping at different points to collect the records and verify the landmarks of British explorers, to establish depots and outposts, make surveys and proclaim Canadian sovereignty. In such manner was he able, as he said, "to secure for Canada the whole Arctic archipelago in detail and wholesale."

Britain may yet have occasion to regret that she did not have a Bernier to complete the work of her explorers in the Antarctic.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Horticultural Society is helping to make a more beautiful Peterborough for old boys and girls to come back to this summer. It should have the active support of hundreds of new members.

A Thought

LEST WE FORGET

Oft times I think what ungrateful creatures we are. How much we have given us from day to day and it costs us nothing. God sends us the beautiful sunshine, also the rains. He bestows upon our vision at every glance, His artistic scenery made by His most perfect hand.

He adds to our daily happiness the beautiful song birds of the air. He enriches our surroundings with our own beloved friends. It costs us nothing.

He blesses us with continuous good health—our ailments and pains come only to make us a little more appreciative of the Great Ruling Power of God's Hand.

See the awakening of spring from her long and weary slumber, throwing aside her great white blanket saying, "Arise ye sons of Earth! Be up and doing while day spring is here." Another gift from God.

Reader, let us stop in the midst of the hurrying crowds and murmur that old familiar song:

"Count your many blessings,
Name them one by one,
And it will surprise you,
What the Lord has done."

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY KLEPTOMANIA, PHYROMANIA AND OTHER MANIAS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Did you ever have a crazy tune running through your head over and over again? This is a common example of the milder form of obsession that is so prevalant as not to fall into the class of the abnormal and pathological obsessions, phobias, compulsions and manias of which kleptomania and pyromania are among the more striking.

The pathological is merely the exaggeration of the normal. We all have peculiar impulses which are more or less harmless. Some get the persistent notion that they are going crazy and nothing can possibly stop them, that they are about to kill someone or commit suicide, that they have forever disgraced themselves by a breach of etiquette. Other illustrations are queer impulses to touch everything you see, to count everything, streets, sign posts, telegraph poles, houses, people you pass, etc. Some have the impulse to approach the door of their house by taking the first step over the threshold with the right foot.

The kleptomaniac is one who has an irresistible impulse to take things that do not belong to him. Usually he specializes on some one object. Some of these have no special value to the kleptomaniac and not infrequently he is a man or woman of means who could afford to purchase these things but prefer to steal them, or rather can't keep from stealing them.

Phyromania is an obsession to set fire to things. One impelled by this impulse knows he shouldn't do it but can't resist the impulse.

Kleptomania, Phyromania and similar obsessions shade off from the queer impulses that all of us have, but they are more persistant and less controllable. There is no sharp line of demarkation.

Many ingenious explanations are offered for these queer impulses. The most popular one is that the abnormal impulsion are due to some repressed wish or intense fear or are the result of poor emotional adjustment due to some unfortunate experience, pre umably in early childhood and now forgotten.

All of these are forms of the inferiority complex. The individual always has a feeling of inadequacy and insufficiency, the way an exhausted or sick person feels in attempting to do something beyond his power.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

WE NEVER KNOW

Who can tell a friend
All that friendship means?
They would have to end,
All these happy scenes.
When our friendship passed
To the long ago
We would know at last
What we do no know.

Friendship, like the sun,
Friendship, like the air,
Always seem to one
Something always there.
Not until the night
Do we note the day,
Or observe the light
Till it fades away.

Fate must part us two
Ere we ever see
All I am to you,
All you mean to me,
Heaped must be the sod,
Dark the river flow—
So I pray to God
That we never know.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

Anthony went on very quietly, as if he were discussing some every-day affair.

"You would like Rhodesia—you wouldn't find it dull or lonely and boring as Mollie does. You wouldn't want dozens of new frocks and dozens of men to admire you in them."

"If you were there it would be all that matters," Ana said impulsively, and then could have bitten her tongue out for the admission. It was the last thing she had meant to say even though it was so passionately true. She had let another of her battlements fall to the ground.

There was a little silence, then:

"Thank you for that, anyway," Hambledon said.

"I ought not to have said it, "Ana broke out tremulously, "I ought not—"

He turned on her fiercely.

"Good God, can't you be honest just for a moment? Can't you be honest even with me? There is nobody listening, nobody to hear you say that you know you're a fool to throw away the one chance of real happiness either of us is likely to have. You talk like a nonconformist parson, Ana."

Ana did not know whether to laugh or cry. She loved him when he was angry; she loved the fierce look in his eyes as much as she loved the tenderness with which he had just regarded her. She felt as if she were slowly being drawn into a silken net which was so soft and soothing that it could never be called bondage until perhaps, one day in the future, she would wake up and find that its fairy-like strands had turned to steel cords that bound her to Anthony—perhaps against both their wills.

She broke out in despair:

"Such things don't last—you know they don't! Perhaps for a little while we should be happy, but afterward—"

Hambledon rose to his feet.

"Well, we won't argue about it. Shall we walk? You'll take cold. The air is getting cool."

She stumbled along beside him, half blinded with tears.

She longed to slip a hand into his and say: "Don't be angry with me. I love you so much. I want to do as you ask, but somehow I can't—perhaps it is as you say, the way I've been brought up—I daresay I'm all wrong—if I am, please convince me—please make me see life in your way." But her lips refused to form the words.

Presently she said brokenly:

"Don't walk so fast. I can't keep up with you."

He stopped at once, his eyes softening.

"You're such a child, Ana," he said.

She looked up at him, her eyes wet with tears.

"Am I? I always thought you were kind to children, Anthony."

He flushed and bit his lip.

"I know I'm a brute—but if you could see into my heart——"

"If you could see into mine," Ana thought miserably, but she dared not say so.

Already he had cut so much ground from beneath her feet that she was almost afraid to take another step forward.

In another fortnight he would have gone, and perhaps she would never see him again. Only another fourteen days! It would be like dying when he went away.

She wrenched her thoughts away.

"When are you going back to Lyme?" she asked.

"I don't know. To-morrow, I suppose. I've made no arrangements."

"Shan't I see you again?"

He looked down at her without answering, and Ana's tears overflowed and fell down her cheeks.

"Oh, you are unkind," she whispered.

If he would just take her in his arms as he had done that night in the cottage when she came back from Honitons if he would just say as he had said then; "I love you. I love you'——she felt that she could bear things more easily. But there was something so stern and implacable about the way he stalked along.

He broke the silence suddenly.

"After all, I daresay it will be better if you go home now," he said harshly. "What's the good of walking about and arguing in circles? I'll get a taxi and take you home."

"No—no," Ana said, and suddenly she was crying outright like the child he had called her. "I don't want to go home. I want to stay with you."

Fortunately there was nobody about; it was past six and people were scattering to their homes, or to dinner or to dress for the theatre.

Hambledon stopped and put his hands on Ana's shoulders.

"Stop crying this minute," he commanded. He looked white and shaken himself. "Ana, stop crying, do you hear?"

She made a desperate effrt to obey, and presently she was calm again save for little sobbing breaths that shook her.

"It's your fault," she accused him. "You bullied me till I couldn't stand it any longer."

"If you knew how much I want to take you in my arms," Hambledon said hoarsely.

They walked slowly on. The evening was drawing in; already the park was gray with dusk, and the street lamps were twinkling like the eyes of mischievous sprites.

And this was the evening to which she had looked forward with such passionate eagerness and pleasure, Ana thought despairingly.

"We'll go somewhere and feed," Hambledon said. "Not that I'm hungry—are you?"

"No."

"It will be better than walking about quarrelling, anyway."

He slipped a hand through her arm. "Forgive me, Ana?" he whispered.

She nodded; she could not trust her voice.

They went out of the park and into the road.

Halfway across they had to wait to allow a car to pass. It was an expensive-looking car driven by a man in evening dress—a man who, as he passed them, turned to make some laughing remark to a woman at his side, a woman—Mollie!

Ana and Hambledon both recognized her at the same moment; both recognized the man also as Ralph Mahon.

Then the car swept on and was lost in the maze of traffic.

Ana looked up at Anthony Hambledon; she felt a little giddy, as if someone had struck her a violent blow.

His face was grim, and he met her eyes unsmilingly.

"They are holding up the traffic," he said. "We had better cross now."

They went on and reached the opposite path.

Ana began a stumbling defence of her friend.

"There's nothing in it. He's probably only taking her out to dinner. Surely there's no harm in that, Anthony."

He made no answer, and she was afraid to speak again.

Farther down the street he hailed a taxi and gave the name of a little restaurant in Soho. Ana shrank back into a corner of the taxicab; her heart was racing with a nameless fear, and yet she was so happy she could not think. When they started away she closed her eyes, and then suddenly she felt Anthony's hands on her—compelling hands that broke down the last of her poor little defences.

"Ana!"

"Yes." But she did not open her eyes.

"Am I going back to Rhodesia alone, or are you coming with me?"

She tried to answer, but she could not. She thought of her mother, of her aunt, of life as she had always known it, with its conventions and monotony and lack of love, and then of the future this man was offering to her.

Himself, and his love, and happiness! Dazzling happiness.

Through her closed lids she could feel his eyes upon her, piercing her very soul.

"Ana!"

She looked up, and when he asked again, "Are you coming with me?" she suddenly gave way. She fell forward into his arms, all her powers of resistance gone.

"Yes—yes—yes——"

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

The increasing interest being taken in the memorial parades of the Canadian Legion was evidenced yesterday, when the capacity of Mark Street Church was taxed to accommodate the big crowd that turned out. A gratifying feature was the big representation of militia units.

• • •

The Legion is not, in these parades, endeavoring to maintain a tradition of militarism. It believes, however, that so long as people remember the sorrow and loss of the last war there will never be another.

• • •

The only organization charged directly with maintaining these memories is the Canadian Legion—and it believes it is acheving a worth-while work in the interests of peace.

• • •

A personal benefit results to the members, too. As the president said yesterday, when depositing the Legion wreath on the Cenotaph, "The devout worshipper at any shrine reflects something of its golden glow," and so those who yesterday paid honor to the men who fell at Ypres had handed down to them, and recalled again to memory, the great achievements, the devotion, and sacrifice of those who made Canada's First Division famous.

Their souls are marching on.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SAD LEAF

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Spring had come. There was no mistake about it. Where Uncle Wiggily lived, in Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains, the winter weather had gone back to the North Pole where it would ruffle the fur of the White Bears and make ice in the water where the Seals swam. But around Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow it was spring!

The old rabbit gentleman could tell this by looking at the trees and bushes. Instead of bare brown sticks and branches he could now see a tiny film of green spreading out.

He danced up and down.

"Tha means the leaves are coming soon," said Mr. Longears. "And when the leaves come out on the trees that is a sure sign of spring. Hurray!"

He felt so happy that he danced up and down on the grass, which often remains green all winter if it can find a sheltered corner away from the North Wind and too much snow.

"Often," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, as he danced up and down, "often I have wished that I lived in the warm Southland. That's when there is too much snow and ice around my bungalow. But though it is lovely in the Southland, they never can feel glad when Spring comes, because it is always like Spring there. Yes, I have much to be thankful for!"

He danced again on some dried leaves in a corner near the fence and, as he danced, the rabbit gentleman heard a voice saying:

"I wish I had!"

"Wish you had what?" asked Uncle Wiggily in surprise, looking around but seeing no one.

"I wish I had much to be thankful for," went on the voice.

"Who are you?" asked the rabbit.

Something moved near his paws and, looking down, he saw an old, dried leaf which had markings on it that looked like a face. The stem was like a slender leg and on two edges of the leaf were something like tiny arms sticking out.

"Did you speak?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes," whispered the sad leaf. "I did. I said I wish I had as much to be thankful for as you have."

"Why haven't you anything to be thankful for, Sad Leaf?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"I don't know why, but I haven't," went on the Sad Leaf. "Just look at me! I am old and dried up. When I see other green leaves coming out in the Spring on the trees and bushes, I think how I was once like them. Once, indeed, I was happy, when I was on a tree, high up in the air, with the sun shining on me, the rain giving me a bath and the wind dancing me up and down. I thought I would always live like that and be happy."

"Well, you were happy for a time," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, but not for long," sighed the Sad Leaf. "I thought I would stay green on the tree forever. But alas! Summer went away, Winter came, I grew cold. I dried up and fell down here to the ground where I have been ever since with many like myself. Many leaves have been trampled on and broken in to dust. I am one of the few that is still whole, though I am dried up and brown as an old shoe. What happiness have I?"

"Tut, tut! Nonsense!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "You may still be of some use in the world! Why, some boys may rake you up with other leaves and make a bon-fire of you."

"That would be terrible!" said the Sad Leaf. "I want to stay as I am, but I want to be happy and thankful. I want to do something! But I can't. When I was on the tree I could only move when the wind blew me, and here I can only do the same. But I am no longer nice and green."

"It does seem too bad," said Uncle Wiggily. "Perhaps if I took you to my bungalow I could find something for you to do."

"Speaking of bungalows!" suddenly growled a voice. "I'll take you off to my den, Uncle Wiggily!" And out of the bushes jumped the Bob Cat. He sprang at the bunny and would have caught him but, just then, the wind blew the Sad Leaf up in the air and against the face of the Bob Cat.

Over the eyes of the Bob Cat the wind plastered the Sad Leaf so, for a moment, the Bad Chap could not see anything.

"Quick, Uncle Wiggily!" called the Sad Leaf. "Run awa while I cover the eyes of the Bob Cat."

"I will!" said the rabbit. Quickly he hopped safely away.

"Bah! Gurr!" growled the Bob Cat. He put up his paw, crushed the dried leaf to powder and tore it from his eyes. But he was too late. Uncle Wiggily had hopped home to his bungalow. The sad Leaf was crushed to dust, but who can say it had nothing to be thankful for? It had saved Uncle Wiggily.

YOUNG MAN HAS LEG CUT

Laird Bothwell Receives Injuries in Runaway Accident At Millbrook.

DISTRICT NEWS.

Laird Bothwell, who was injured in a runaway accident while driving with his sisters to church on Sunday evening, and who has since been in Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital suffering from a deep cut on his leg, is making satisfactory progress toward recovery, and expected to be able to return to his home, Seventh Line, Cavan, by Saturday of last week.

The horse was frightened by the rattling of loose chains on a passing car and ran away, the harness breaking, Laird being thrown out of the buggy, and dragged a considerable distance along the paved roadway. Fortunately Miss Jean Bothwell was able to secure the reins and guide the horse into the yard back of the bank building, where it has been accustomed to be left on occasions when any of the family are in the village for a brief time.

Further progress along Distillery street would have been disastrous, as there is a bridge out of repair through flood damage.

Miss Violet Bothwell, who was also in the buggy, had her ankle injured, but is continuing her teaching work at school.

Entertains League

Mrs. Thomas C. Ingrim was hostess for the April meeting of the Women's League of Grace Presbyterian church, the president, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, occupying the chair. Interest was well sustained as reports from officers showed the activities either recently completed or now under way.

Following the opening devotional period, the discussion of new business led to the appointment of committee to visit sick and shut-in members of the congregation, and the matter of sending flowers and fruit also received attention.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins, the treasurer reported the amount of expenditures during recent weeks, including some repairs to the church property, a substantial balance being still in the bank. Means of raising money in the weeks ahead were talked over, and definite announcement will be made of plans as arrangements are completed.

A pleasant social hour was spent at the close, with refreshments served, the usual votes of thanks being tendered the hostess before the guests left for home.

Offering Taken

Mrs. H. R. Scott entertained the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Saint Thomas' church for its April meeting, the chair being taken by the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott.

The annual self-denial offering, which is always taken up immediately following the Lenten season, was received, and added a generous sum to the Auxiliary funds. The practice of giving this offering to the church was dispensed with this year, as there was a need to augment the amount in the treasury of the Society.

The Branch Diocesan meeting will be held in Toronto next month, and Mrs. Scott was appointed as delegates.

The bale annually shipped to Le Pas, Manitoba, with a complete outfit for an Indian girl, was sent this month, its value being placed at approximately $60. Sewing for this bale has been going on all year in the homes of the members, the supplies being finally brought together, such articles as boots bought, and the whole packed under the supervision of the Dorcas Secretary.

The second chapter in the study book, "India" was read by Mrs. J. A. Vance, and a letter from Mrs. Corey, Anglican missionary in Japan, was read by the secretary, Miss Rose Macnamara.

The hostess served refreshments during the pleasant social hour enjoyed at the close. The president, Mrs. Mestmacott, will be hostess for the May meeting.

FLIGHT IS POSTPONED.

DAWSON, Alaska, April 20. (C.P.)—The proposed flight by the plane Northern Light of the Yukon Airways Company to Aklavik, on the Arctic Ocean, has been definitely postponed. Two attempt were made but heavy fogs over the Pelly divide and Mackenzie Basin, prevented progress, and the plane had to return here. It is possible another attempt to Aklavik may be made in June, when pontoon can be used.

DULL SESSION ON STANDARD

No Significant Price Changes Recorded On Mine Market.

ABANA ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., April 22.—(Canadian Press).—With interest largely centred on the lower-priced stocks, the Standard Mining Exchange commenced the week in the same listless way which marked last week's trading. Prices gave no indication of any particular movement and no significant changes were recorded. Abana was active, soaring to a high of $2.35, with the noon quotation of $2.25 showing a gain of 10 cents. Arno led the list in point of activity and advanced 8 cents to 36, after touching a high of 40. Clericy improved 3 to 18, and Wright Hargreaves strengthened 7 cents to $1.72.

Noranda held at the morning's high of $52.25, up 50 cents while Pend Oreille regained 30 cents to 7.10. Sherritt-Gordon was unchanged at 8.25, Sudbury Basin and Teck Hughes both lost 5 cents to 8.55 and 9.10 respectively. Coast Copper was 50 cents stronger at 57.00.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Application has been made for the listing of 1,000,000 shares of the Columario Gold Mining Company on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, Toronto. The company's property is located in British Columbia, four miles from Usk, and was formerly the old Kleanze group. Financing has been carried out principally in Toronto and work has been proceeding on the property for some time. The mine is developed by a system of shafts and tunnels and favorable results are said to have been secured. The management has been blocking out ore for some time now and it is their intention to erect a concentrator this spring. The size of the concentrator has not yet been determined.

A large plane, headed for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company's holdings at Rottenstone Lake, northern Saskatchewan, and owned by the latter company, is reported to have crashed.

A super-Fokker, a super-Fairchilds and a super-Leoning, headed by Tim Creighton, who staked the Flin Flon mine for J. E. Hammell, and "Duke" Schiller, has left from a base north of Le Pas for Baker Lake, in the Chesterfield Inlet. The party will carry out prospecting for the Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration Company.

Lastral work is proceeding on the 1,050-foot level of the Kirkland Premier, one shift being employed. Drifting is being carried out on the vein which was encountered in the shaft and to date this has advanced some 50 feet on what at first was apparently a small stringer. During the last few rounds, however, it has widened out to two feet giving values of $6.80 It will be necessary to advance another 100 feet before the drill hole indication which showed commercial ore is encountered.

The shaft at the Harker is now said to be down to a depth of approximately 850 feet Another 150 feet will bring the shaft to its objective of 1,000 feet so that lateral work should be underway in June.

Crosscutting is underway at the 300 foot level of the Stadacona headed to the north to cut the Pelletier Lake fault. While cutting the station at the 300-foot level, a quartz vein was encountered showing some pyrite, chalcoyprite and free gold. However, it is statetd that the vein cut at the shaft is not of any great importance and that the real results should be obtained when the crosscut reaches its objective.

It is reported that the Nontchatel Mines with the Sudbury Mines, has taken up some 70 claims in the Patricia district These claims, which are said to be in seven groups, have a good location with regard to other companies in the area. Plans are now being made for an extensive campaign of exploration.

Shaft sinking is continuing at the Duparquet Rouyn with stations to be cut at the 125 and 250 foot levels where croscutu will be put out to tap the downward extension of a wide break showing on surface.

LIST RECOVERS ACTIVE MARKET

Easing Credit Conditions Stimulates General Advance at New York.

CALL MONEY PLENTIFUL.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22. (C. P.) — Easing credit conditions stimulated a general recovery in prices in to-day's stock market. Buying orders were distributed over a fairly broad list, gains of 1 to 7 points being quite common, with larger advances by a few high priced specialties. Trading showed a tendency to increase on the rally, indicating a broadening of public participation in the market.

Call money renewed at 7 1-2 per cent., and was in fairly plentiful supply at that figure. Time money ruled firm around 9 per cent.

Adams express soared 16 points. American Telephone ran up more than 6 points to a new high record at 236; American and Foreign Power, American Power and Light, Federal Light and Traction, North American Company, and Western Union sold 3 to 5 points higher.

New high records for the year also were established by International Business Machines, Union Carbide, American Can, United Aircraft, Wright aeronautical, Borg Warner, Consolidated Film Preferred of U. S., Industrial Alcohol.

HIRAM WALKERS FEATURE ISSUE

Toronto Stock Exchange List Stronger in Active Trading Session.

INDUSTRIALS GAIN.

TORONTO, Ont., April 22.—(Canadian Press.)—With Hiram Walkers in the lead, the list on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day gave a much stronger appearance. While the bulk of the total sales was largely monopolized by the leader, trading was generously scattered among the oil and industrial stocks. Walkers in a turnover of more than 12,000 shares shot up to a high of 84, the noon price of 82 indicating a net advance of 1½ points. Carlings was 1½ points higher at 21½.

Lake Superior was active and held close to the morning's high at 30, up 5¼ points, while Standard Steel followed closely with a 4 point gain at 59. N. S. Car soared 4 5-8 points to 107. Canada Paving Pref. 3 at 112, Dufferin Construction 2 at 34, Pure Gold 2 at 33 and Canada Dredge 1¾ at 75¾.

Five shares of City Dairy changed hands 5 points lower at 65, while Hayes Wheels weakened almost 2 points to 63, and English Electric B. 2 points at 26.

Wheat Prices Drop Below Season's Low

CHICAGO, Ills., April 22 (Canadian Press). — Fresh breaking of the season's low price records for wheat took place early to-day at Chicago owing to general selling and lack of demand.

Opening ⅝c to 3 cents off, wheat later showed little power to rally. Corn and oats were relatively firm, corn starting ⅜ to ½ up, and afterward scoring slight gains. Provisions went lower.

HOME MISSIONARY WORK IS OUTLINED

The regular meeting of Trinity Church W.M.S. was held recently in Reid Street Hall, the president, Mrs. A. F. Bookhout, in the chair. After the opening exercises the meeting was conducted by Mrs. N. D. Seaton. The speaker of the day was Mrs. Staples of Cavan, who gave a very inspiring address on home missionary work, stressing the point that we should not overlook the needy cases around us, where a helping hand, a cheery word or a kindly smile would help to bring sunshine into the lives of the suffering and wayward ones.

A very pleasing solo was sung by Mrs. Wainman, and Mrs. Heal read the Bible lesson. A vote of thanks to the speaker was tendered by Mrs. Albert Barton. This brought the meeting to a close.

BOY SCOUT NEWS 7TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The 7th Peterborough Troop met as usual on Wednesday in St. John's Parish Hall.

After the usual opening the troop broke up into patrols for a Kangaroo relay race. The Chickadees winning.

The boys went to Patrol corners for instruction. The Seals were shown the art of whipping the end of ropes, while S.M. Johnson of All Saints' troop took Morse code signalling with the Chickadees.

A game of "Wooden Indian" was played and this was followed by "Deer and Hunter" in this last game the patrols tied for points while the former game was not a competitive one.

During the camp fire period S. M. Garfield Johnson told a very exciting adventure story.

Scout silence brought the meeting to a close.

This troop meets weekly at 7 o'clock p.m. on Wednesdays.

DESTROYER IN DRY-DOCK

Cutters, cruisers, and the like are the small craft of sea forces. Their very names suggest "dwarfish" proportions, trim lines, and speed. They are however, "dwarfish" only when compared with the monster dreadnoughts of the battle fleet. As an illustration of the fallacy of size impression in this regard, this photograph of a coastguard destroyer, in drydock at the Charlestown, Mass., navy yard, is offered.

ACTION NEEDED IN SOME CASES

Lawns Cannot Be Sacrificed Because People Don't Obey Polite Request

At least one man will take legal action against those who trample his lawn, pull up or kick over his stakes intended to guard the sward, and break his fence, he tells The Examiner. There are some people who cannot be appealed to in any other way than by threat of legal action, or force. It is useless to enter into personal disputes, and the only way for the earnest citizen, who is endeavoring to add to the beauty of Peterborough, is by legal action. The Aylmer street man has the right idea.

The following has joined The Examiner campaign to beautify Peterborough since publication of the last lists:

Mrs. Armstrong, McDonnel street.
H. Turner 247 Princess street.
Marcelle O'Donnell, 672 Stewart street.
S. A. Lowe, 186 George street.
The Canadian Legion, Murray street.
Mrs. F. Wilson, 38 Lafayette avenue.
Miss Evelyn Blodgett, 657 Reid street.
Mrs. Quinlan, 311 McDonnel street.
Mrs. S. C. Warne, 466 Gilmour street.
T. J. Hickey, 735 Bethune street.
Jno. J. Stewart, 264 Lansdowne street.

These citizens, in an effort to beautify their own lawns and Peterborough as a whole, have promised: "I will endeavor in all possible and legitimate ways to preserve my lawn; I will check up persons who habitually walk on it; I will care for my lawn regularly so that it will be always attractive; I will not 'cut across' any other person's lawn." If everyone in Peterborough would sign this promise and carry it out, what a wonderful difference there would be in this city.

Organizations Eligible.

Among the organizations that have joined the movement are the Canadian Legion (by vote at its last general meeting); Rotary Club, which commended the movement to its members, and Kiwanis Club, which has forwarded the suggestion to its Arbor Day Committee.

Churches and other organizations having big expanses of lawn may secure as many "Please Keep Off the Lawn" signs as needed, on joining the campaign. Citizens are given two of the signs. All that is necessary is to sign the coupon and bring it to The Examiner office or send it by mail, with a two-cent stamp enclosed for return postage.

The card serves a twofold purpose. It is a polite request to passing people not to step on your lawn, and it links you up with hundreds of other citizens in a city-wide movement. There is strength in unity.

JUNIOR SOCIETY MEETS.

Kind Acts Are Reported By Members of Junior Humane Society.

A most successful meeting of the Junior Humane Society was held in St. John's Parish Hall last week, Mrs. James Chandler presiding; the meeting conducted considerable business following the opening song "Cruel Acts" and the reciting of the pledge. Kind acts were related by Roy Parnell, Alfred Pink and Lily Bull. Ray Parnell read a newspaper clipping and Amy Soly and Alfred Pink told of some they had seen. Another item of business was the serious consideration of R. H. Turner's communication suggesting that the society place a float in the Old Home Week parade. A letter was also read from Press Correspondent Warren Turner in which he tendered his resignation from that office.

C.N.R. Earnings

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Raailways for the week ending April 14th, 1929, were $4,733,723, as compared with $4,301,251 for the corresponding period of 1928, an increase of $452,472 or 11 per cent.

IT may be a small run or a half a million impressions . . . Leaflets, folders, brochures, catalogues, blotters, letterheads, handbills or what have you? . . . Whatever the job—WE DO IT RIGHT!—and deliver it when promised.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS ATTEND CLOSING SERVICES OF REVIVAL

Huge Mass Meeting Is Held in George Street United Church.

IMPRESSIVE MESSAGES.

Dibble Party Close Singing Revivals in City With Five Services.

At the conclusion of the regular evening service in St. James' last night, the Dibble party proceeded to George Street United Church, where a huge mass meeting was in progress. Representing various denominations were the pastors seated on the platform, Rev. J. E. Todd, Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, Rev. William Allan, Rev. A. E. Thornley, Rev. Mr. Mills.

Congregational singing and request solos by Mr. Dibble, accompanied by Mr Mustaine, took up the first part of this farewell service. "God's Tomorrow," "Memories," "Jesus Satisfies," "The Glory Song," "When They Ring Those Golden Bells for You and Me," were some of the beautiful songs so generously rendered. With perfectly blending voices Mrs. Liddle and Mr. Dibble sang the old familiar hymn, "The Old, Old Story." "The Penitent," by Vanderwater, accompanied by Mr. Liddle on the organ, was a message direct from the scriptures of the prodigal son, sung by Mr. Dibble.

"The most precious thing on earth or in Heaven," was Mrs. Dibble's impressive farewell message. She based this upon the story of Moses and the sprinkling of the blood upon the homes to save the lives of the eldest sons.

The most precious thing upon earth or in Heaven is the blood of Christ shed as He died upon Calvary. He was the Lamb of God which takes away sin. The Jewish people still look for the coming of their King, but Christ was the type and antitype for the remission of man's sins. Jesus came as a three-fold person: prophet, preacher and King. There was never a prophet like Him, but He has yet to come as King! When he does come, He shall sit upon His throne and rule the nations, and every knee shall bow to Him. Then we shall have peace, and never until then.

Every church or religion that sets aside the blood of Christ loses the power. If we shall ever sit with the heavenly throng, it will be by the shed blood of the Lamb. It is the easiest thing in the world to reject Christ. Every day thousands pass into a Christless eternity. There is only one road to everlasting life. Good works, morality, religion will not do—the blood of Christ is the only way.

Just as the blood on the door-posts of the Israelites saved their eldest born, just so surely does the blood of Christ save us. Who could reject this precious blood, but you do it every time you refuse to come to Him. Wouldn't you like to lose your sins, blotted out in the blood of Christ. The way is simple: Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved. With this appeal she closed her last service in Peterborough with earnest prayer.

A. E. Prest, representing the laymen of St. James', expressed gratitude to the Dibble party for the blessings they have brought to the hearts and to the church through their efforts.

Mrs. Dibble, before introducing her message, spoke of the wonderful things that had been accomplished here with all working, hoping and praying for the one great purpose. Not because of the preaching, not the singing, but because people came in the spirit and worked together. She appealed to the congregation to keep the fires of this revival burning in their hearts, not only now, but through all eternity.

Mrs. Dibble was wholehearted in her expression of appreciation of the courtesies extended to their party by both the congregation of St. James and its pastor. She said that she and Mr. Dibble had never had the privilege of working with a man of God like Mr. Dudgeon, and told the people they should thank God for having such a leader.

Afternoon Session.

Another record crowd was in attendance at the meeting for women and girls on Sunday afternoon in St. James, when the church was taxed to its capacity.

Opening with a short song service, Mr. Dibble sang "Peace, Peace, Wonderful Peace," and then proceeded to the Park street Baptist church for a men's service.

Mrs. Dibble asked the women and girls to join in singing, as a prayer, "The Old Rugged Cross," saying that more than anyone in the world womankind owes a great debt to the Cross.

The Ladies' Quartette of St. James sang "The Heart of God," after which Mrs. William Allan of St. Paul's, offered prayer.

"A Great Woman," was the subject Mrs. Dibble chose for her address, taking her theme from the 4th chapter of second Kings. This is the story of the Shunammite woman, who was great because of her faith in God. We might have met this woman and found her not out of the ordinary, but God called her a "great woman." Elisha, to show his gratitude for her kindness to him, offered her the highest honor the land afforded, but she was able to estimate values, and refused the cheap offer and chose the best, that of a son. What would God say of you if He were making a record of your life. We look upon the outward appearance and He looks within. God's friendship and approval are the best things in all the world. Illustrating this point she told of the gift of a beautiful apple given her by a little girl. But when the apple was cut by her young son he found it to be dry-rotted in the heart.

"Girls, if asked to-day what was their greatest asset would give many answers, such as beauty, money, friends, intelligence, but she may have all these, and if there is no Christ in her heart, these things will not count. Keep the heart pure and clean before Him."

"Any great or good woman loves the church. The Shunammite woman was great because of her love for God.

"Her home was always ready to receive Elisha. We are not looking for Elisha in our homes, but for the Son of God. Every Christian woman should have her home so that if God came at morning, noon or night she would be ready to receive Him.

"We must be careful to choose the greatest gifts of life and avoid the cheaper, in either a social or personal sense."

In closing, Mrs. Dibble appealed to mothers and daughters to give themselves and open their hearts to Jesus, asking God to show what he could do with the lives of this large congregation if all were consecrated to Him.

Evening in St. James

St. James' was filled to the doors for the closing service of the great campaign, which opened with an inspiring song service with Mr. Dibble leading, and Frank Stevens at the organ; Harold Mustaine, pianist, and both choirs assisting.

Mr. Dibble very generously gave several request numbers, "Face to Face," "Stranger of Galilee," "Jesus, a Friend of Mine," and "Holy City."

Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, the pastor, expressed his great appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Dibble. Mr. Frank Kitney on behalf of the church, spoke of the inspiration this party had brought to the people of St. James'. A resolution of appreciation was moved by J. O. Fife, seconded by A. E. Prest, to Mr. and Mrs. Dibble and Mr. Mustaine, as well as to Mr. Dudgeon, whose wonderful leadership had made the success of this campaign possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Dibble sang, "We'll Never Say Good-bie in Heaven," as their parting song, and said they would carry many beautiful pictures away in their momory gallery of the happy time spent in Peterborough.

Mr. Dibble, on behalf of his party, expressed his thanks for all the courtesies and kindnesses shown them while here, especially mentioning Rev. Mr. Dudgeon and family, the board, the choirs and the organist, Mr. Stevens; Mrs. Deyell and the Misses Deyell, who entertained them; the press reported and The Examiner, who were so generous in giving the meetings publicity, and Mr. Cripps, the caretaker of the church.

This service was to close at 7.45 and join the George Street United Church congregation, but learned that there was already an overflow crowd in that church.

Mrs. Dibble then gave a short parting message in St. James' based on the words contained in the 22nd chapter of St. Matthew, which is the story of a King who had prepared a great feast, sparing nothing in the preparations. When he sent his servants to invite the guests they treated it lightly and were unable to come. Once again the invitation was not accepted, and some of the servants were slain; so he sent them out into the highways to bring in rich and poor, good and bad. It was the custom that all guests were provided with robes, so that ragged or dirty, they would all look alike. One guest did not wear the King's robe—whether from ignorance, pride or just carelessness was not known. When questioned he was speechless and had no reply. The King called his servants and cast him out into utter darkness. This is the parable that God has given us of the feast He planned at the beginning of time, when He sent His dearly beloved Son that the feast might be possible.

When our boys went to the Great War, we had at least a hope that they would return, but when God sent His Son into the great battlefield of life, He knew Jesus was bound to die. Not only was the feast prepared by Christ's death, but also the robe of righteousness, which is the only one which will allow you to stand in the presence of God.

But the God of love will not send any one to Hell, but sin and rejection of Christ will, and there is no excuse for anyone at the bar of God who has heard of Him.

Mass Meeting for Men

The great mass meeting for men only, held in Park street Baptist Church yesterday afternoon more than realized the expected attendance with a packed church.

The message 'When a Man's a Man" was dealt with in a masterly way by Mr. Dibble.

The meeting was supported by the Salvation Army Band which occupied the choir loft. Also the Rev. Mr. Edgar, of Gilmour Memorial church, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, St. James and Rev. Mr. Allan, St. Paul's, with Rev. Mr. Harton, pastor of the church, with other members of the clergy in the audience. As usual Mr. Dibble used his wonderful voice to bring a message One of his numbers which had not been heard in Peterborough before was "Jonah and the Whale."

Rev. William Allan, at the close, spoke of the great blessings accruing from this singing revival and said that the city of Peterborough owed a great debt of gratitude to Rev. Mr. Dudgeon for being instrumental in bringing the Dibble party to Peterborough. He also suggested that Mr. and Mrs. Dibble be invited to return at a later date when not only St. James but the whole city should be able to share in the meetings and blessings.

The Harmony Quartette of St. James favored the meeting with a beautiful number.

An unusual feature noticed in his revival was the absence of requests for money or offerings. During the first week only were offerings taken to defray local expenses in connection with the campaign, and the evangelists received only the offering of the last day for their labor of love. They were most grateful for yesterday's offerings and expressed their heartiest thanks to the people of St. James' Park Street street Baptist church and George Street United church, hoping that it would be possible for his party to return to Peterborough again at a not too far distant time.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 22.—The demand for butter on Saturday was better than at any other time during the week. Sales were made at prices from 39 cents for eastern townships No. 1 pasteurized, fresh made, to 41 cents per pound for New Zealand finest. Western No. 1' pasteurized was selling at 40c per pound.

The cheese market continued quiet, receipts being small and only a small trade passing.

The egg market was generally steady during the past week, prices to the retail trade being slightly easier.

The local potato market ruled steady.

Quotations: — Cheese, westerns, 21½ to 22c; eggs, fresh extras, 33 to 34c; do., fresh firsts, 31 to 32c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Weakness continued on Saturday's wheat market and prices in the early trading broke one cent to 1¼c below Friday's close, but a fair amount of buying near the close brought the market up from the low marks and final quotations revealed declines of 5-8c to ¾c for the day. Pit operations consisted largely of spreading, although seaboard houses entered the trading for a while.

Moderate demand was in evidence in cash wheat with values ¼c better to unchanged. Export trade was small.

A little business was done in oats, but there was an inactive session in barley, flax and rye. May future rye dropped 1¼c, but strengthened slightly at the close. The other grains were unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices lurched heavily downward Saturday, and went under any level heretofore reached this season. Widespread rains in domestic winter wheat territory giving promise of a big yield were largely responsible, together with reports of dissension in the Canadian growers' pool and with dearth of European call for shipments from North America. Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 7-8c to 15-8c net lower. Corn finished ¼c to 7-8c down, and oats ¼c to 5-8c lower.

Latest figures on the probable visible supply of wheat and flour in all positions were given as totalling 496,960,000 bushels compared with 382,250,000 bushels at the corresponding time last year.

Corn and oats Saturday finally paralleled the course of wheat, but the feed grains held better than wheat did. All deliveries of rye sold at a new low-priced record for the season.

SOCIETY WILL HOLD SOCIAL

Many Matters of Business Discussed By Cavan Women's Institute.

REPORTS READ

CAVAN, April 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. David Hunter on Thursday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. R. M. Howden, opened the meeting and the roll call was responded to by suggestions for improving the meetings during the coming year. Three letters of appreciation were read from persons who, during illness, have received Easter lilies or candy.

There was a report from the committee who had been trying to get a play up. It reported that because of the approach of the busy season, they could not get enough persons to take the characters.

A motion was passed, That in the latter part of May the Institute hold a supper, and entertainment, and to have a table of home-made candy on sale during the program. Each member was asked to make up twenty-five cents worth of sugar into candy.

It was decided that the same play committee be asked to secure a play for the program. It was asked to get in touch with organizations, who, already have a play prepared, to find out the kind of play, and the terms on which it could be given, and then make a choice of one that would suit the needs of the Institute.

In a motion sponsored by Mesdames Perrin and Swain, it was decided to buy the bread, meat and butter for the supper.

Mrs. C. Carr and Mrs. Perrin were named as a committee to look after the menu, with power to add to their committee.

Mrs. F. S. Staples and Mrs. Margaret Matchett were appointed to look after one table with Mrs. David White and Mrs. Richard Matchett to supervise the other one. These ladies were asked to choose their own waiters.

Mrs. Rowen was appointed to be responsible for the tea-making.

A splendid financial report was presented by the secretary-treasurer, Miss M. E. Hunter.

The receipts for the year were $355.54, the expenditures $224.28, leaving a balance in the bank of $131.36.

The members were reminded that the library books were to be passed on every two weeks.

After the business session came the election of officers.

Mrs. Paul and Mrs. J. C. Swain sponsored a motion, that the old officers, who had filled their offices very efficiently, be returned to office for another year. This was passed unanimously

Mrs. Lloyd Sutton was appointed district director, as the lady who filled that office last year is away.

A communication from the Millbrook Institute was read, asking the preference of Cavan Society, between a three-days' short course, or a speaker from the department in May. All were in favor of a lady speaker as in former years.

There will be no regular meeting of the society in May.

The meeting was dimissed, after Mrs. Howden had extended an invitation to meet at her home the third Thursday in June.

Mesdames Swain, Syer, Braithwaite and Miss F. Hunter will be in charge of the program for that meeting.

Three new members were added to the society. The lunch committee, Mesdames Howden, White and Staples assisted the hostess in serving lunch, when the usual social hour was enjoyed.

Mr. McCleary officiating.

WAR VETERANS AND MILITIA

mutely beckoning men of to-day to share the glory these others won

It was at the Cenotaph that the first act in yesterday's service took place. The band of the Peterborough Rangers, under Lieut. W. Peryer, and of the Salvation Army, under Stanley Richardson massed on the sward between the guns which are the only concrete evidence in Peterborough of the odds and the victory; to the east was the detachment of the Peterborough Rangers and to the west, the Machine Gun Company. On Murray street, facing the Cenotaph, were the veterans. The massed bands played softly, "God Of Our Fathers." President Heron, after a few words commending the memorial service reverently laid on the base of the Cenotaph a poppy wreath as a tribute from the Canadian Legion. As he stepped back the clear notes of the bugle rank out in the Last Post, the soldier's requiem, and telling of the everlasting hope "Reveille" was sounded.

The column marched by way of Murray, George and Hunter streets to Mark Street Church ,and along the route citizens, touched by the scene, stood at attention as the parade passed by.

At The Church

The ex-service men and militia filed into the church, filling nearly all the pews except in the gallery. The presence of the khaki clad soldiers gave added dignity and significance to the impressive service. At each side of the rostrum stood a war-accoutred soldier, Corporal W. W. Sage of the 4th Overseas Battalion and Pte. Bruce Clark of the 25th over resting on reversed rifles. The half-furled flag of the Legion stood near the pulpit.

Rev. A. E. Thornley in his sermon urged that the sacrifices of the last war were made in a war to end war. He took his text from part of the third and fourth verses of the prophecy of Isaiah, second chapter "For out of Zion shall go forth the law and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they near war any more."

Special music added greatly to the interest and significance of the service. The most appropriate words of "In the Upper Garden" sung in duet by Mrs. T. E. Curvin and Miss Grace Currie and "Soldiers of Christ Arise" was sung as an anthem by the choir. "Fear Ye Not O Israel" was sung by Harry Collison.

Toward the end of the service the Dead March in Saul was played on the organ by Cecil Lapp and Captain Peryer sounded "Last Post" and "Reveille."

Before the parade was dismissed at the Legion Hall, the president of the Legion expresse dthe veterans appreciation of the attendance of the militia units, and remarked that while the ex-soldiers have a knowledge of war which makes them hate the thought of it, they are in full sympathy with the militia.

The parade was dismissed by Lt.-Col. Lawrie.

FILM is Cloudy

Teeth are white and sparkling

Film discolors teeth and then destroys them. Dentists urge a special way to remove it.

DENTAL science knows what robs teeth of brilliant whiteness. It is film, a constant menace.

It clings to teeth and gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs stains from food and smoking to turn white teeth "off color" and cloud their brilliance. Film hardens into tartar. Germs breed in it, and they, plus tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

To remove film, dentists prescribe the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. Try it today.

In a few days teeth grow whiter and begin to sparkle. Start today. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter, or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 191 George St., Toronto 2, Ont., Can.

The Tragedy of Constipation

CONSTIPATION today is Civilization's greatest curse. So widespread are its inroads that the medical profession, aroused, is stressing the absolute need of avoiding it. Many cases of constipation are caused by lack of roughage in the diet and can be corrected by eating the proper roughage food.

Post's Bran Flakes is an efficient body regulator because it helps to provide roughage in efficient form. And you will eat it every day because its corrective qualities are combined with flavour and food value in one tempting, delicious dish.

Make this two weeks' test and note the difference

Constipation must not be neglected. Start a two weeks' test now. Order a package of Post's Bran Flakes from your grocer.

Start by eating a dish of Post's Bran Flakes for breakfast. Eat it as a cereal, with milk or cream. You will find it as delicious as it is effective.

Do this every day for two weeks. We predict you will find a real difference in the way you feel, and that you have been "regular" all the time.

But don't stop at the end of two weeks. Eat Post's Bran Flakes every morning for health and regularity.

Post's Bran Flakes is sold by all grocers, in a wax-wrapped package. Ready to eat.

Write for free trial package to Canadian Postum Co., Limited, Sterling Tower, Toronto 2, Ont.

Cases of recurrent constipation associated with too little bulk in the diet should yield to Post's Bran Flakes. If your case is abnormal consult a competent physician at once and follow his advice.

Bonarlaw

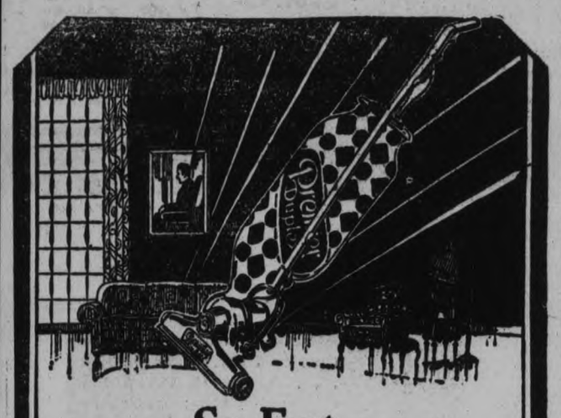
BONARLAW, April 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. John Meiklejohn and Miss Emma Meiklejohn, of Campbellford, spent Wednesday at Mr. John S. McKeown's.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott West were in Belleville on Tuesday.

Mr. Fred McKeown was in Peterborough on Monday.

Mr. Jesse Barlow has purchased a new car.

Mr. Clarence Wellman is recovering after being confined to his home through illness.



So Fast it will amaze you

THE speed with which a Premier-Duplex cleans is little short of amazing.

It cuts cleaning hours to a few swift minutes a day because it employs a cleaning principle that is unequalled for speedy thoroughness.

That principle is the famous Premier combination of a motor-driven brush with super-suction that extracts even the last scrap of dirt hidden deep in the nap of your rugs.

An adjustable nozzle which adapts the Premier Duplex to varying rug surfaces is a further guarantee of thoroughness.

And the Duplex needs no after-hours care—it never needs oiling.

Arrange for a home demonstration to-day, and remember without the new Spic-Span, a powerful little cleaner that antiquates attachments, your housecleaning equipment is not complete. 658

MANY EVENTS BEING PLANNED

Campbellford Is Planning Many Events For Old Home Week.

TO HAVE ORANGE WALK.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — This summer Campbellford will find itself the centre of several attractions. Thousands of former residents and visitors will come flocking back to the "Power Town" of the Trent Waterway. The Old Home Week is expected to attract the greater number of visitors, but though it is the largest of the celebrations scheduled, it is not the first or only one. Early next month the local branch of the Canadian Legion will set the ball rolling with their Gala Week. June is scheduled to pass quietly as far as present arrangements have been made. L.O.L. No. 36 is sponsoring the Orange Walk on the Twelfth of July here. Two weeks later the Old Home Week celebration is scheduled to begin. Civic Holiday, the first Monday in August, will, if present arrangements are carried out, be the grand finale of the celebration to begin July 28th. Between times the regular round of garden parties and lawn socials will take place. The troops will take in their annual summer training. The Boy Scouts and Girl Guides will leave for their annual camping trips.

Gala Week.

Last year the Gala Week sponsored by the Legion was a success. This year it is planned for a much larger scale. The dates contracted are for the second week in May, and Joyland Shows will operate on the Market Square, morning, afternoon and evening, from May 4th to May 11th, Sunday not included. Edward Hubble, owner and manager of the shows, has granted the Legionaires a generous contract similar to that of last year. The shows are owned and operated with Campbellford as their home town and the Legionaires feel very appreciative of the fact that they are yearly honored with the opening contract of the season and the opportunity to send the shows on their way with a bumper start. On Friday evening of Gala Week, the Legionaires will be at home in the auditorium of the High School. Cards and dancing will be the forms of entertainment offered to the guests.

Old Home Week.

The topic on the tip of every tongue in the district these days is Old Home Week. Names of former citizens are being submitted to the invitation committee in large numbers. The council has contracted with a large midway for the week. Horse racing, ball games, water sports, field sports, and every conceivable form of entertainment is being arranged. The daily parades will be a feature in themselves. The water carnivals will transform the river inside the town limits into a modern Venice.

Orange Walk.

Under the auspices of L.O.L. 36, Campbellford, is to have an Orange celebration this year. Lodges from over a wide area are being invited to attend and take part in the parade and celebration generally. Well-known speakers will address the gathering.

MUSKRAT SEASON ABOUT THROUGH

Rice Lake Trappers Report the Catch To Be Smaller Than Other Seasons.

BAILIEBORO, April 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—The muskrat season is almost over on Rice Lake for this year, and the local trappers report the catch to be very much smaller than other seasons.

The continued changes in the height of the water made it almost impossible to catch the muskrats, and although the catch was small the quality of the pelts was exceptionally good.

Mrs. Gerald Lang, of Oshawa, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lang.

Master Jack Moncrief is visiting at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Barnard.

Mr. Thomas Tanner was a visitor to Toronto this week.

W.M.S. MEETS.

Routine Business Transacted By Springville United Church Society.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, April 22. — On Wednesday, April 17 the Springville W. M. S. met in the basement of the church for the monthly meeting. The president Mrs. George Whitfield presided.

The study book, "Drums in Darkness," was in charge of Mrs. M. Johnston who gave an interesting and concise summary of the second chapter dealing skilfully with all important features.

Miss A. Brown reported the address given by Mrs. Bookhout at the W. M. S. Presbyterial conference.

A report of Miss Brimstin's address on China was given by the president.

Mrs. William Whitfield continued with the study of China by reading several short articles dealing with the life of the women of that country, concluding by reading a card from Miss Greta Clark, missionary in China, telling of conditions there this winter. Miss Clark especially requested that the Society remember her and her work in its prayers.

Mrs. A. Hunter volunteered to take the study book for the next month. A study of Home Missions in the West was also suggested for the next meeting.

GETTING SKINNIER EVERY DAY

Something Must Be Done and Done Right Now—Quick

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile and enjoy life right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets are putting flesh on hosts of skinny folk in all parts of the world every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, gained 15 pounds in five weeks and now feels fine.

And this shows what faith the makers have in McCoy's for they say; if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your money will be refunded—and only 60 cents for 60 tablets—Economy Size—$1.00. Ask for them at McDermid & Jury, McDermid, Bond's, Lynch, and Payne's, or any drug store.

LOCAL SOCCER SEASON OFFICIALLY OPENED

BRINTON AND C. G. E. SOCCER TEAMS BATTLE TO A DRAW

Clubs Put Up Good Game—Forwards Poor Finishing Failure.

NO GOALS SCORED.

Many New and Old Faces Noticed in Two Elevens—Halves Were Good.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the opening soccer game at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon when the Brinton Peterborough A. A. and the Canadian General played in an exhibition game that resulted in no scoring.

One good feature of the tussle was the talent on display, many of the new comers giving a very impressive account of themselves, and more particularly the come-back of the old old players who have not donned a uniform for so many seasons. Both half back divisions were excellent. Creighton at left half for the Brinton eleven created a sensation by playing the difficult position. This lad deserves great credit for the splendid exhibition he gave in the first senior game he ever played in his life. He has just finished the hockey season with the St. John team.

First Half.

Forcing work by Hawthorne at the outset gave the Brinton team a distinct advantage, and their forwards were distinctly aggressive, reasonable chances being missed by the over anxious forwards. On a visit to the C. G. E. goal James worked inside the defence but Blowers nullified his effort at the opportune moment. A free-kick around the C. G. E. goal again made things interesting for a while but the opponents failed to grasp the chances presented to them.

Hawthorne Very Effective.

It was a battle for the next five minutes with the respective teams endeavoring to get the weakness in the defence departments, but that never materialized. Hawthorne, a new comer to the game in the city, made a favorable impression by his anticipational play, trapping the ball, blocking an intended siege when his half back was beat, and his distribution of the ball to his team-mates was very accurate. Only the experienced tactics of Wade preventing a goal in the early stages.

Altered Style of Play.

After indulging in close passing for a while the C. G. E. team altered their style of play and certainly put a different aspect in the game because they made inroads to the Brinton defence that resulted in the forwards having a shot at goal. Harry Mann broke up a well planned attack and carried the sphere down into the new-comer's area where Curtis had difficulty in handling a peculiar drive from a low grounder by Mitchell. In fact it was very noticeable at this point to see Bishop and Jones using their experience to advantage so that they would have no unnecessary running.

Rankin's Shot Weak.

After a visit to the C. G. E. goal, Blowers transferred the ball to the other end, where his forwards made a daring attempt to open the scoring. Curtis stopped a high drive from the right wing but nearly accepted defeat a little while later when Rankin failed to get the full strength of his leg behind the ball which let Curtis clear easily. Then they gained a fruitless flag kick that Burgess failed to make use of. Mitchell then carried the attack right back again, and being hard pressed the opportunity to score but he banged it over the bar from three yards out. Play for the most part favored the C. G. E. and Curtis was kept pretty busy at times without being seriously tested, and Bayliss saw to it that many balls intended for the C.G.E. forwards were intercepted. Half time, no scoring.

Half Time.

Some cute moves from Mitchell, which greatly delighted the crowd, marked the opening stages, but he received little support from his wing men who never were at times up in their position to receive the pass out to them when he was hard pressed. Eventually the C. G. E. halves gained more confidence and never allowed the Brinton forwards too much freedom because they were alert to accept an opening.

Mitchell Unlucky.

There was some crude play on both sides and the shooting by the forwards was far from impressve. After trying hard to get his men to swing the ball Mitchell went through on his own to beat Bishop and Jones nicely on individual play but Curtis ran out to stop his progress. Quck as a flash the ball went to the other end, the Brinton halves gong down with the forwards into the C. G. E. Territory along with their forwards where Hawthorne sent a rocket drive for the low corner of the uprights.

Bolton Brilliant.

Never expecting a shot from such an angle, Bolton was about caught napping with his drive, and he had to throw himself the full length of the goals to prevent a tally, and was just able to divert the ball around the upright. From the resultant flag kick, a scrimmage ensued and again Hawthorne landed a nice drive in below the cross bar, Bolton saving. Exchanges continued even for a while until Burgess made progress on his wing and sent across a beautiful centre that went abegging. He repeated the same performance a few minutes later.

Creighton Saved his Goal.

When the ball landed at the foot of Lovatt every fan was expecting a goal because of the close proximity of the position of the forenamed but to the surprise of himself Creighton nipped the ball away from the foot of former while in the act of shooting. As time wore on the players lacked behind the play on many occasions and demonstrated that they all need lots of practice before many weeks has gone. The game ended as they started—no scoring.

Brinton: W. Curtis, goal; A. Bishop and W. Jones, backs; Cherrill, Bayliss and Creighton, halves; Robertson, James, Hawthorne, Tait and Jones, forwards.

Canadian General: J. Bolton, goal; H. Figg and F. Wade, backs; J. Bruce, H. Mann and George Blowers, halves; A. McPhate, Lovatt, A. Mitchell, Rankin and Burgess, forwards.

Referee: Alx. McKinly.

Players Have Played Soccer For Twenty Years In City

After a long rest from the soccer code in this city, two well-known players— A. Bishop and Wilf. Jones turned out for the Brinton team against the C.G.E. and put up a brilliant defense as right and left full backs. They played their first soccer game here in 1908 when the old Brinton team took part in the Church League. That is over twenty years ago, but the old reliables couldn't resist the temptation when asked to play this season in their twenty-first year. Another player who played here in 1906 in the old Midland League, Jim Sharman, intends to participate against the Deloro team in a league game next Saturday at Deloro.

KINGSTON IN CENTRAL LOOP

Will Play Second Place Team At End of the Schedule.

NEW CONSTITUTION.

BELLEVILLE, April 22. — At the semi-annual meeting of the Central Ontario Baseball League, held Saturday in this city, Kingston, which last year dropped out before the race was completed, was re-admitted to the League. The Kingston entry is sponsored by the 21st Battalion Club, and will receive a place in the regular playing schedule. Kingston will play the team finishing second in a three-out-of-five-game series, the winner to play the leader of the League. Both second and first place teams are to have the choice as to where the first game will be played. Oshawa and Peterborough strenuously opposed the entry of Kingston into the regular playing schedule on account of the long jumps and the heavy financial strain that results. The arrangement made was satisfactory to the League, and everything looks favorable for a successful season. Kingston will play exhibition games until the play-offs start.

With R. A. Elliott, vice-president of the O.B.A., and President of the C.O.B.L., in the chair, a new constitution for the League was adopted. The old constitution was antiquated, and did not cover the many questions that came up. Neutral umpires will be used through the season, the president making the selections. A number of applications were received at the meeting, and all were accepted. The opening games of the League were set: Peterborough at Oshawa, and Deloro at Belleville.

As usual, the League will open on May 24 and continue until September 18, which time has been set by the parent body. The delegates accepted the rulings of the O.B.A.A. regarding taxes, and also added a 'take' of 15 per cent. gross from play-off games in the League race. This will bolster the treasury, which is sadly depleted. Certificates to be filled in were handed to the delegates of each club, which are to be in the hands of the secretary not later than May 10.

An executive meeting to pass these certificates will be held in Peterborough on May 11. Delegates present were: Oshawa, B. Kallman, F. McCallum; Peterborough, T. Holyman, M. Swanston, S. Johnson; Deloro, J. F. Berry, H. A. McNally; Belleville, E. A. Thomas, Major Pratt, Ernie Land; and Kingston, J. G. Murray and F. Coyne.

THREE ONTARIO BOXERS ANNEX DOMINION TITLE

Banner Province Carries Off Five of Seven Canadian Mitt Championships.

PORT ARTHUR TOURNEY.

Jimmy Trufenor, Regina, Wins Bantam Wrestling Championship By Default.

(By Gillis Purcell, Canadian Press Sports Writer)

PORT ARTHUR, April 22. — A trio of Ontario boxers, middleweight, welter and flyweight, annexed Dominion honors for their province Saturday night. Their success gave the banner province five of the seven Canadian mitt titles allotted at the three day boxing and wrestling tourney at Port Arthur. Two Canadian grappling champions, Jimmy Trufinov, Regina bantam, and Howard Thomas, Montreal lightweight, retained their 1928 Laurels on the closing night. For the Regina mail clerk it was his seventh consecutive title in the 123-pound class.

In the other two contests on the Saturday card Hans Lindborg, a towering 205-pound Finn, brought the heavyweight mat championship to Port Arthur, and Johnny Wilson of Winnipeg, qualified as the lightweight leader. Because they were the only entries in their class, Wilson and Trufinov accepted their crowns after exhibition matches.

Wrestling.

Bantam — Jimmy Trufinov, 123, named champion by default, won exhibition bout against Havey Rowlands, 132, Montreal, to qualify for the title.

Heavyweight — Hans Lindborg, 205, Port Arthur, won championship by decision over Nelson Crosby, 210, Winnipeg (won one fall and decision in second round.) Eino Maslo, Port Arthur, winner of semi-final, Friday night, defaulted final bout rights.

Light weight—Howard Thomas, 143, Montreal, retained 1928 championship by defeating Karl Mark, 145, Port Arthur. (Decision in two of three periods.)

Boxing.

Welterweight—Angie McLeod, 145, Port Arthur, won the championship by defeating Stan Seymour 143, Montreal (decision.)

Middleweight—Harry sacks, 157, Toronto, won championship by defeating Billy Weston, 154, Winnipeg. (Decision.)

Lightweight—Johnny Wilson, 133, Winnipeg, won championship by default (met Harold Stewart, 125 1-2, Montreal, featherweight champion in no decision bout to qualify.)

Flyweight—Malcolm Mathieson, 109, Toronto, won championship by defeating Tommy Ball, 122, Winnipeg. (Decision.)

TO-NIGHT'S CARD.

TORONTO, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press).—The complete card for to-night's battles at the Coliseum is as follows:

Six rounds at 130 pounds—Bobby Booth, Toronto, vs. Young Jack Dempsey, Toronto.

Six rounds at 126 pounds — Sam Hackett, Toronto, vs. Jerry Green, Erie, Pa.

Eight rounds at 117 pounds—Billy Ayrton, Winnipeg, vs. Bobby Clary, Rochester, Pa.

Eight rounds at 114 pounds—Frank Edgerton, Toronto, vs. Harry Goldstein, Boston.

Ten rounds at 112 pounds—Midget Wolgast, New York, vs. Phil Tobias, Brooklyn.

YANKEES LOSE TO ATHLETICS

Philadelphia Trims World's Champions Seven Runs To Four.

FOUR BALKS AT ST. LOUIS.

NEW YORK, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Some 40,000 fans braved a cold rain yesterday to see the Yankees in their first Sunday game at home this season. The Athletics defeated the world champions by 7 to 4 in a contest halted because of a downpour in the visitors' half of the sixth. The score reverted to even innings.

Philadelphia	7	6	1
New York	4	5	1

SLUGFEST FOR TIGERS.

ST. LOUIS, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The Detroit Tigers took a wild slugfest from the St. Louis Browns here yesterday, 16 to 9. The game was played in cold, threatening weather. It was featured by four balks, believed by some experts to be a record for a major league game in recent years, three home runs, and successful use of the hidden ball trick by the Browns to effect a double play.

Cricket

The young Australians who have been visiting Toronto have among their members a very talented cricket team. Unfortunately, the weather has only permitted them to play one match so far during the tour; against Upper Canada College last Monday. They hope to play a number of games in Vancouver before returning to their native soil. Cricket is the "national game" in Australia, the weather of that country being most suitable for the game during the major portion of the year.

During the last match in Australia between England and the Australian States, Wally Hammond had the unique experience in that game of bowling, batting and stumping with distinction, a very unusual occurrence which proves his versatality. He also had the honor during the last test match of bowling Woodful, the great Australian batter. This was the first time Woodful had been bowled since the 1926 Tests in England.

The Peterborough Cricket Club who are touring Ontario. A royal reception is being arranged and expect to send them away with a glowing opinion of this city. It is not expected that Mayor 'Bill' Thompson will be a member of the team.

Work on Nicholls Oval will be started as soon as weather permits to get the wicket in shape for the opening game with Grove School early in May.

The General Electric Cricket Club are also making preparations for the coming season. A number of games have been arranged with the Peterborough Cricket Club. Last season these local battles were keenly contested and all interested in cricket are expecting this friendly rivalry to continue this season.

A general meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club will be held on Monday next, April 22 at the Armouries. All interested in the game and those wishing to play are heartily invited to attend.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

GREAT SEA EPIC, "THE RESCUE" BY JOSEPH CONRAD, WITH RONALD COLMAN THE STARRING PLAYER, WILL BE THE FEATURE ATTRACTION AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT.

Using Joseph Conrad's masterpiece, "The Rescue," as the vehicle for his first appearance as an individual star for Samuel Goldwyn, Ronald Colman will appear before his public in a new light when "The Rescue" is shown at the Capitol tonight. The hero of "Beau Geste" and "Two Lovers" now has a role of the sea and desperate intrigue among the natives of the Malay archipelago. Herbert Brennon, the same director who made Colman in "Beau Geste" wielded the megaphone for this United Artists picture, and Lily Damita, Samuel Goldwyn's French find, plays opposite Colman as the beautiful Mrs. Travers.

There is every opportunity for beauty of setting and matchless drama in the plot of "The Rescue." In the midst of Captain Tom Lingard's lawless affair of honor involving the tarone of a Malayan prince, blundered an English yacht, fatefully stranded in the midst of what was to be the dark theatre of war. Of the three white passengers, only the owner's wife understood the situation—and Lingard. On him fell the decision—to save the whites and ruin his enterprise—or let the natives have their way with them and fulfill his debt to the Malayan prince.

And love! To Lingard this woman— "imperfectly civilized"— her husband said — came as the first blinding flash of all woman could mean to man. Integrity—the duty of a white to his countryman in the South Seas, the never-broken word of King Tom to a native. His whole career—and this woman. The inevitable climax of "The Rescue" is unguessable.

Ronald Colman is said to have never appeared to better advantage than as the daring wanderer of the sea—"King Tom," in this thrilling, romantic drama.

Daddy Can Now Eat Anything.

"I was a victim of stomach disorder, and whenever I used to eat anything rich my boys used to say to me, 'Poor Dad, he will pay the penalty to-morrow,' but since taking the regular dose of Kruschen Salts it is quite different, and my boys enjoy themselves seeing me eat what I would refuse before. I may say that my eldest son was the same as me, as far as his stomach was concerned, but since he has taken his daily dose of Kruschen he can eat and enjoy whatever is put in front of him. I think those who find the right remedy should tell others, and pass good news on—hence this letter." W. P.

Original letter on file for inspection.

Kruschen is a perfect blend of those six natural salts which are vital to your bodily well being. The analysis is on the bottle. There are sodium and magnesium to clear away the waste matter that clogs your system and poisons your blood. To feed your tissues, there's the tonic potassium. The daily dose of Kruschen will keep you in constant good health. Buy a bottle to-day and start a new life to-morrow.

VIEWS ON SPORT

All those interested in promotion of baseball in the city should attend the City League meeting at Duffus' Bowling Academy this evening.

CANADIANS TAKING UP SOCCER.

Soccer in Peterborough has always been played almost entirely by Scotchmen and Englishmen, but a change in the personnel of the teams is beginning to become apparent. Canadian-born athletes are taking up the game and there does not appear to be so many Scots appearing on the line-ups. In Saturday's exhibition game between the Brinton's and the C. G E. there were three Canadian boys who figured prominently in the play. They were: Creighton, who is also a coming hockey player, Cherrill and Bayliss.

KINGSTON RE-ENTERS CENTRAL LOOP.

The problem of the Kingston entry in the Central League was amicably settled at the conclave in Belleville Saturday. Kingston will get a bye, and will play off with the second team at the completion for the right to meet the first team for the championship of the Central League, and the right to continue on into the O.B. A.A. play-offs. In this manner Kingston will remain in the League but the long trips to the Limsetone City that were so distasteful to the players, and hard on the pocket books of the Oshawa and Peterborough clubs, will not be necessary. Kingston will have the opportunity, too, to round out a smart team.

CITY LEAGUE MEETING TO-NIGHT.

The men behind the City League baseball teams are in high hopes that the meeting in the board room of Duffus' Bowling Academy this evening will set them off on the right foot to a successful season. All maintain that the city has as many young ball players as ever before, but the great need is men who are willing to take on the responsibility of encouraging and coaching them.

NEW UMPIRE-IN-CHIEF.

The Central League are loathe to lose the services of Alex. Kay, who announced his retirement as an umpire last fall, bcause of illness. The executive appointed him umpire-in-chief on Saturday, and Alex. is feeling so much better now that he may take on the duties of the office. Lou Lebarr, Junior, will be given a try-out at calling them in the Central League.

THAT DARING GAMBLE FOR GLORY.

Captain Malcolm Campbell attained a speed of 224.58 miles per hour on the Cape of Good Hope sands at Verneuk Pan yesterday in an effort to better the record of 231 miles an hour which his countryman and friend, Major Segrave, established at Daytona Beach, some weeks ago. Track conditions at Verneuk Pan were not as favorable for Captain Campbell's runs as were those at Daytona, so Campbell's performance must be considered a highly creditable and at the same time, a nerve-wracking test. But Captain Campbell intends to try it again if the track can be put in good condition. One can only admire the determination and skill of these fearless Englishmen who take their lives in their hands every time they sit behind the wheels of their racers. For the past three or four years Campbell and Segrave have vied with each other in setting new speed records and building bigger and faster cars. They have had better luck than the United States drivers who have attempted to compete with them; Frank Lockhart and Lee Bible have given their lives in attempts to outdo these speed demons from the British isles. It is to be hoped if Campbell and Segrave continue their quest for greater speeds their luck holds. They are daring men, who seemingly know their business, but it would be a hollow glory indeed should the rivalry that exists between them eventually lead to disaster. The world holds its breath while these men flash on to glory or death.

BASEBALL REVIVING IN THE MARITIMES

Twilight League at Halifax One of Greatest Cards in Summer Sports.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 20 (By W. J. Foley, Canadian Press Sports Writer) —Following one of the most successful hockey seasons in many years, sport leaders throughout the Maritime Provinces are now turning towards baseball, the great summer game that has slumped woefully in the Provinces of late year.

Many reasons have been advanced as to the slump in the big summer game, but none to date have just hit the nail on the head. Springhill miners, in the Nova Scotia playoffs every season since the war, are present Maritime champions, and with the same line-up that clinchd honors last season, will present another strong bid for summer sport laurels.

Westville, Springhill's greatest rivals in the last few seasons, are quietly preparing to revive the game in Pictou County, where they earned the right to play for the Provincial title last year without a threat from county teams.

Senior baseball, having passed out of the picture in Halifax, the younger generation have stepped into the breach with the Twilight League, and have raised it from a sandlot fate to the outstanding circuit in the city and one of the greatest drawing cards in the Maritimes.

Along the South Shore, where Liverpool has reigned supreme in the last few seasons, comes talk of a really fast league. In the Valley, Wolfville and Kentville can be counted upon to place fast teams in the Valley League, but Middleton, where baseball honors have gone many times in the past, is out of baseball, and has been counted out for the past few seasons.

In New Brunswick, St. John teams have dominated the play for quite some time, despite the fact that McAdam Junction represented the province in last season's sectional playoffs. Saint John Water Department, conquerors of the strong French team from Moncton in the semi-final series in New Brunswick playdowns, tossed up their chances for Maritime honors, McAdam filling in the breach.

On the Island the Charlottetown Abewweits, famous sporting club has held championship honors for quite some time and are preparing even at this early date for a much stronger bid for Maritime baseball pennants.

Baseball may be at its height across the Border, but in the Maritimes baseballists are quite content to wait for another few weeks before starting their "spring training."

But when the 'Play Baw!" call rolls around a score of strong teams will be ready to answer.

Toronto Team Clinches Junior Basketball Title

TORONTO, Ont., April 22 (Canadian Press). — Toronto Elizabeths clinched the Canadian junior basketball championship here on Saturday night, when they trimmed the Ottawa Britannias 31-23. The game was the second of their two-game series for the title. The "Lizzies" copped the first game here Friday night by a 49-17 count, thus giving them the title with a total score of 80-40.

Trojans Eliminated In Senior Series

WINDSOR, Ont., April 22.—(Canadian Press).—The Trojans of St. John, N.B., Saturday night were eliminated from the Canadian Senior Basketball Championship series by the Windsor Collegiate Alumni, by the score of 112 to 76 in two games. The score in the second game was 54 to 41 in favor of the Alumni, who now travel west for the Canadian finals at New Westminster.

In Police Court

Elgin Griffin and Neil White both pleaded guilty when they were arraigned in police court this morning each charged with a breach of the Lord's day act. Fines of $5.00 and costs were imposed in both cases. Two other cases, one for nonpayment of wages, the other for a breach of the Dog by-law, were adjourned to next Monday while Archie M. Robb, driver for a local transport company, was charged with theft of harness, tools, etc. to the value of $25.00. He pleaded not guilty and the case was adjourned to May 3.

In view of the circumstances surrounding the offense, and since every restitution had been made, the Magistrate saw fit to grant suspended sentence when a young married man appeared on a remand charged with uttering, that is, displaying a document supposed to have been signed by a well known local citizen, regarding his financial standing.

A drinking bout on the Chemong Road late Saturday night had its aftermath in the County Court this morning when four local young men, Jack Edwards, George Snowden, Percy Luffman and Reginald Tuck, appeared before Magistrate Langley, charged with consuming in other than a private residence, contrary to Section 81, Sub-Section 1, of the Liquor Control Act. Each promptly pleaded guilty to the charge and were forthwith relieved of $10 fine and $5 costs apiece.

Kenneth Gilman, on the same party, was fined $100 for having liquor in his possession without a permit.

Dalton Dolan appeared, charged with having liquor in his possession without a permit, and the evidence brought out the fact that he was treating a friend, named Tucker, in his home on the Chemong Road when the police forced an entrance. A bottle of gin was brought in as evidence, and it was stated by Provincial Constable Thompson that after three previous visits during the past five months to the Dolan abode that this was the first time that liquor had rewarded the keen searchers.

Dolan's case is continuing this afternoon.

GERMAN EXPERT BACK IN PARIS

Claims Germany's Offer is the Last Cent She is Able to Pay

PROVISIONAL AGREEMENT

PARIS, April 22. (C.P.) — Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German reparations spokesman, came back to Paris today, intent, it was believed, upon convincing creditor nation delegates to the reparation conference that Germany cannot pay her bill—or any where near it—until her earning capacity is increased.

The German spokesman, on leaving Berlin last night, where he conferred with the cabinet on the status of the Paris negotiations, told interviewers:

"I leave you with the thought that in Paris I shall yet succeed in convincing the doubting Thomases that our capacity to pay is not greater than I stated and that German's capacity can be increased only if her ability to produce is increased."

With Dr. Schacht's return there seemed indefinite confirmation the Germans want the conference to be continued if only on the hope of a "provisional agreement" — as one German here expressed it — which might mean an agreement covering the next few annuities, the definite settlement to be left to some later date.

BERLIN, April 22 (C.P.).—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht and Dr. Albert Voegler were given a free hand to continue the reparations negotiations in Paris to-day, with their freedom of action in no way impaired.

After a three-hour session of the Cabinet yesterday, at which Dr. Schacht and Dr. Voegler explained in detail what had taken place at Paris, an official communique and statements of the Cabinet members themselves stressed that they had been limited in no way and had been left with a free hand.

LONDON, April 22 (Canadian Press). — It was not believed here reversion of the Dawes plan, which seemed imminent to-day with failure of the Reparations Conference at Paris impending, would bring about an immediate crisis in Europe. Embitterment of relations between France and Germany, however, and subsequent effect on other European countries would, it was said, make the situation one of real seriousness.

The Daily News, in commenting to-day on the war debt status, said:

"There can never be a real settlement until there is a general cancellation of all reparations and war debts atogether. To that end the initiative lies and will always lie with the United States."

ENGLISH BARRED

HONOLULU, T. H., April 22?— The English language is barred at meetings of the Hawaiian Civic Club here. Members speaking before the club are made to pay a small fine for every word of English they use. The only exception to the rule is when a guest is present who does not understand Hawaiian.

"How does she keep her hands so LOVELY?"

"Those few whispered words made me flush with pleasure."

"'—the most beautiful hands, yet she does all her own work—'

"As I looked up from pouring tea, I realized with a thrill they were talking about me! I felt such a happy glow of pride . . . for my hands USED to be my despair!

"Now I find it easy to have soft, pretty hands, in spite of dishes to do three times a day. I discovered that by using Lux for all my dishwashing, my hands never became rough or red or chapped-looking. With Lux, they were even WHITER and softer after washing dishes than before!"

The instant, magical suds are SOOTHING to even the most sensitive skin.* Lux is made by a marvelous special process—made whiter and thinner and purer than anything else. There is no trace of harmful alkali in Lux, nothing to dry up, to coarsen the skin, as there is in ordinary soaps—whether flakes, chips or cakes.

And Lux costs so LITTLE! In one of the big packages there is enough Lux for 6 weeks' dishes! So little to pay for beautiful hands!

*Many beauty parlors use Lux suds in manicuring the nails to soften and whiten the fingers

MOTHER OF TWINS HELPED

Restored to Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mitchell, Ont.—"I had little twin babies and for quite a while after I was so weak I could not do my work because of pains all the way up my legs at the back. I also had headaches and got very little sleep. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and soon I was able to get up and do my work. I have taken three bottles and I am fine, do my work without trouble and am gaining in weight and strength. I will gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to anyone."—Mrs. F. MARBLE BATHS FOR US ALL

Some of you women may long for pearls and silks—I don't know. But I don't believe as many of us as men may think. If anyone were to walk up and ask me what I want more than anything else I should say, "A nice tiled bath room all to myself" and if I were asked to stretch my imagination I should say, "One of those tiled bath rooms such as the artists are now drawing for the advertisements of high-grade plumbers."

Have faith, my sisters, we all shall have our marble tiled and plated bath rooms some day—and not so very many years to wait. Once upon a time—it was not very long ago—our ancestors bathed, if at all, in the creek which was also their shaving mirror. If they were up-to-date their wives used sulphur matches—broken one at a time off the card—instead of flint and steel. The old ox-cart was the one cylinder Lizzie of that day to carry the joy-rider to town or to Church and if your face chapped on the journey there was mutton tallow to cure the trouble. Nothing lies ahead of us but more comfort. The old days are dead and since so many luxuries have had their use widened by advertising until they have become accepted necessities I do not despair at all about having a marble bath room of my own. When I speak of marble baths, I mean all things intended for human use, comfort and convenience.

MISSION OPENS AT ST. PETER'S

Exercises This Week Will Be For the Women of the Parish.

CATHEDRAL IS FILLED.

A two weeks' renewal of the mission of last year commenced yesterday morning at St Peter's Cathedral, at the half past ten o'clock mass. The exercises of this week are for the women of the parish and those of the second week will be for the men. The renewal is being preached by the Rev. Fathers Cloran, Keogh and O'Hara, members of the Redemptorist Order, who also conducted the mission a year ago. Rev. Father Cloran is in charge of the exercises for the children of the parish, who are making the renewal during the first three days of the week.

The Cathedral was filled last evening when Rev. Father Keogh preached the opening sermon to the women on the value of the soul.

The reverend speaker referred to this priceless treasure that every individual possesses, and which has been made to the image of the likeness of God Himself. This soul which gives life to the body, thought to the mind, sight to our eyes, and speech to our tongues—do we appreciate its value? How do we regard this priceless treasure?

The reverend Father went on to say that we can learn the value of our soul from God's work in creating and preserving it in existence. Even as it took the infinite power of God to create the soul, so it takes all God's infinite power to preserve it. Should God for one moment withdraw his preserving hand then at once we would cease to exist. Thus God is exercising over each one of us an infinite power. Such being the case, why then should we be so regardless of our soul?

God's Interest in our Soul.

The reverend speaker spoke of the soul, clothed with sanctifying grace, making it precious in God's sight. This gift, he said was lost, because of the sin of our first parents Man himself could do nothing to regain this grace that he lost, only God could restore this gift to man. So it was the Son of God came upon the earth, and was born in poverty and misery, in a poor stable. All his sufferings, of infancy, childhood and of His whole life, pointed out to us the value God places upon our souls.

Christ's Passion Another Proof.

If all this were not proof enough of the value God places upon our souls the reverend speaker asked his hearers to follow the Blessed Saviour in His passion and death. All these sufferings were endured that man might recover the sanctifying grace that he had lost and that heaven might once more be opened.

Father Keough then urged his hearers to do something in the interest of their souls—to make the renewal well—and in the future to take the matter of the salvation of their soul more seriously.

Once more he reminded those who listened to him: that God used all His infinite power to create the soul of man, and still uses the same infinite power to keep it in existence; that the same God spent His whole life to work and to save our souls; that He sacrificed his life for the same purpose, and that we should judge for ourselves what we ought to do for the same purpose.

A TRIUMPH OF THE TABLE

TODAY women find no equal for genuine Jell-O. Its sparkling purity and luscious fruit flavours cost no more than ordinary jelly powders.

The more you get the genuine JELL-O MADE IN CANADA Canada's most famous dessert

-they call him
"The man you can't rattle"

You are invited to listen in, Wrigley Review, Monday evenings, 6 to 9, CKNC, Toronto-CFCF, Montreal.

Nine times out of ten, the man who keeps cool gets the best of a business deal. The strain of modern business life makes heavy demands on the nerves. The man who loses his nerve also loses his judgment.

Many successful business men use Wrigley's regularly. The act of chewing, they find, has a soothing effect. The healthful cleansing action of Wrigley's refreshes the mouth—gently stimulates the flow of natural juices—steadies the nerves.

Apart from its soothing effect on the nerves, Wrigley's is particularly beneficial after eating, drinking or smoking. It cleans the teeth, firms the gums, sweetens the breath—makes the mouth clean and healthy.

Use Wrigley's—it pays big dividends on a small investment.

NERVES ON EDGE? TIRED OUT?

Throw Off "Spring Fever" With "Fruit-a-tives."

March and April are trying months on everyone. The air has lost its snap. The sunshine is soft and lazy. Muscles are tired—head feels heavy —nerves are on edge—that's "Spring Fever."

You need a tonic to overcome that tired, nervous condition and help nature clean and purify the blood stream. For this you can depend on "Fruit-a-tives." It is a wonderful blood purifier.

Read What People Say.

"To-day I am in perfect health — thanks to "Fruitatives." Mrs. Brisson, Montreal.

"That nervous, tired feeling has completely gone. Fruitatives made a new man of me." D. Duperron, Maxville, Ont.

"Everyone should keep in good health by taking Fruitatives." E. Lundstrum, Hendley, Alta.

The unique action of "Fruit-a-tives" regulates the kidneys and bowels—stirs up the liver—clears out waste matter that is clogging the blood—and puts your system in splendid condition.

AVIATOR SIGHTS MISSING PLANE

Pilot of Atlanta Reports Seeing Body of Anderson Beneath the Kookaburra.

DROPS WATER BAG.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 22.-(C.P.)—Six airplanes were headed today toward the vastness of the Tanimi Desert, Northern Territory, where the plane Kookaburra of Lieutenant Keith Anderson was seen yesterday with a body beneath one of its wings.

The planes, carrying food and medical supplies, sought to learn the fate of Lieut. Anderson and Robert Hitchcock, who 13 days ago started in search of the then lost Southern Cross, only to come to grief themselves.

The Kookaburra was sighted yesterday by a searching plane, the Atlanta, in charge of a pilot named Brain. Brain was on his way to Wave Hill to join the party searching for the flyers when smoke attracted his attention.

Drawing nearer and flying over it he saw beneath the Kookaburra, a body stretched out under one of its wings. Swooping lower he thought he could make out Lieutenant Anderson. He dropped a parachute containing water, but when the figure beneath the plane did not move he concluded he was dead.

He saw nothing of the second man aboard the plane.

KELLOGG PEACE PACT

An invitation from the Publicity Committee of Old Home Week to Rotarians to attend the meeting to be addressed by J. C. Miller of Orillia on Thursday night was also read by the president.

Rotarian James Juby reminded the members of the dinner of the Automobile Association to-morrow evening at which T. P. Phelan, legal advisor of the Ontario Motor League, would be the speaker.

Speaking for the On-to-Erie conference, Rotarian Tom DLutton reported that some ten members had already signified their intention of attending and it was hoped that the representation of the Peterborough club would be increased beyond that number.

Later on in the meeting President Morris announced the appointment of Rotarians Tom Dutton and Jack Gillespie as voting delegates from Peterborough Rotary to the Erie conference.

Rotarian Dr. Morrison prefaced his review of the Kellogg Peace Pact by a reference to the fact that to-day was the anniversary of the beginning of the Second Battle of Ypres, and paying a tribute to the memory of the Peterborough men who fought in that great battle.

The speaker outlining the cost of the World War in money and in the loss of over six million lives, pointed out that since the signing of peace, the statesmen of the world had been endeavoring to arrive at an understanding by which war might be averted. He outlined the various steps, the formation of the League of Nations, the Lovarno Treaty, and finally the Kellogg Peace Pact, to which 60 nations have now affixed their signatures.

Dr. Morrison reviewed the negotiations between Monsieur Briand and Secretary Kellogg, and described the progress of the agreement until it was finally accepted, reading the terms of the treaty to the members of the club.

Then to show the reaction in various parts of the world to the Kellogg Pact the speaker read extracts from the press in Latin America, India, and other countries.

Discussing the agreement the speaker pointed out that various influences were hard at work to make another great war impossible. The women of the world were resolved that there should be no more warfare, the Christian Church was exerting a greater influence than ever before in this direction, and such organizations as Rotary were playing a great part in the promotion of international peace.

A vote of thanks to the speaker for his fine paper was proposed by Rotarian R. J. Kidd.

OBITUARY

LINDSAY, Ont., April 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death took place Sunday evening of Richard P. Spratt, brother of His Grace Archbishop Spratt of Kingston. The deceased, who was born in Lindsay, was one of the pioneer merchants of the town, having been in the grocery business for over fifty years. He was a former member of the Separate School Board, charter member of the C.M.B.A. and Knights of Columbus, and member of The Holy Name Society. His wife predeceased him eleven months ago. He is survived by five sons, Thomas and Robert of Lindsay Rev. John Spratt, C.S.B. of St. Michael's College, Toronto, Peter of Whitby and Rev. Brother Wilfrid of Alexian Hospital, Toronto; one daughter, Mrs. T. J. Power of Lindsay.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

SAULT STE. MARIE., Ont., April 22.—(Canadian Press)—Three unknown men had a narrow escape shortly before midnight last night when their car plunged over a 15 foot embankment and was only saved from turning a complete sommersault into the creek below by being caught and held by a small post. The men were seen to scramble out of the car but they disappeared immediately. Some time during the night the car was removed.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, APRIL 23, 1929
(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

While benefic aspects dominate today, according to astrology, there are certain adverse influences that make wise the watching of one's step.

It is not a favorable rule for women who may be exacting, captious and generally difficult under this sway.

Love affairs may be easily muddled at this time when a sinister sign indicated that selfish and mercenary considerations may intervene to destroy romance.

Under this direction of the stars there may be a strong tendency toward secrecy and even deception.

It is well to beware of tempting tips on the stock market today, although oil prospects may be uncommonly alluring.

This is read as a favorable day for ocean travel or for beginning any long journey, although floods may cause delays in certain sections of the country.

Industry is subject to the best planetary influences today which makes for increase of energy and general success.

The old again benefit today from the positing of the stars and health conditions should be improved.

Age is to attain a new respect, it is foretold, for the counsel of persons of experience is to be desired in coming problems both public and private.

This is not an auspicious time to seek employment or to ask for added compensation for work. Employers will not be easy to approach, astrologers declare.

Although next month is commonly deemed unlucky for marriage dates, many weddings will be celebrated, it is foretold, and they should benefit from the influence of the stars.

The spoken word should be safeguarded at this time when there may be unusual temptation to utter libelous criticisms.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a successful year in which friendship plays an important part.

Children born on this day probably will be delightful companions and reliable. These subjects of Taurus usually gain their own ends, incidentally benefitting their friends. Usually they are fond of dress.

WEDDING BELLS

SMITH—McGOVARIN

The wedding took place quietly on Saturday afternoon at half past three o'clock at the residence of the Rev. B. Greatrix, 438 Park street, of Daisy McGovarin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. McGovarin of 490 Parnell street, and Talmade G. B. Smith, son of Mrs. C. Healey of Princess street and the late George Smith. The Rev. Mr. Greatrix performed the ceremony.

Attendants were the sister of the bride, Miss Violet McGovarin, and the brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Wilbert Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside on Water street.

CARLISLE—NICHOLLS

The marriage was solemnized quietly at ten o'clock this morning at St. John's Church, of Julia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Nicholls of Bethune street, and John Gibson Carlisle, of Bancroft, son of Mrs. E. Carlisle, George street and the late John Carlisle. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. E. Minchin, B.A. F. G. Mann, A.Mus, played the wedding music.

Attendants were a sister of the bride, Miss Gladys Nicholls, and Mr. Harold Yelland.

After the ceremony, Mr. Carlisle and his bride left for a trip to Lake Placid, New York. On their return they will live at Bancroft Ontario.

BIG POWERS FAVOR PLAN

by categories. In view of the unacceptability of this by some other delegates the United States government had sought some solution which might offer the possibility of a compromise and general acceptance. The United States, therefore, was disposed to accept the French proposal, made at the third session of the preparatory commission. This proposal was an attempt to combine the French original total tonnage proposals with a method of tonnage by categories.

Under this method, he continued, the total tonnage would be assigned to each nation and this total would be divided among categories of ships with specified tonnages.

Struck by Friendly Spirit.

To these proposals Lord Cushendun repled that obviously no member of the commission could deal off hand with proposals of such importance as those made by representative of the United States, "but no one can fail to be struck by the friendly, conciliatory and helpful spirit of Mr. Gibson's declarations," Lord Cushendun said. "I should like, so far as I am concerned, speaking on behalf of the British government, to say that it is in that spirit we are also prepared to approach this very complicated and difficult question and that so far as points are in dispute whether with the United States or any other nation represented here, we shall endeavor to meet it in exactly that spirit.

"But I would go further. Of course I cannot commit myself in regard to any specific proposition contained in the statement. We should have to see it in print before we can do that, but following it as closely as I could I am able to say that so far as any general principle is concerned, I think there is nothing that Mr. Gibson has said with which I cannot express my agreement. Certainly I am in agreement with the generality of the remarks that have been made and the principles as laid down."

Commons Debates Veniot

Simcoe Case Is Aired In House of Commons—Bennett Speaks.

MORE COMING

Conservative Leader Says That Troubles of Postmaster Not End With Amendment.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—The Conservative amendment respecting the appointment of a postmaster at Simcoe, Ont., once more held up government estimates in the House of Commons to-day. This amendment which sets forth that the Postmaster General "acted in a most arbitrary manner and in utter disregard of the letter and the spirit of the Civil Service Act in connection with the recent appointment of a postmaster at the town of Simcoe," was before the House last week. Yesterday it was revived, and debate on it at times waxed hot.

Second Motion Expected

Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition, intimated to the House that the troubles of the Postmaster General would not end when the amendment dealing with the Simcoe post office was disposed of. This amendment, said Mr. Bennett in the course of a somewhat fiery speech, was concerned with a specific case. In voting on the amendment, the members had simply to decide one question. They must ask themselves whether the rejection of G. R. Whittaker, returned soldier who applied for the postmastership at Simcoe, by the Postmaster General, was justified or not. The vote which they would cast would determine the view or Parliament on this specific case.

But, said Mr. Bennett, the situation in the post office department was regarded by the Opposition as sufficiently serious to warrant a general amendment of censure on the Postmaster General. This, he intimated, would be moved when the House had disposed of the Simcoe amendment.

Defends Postmaster

Defense of the Postmaster General came from Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works. He did not know of any Postmaster General who had done more to promote efficiency in the service than Mr. Veniot, said Mr. Elliott. Intimations that Mr. Whittaker's appointment had been rejected because of political reasons were discounter by the fact that both he and the man who later received the appointment, were Liberals, Mr. Elliott declared.

The amendment was still under discussion when the House adjourned at eleven o'clock.

23RD EARTH TREMOR.

BOLOGNA, Italy, April 23. (C.P.)—This city was shaken by its twenty-third earth tremor of this month at 6.50 a.m., to-day. The tremor was followed by a rapid fall in temperature.

WITNESSES TESTIFY AS TO FLOOD CONDITION ON DALHOUSIE STREET ON THE NIGHT OF MARCH 26, 1928

B. F. Ackerman Suit Against City of Peterborough Opens in Supreme Court.

BLOCKADE BLAMED.

$15,000 Damages and An Injunction Order Is Being Sought By the Plaintiff.

Three hours and five minutes after he had entered the witness box William. C. Ackerman, Secretary-treasurer of the B. F. Ackerman Son and Company, Ltd., answered a last question put to him regarding his knowledge of conditions due to which his company was claiming $15,000 damages from the city of Peterborough, in the non-jury sittings of the Supreme court, before Mr. Justice McEvoy of Toronto, on Monday afternoon. So lengthy was the examination of this first witness that only two others, B. F. Ackerman, senior member of the firm, and Samuel A. McCall, an employee, were called by the counsel for the plaintiffs during the entire afternoon session which terminated at 5.30 o'clock in an adjournment to 9.30 this (Tuesday) morning.

Not in many years has the city of Peterborough found herself involved in a civil action of such serious consequence, which harks back to the spring of 1928 for its origin in the serious flooding by the Jackson's Park creek of the Ackerman Leather goods plant on the north-west corner of George and Dalhousie streets. At that time, there was considerable floodin; of property along the creek's course which is in a southeasterly direction through the main section of the city, but the Ackerman building and contents suffered most seriously, due, it is claimed by the plaintiffs in the present action, to the flow being blocked at the Dalhousie street bridge nearby. Not only is the city being sued for $15,000 damages but the Ackerman company also seeks an injunction restraining the city from damming, or continuing to dam the waters of the creek, causing it to flow over the plaintiffs' lands, and finally it asks of the court, a mandatory order requiring the city to remove any obstruction which it has placed in the said stream whereby the waters are prevented or hindered from flowing past or away from the company's lands, or to provide another channel. R. S. Robertson, K.C., of Toronto and S. T. Medd, K.C., of Peterborough are appearing for the plaintiffs while Gideon Grant, K.C., of Toronto and Joseph J. Wearing, city solicitor represent the municipality.

Bridge in Question

Throughout the taking of evidence on Monday afternoon there was a noticeable tendency to centre attention about the Dalhousie street bridge, certain features of which were described in detail, and incidentally rementioned during cross examinations. Of the actual flooding, William C. Ackerman's evidence was by reason of its length, the most descriptive, while information given by the succeeding two witnesses appeared more or less corroboration of the first. Blueprints and photos were very much in evidence and a minimum of wrangling between opposing counsels was another feature which served to facilitate proceedings.

W. C. Ackerman, the first witness called, stated on examination by Mr. Robertson, that his company carried on a general leather business in the building at the corner of Dalhousie and George streets which was built in the year 1898, one year before the present Dalhousie street bridge replaced the former wooden one. He gave dimensions of the building and property mentioning a cement retaining wall on the east side along with a continuation of broken timber cribbing. Regarding the bridge, witness said that there was a fender beam running east and west, north of the present bridge as well as a small girder running from the east wall to the main beam creating a triangle. It had been there to support a lawn. He also told of a city sewer pipe which runs along the bed of the creek below the bridge and which is protected by a timber laid in cement immediately north. In addition, a five or six-inch gas pipe runs under the bridge, slightly higher than the first-mentioned fender beam. Mr. Ackerman recalled that on March 26, 1928 at about four or four-thirty o'clock he had noticed water in the yard north of the plant which he believed was coming from the creek. He had also gone to the Dalhousie street bridge where the water was still flowing under the first-mentioned steel girder. He had given instruc-

Hats Off To Veterans!

In his sermon in Mark Street United Church, where the war veterans and the Militia worshipped last Sunday, Rev. A. E. Thornley paid a tribute to the veterans by quoting and applying the following lines from an unknown author:

"Hats off! They pass with measured tread:
Their step is slow. Make bare your head.
If president or king pass by,
Your eager shouts would reach the sky.
These men are kings and heroes all.
We pause—the shining roll we call;
On each the seal of honor set.
He needs no other coronet—
He wears the button on his coat.

The silent army! O'er their graves
The dear old flag in beauty waves.
Spring flowers their sweetest fragrance sheds,
Love's votive offering to our dead.
Shall altar fires, unfed, grow old?
Shall love lose heart by waxing cold?
Forbid! The rather let us vow
To ever honor him as now
Who wears the button on his coat.

We pledge the blue eyes of our youth,
Their strength, their hope, their love of truth.
The ocean blue our solemn troth,
The blue sky witnesses our oath;
And every sweet blue violet
Will have a voice, if we forget,
While floats the Union Jack in view,
The loyal men, the brave and true,
Who wore the button on their coat."

Mark Street United Church officials have expressed to the President their appreciation of the honor conferred upon them and their new church by the Canadian Legion worshipping with them last Sunday.

GIRL'S BODY IS STILL MISSING

Workmen Unable To Find Trace of Body of Helen Wright.

DIVERT CREEK COURSE.

Although the temporary bridge over Harmony Creek has been removed and some of the broken cement piers of the old bridge have already been dug up no sign of Helen Wright's body, lost in the flood of April 5, has yet been found.

Within the next few days it is expected that every piece of cement will have been removed from the bottom of the creek.

It may be that the course of the creek will be diverted to a new channel so that the search may be continued with greater surety of success.

172 CONVICTS FROM PORTSMOUTH PASS THROUGH CITY LAST NIGHT

Guards, Heavily Armed, Guarded Every Door of C.N.R. Train.

LONG TERM PRISONERS.

Men Were Being Taken To Stony Mountain Penitentiary, Manitoba.

One hundred and seventy-two of the most hardened criminals in Canada, long-term prisoners of the Portsmouth Penitentiary, Kingston, passed through the city at 9 o'clock last evening aboard a special C.N.R. train. As the train steamed through, without stopping, the many guards heavily armed with rifles and revolvers manned every door. Citizens seeing only the armed guards, imagined it was a troop train, but inside the train were the shackled prisoners.

These prisoners were on their way West to be confined in the Stony Mountain Penitentiary in Manitoba.

The train was made up of four specially fitted-out coaches, with heavy bars on each window, in addition to which there was a commissariat coach with stores, a coach for the officers in charge, and a baggage car. A large detachment of penitentiary officers from the other institutions in the Dominion assisted the Kingston officials in the loading of the prisoners and served as guards during the journey West.

The train was in charge of Inspector E. R. Jackson of the Penitentiary Branch, Ottawa, and Deputy Warden Cummings of Dorchester Penitentiary. Every man among the prisoners was shackled by both feet and wrists, and when on board the train the men occupying each seat were securely shackled to each other. An extra supply of tobacco was issued to the men, while the food of the men will be more attractive than that usually served in either of the penitentiaries.

The reason for this large exodus from the Portsmouth The population of the Kingston penitentiary has long exceeded that of any similar institution in Canada as far as long-term men were concerned.

STOP AT LINDSAY.

LINDSAY, April 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Six coach loads of convicts from Portsmouth Penitentiary, en route to Stony Mountain Penitentiary, Manitoba, passed through Lindsay last night. A brief stop was made at the station. The coaches were heavily guarded, and a number of the convicts were noticed to be in chains. Quite a number of them were enjoying a game of cards and paid little attention to those who gazed at them from the station platform. Officials from both prisons as well as a couple of railway officials were also on the convict train.

FOR ENGLISHMEN OVERSEAS.

Unite we to-day in a spirit fraternal
In honor of England and England's Saint George!
To honor the Spirit, The Spirit of England,
Bred in Her sons in the land of their birth.

With pride do we cherish our ancient Traditions:
Justice and Freedom where'er The Flag flies!
Greatly to do and dare all things for Duty:
To honor our pledges whatever they cost.

Traditions like these are The Soul of Old England.
Born of great spirits who gave theirs to Her.
Whenever we fail to be worthy our heritage,
Her Soul is untarnished, the shame is our own.

None honor her more, than we who are absent.
What know they of Love, who have ne'er had to part?
The children of England, tho' ocean's leagues sever,
Cherish her dearly, deep, deep in their hearts.

Hail, then! Oh England! Great Mother of Empire!
Hail to St. George! England's own Patron Saint!
Here on this festival, in spirit fraternal,
We greet thee—St. George and Old England—All Hail!

REPARATIONS EXPERTS AGAIN FAIL TO REACH AGREEMENT; START WORK ON FINAL REPORT

Will Deal With Failure of Committee To Reach Solution.

DISAGREE ON TERMS.

Experts Will Continue Further Discussions Concerning Points Not Disputed.

PARIS, April 23 (Canadian Press). —The reparations experts again failed in their efforts to find a solution for the long pending reparations problem and began winding up their work to-day.

The "final work" of the committee, in the words of an official communique, began with first efforts to agree on the points to be incorporated in a report of the failure to the Reparations Commission and to the interested governments.

To-day's plenary session postponed from yesterday because of the late return of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht after a consultation with the German Government at Berlin, opened in the midst of rumors of further negotiations between the Germans and the the Allies, but a communique issued after adjournment gave no indication that these negotiations were likely to change the situation.

Disagree on Terms.

The text of the communique pointed out clearly that the experts disagreed not only on the proposed reparations settlement but upon the terms in which that disagreement shall be officially reported. Nevertheless, it was decided that the principal experts go to work on a report concerning the points that are not

CITIZENS TO MAKE CANVASS FOR CHOIR

Enthusiastic Meeting Was Held in the Chamber of Commerce Last Night.

There was a large gathering of citizens in the Chamber of Commerce last evening who discussed the matter of having the Male Voice Choir take part in the Associated Glee Clubs of America competition in Madison Square Gardens on Friday, May 24. J. J. Turner occupied the chair, and in his remarks and in those who followed him it was felt that every effort should be put forward so that it would be possible for the choir to take part.

The cost of their appearance in the contest will be about $3,000.00, of which the members of the choir have contributed to a fund now amounting to $1,200.00. In addition to this personal contribution the members lose the time from work necessary to take part in the contest.

There are only four clubs going from Canada—Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton and Peterborough—with seventy-six entries from the United States, and it was felt that it would be of exceptional value to Peterborough musically and in other ways if our Male Voice Choir takes part.

It will not be a rollicking holiday for the men who go, as every minute of time is taken up either travelling or appearing in the contests.

The meeting decided that a canvass would be made for funds to make up the balance necessary to make the trip, and this will be done at once. It is to be hoped that those who are lovers of music and all who would like the choir to appear for the honor of the city will do what they can to make good the entry of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir.

Message From King Read In Parliament

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23 (C.P.) —At 11 o'clock last night, just as the House of Commons was about to adjourn, Premier Mackenzie King announced that a message had been received by cable from His Majesty the King. The chamber was well filled at the time as were also the galleries. While all stood, the Prime Minister read the words of King George to his subjects throughout the Empire. At the conclusion, Mr. Speaker Lemieux announced the adjournment, after which members and spectators silently left the house.

RAILWAY BOARD MEETS IN CITY

Sanction Is Given to the Annexation of Property By Municipality.

EFFECT ON JULY 1.

Sanction of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board was given to the annexation by the city of Peterborough of certain property, lying north and west of Queen Mary School and west along the Monaghan Road, belonging to the Toronto Savings and Loan Company at a meeting of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board and all interested parties held in the Council Chambers at noon to-day.

The property is approximately thirteen acres in extent and it is the plan of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company to sub-divide it into building lots. The annexation takes effect on July 1 of this year.

Present at the meeting were representatives of the municipal council of the Township of North Monaghan with their solicitor, E. A. Peck, M.P., representatives of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company with their solicitor, B. D. Hall and Mayor Denne, representing the city.

JUSTICE RANEY TO HEAD BOARD

Members of Board of Conciliation Are Named By Hon. Peter Heenan.

C.N.R. DISPUTE.

OTTAWA, April 23. (C.P.)—Hon. Mr. Justice W. E. Raney of Toronto, has been appointed chairman of the Board of Conciliation and investigation, established by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, to deal with the dispute between the Canadian National Railway and certain of the company's locomotive engineers. J. L. Counsell, K. C., Hamilton, Ont., and A. Cyril Boyce, K.C., Ottawa, are respectively the employers' and employees' representatives on the board.

Four thousand employees are said to be directly affected by the dispute, which arises out of the employers' desire to revise or amend certain rules governing the service. The specific points of difference were not disclosed.

Dr. Forbes Godfrey Concludes Deaths Were Coincidence

Doctors, After a Week of Thorough Investigation Into the Deaths in Ekfrid Township, Fail To Find Origin of Disease.

MINISTER OF HEALTH ISSUES OFFICIAL STATEMENT SAYING EVERY POSSIBLE AVENUE HAS BEEN TRACED

Deaths May Be Put Down As Resulting From Septicaemia, Probably Caused By Haemolytic Streptococcus.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press). — Unable after a week's investigation to find the origin of the epidemic in Ekfrid Township, Middlesex County, that claimed four lives and caused serious illness among half a dozen others, Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, in an official statement to-day arrives at the conclusion that the deaths were a coincidence.

Dr. Godfrew states: "Dr. A. L. McKay, Epidemiologist, of the Department of Health of Ontario, has spent one week investigating the situation at Ekfrid. Every possible avenue has been followed in an endeavor to trace the source of the infection which has caused four deaths, and from which one patient is seriously ill and now in the London hospital.

"After the most thorough investigation, one can only say that the cases that have occurred in Western Ontario may be put down as resulting from septicaemia, probably caused by haemolytic streptococcus, and that the fact that several cases occurred in a comparatively small area must be accepted as a coincidence."

PREMIER FAILS TO NAME DATE FOR ELECTION

Mr. Ferguson Says He Will Not Be Influenced By Liberal Preparations.

NOT UNTIL READY.

In Address Premier Outlines Humanitarian Activities of Government.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Contrary to expectations in some quarters, Premier G. H. Ferguson did not announce the date of a Provincial general election in his address at the Toronto Conservative Business Men's Club luncheon to-day. The Premier intimated that he would announce an election when he was ready. He would not be influenced, he said, by the preparations of the Liberal Opposition.

Mr. Ferguson, whose address was devoted almost entirely to a review of the humanitarian activities of his Government, said he was 'frightened and shocked" when he read this morning the invitation to the luncheon, intimating he was to reveal some of the secrets of the Council chamber.

Clears the Decks.

Since he was expected to make an announcement, he said at the outset that he would make two, to clear the decks—that no election was contemplated, and that he was not going to retire from public life.

After emphasizing that when the welfare and future of the province was involved, the Ferguson Government had frequently appointed Liberals to important positions when people sympathetic with Conservative ideals were not qualified for the work, Mr. Ferguson proceeded to outline the Government's work in the reclamation and rehabilitation of potential criminals, and of first offenders who were not vicious criminals in their instincts.

Have One Chance

"Our belief is that every fellow should have one chance," the Premier said, and by proper administrative methods he said he believed it was possible for people who committed an offence under some unnatural influence to reflect and make good if given the chance. He believed men who were not habitual criminals should be given every encouragement to go straight rather than have their self-respect crushed out of them and their future ruined entirely.

Ninety per cent. of the boys in the Bowmanville training institute were victims of bad home influence, Mr. Ferguson said. Given good training in a healthy atmosphere, more than one hundred boys in the past four years have been taken by service clubs which have co-operated with the

JUDGE O'REILLY DIES SUDDENLY

County Judge For Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry Dies After Court Opens.

APPOINTED IN 1900

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 23. (C.P.) — Judge James Redmond O'Reilly of the County Court of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, died suddenly to-day in the court house at Cornwall. Judge O'Reilly had gone to the court house feeling ill, for the purpose of holding divisional court. After ascending the bench, His Honor requested the bailiff to adjourn the court on account of his indisposition. He then retired to an outer room, where he suffered an asthmatic attack and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Judge O'Reilly had been suffering from asthma for a number of years, and only last year spent some time in Waterbury, Vt., for the purpose of obtaining relief.

Born in Kingston.

Born in Kingston, Feb. 14, 1862, the eldest son of the late James O'Reilly, Q.C.M.P., he was educated at Regiopolis College, Kingston, the Kingston Collegiate Institute, St. Mary's College, Montreal, Queen's University and Osgoode Hall, Toronto. He won the gold medal in political economy on graduation in Arts from Queen's University in 1882. He was called to the bar three years later, and practised at Prescott and Kingston. He was created a King's Counsel in 1899 and in 1900 he was promoted to the bench. Before elevation to the bench he was active in local Liberal circles and for a number of years was president of the South Grenville Reform Association.

He was married to Rose Mary, daughter of the late James Bermingham, Kingston, in 1888. His widow and two sons, James of Toronto, and Harty of Montreal, survive.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Nicholls Hospital Bulletin

No. 1 — April 23, 1929

THE NICHOLLS HOSPITAL BOARD desires to correct an erroneous impression which, apparently, is abroad in the City.

There is nothing in the Act of Incorporation, or in the Rules and Regulations of the Hospital, nor has there ever been, which precludes any qualified resident Medical Practitioner, of any creed, from serving on the Medical Staff of the Hospital, provided he makes an application for that purpose, and agrees to observe the Rules of the Hospital. This extends to County Medical Practitioners, in which case must be named another member of the Staff, a resident of the City, who may be called to a patient in case of emergency. The Act of Incorporation calls for a Protestant Board of Management, but this does not extend to the Medical Staff.

$5,000 ACTION DISMISSED AGAINST HOPE

Counter Claim Is Allowed by Judge In Township Case

Mr. Justice Raney Dismisses Action of Robert Morton For $5,000 Damages On Account of Flooding Brought Against Hope Township.

CULVERT IN USE FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS JUDGE QUITE BLUNTLY DEPRECATED LITIGATION

Little Bit of Common Sense Could Have Settled Things and No One Would Have Been Put To Hundreds of Dollars of Expense, His Lordship Remarks.

COBOURG, Ont., April 23 (Special to The Examiner). — Mr. Justice Raney, in the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario here yesterday, dismissed the suit of Robert Morton, of Hope Township, Durham County, for $5,000 against his municipality for alleged damage to his property resulting from the diversion of a roadside water ditch by closing a culvert that had been in use for more than fifty years.

D. H. Chisholm, K.C., of Port Hope, was counsel for the Township of Hope, and W. F. McMahon, Port Hope, represented the plaintiff.

The counter claim of the township for an order to remove Morton's fence to its true line, a distance of about twenty-six feet in some places, was allowed by the Court.

Hon. Mr. Raney quite bluntly deprecated the litigation which, he said, should have been amicably settled without appeal to law.

Common Sense Needed.

"What's puzzling me, "he remarked at one stage of the trial, "is why the municipality and this farmer did not settle it between themselves. A little bit of common sense could have settled it without coming here and putting somebody to hundreds of dollars' expense."

"Quite so, My Lord, it's ridiculous," Mr. Chisholm agreed.

In disposing of the case, His Lordship mildly censured Hope Township Council for ignoring three letters from Mr. Morton.

"I think," said His Lordship, "that the plaintiff should have made greater effort to get the Council to hear his complaint. A municipal council should take pains to see that a ratepayer has no grievance. The plaintiff sent them three letters which were not acknowledged or answered. I wish to express my disapproval of such action as that. For that reason I shall not award costs. The plaintiff's action is dismissed, and the defendants will have judgment in their counter claim, but there will be no costs to either party."

Old Culvert Filled In

Robert Morton has lived since 1896 on the seventh concession of Hope about a mile and a half west of Perrytown. His farm is on the west side of the road, which runs north and south. A culvert near his property carried the surface water across to the east side, and a curving bank or shoulder forming a natural dam in the ditch swirled the water through the culvert.

In May, 1925, the council decided to fill in the culvert and cut the ditch through the obstructing bank or shoulder, thereby confining the fresh-et water course to the west side ditch along the Morton property. The plaintiff contended that this municipal work caused several deep erosions into his property, and also deposited quantities of sand over part of his pasture land, smothering the grass. He also alleged that in 1926 the road superintendent gave instructions for the culvert to be re-opened, but his order was countermanded by the council.

Cause of Erosions

Hilliard Caldwell, a councillor in 1925, had charge of the roads in that division. He testified that most of the water flowed off the Morton farm below the old culvert, and that the erosions were caused by Morton's neglect to put brush and stones on the face of his property where the water dropped into the ditch, thereby preventing the earth from wearing and washing away.

"I told Morton the culvert was doing no good and was a constant expense because of the repairs that had to be made to it from time to time after washouts," Caldwell testified. "Morton said that was the proper way. He never made any complaint to me."

ROTARY HEARS TALK ON STEEL

Walter Henson Speaker At Weekly Luncheon of Campbellford Club.

GOOD PROGRAM.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Steel was the subject of the address at the Rotary luncheon in the St. Lawrence Hotel dining room yesterday. Walter Henson, whose classification is Steel, was the speaker. Five members announced their intention of attending the district Rotary Convention in Erie, May 6th to May 8th. H. N. Carr and Elie Brunelle will occupy the offices of president and secretary for the local meeting May 6th in the absence of the regular officers who will attend the Erie convention. Albert Hazel was the soloist at the luncheon. He sang Bayly's "Long, Long Ago." E. C. Dolman was the accompanist. The guests yesterday were R. W. Anglin, the high school inspector, and Purdy Petty, who has recently returned from Florida.

The slate of officers elected was also announced at the end of the luncheon. They will assume the reins of office at the first meeting in July. They are: N. Alex MacCall, president; Dr. H. B. Longmore, vice president; E. C. Dolman, secretary-treasurer, H. N. Carr and Elie Brunelle, directors.

In his address on Steel, Walter Henson considered steel as one of the precious metals of the time, since it was the most necessary metal of the universe. History had classified certain ages as the Stone age, Bronze age; he thought the present time might be aptly termed the Steel Age. In almost everything, steel was an important factor. Without it there could be no cars, railways, airplanes, steamships, electric motors and generators. Steels was the substance used in making piano wires, watch springs and practically everything of at nature. Guns, rifles, shells, farm machinery, all depended on steel for their manufacture.

Iron, he said, had been in use since about 800 or 900 B.C., in the early Greek, Egyptian and Babylonian civilization. At that time it was not as common as copper and bronze. It was prized very highly and, in one case a piece of iron was given as a

MESSAGE OF DEEP GRATITUDE IS ADDRESSED BY KING GEORGE TO PEOPLES OF BRITISH EMPIRE

His Majesty Expresses His Deep Thanks To His People.

SOLICITUDE AND PRAYERS.

Tribute Is Also Paid to the Skill of Attending Physicians and Nurses.

LONDON, April 23. — (Canadian Press Cable)—Expressing his thanks to his people for their solicitude and prayers during his recent long and severe illness, King George has addressed a message to the empire. It was made public last night and is as follows:—

"Looking back on my long illness and recovery, my heart is full of thankfulness of a far deeper origin than any mere sense of relief. I have been brought back from the danger and weariness of the past few months by the wonderful skill and devotion of my doctors, surgeons and nurses, and help has come to me from another source of strength.

Widespread and Loving Solicitude

"As month after month went by I learned of the widespread and loving solicitude with which the queen and I have been surrounded. I was able to picture for myself the crowds of friends waiting and watching at my gates and to think of the still greater number of those who throughout the empire were remembering me with prayers and good wishes.

"The realization of this has been among the most vivid experiences of my life. It is encouragement beyond description to feel my constant and earnest desire has been granted—my desire to gain the confidence and affection of my people.

"My thoughts have carried me even further. I cannot dwell on the generous sympathy shown me by unknown friends in many other countries without a new and moving hope. I long to believe it is possible that experiences such as mine may soon appear no longer exceptional: when the national anxieties of all peoples of the world shall be felt as a common source of human sympathy and a common claim on human friendship.

"I am not yet able to bear the strain of a public ceremony, but I am looking forward to some appointed day for joining my people at home and overseas in thanking God, not only for my own recovery but for the new evidences of growing kindliness significant of the true nature of men and nations. In the meantime I hope this message may reach all those, even in the most remote corners of the world, from whom I have received words of sympathy and goodwill."

NEWS IN BRIEF

MAY LIFT BAN

MELBOURNE, Ont., April 23 (C.P.)—A special meeting of the Board of Health has been called for to-day for the purpose of considering the lifting of the ban on meetings and school sessions imposed when a mysterious disease caused four deaths in Ekfrid township last week.

No new cases of the disease have been reported for several days.

DIES FROM STREPTOCOCCUS

STRATFORD, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—Mrs. Cecil Hodgins died in isolation hospital here yesterday from what physicians believe was an acute case of streptococcus haemolytiscus, the disease which caused four deaths in Ekfrid township.

Mrs. Hodgins had not been in contact with persons from the Ekfrid district and her case is not believed to be related in any way to the outbreak there.

STARTS SEASON WELL.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—On his first time out for the 1929 season, Ross MacKinnon, a well-known figure in Oshawa sport circles, and a prominent member of the Oshawa Golf Club, started the year in the most fitting way by getting a "oner" on the second hole of the course. Mr. MacKinnon was playing the course in company with Herb Smith and Fred Bunting when the bid for membership to the "Hole-in-One Club" was driven off.

EBBER KAYOS MASON.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Bobby Ebber, Toronto bantam, demonstrated to some 800 boxing fans here last night that he still possesses a Kayo punch in his right mitt, by stopping Jimmy Mason, Utica, in the eighth round of last night's feature bout on the Hamilton Sporting Club show.

DIES FROM INJURIES.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Edward Tasker, 19, Toronto, died here yesterday from injuries received Sunday last when his motor cycle skidded and struck an automobile. Tasker suffered terrible injuries about the head which resulted in his death.

VISITS TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Premier of British Columbia, paid a flying visit to Toronto yesterday. He spent a short time at the Parliament Buildings during his short stay here, and visited several of the Provincial Ministers.

Farmer Digs Post Hole And Finds Free Gold

MATHESON, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—A blast of dynamite, set off to assist the digging of a post hole on a farm near here, has made a farmer a comparatively rich man. The dynamite revealed free gold and the farmer has sold his claim for $60,000 and a substantial share in the company which will develop it.

W. P. Rhodes, whose farm is five miles from here, on the edge of the Northern Ontario clay belt, is the lucky man. It is reported that the Schumacher mining interests have taken over the development work.

GIRL IS PLACED ON PROBATION

Magistrate Floyd Deplores Immunity of Man From Punishment.

SAYS LAW NOT FAIR

COBOURG, April 23 (Special). — Biting denunciation of the actions of the young man in the case and bitter condemnation of the law as it stands for such cases, was handed out in Cobourg Police Court Saturday by Magistrate W. H. Floyd in placing Bernice Brown, 18-year-old Toronto schoolgirl, on probation for concealment of birth.

Jack Lillie, 17, Toronto, a former pupil at school with her and confessed father of the child, was not present in court. The evidence adduced was that the child was born in Toronto last December, where it died. It was taken to Cobourg, dismembered, thrown down a well and discovered on March 24. At the preliminary hearing of March 28, three days after the inquest, the charge was laid. Lillie met another girl in November and married her in December.

In passing sentence His Worship said: "I have been on this bench eleven years, but this is the first time in my life that a case of this kind has come before me, and it seems to me very strange indeed that the law in force to-day should not have been remedied long ago.

Principal Actor Absent.

"The inhuman part of this case is that the principal actor is not brought before a criminal court. But the girl has to shoulder the brunt of the whole situation. No doubt she was pursued by this skunk, Lillie. I trust that the educational colleges and schools of to-day will teach young men to assume the responsibilities of life to which they fall heir.

"We have societies of men high up in life doing something for the good of humanity and nothing is being done to protect such a girl as this. But she is forced into a criminal court and the boy gets off. Such societies should exist to really do good and not simply to gather together once a year to discuss trivial matters.

"I trust the societies of this province, and the Law Society included, will endeavor to have something done. Where a man is guilty he should be charged side by side with the woman whom he has soiled. We are short in our manhood when we allow the girl to take the blame. The men of our country should stand up and fight for what is right. It is wrong to allow the girl to suffer, and it is cowardly. I call Lillie a skunk. He is nothing else.

"I hope and trust what I have said

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

TREASURE TROVE CAUSES TROUBLE

Gin Among Potatoes Is Uncovered Just Before Police Call.

The story told by Dalton Dolan, in his own defence, that the bottle of gin, found in his possession by police officers, when they paid a forced an unwelcome visit to his home at one o'clock Sunday morning, had been found by himself that very Saturday night hidden away and forgotten in a box or bag of decaying potatoes was not sufficient to save his conviction, when he appeared before Magistrate Langley in County Court yesterday, charged with having liquor without a permit. He was found guilty and fined $150 and costs.

Dolan's thoughtful explanation of his possession of the gin, came just after Provincial Constable Thompson had stated, in his evidence, that on two previous occasions a thorough search had been made of the Dolan abode on tne Chemong road. One search had lasted for five hours and another had been joined in by two inspectors from Toronto. But neither had proved fruitful and Dolan, it was said, had on both occasions denied the possession of liquor or even the possession of a permit to buy liquor.

The Sunday morning when Constables Thompson and Matthews descended on the Dolan home, the door was found locked and remained locked although a voice answered Thompson's order, "To open up." The officers burst the lock and found Dolan and A. Tucker seated about the table with the incriminating bottle of gin and glasses before them.

Dolan stated that about seven o'clock that evening he had emptied a bag or box of rotting potatoes to feed them to the pigs, when, luckily or unfortunately for him, he had found the bottle of gin among the potatoes. He wiped the bottle free from dirt in some way, took it into the house, had one drink from it some hours later, and then brought it out again when Tucker called. The two were enjoying a glass when the police called, he said.

The only way he could explain how the bottle came among the potatoes was that last October he had a permit, which he had not renewed in November, and that he bought the gin then. In moving, he said, from his former home in North Monaghan to that on the Chemong road, the bottle must have been placed among the potatoes. It had remained lost and forgotten among the Irish Cobblers, he explained, until he unfortunately found it the night of the raid.

The bottle appeared with its label bright and lustrous, after its stated resurrection from the mouldy potatoes, on the magistrate's bench during the trial, being entered as Exhibit A.

Magistrate Langley refused to consider the story as either probable or possible and found Dolan guilty of the charge, fining him $150.

MANITOBA HOUSE MAKES PROGRESS

Conservative Blockade Is Abandoned in Western Legislature.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 23 (Canadian Press).—With the Conservative "blockade" once more abandoned and Premier John Bracken's motion to suspend the early adjournment rules untouched on the order paper, rapid progress was made in passing estimates in the Legislature here yesterday. When the session concluded, sums totalling nearly $3,000,000 had been adopted.

If the progress continues, it was intimated by Government members that the Premier's early closing motion would not be pressed.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole, M.D., and Published in Peterborough in 1867

CHAPTER 1.

A Pioneer Chapter.

Prior to the year 1818, that portion of Canada now known as the flourishing County of Peterborough, was covered by an unbroken forest, in which the settler's axe had never echoed, and where, save the homeless Indian or the adventurous hunter, the foot of man had scarcely penetrated.

In that year, a small body of emigrants sailed from England, some of whom, braving the perils of the bush, found their way into the township of Smith, then but recently surveyed. This was in the Autumn of 1818; the pioneers finding an inlet by way of Rice Lake and the Otonabee River, for as yet, and for long after, there was no semblance of a road through the wooded wilderness stretching away between the frontier settlements and their new home.

The merit of the first settlement in the county belongs to the township of Smith, and in connection with that township, in a future chapter, will be found the names of those brave men, and such account as we have been able to gather, of the incidents, difficulties and privations attending their early settlement in the bush.

In May 1819, a party of gentlemen from "The front" came up the Otonabee in a skiff, for the purpose of selecting a mill site, and otherwise "prospecting" in the new townships. These were Charles Fothergill, Esq., at one time M.P.P. for Durham, Thomas Ward, Esq., of Port Hope, Clerk of the Peace of the District, John Farrelly, Surveyor, Adam Scott, Millwright, and Barnabas Bletcher. Mr. John Edmison, then an intending settler, who had already drawn a lot of land at hazard, accompanied them.

They landed just above Spaulding's bay, at a spot which was afterwards a steamboat landing, and near the site in after years of the steam saw mill of Messrs. Shaw and Fortune, the chimney of which alone is now standing. Scott here discharged his gun, and then by means of the flint of the lock a fire was kindled, the party assisting in gathering wood for the purpose. After a lunch, which sufficed for supper, they lay down around the fire, beneath the spreading branches of the trees and slept.

Next morning Edmison and Ward started for Mud Lake, following the blaze on the trees along the communication line, and sharing the meals of some of the settlers of the previous year. Ward was the owner of the land comprising the site of the present village of Bridgenorth; and having accomplished their object, they returned to the scene of their open air encampment. Here the other prospecting party were found in good spirits, and discussing the project for a future mill. By damming up the creek which still traverses the site of the town and conveying the water along a short excavation to the steep bank of the Otonabee River, an eligible mill-site would be obtained, and at a trifling cost compared with the expense of attempting to control the rapidly descending waters of the Otonabee, at any point in the neighborhood.

Well pleased with the results of this exploration visit, the party passed down the river, and across Rice Lake on the same evening. The little piece of engineering thus projected was successfully carried out and in about two years Adam Scott had a small saw and grist mill in operation under one roof. The same water privilege is still in use, though turned to much better account in the large frame mill in active operation on the corner of King and Water streets.

Further reference will be made to this first mill, which, though necessarily a small structure, and the machinery imperfect, was nevertheless a great boon to the early settlers.

The badges should certainly have a space for the name of the visitor—otherwise what USE are they?

NINETY-TWO YEARS OLD.

In looking up some of the old pupils of the Grammar and Common School of Peterborough, attending during the years 1852-1860, the name of James McCall, now of Mt. Forest, Ont., was handed in. The owner of the name deserves to be known now, as an Old Boy. He was born in the year 1837 and was a boy at school during the year 1851. His people were of those who settled at or around Bridgenorth, on the shore of Chemong Lake.

It is not likely that the aged Mr. McCall ever was one of the boys at school in Peterborough, though such fact is being ascertained. From the columns of the Mt. Forest Confederate, the weekly paper then published, the following paragraph is taken:

"Mr. James McCall, our oldest citizen, 92, when down town yesterday morning, as usual, informed us that the City of Peterborough is to have an Old Boy's Reunion next summer. Mr. McCall thinks he will have a right to attend as he attended school there in 1851. Very likely he will prove to be the oldest surviving citizen."

They Are All Eager

Misses Marion and Ted Cheverill, 18 Edward Apts., Oshawa, left their home at 429 Stewart street in July 1927, and are now employed with the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, the former as clerk and the latter as secretary to the manager. Their parents still reside at 429 Stewart street.

Wishes Success.

Writing from Toronto, where she resides at 18 Cassells avenue, Mrs. C. H. Gillson wishes Old Home Week success. She was formerly Hattie Duncan, of 115 McDonnel street, and left here nine years ago.

Hopes To Be Here.

G. W. Beal, 50½ Adelaide street, Toronto, wholesale importer and manufacturer of tiles, left Peterborough in 1889, and now says: "I hope to be there for the celebration." H. L. Beal is a brother.

Left Here In 1905.

William E. Crowe, Perdue, Saskatchewan, left his home at Hall's Glen on June 6, 1905, and is now engaged in farming. His wife was formerly Maud Legge, of Gananoque.

From Ottawa.

J. H. L'Abbe, 467 Holland avenue, Ottawa, formerly resided on Westcott street. He left here in 1898, and is now librarian at the Dominion Observatory.

Peterborough Is Home.

William J. Casey, R.F.D. 2, Millbury, Mass., who left here in 1897, is now boss spinner in a woollen mill. He formerly resided on Barnardo avenue, and his sister and brother still live in this district. Mr. Casey quotes:

"No other land is home,
Or no other folks so kind."

No Place Like Home.

"There is no place like the old town, and even yet it seems home", says Miss Mary Ethel Thornton, 233 Eugenie street, Norwood Grove, via Winnipeg, Man., who formerly resided at 67 Harvey street.

Miss Thornton is now secretary-treasurer of the school district of Norwood.

From Oshawa

Miss Jessie Panton, who left Peterborough on April 19, 1881, now resides in Oshawa. She has pleasant memories of this city.

From Rochester

Wellington Howden, 113 Ridgeway avenue, Rochester, N.Y., formerly of Sherbrooke street, left here in May, 1896, and is now film maker with the Eastman Kodak Co.

Headquarters haven't been decided yet. The building will have to be commodious and pleasant, to give the best service to guests.

Poultry Raising Is Becoming Popular Industry

FARMS THROUGHOUT CANADA ARE INCREASING ANNUALLY

Up-to-date Commercial Farm Conducted By M. McDowell Near Millbrook.

SPECIAL FEEDING.

Farmers Favor Buying Day-Old Chicks in Preference To Custom Hatching.

MILLBROOK, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—An increased interest in poultry raising and poultry production is featured yearly on both sides of the Atlantic, and in the Orient as well, the number of commerical poultry farms being a noted factor in this connection, as well as the growing number of farmers who are increasing their flocks, feeding and culling in the manner approved by experts, improving their stock on the bred-to-lay plan, and thus specializing profitably in the poultry business.

A visit to a commercial poultry farm, such as the one adjoining this community, owned and operated by M. McDowell, convinces even the most transient onlooker that poultry keeping is no business for an indifferent or lazy person, but rather demands careful planning, up-to-date equipment and buildings, larger facilities each season to meet expansion and unceasing attention and efforts to work the plan.

An unusually early start was made this season in incubation, as the high-priced egg market has shifted from the winter months to the late fall, and the electric incubator with its capacity for fifteen thousand eggs, was in use by the middle of January, though not at first carrying its full load. With a separate building, well heated and lighted, for housing his incubator, Mr. McDowell has equipment to brood early chicks comfortably, and so is in a position to meet the demand for stock that must be hatched in the fore part of the year, in order to have pullets laying well when peak prices prevail.

White Leghorns, always listed as special purpose egg breeds, were exclusively kept at the local farm until this season, when Mr. McDowell is adding a flock of Barred Plymouth Rocks, which is undoubtedly the most popular variety of fowl among farmers. A Government bulletin lists this general purpose breed as "good winter layers, fair summer layers, first-class roasters, and usually good broilers."

Added New Building.

A new two-story building, with cement foundation, was put up at the McDowell farm late last fall, which will house a flock of at least three hundred Barred Rocks next winter. At present the upper story is being used for keeping two or three lots of this year's chicks, both Rocks and Leghorns, from which the cockerels are now being put in crates for fattening, and later will be marketed as broilers. Brooder stoves supply heat, and the windows on the south wall, with the glass fastened back in the day-time and cotton screens in place, provide the necessary ventilation. The pullets are for winter laying.

There are upwards of three thousand baby chicks on the farm at present, in the portable colony houses, and the electric incubator is loaded to capacity and has been for several weeks past with bookings for a considerable time ahead. Experience proves that when a chick has a coal stove for a mother much depends upon the attention it gets. For instance, a chick is not wise enough of itself to go to the heat, and for the first few days the brooder stove is surrounded by a "fence," made of poultry netting standing on edge, with sacking thrown over it; the circle is widened each day, beginning with, say sixteen inches, from the canopy, and when a week or possibly less has passed, it may be dispensed with altogether.

Farmers in this vicinity, as is the case in other localities, are more and more buying day-old chicks in preference to bringing in eggs for custom hatching. In addition to what are sold in this way locally, thousands of these chicks are shipped out each week. No eggs over one week old are used in the incubator.

From practical experience, Mr. McDowell has found proof of the theory personally held that if incubating conditions are normal and no interference occurs, such as chilling, etc., healthy chicks will be hatched with no trace of the bacillary white diarrhoea from which deaths frequently occur during the first four weeks, providing some untoward circumstances during incubation that caused the germs to be active. Mr. McDowell had some loss from this source this year, but followed the extremely practical plan of killing at once any chicks noticed to be so affected. His own fowl were all blood tested before the eggs were used for incubating purposes.

Professor Daken, of Ohio, who is an outstanding authority on poultry sanitation, declares he has successfully controlled the spread of white diarrhoea by fumigating the incubator, while the chicks were hatching, with formaldehyde gas. "Trials showed that fumigation of hatching chicks was one hundred per cent. effective in stopping this source of infection. The method is simple; also inexpensive. Formalin is poured over crystals of potassium permanganate and chemical action liberates the gas. Offhand one would say that such a poisonous gas would kill the chicks, but it did not affect any of them seriously, and none of them permanently." Hatcherymen are awaiting with great interest the exact formula, and purchasers may benefit if the idea is found practical and profitable.

Special Feeding Necessary.

The contention that special feeding is necessary to produce eggs high in hatchability and fertility has been proved true in actual experience at the McDowell farm, and the owner believes this can best be done when a poultry plant is run wholly on a commercial basis. Incidentally, this fact is probably the cause of the increased purchase of live chicks, and the consequent lessening of the business of custom hatching. It is well, therefore, when high-priced winter eggs are being collected, it is necessary to be making careful plans to secure a crop of pullets for the next season.

It is a matter of contention whether the artificial lighting of poultry houses increases the year's egg production. The system has been used at the McDowell farm for some years past, and experience has proved that it does certainly increase winter production when peak prices prevail, even though the yearly average is not any higher.

It comes as rather a jolt to the modern poultryman to find that a book published in Spanish just one hundred and twenty-five years ago tells that peasants in that country followed the practice of feeding their fowl at night, by artificial light, and reaped a larger harvest of eggs in consequence.

The Egyptians, too, upset our western assumption of superiority when their Government exhibited at the World's Poultry Congress at Ottawa, a model of a mammoth incubator which had been in use for hundreds of years before the Christian era. Egypt, indeed, claims to have at least one mammoth incubator in every community, and custom work has practically put the hen out of business The attendant lives in the machine, and controls the temperature by the sensitiveness of his own feelings; hence no thermometer is needed. The automatic control of the temperature on an electric incubator, such as is used at the McDowell farm, is apparently a preference of the poultryman of the western world.

That Canada's blue ribbon hens are establishing a world-wide reputation for themselves is apparent from the fact of large shipments of fowl, principally White Leghorns, to Japan, from British Columbia; and also by the recent shipment of 176 pedigreed White Leghorn hens to President Calles of Mexico. These birds were bought from R.O.P. breeders in the Pacific Province, and the total price was $5,550. It is a fact, too, that the President of Cuba and other fanciers in that country have made large purchases of Canadian blue ribbon fowl.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, April 23. — Activity was lacking on the wholesale butter market yesterday, and No. 1 finest creamery was reduced to a range of from 41 to 42 cents per pound. The easier feeling is attributed to the fact that supplies on spot are in excess of the demand, and local dealers are looking for the large shipment of 25,000 cases coming from New Zealand to arrive on track here on approximately May 4.

Domestic production has been a great factor on the market for the past ten days, and supplies from this source are increasing daily.

Quotations to the retail trade for No. 1 creamery were reduced to 45 cents per pound.

Egg Prices Steady.

Wholesale egg dealers reported a heavy holdover of eggs for the week-end and fairly heavy receipts for Monday. Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, and cases returned, were as follows: Fresh extras 26 cents per dozen, firsts 24 cents, and seconds 21 cents per dozen.

The continued mild weather is causing another step-up in production throughout Ontario and reports indicate that heavy shipments are billed for the market this week. Dealers report that the market is barely steady at yesterday's price levels.

Trading was quiet on the cheese market, and prices were unchanged at 21¾ cents per pound for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government-graded supplies.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Both wheat and rye smashed downward yesterday, breaking anew the season's low price record. Indications of a struggle in Congress over rival plans of farm relief were more or less responsible for the tumble in values. Another disturbing element was an estimate that world stocks of wheat on July 1 next will be more than 100,000,000 bushels in excess of the corresponding total last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1 5-8c to 2⅛c net lower, with rye showing 3 1-8c to 3 3-8c drop. Corn finished 1-8c to one cent down; oats, 3-8c to 7-8c. off, and provisions varying from 22c. decline to a rise of five cents.

Lowest prices reached by wheat came in the late dealings, all rallies having met with increased selling. The fresh declines meanwhile brought into execution many standing orders to let holdings go at various fixed limits, and thus put a stop on losses. Downturns in price, however, were by no means confined to the last part of the day, having begun as soon as business opened, and with buying support later restricted largely to previous speculative sellers who were in a position to realize profits.

The Export Debenture Plan.

Likelihood that delay to farm aid legislation would result from making the export debenture plan a part of the Senate bill was an outstanding feature associated with the general selling which accompanied the downward swing of wheat prices. However, numerous other factors contributed to the selling pressure, notably continued auspicious slackness about the domestic winter wheat crop, together with persistent slackness of export demand for wheat from North America.

Feed grains held up better against selling pressure than did breadstuffs, but finished lower for the day owing to sympathy with wheat weakness. Complaints of delayed planting were a temporary sustaining influence. Besides, the stock of corn in Chicago showed a decrease of 2,745,000 bushels since a week ago, and the corn visible supply is now 30,853,000 bushels, compared with 37,388 bushels at this time last year.

Liquidating sales of lard pulled the provision market down, despite higher quotations on hogs.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 23.—The butter market yesterday was weaker, a decline of one cent per pound being announced. Prices to the retail trade were 43c for solid butter and 44 cents for prints. In the wholesale trade Eastern Townships, No. 1 pasteurized, fresh made, dropped to 38 cents with the range up to 39 cents per pound. Small lots of Western fresh made, No. 1 pasteurized, was sold as high as 40½ cents per pound, while the range for this grade extended as low as 38½ cents. New Zealand finest was sold from 40c to 41c per pound. Total arrivals for the day were 2,668 cases of which 2,250 were from New Zealand.

There were no changes in the cheese market. Receipts were 50 boxes.

The egg market was steady with no changes in prices announced. Receipts were 2,919.

The potato market showed no changes yesterday.

Quotations:

Butter—No. 1 pasteurized, 38c to 39c.

Eggs—Fresh extras, 33c to 34c.

Eggs—Fresh firsts, 31c to 32c.

MISSING GIRL IS FOUND ON BEACH

Toronto Stenographer Claims She Was Seized With Dizzy Spells On Friday.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—Weakened by fainting spells and lack of food, Jean Routcliffe, 22, stenographer, missing since last Friday, was found on the beach opposite Scarboro Bluffs yesterday.

After receiving medical aid the girl reported that she had been seized with dizzy spells Friday and had decided to go to the family cottage at Scarboro Bluffs instead of to work. She stated she had remained at the cottage for two days without food because she had been physically unable to seek aid. Yesterday she had summoned enough strength to make her way to the beach, where she was discovered by two small boys.

ROTARY HEARS

prize in an athletic contest. The first iron, it is thought, was found in a meteorite and was practically pure. The people of that time had no other means of working it other than by heating and hammering. This was a slow toilsome process. It was also expensive. Implements of that age, made of iron were seldom if ever found on account of the fact that they corroded and disappeared entirely in the course of time.

On this continent, iron is found mostly on the surface and is mined or dug with steam shovel. The ore is shipped to the blast furnaces and converted into pig iron. These blast furnaces are from sixty to ninety feet high, lined with fire brick. Limestone is used as a flux. The molten iron is removed from openings at the bottom of the furnaces, and the slag is removed higher up. The furnace fires are never allowed to go out. Should this happen, it means that the furnace has to be torn down and rebuilt. The pig iron product of the furnaces is the base from which all steel is manufactured. It is very brittle and for brittle castings, is poured practically in its original form.

Until the middle of the nineteenth century, it was a slow and expensive process to convert pig iron into steel. Bessemer, an English engineer, came to the front with a process which cheapened the process considerably. The apparatus which he designed is known as a convertor, and the process consists chiefly in burning out the impurities. When this is done, the operator introduces the proper amount of carbon to make the steel required. The molten metal is poured in the form of ingots. These are rolled to the desired shape. This steel is chiefly used for steel bridges and other structural steel. It is one of the cheapest forms. It has a breaking point of 55,000 pounds per square inch. Other higher grades of steel are made by various processes. These grades are known as crucible steel, nickel steel, vanadium steel, tungsten steel, and several others.

At the present time there is a great deal of research in the steel industry trying to discover new alloys. Robert Hadfiled, Sheffield, England, has devoted practically a life time to this work. Krupp in Germany has also added much information. Some of the new alloys are claimed to be capable of cutting four times as fast as the present tool steel. These alloys are very expensive at the present time. Some of them cost as much as five-hundred dollars a pound. It is also a great desire to discover the lost art of making rustless iron, some of which is in a statue in India. It is agreed that the art was known to some of the earlier civilizations, but has not been discovered again or preserved.

At the present time, Canada ranks low among the large iron producers of the world. But vast areas of ore had been discovered in the northern parts of the Dominion and their development will do much to place Canada among the great producers.

WEDDING BELLS

O'SHEA—BOUCHIER.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23. (Contributed.) — A quiet wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Father Corrigan in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Toronto, when Mary Florence Bouchier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bouchier, was married to Frederick O'Shea, son of Mrs. O'Shea and the late John O'Shea, formerly of Campbellford. The bride was given away by her father, and looked charming in a pink crepe dress with hat and shoes to match. She carried roses and lily-of-the-valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Alma Bouchier, who wore mauve georgette with a black hat and shoes, and carried Columbia roses. Leo Greeney of Port Hope acted as best man.

After a wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride's parents the happy couple left on a short trip to Montreal.

DOING GOOD WORK.

The raising of some $400 for the Peterborough Humane Society by means of the Violet Day appeal is gratifying, and there is no reason to fear that a cent of this amount will be wasted.

The society has done good work in Peterborough.

There is nothing spectacular in what it has accomplished, nor has there been any attempt to secure publicity over its activities, but since the inception of the movement much has been accomplished in saving dumb animals from ill-treatment and suffering.

The society's inspector has been alert and active in investigating complaints, and as a result of his efforts many abuses have been corrected and conditions generally in this respect have shown a marked improvement.

The response of the public to Saturday's appeal will be a source of great encouragement to the officers and members of the organization.

THE SCOUT MOVEMENT.

The Peterborough Rotary Club has made a helpful donation to the funds of the local Boy Scout Association, and the fact is mentioned here not for the purpose of calling attention to this act of service on the part of Rotary but rather because it endorses the work done by the scouts in this city and elsewhere.

The scout movement is growing in Peterborough, The Examiner is glad to be able to state, and is enlisting the support of representative organizations and individuals who realize that scout work as a factor in character-building among the boys of the community deserves every encouragement and support.

The old fallacy that the Boy Scout movement was militaristic in its tendencies has long since been discarded, save by a few people who refuse to face the facts and study the activities of the organization.

The public generally accepts the movement as a splendid contribution toward the all-round development of Canadian boys, a movement that teaches them to be alert, honorable, observing, courteous, obedient to law and authority, and alive to their responsibilities as citizens of a great country.

It is a pleasure to know that the scout organization is receiving generous encouragement and that its activities are increasing in this city.

BROADCASTING CO-OPERATION.

The statement issued by the British Columbia Government in regard to radio broadcasting is of great public importance.

Hon. R. S. Pooley, acting Premier, declares that his Government is ready to enter into negotiations with the Federal Government and the Governments of the various Provinces "with a view to the organization of radio broadcasting on a basis of public service by some method that may be mutually agreed upon."

Undoubtedly other Provincial Governments will be as willing as British Columbia to co-operate in arriving at a more satisfactory system of broadcasting control in this country.

That such control is needed the great army of set-owners in Canada will be quick to admit.

Many weaknesses in the present system must be ironed out if the public is to get full benefit from the money invested in radio.

The division of time on the air needs revision, for example.

Present-day broadcasting conditions in this respect are far from perfect, and apparently no attempt has yet been made to apportion wave lengths on the basis of ability to give service, which after all should be the first consideration.

THE AUTOMOBILE CLUB.

To-night's dinner of the Peterborough Automobile Club should attract a very large attendance, in view of the excellent work carried on by the organization in the interest of motorists and of the splendid reputation as a speaker of the guest of honor on this occasion, T. N. Phelan, K.C., the legal advisor of the Ontario Motor League and a former president of that body.

Mr. Phelan will discuss many points of great interest to car-owners, including traffic regulations and the insurance question, which is a very live issue at the present time.

All motorists should be keenly interested in what he has to say, and to-night's function on that account should be numbered as among the most successful in the history of the local Automobile Club.

The work done by the club is not a selfish one; it has helped all car-owners, whether members of the organization or not, and its record of achievement should rally to its membership many motorists who have hitherto held aloof from the movement, satisfied to accept the benefits of its work without themselves contributing either financial or moral support.

There is every reason why the strength of the Peterborough Automobile Club should include the vast majority of the car-owners of the city and district.

THE AIRPLANE IN CANADA.

The tremendous interest that is now being taken in aviation is a significant factor in the life of all parts of Canada to-day.

The airplane has done much to further the development of many parts of the country, particularly mining areas, and probably nowhere more than in Western Canada. A prospector in Winnipeg told us recently of taking a party of six into one of the coming districts of the north country in Manitoba, 500 miles from Winnipeg, a trip that under former modes of transport would have taken two or three months, was accomplished in as many days, giving the party ample time to stake a number of valuable claims.

Mention was recently made of the 'plane being used in Northern Manitoba for the first time for the shipment of furs from the remote wilds to the fringe of civilization. Now comes the announcement from Edmonton that the Western Canada Airways, Ltd., is to inaugurate an air service from Waterways to the fur-trading posts of Chipewyan, Smith, Resolution, Hay River, Providence and Simpson. Present plans call for four trips a week from Waterways. Two will be to Fort Resolution on Great Slave Lake, 512 river miles away, and return in the same day, and two to Fort Simpson, half-way point between Waterways and the Arctic, flying north one day and returning the next, with stops at intermediate points.

Attention has been drawn to the general use being made of aircraft in the crime detection work, a phase in which Canada has developed a high efficiency. For years aircraft has patrolled the entire western coast from Alaska to Vancouver Island, searching for fishing craft illegally using the salmon fishing waters. In one years 24 sea-going craft were caught by airplanes which wirelessed information of the ships' whereabouts to Government patrol boats. In Vancouver harbor the Government has made a specialized use of the airplane in preventing passengers of incoming steamships from dropping packages of narcotics and other valuable goods overboard to be picked up later by smugglers' launches. Before aircraft were engaged to cruise over the incoming steamers this practice was prevalent. Now it has practically died out.—Monetary Times.

GENERAL ELECTIONS.

A Toronto despatch states, in authoritative tones, that there will be no provincial general elections this year. An appeal to the people had been decided upon, the correspondent telegraphs, but Premier Ferguson's condition of health is such that the contest is to be deferred until the summer of 1930, thus permitting the Government to work out practically its full legal term of office.

The most interesting feature of this reported change is that it will again bring two general elections in one year for the people of this Province—Provincial and Federal. It seems to be taken for granted that the King administration will present its record to the electors and ask for a renewal of mandate sometime around the end of 1930. Only a few months at best, then, will separate the appeals of the two Governments. We had a similar situation in 1926—following the unsatisfactory Federal elections of the year before—and it has happened on other occasions. Some persons may say that it is better to have these elections all at once, or nearly so, and get them over with, but it cannot be denied that they have rather an unsettling effect on business and that, therefore, it may be preferable to have them spread out.

The argument has often been advanced in Canada that the haphazard system of staging elections—they come now purely at the convenience or discretion of the party in power—should be abandoned in favor of fixed voting dates, the system in force across the line. There is no doubt that political oppositions often suffer a serious disadvantage through the system that permits the Government of the day to have all the say in deciding when an appeal to the people is to be made. A Federal Government may stay in office for the full legal term of five years or it can go to the people a few months after it has been returned. This is solely the choice of the administration, assuming, of course, that it commands a working majority in Parliament. However, in practice, it does not seem that the system is abused, and the people are inclined to welcome an opportunity to straighten out any unworkable situation created by the failure of any party to secure a working majority. Everyone will recall a condition of this kind that existed after the elections of 1925. Mr. Meighen, leading the Conservatives, secured the largest number of seats, but lacked a majority when faced by Liberals, Progressives and Independents. Parliament swayed back and forth uncertainly for some time, with another election as the only way out of the dilemma. When it came, the result was to put Mr. King back into the saddle and clear the air.

Reverting to provincial affairs, it is impossible to see any reason why the Government should go to the country this year. Mr. Ferguson has a large majority in the Legislature. He has just completed a session that demonstrated his thorough mastery of the House and the situation. There are no scandals in connection with his administration. Things are running smoothly. The last session produced no especially contentious legislation. Indications of any public demand for a test of strength between the parties are entirely lacking. The opposition is weak and disorganized and it is difficult to see how it could be placed on the strong footing necessary to give the Government a worth-while campaign argument. In these circumstances, then, an election in 1929 would seem to be quite unnecessary and, if it were held, offering every prospect of being a dull and listless affair. Perhaps the next session of the Legislature will produce an issue. Certainly there is none now.—Border Cities Star.

A Thought

ANSWER THIS ONE.

It is your manner that mar your possibilities and is it your habits that hold you back from your probabilities?

When your begin to believe that you are not meant to be a success—believe that you are a "born failure" that's the time to take an inside inventory and find out what's wrong with your "manners" or wrong with your "habits," for the trouble lies right there, nine times out of a possible ten.

Now it takes courage and common sense to look your own faults squarely in the face; but, until you do investigate these faults and correct them, you are sure to suffer from the fever of self-sufficiency, and have hot flashes of self-deception.

If you are not getting on in this country where thousands are succeeding, is the fault in the state, or is the trouble in your system?

Why We Do What We Do.

HOW WE COME TO HAVE PERSONALITY

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

If you should wake up some fine morning and couldn't recognize yourself as the person that went to bed you would have cause to suspect yourself of being drunk or suffering from amnesia. Such lapses o memory occur now and then, but or short periods of time. In serious cases memory of the past is completely gone and the personality is dissolved.

But, whether momentarily or permanently, failure to identify yourself means the dissociation of personality. The essential thing in personality is the consciousness of self and the identification of the self with the past and present experiences of a particular individual.

No one is born a personality. Personality is an achievement. It comes with experience and the development of self consciousness. The normal baby reaches this stage by about the ninth month. After a great series of impressions, more or less unrelated, the child comes to recognize certain elements of similarity. He comes in time to develop an idea of himself which consists of the elements of similarity found in all his mental processes. His experiences are somewhat alike and continuous. To use a figure of speech, the child's experiences shift from what corresponds to the disconnected and rapidly shifting news items on the moving picture screen to a serial story maintaining the identical hero despite his changing episodes.

The curious thing is that the child comes to a consciousness of himself by first realizing that others are not a part of himself. In other words, he becomes conscious of other persons and objects before he is conscious of himself as a distinct entity. It takes a baby several months to find out that his toes belong to him instead of being just so many things in his environment.

It is bad enough to lose your way and be lost from others; but it is a lot worse to experience and be lost to yourself. That means the complete dissassociation of personality. It means that you have ceased to exist. It is death.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

IT ISN'T ART.

"A Yard of Pansies" on the wall
Son says that wasn't art at all,
And Daughter calls the subject crude,
For Daughter rather likes the nude.
They run the house since Mother's gone,
And I, well, I just follow on
And try to do the best I can,
Like any other tired old man.

And so it is, when someone brings
Home these impressionistic things,
Though just the thought they mean to show
The man who made them doesn't know,
I try as hard as others do
To understand and like them, too;
But it is mighty plain to see
They're too much art for such as me.

But I remember when the way
Was deep with snow, and skies were gray,
And all the world was filled with gloom,
Those pansies in the dining-room
Would give the house, in winter then,
A look of summertime again,
That somehow I can't seem to find
In pictures of this later kind.

Well, I've the cash to buy the best,
And Son and Daughter do the rest,
So all the pictures Ma approved
Their hands have long ago removed.
But there's a little joke I've got
On them. It may be art or not;
The attic, though, I poked around
And there that yard of pansies found.

And I have hung it on a spike
Up in the attic, and I like
To slip up there when I get blue
And take a little look or two.
For all life's winter leaves me then
And it is summertime again,
Yes, something floods my famished heart,
Although, of course, it isn't art.

WHAT A PARTY!

YONKERS, N.Y., April 23.—Thomas Coyne was either extraordinarily tough or the liquor at the party he attended was so strong that it acted as an anesthetic. He attended the party in New York one Saturday night. Several days later, he commenced to feel a little pain. Investigation proved that he had fractured his skull and jaw during the party.

WHEN IN NEED

Of a good building tonic, we recommend Park's Tonic. It is great for use after a heavy cold. It restores the lost vitality and builds up resistance to disease. It is pleasant to take and does not upset the stomach. $1.00. Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter streets.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXI.

It was late when Ana got home that night.

Anthony Hambledon drove her down from London in a taxicab.

"But we must stop at the corner of the road and I will walk up," Ana insisted. "If Aunt Hilda knew I was with you——"

He laughed.

"What does it matter? they will all know soon."

Ana was silent, and he urged again: "They will all know soon, won't they?"

Ana's hand trembled in his.

"It's so like a dream," she said. "I dread letting go of your hand for fear I shall wake up and find that none of it has ever been real."

"And I dread etting you out of my sight for fear that you will change that puritanical mind of yours," he told her.

Ana shivered and looked away from him. She was burning with happiness, and yet behind it all was a nameless fear.

She had always looked at life so differently—through a narrow window perhaps, and yet from that window the view had been straight and good; but now she saw—she hardly knew what, her eyes were so dazzled by the promise of wonderful things to come.

If she had loved Hambledon before, she felt that now she loved him twenty times as much. It was the first time they had spent uninterrupted hours together, and Ana told herself that if this was a foretaste of what life would always be with him, it was too great and wonderful to last. From the depths of her soul she pitied Mollie for not realizing the treasure she had so carelessly let fall from her grasp. She was sure that with Mollie's charm and beauty, if she had chosen to exert herself to keep her husband's love, there would never have been the least danger of ever losing it; during the evening she told him so tremblingly.

"If Mollie had ever loved you as much as I do, you would have loved her so much in return that you would never have looked at me."

"I could never have loved her as I love you," he insisted. "There is something about you, Ana"—he waxed eloquent for once—"I wish I was a poet or a writer, or some clever Johnny fellow so that I could tell you how I feel about you. My words are so poor"—he laughed in boyish embarrassment. "Ana, I once read some lines in a book, they went something like this—I daresay I have got them all wrong—I don't even know why I remembered them, I don't care for poetry and stuff like that—perhaps I remembered them because I knew that some day I should want to tell them to you."

"What were they?" Ana asked quietly.

She felt that she must make a storehouse of her heart and brain so that no moment of this wonderful day, no word that Anthony spoke would ever escape her.

When he did not speak, she tugged at his hand gently.

"Tell me, please."

Anthony obeyed in a stumbling, half-shy manner:

Ask me no more, thy fate and mine are sealed—
I strove against the stream but all in vain,
Let the great river take me to the main
No more, dear Love, for at a touch I yield,
Ask me no more.

There was a little silence when he had finished speaking, which he broke shamefacedly: "I suppose you think I am a great fool, Ana."

"I love you," Ana said.

He drew a deep breath and half laughed.

"It's true enough that I did strive against the stream but all in vain," he declared ruefully. "But I am not striving any more."

For a moment Ana said nothing. She sat staring before her down the dark road ahead of them, the darkness only broken here and there by the street lamps, and she felt as if she were trying to see miles ahead—many miles into the years—into the future.

Would this happiness last? Could it?

Miss Sawyer had often told her that there was no happiness to be gained by reaching it over the body of one less fortunate. Did that apply to her, she wondered? to her and Anthony?

She broke out in agitation:

"Anthony, supposing Mollie—all this about Mollie is wrong—I mean if she didn't, if she hasn't——"

She stopped, and he said quickly:

"It would make no difference. I am not going back on the happiness I know I can find with you."

He leaned forward.

"Is this Wimbledon?" he asked.

"Yes, I think so."

He drew her into his arms.

"Kiss me, Ana, and tell me that nothing will ever make any difference, that you will love me all your life as I shall love you."

"I shall love you all my life—all my life."

"Kiss me, then."

Their lips met and clung together.

"But if——" Ana began desperately again.

He would not let her go on.

"There is no 'if'—you belong to me."

They dismissed the taxicab at the end of the road.

"When shall I see you again?" Ana asked, clinging to his arm. The dread of leaving him was upon her; the dread of waking up and finding that to-day he and she had only walked in a Fool's Paradise.

"I will write to you when I have seen Mollie."

"And supposing——"

"There is no 'supposing'."

During the long wakeful hours of the night a hundred times Ana went over everything he had said.

It was real. He loved her and she loved him, and they were to spend the rest of their lives together.

'It may be wicked; I suppose it is," she told herself defiantly. 'But I don't care. I'm happy—happy—!"

But she could not sleep.

Outside on the landing she could hear Benny, her aunt's old blind dog, stirring and whimpering in his sleep.

His joints were stiff with rheumatism, and sometimes he could hardly crawl about the house, but Miss Sawyer loved him, and would not go away for more than a day because she could not bear to leave him.

In her way, Miss Sawyer was kind but Ana knew that she would have no sympathy at all if she knew of her niece's love for Hambledon. She would condemn it as wicked and immoral; she would lash them both with her scorn.

"I don't care," Ana told herself, and bid her burning face in the pillow.

She thought of Mollie and profoundly pitied her; Mollie, who preferred Ralph Mahon's money and diamonds to her husband's love.

What would Mollie say when she knew? Ana tried to shut the thought out of her mind, tried to be content to leave everything to Anthony; to know herself safe in his hands.

They had not made a single plan. They had just sat together in a corner of the quiet little restaurant and talked of themselves and of their love for each other, and Ana had forgotten that Hambledon was a married man; had forgotten Mollie and even the General.

But now in the darkness and silence of her room she remembered them. She was doing an unspeakable thing—or a thing which she had hitherto looked upon as unspeakable.

She had turned shocked, half-scared eyes in the direction of other women who had taken the step she herself now contemplated; she had been entirely in agreement with Miss Sawyer's outspoken condemnation of them, but now everything was changed. She no longer looked through the narrow window of her upbringing, and was content with what she saw there of life; someone had torn the veil from her eyes and showed her Paradise.

"I have a right to my happiness," she told herself fiercely. "I will never give him up—never!"

She fell asleep with the memory of his lips on hers, and of his voice bidding her good-night.

In the morning there was a tragedy in the house.

Benny was dead in his basket when Miss Sawyer went to rouse him. He lay curled up, his nose resting on his rheumaticky old paws, and Miss Sawyer wailed and wept as if her heart were broken, as perhaps it was, for the old dog was the only thing she had really loved in all the world.

Ana cried, too. She had often thought Benny a nuisance, and had been impatient with his infirmities, but she had been fond of him, and it was like tearing up some of the roots of life.

"I shall never be happy again," Miss Sawyer sobbed frantically. "He understood me, and I understood him. I shall sell the house. I cannot bear it without him."

"I'm sorry—very, very sorry," Ana said, and meant it, but Miss Sawyer turned on her fiercely.

"You! you care for nobody but yourself," she accused the girl. "Where were you last night, I should like to know? I heard you come in—it must have been twelve o'clock."

"It was half past," Ana said defiantly, her cheeks crimson. "And I was with Anthony Hambledon—Mollie's husband," she added, and then hated herself for the last admission. She hated him to be Mollie's husband—hated it more because the knowledge added to the sense of guilt which she could not quite eliminate from her heart.

But Miss Sawyer seemed agreeably surprised.

"Oh, well, that alters matters," she said more quietly. "I suppose Mollie asked him to take you out."

Ana said nothing. She stood looking down at the dead Benny, and feeling miserable.

It was all very well to feel brave and radiantly happy when Anthony was with her, but without him things were different.

She was tormented by a thousand doubts and fears.

Supposing he did not really love her? Supposing, when it was too late, they both of them found out they had made a mistake? Supposing he wanted Mollie back again—supposing—oh, God, what thousands of things there were in the world to suppose.

She helped her aunt dig a grave for Benny in the garden. They dug it under an apple tree that was too old to bear fruit and yet not old enough to die, and they wrapped Benny in a petticoat of Miss Sawyer's, an old red flannel thing with an embroidered edge to it, and they covered him over with fern leaves before they shovelled back the brown earth. Then Miss Sawyer retired to bed and wept, and Ana wandered about the house unable to settle to anything.

There was only one desire in her heart—to see Anthony—only one—thought in her mind—Anthony!

"Like a lovesick schoolgirl," she told herself almost angrily, and then smiled, glorying in her longing for him.

By the afternoon post came a letter from Mollie, written on the notepaper of a West End hotel.

"Be a sport, Ana darling"—she wrote—'and if anyone asks where I was yesterday, say I had lunch with you, will you? It sounds most incriminating, I know, but really it was perfectly harmless, only Tony came up unexpectedly from Lyme yesterday morning and called here, and I was out, and last night when he came again I said I lunched with you."

Ana gasped!

How was it possible for Anthony to believe such a story when he himself had lunched with her? She felt as if the first strand of a net were closing about her feet.

"And last night when he came again——" Then he must have gone back to Mollie after he left her!

A sudden wave of jealousy swept through her heart. Anthony had not told her he had called to see Mollie, and she had never dreamed that he would go back to her so late.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Again good and bad planetary influences contend and today, according to astrology, is more or less threatening.

It is not a favorable rule for transacting business with banks. Loans may be especially difficult to negotiate while this rule continues.

Newspapers may have sensational reports to headline today which seems to presage extraordinary events in international affairs.

Women should benefit under this direction of the stars as long as they concentrate on home interests.

According to ancient lore this should be an auspicious day for shopping, entertaining and attending theatres.

Plays and players are subject to favorable rule which may not be evident until later in the year.

Music now is under the best possible planetary government and the summer should bring profit to artists as well as to bands and orchestras.

Proprietors of summer resorts probably will have much reason to rejoice this year, the seers foretell, for weather of unusual hot spells is presaged.

Under this sway those who deal with employees should be diplomatic, for they may be peculiarly sensitive and discontented.

Spring fever this year may manifest itself in much restlessness and an increased number of hikers.

Bridge-building, road-making and improved watertays are prognosticated for the summer.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which there is rare enjoyment of beautiful things. Much pleasure in connection with friends is indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be quick in mental processes, cheerful in nature and popular with many friends. The subjects of this sign generally retain their youth to advanced age.

Edward Cartwright, noted inventor, was born on this date, 1743. Others who claimed this as a birthday were John Trumbull, 1750, poet, and Colonel Benjamin Jeffery Sweet, 1832, distinguished army officer.

Trent River

TRENT RIVER, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. John Waters have arrived to spend the season at their residence after spending the winter months with their daughter, Mrs. George Cook and family, south of Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ward left by motor on Friday for Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wight have gone to Peterborough to reside.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

The Legion is indebted to Dr. J. J. Craig for the generous donation of a large Union Jack for the flag pole at the Legion Hall.

By-laws recently adopted by the Legion will come into effect on May 1. A copy will be posted in the Legion Hall for reference. 1

Plans are now maturing fast for the Carnival. Legionnaires, their wives and daughters are all being asked to take part in the big drive for funds to carry on Legion work.

There will be a meeting of the carnival committee chairmen at the president's home to-night at 8:00 o'clock, to plan booths and attractions.

Since all possible work will be done by members, everyone is assured of a job in his own line of work.

THE GENEVA CONFERENCE.

To The Editor:

Dear Sir,—It is interesting to note that at the Disarmament Conference now being held in Geneva the Envoys from the various nations have come to an agreement not to use asphyxiating gases, liquid fire, bombs dropped from airplanes and all analogous liquids.

War after all, in any form, is for conquest, devastation and to conquer by death the adversary. It makes little difference how you die in war. It would seem to the writer that these illustrious gentlemen should concentrate on abolishing war instead of setting up protocols and rules of how war should be conducted. War is a game that cannot be governed by a referee or agreements when the life and destiny of a country is at stake.

Such arguments are nonsense and certainly fail to impress any serious minded person that these envoys are sincere in trying to stop war. There is very little difference between a bullet through your head and a chest full of gas.

Let these men keep on making amendments and the next war will be fought with powder puffs and snow balls.

ANOTHER ATTRACTIVE "ACROSS CANADA" TOUR

All who may be contemplating a trip to the Pacific Coast will be interested in another very attractive personally-conducted tour to be operated via the Canadian National Railways this coming summer. The tour has been organized by the well-known Pitman Tours of Montreal.

The party will leave Montreal and Toronto on July 16th, returning to those cities on August 7th and 8th, respectively. The itinerary, a most comprehensive one, will include stops at Minaki, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, Edmonton, Jasper National Park, Mt. Robson, Prince Rupert, Vancouver and Victoria.

Especially attractive features of the tour will be the steamer sail on the Pacific Coast from Prince Rupert to Vancouver, and through the Great Lakes from Sarnia to Port Arthur, also the automobile trips to Mt. Edith Cavell in Jasper National Park, from Calgary to Banff and Lake Louise, and the sight-seeing trips at stopover points.

An extension trip to Alaska has also been arranged and those who can spare the additional time necessary should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity to see Skagway and enjoy the short excursion into the interior of Alaska, through the White Horse Pass to Lake Bennett.

An illustrated descriptive booklet of this tour has been published and copy may be secured, also reservations arranged, direct through Pitman Tours, Ltd., Montreal, or through any Canadian National Agent. 1d-Ap. 23

STEALS CANNED MUSIC.

LONDON, April 23.—A van containing 2,000 phonograph records rolled along Old Street, stopped and the driver got out. He entered a building and while there, someone made off with the records, leaving the empty van standing.

HEAVY LIQUIDATION IN STOCKS APPEARS TO HAVE RUN COURSE

Indications Are That Any Further Decline Will Be Stubbornly Contested.

OBSERVER'S VIEW.

(By A. D. O'Halloran, Special to The Examiner. Copyright.)

TORONTO, Ont., April 23. — The lines of least resistance on the Canadian stock markets are still on the side of the advance with the general attitude one of caution, yet hoping for the best. Traders are not moving very rapidly but more wisely and the buying of securities on anybody's say-so is a thing of the past with the better class stocks coming into their own and leading in the slight upturn experienced by the Canadian lists during the week.

It is apparent to most market followers that any further decline will be stubbornly contested, if the movements of the past few days are indicative of the general feeling toward the markets. Liquidation, what there was of it, appears to have run its natural course and any signs of improvement in a particular security attracts buying and is reflected to some extent by a better tone in other parts of the list.

In market circles talk is heard of an improved technical position brought about by the period of readjustment that has taken place and all kinds of terms are being used in describing the present condition of the lists. The public has had its taste of a declining market. They are no longer scrambling to get aboard just as soon as a movement is noticeable, but are rather inclined to study the merit of the security together with the industry and are more ready to take counsel and pay attention to the advice given. In other words, the purchase of Canadian securities is being undertaken on a much sounder basis than at any time for years past, which is as it should be.

Attracted by Profits.

One of the evils of any bull movement is the indiscriminate buying by many who are attracted by the profits made by their friends, which does more to bring about inflation than all other factors and can only lead to losses in the long run. Security prices reach their proper level in time and any artificial methods used to bring about an unwarranted advance can bring only one result.

The upward movement of the past three years in the Canadian lists has brought with it a great divergence of opinion. It has been said speculation has been carried too far and security prices are grossly overvalued, but many are not of this opinion and point out what has taken place is only natural following the post-war period when business was making good progress. But the public was in no mood to accept this view, and, therefore, was not favorably inclined toward investment in junior securities.

As time went on the political cry of Blue Ruin spent its force and the unprecedented era of prosperity upon which the Dominion had entered was generally realized. About the same time the merit of common stocks as investments was stressed, and declining income returns from bonds served to draw attention to the stock markets. Investment accounts were revamped to include common stocks and funds which in the past went into senior were diverted into junior obligations at first for the higher yield and chances of capital appreciation but later solely for enhancement in value.

Then came the part played by the public at large. People from all walks of life in the Dominion began to take an interest in the stock market creating a demand that greatly diminished the floating supply. This was relieved by splitting older stock into smaller units, the refunding of senior by junior obligations and the purchase of privately-owned concerns and the turning of them into joint stock companies. Industrial corporations found it no longer necessary to bond their assets to raise funds and issued common stocks to meet the fancy of the public. The public no longer wanted to become creditors but partners with a share in the profits.

Buying on Margin.

Speculation also played a prominent part. There was money to be made in the stock market. Many more shares could be carried on margin than could be purchased outright and in this way speculative profits were more attractive to many than those derived from permanent investment. Following the prolonged period of speculation and advancing prices credit began to be hard to find with which to finance marginal trading. The banks found there was too much of the Dominion's money going into the stock market and this was working a hardship against industry. Immediately the brakes were applied, and when it was found difficult to finance commitments on the long side of the market the speculative fever began to die out. Liquidation followed and with the supply exceeding the demand prices slipped off to a level more in keeping with values.

Throughout the trends on the local markets followed closely those of Wall street and the influence of that market was uppermost at all times. When New York went ahead the Canadian lists did likewise, and when prices faltered on Wall street the move was quickly reflected here.

There is quite a difference between the American and Canadian markets, however, at the present stage. Speculative excesses were not carried to the same extent here as they were there, and to-day the Canadian lists present many favorable opportunities for investment in sound securities still showing promise of further market appreciation. True, throughout the list prices have discounted the future a long way in advance but there are others of merit which have not been given the speculative play and have met with only a gradual enhancement in value, and have not fully discounted the favorable position of the company itself.

MANY ISSUES REACH A NEW HIGH RECORD

Broad Scale Buying Operations Show Decided Improvement On Wall Street.

CALL MONEY STIFFENS.

Growing Demand For Funds Tends To Increase Rate Asked By Bankers.

(By Stacy W. Prenosil Associated Press Financial Editor).

NEW YORK, N.Y. April 23. — (Canadian Press)—Broad scale buying operations carried more than a score issues to record high levels in to-day's stock market. Extreme gains in the active issues ranged from 1 to 8 points, with a few high priced specialties marked up 10 to 20 cents in a thin market. The rally was slowed up in the early afternoon by a stiffening of call money rates.

Call money renewed unchanged at 7½ per cent. but advanced to 8 in reflection of the demand for funds as a result of the increased speculative activity in securities. Time money, Commercial Paper and Bankers' acceptance rates were unchanged.

One of the features of the session was the opening sale of a block of 100,000 shares of Simms Petroleum at 30, representing a turnover of $3,000,000.

Fall of the Reparations experts to reach an agreement also tended to slow up bullish activities. Hope is still held out in New York banking quarters that an early solution may be found of this troublesome problem and to date, there has been no panicky liquidation of either German marks or German securities. Except for the publication of another batch of favorable earnings statements, there was little else in the day's news to influence speculative sentiment.

Wheat Averages Higher After Touching New Low

CHICAGO, Ills., April 23 (C.P.).—After an irregular start with May delivery touching a new low-price record for the season, wheat averaged higher early to-day. Rallies were ascribed to unfavorable crop reports from Europe and to emphatic denials of dissension in the Canadian Growers' Pool. Opening ⅞ off to ½ up, wheat later showed general gains. Corn, oats and provisions also were firmer, with corn starting at 1¼ decline to ¼ gain, and subsequently scoring some advance all round.

McLeod No. 1 was brought back into production with its former flow of a little more than 100 barrels per days late last week, following a shot of nitro-glycerine. The shot opened up the bottom of the hole and rocks were hurled out at first slightly damaging the crown block with their velocity.

NINETY PER CENT. OF NORDON STOCK IS OWNED BY CANADIANS

Corporation Will Play Important Part in Development of Western Oil Fields.

ACQUIRE LARGE HOLDINGS.

Company Will Confine Its Efforts to Purchase of Royalties in Proven Fields.

Nordon Corporation, Limited, has been organized under Federal charter with 90 per cent. of its outstanding stock owned in Canada, to take an important part in the development of prospective oil fields in the great sedimentary basin in Western Canada, stretching from the international boundary to the Arctics and easterly from the Rocky Mountain uplift well into Manitoba.

The new company embraces exceptional opportunities in fields of both the United States and Canada and has obtained large holdings in several prospective fields which have since come into production and were obtained at an outlay which is but a fraction of present valuations.

Nordon Corporation is not a drilling company, but will confine its efforts to purchase of royalties in proven fields and widespread acreage in prospective fields, the latter to be drilled through arrangements with operating companies upon an acreage-division basis. These policies, which have created some of the largest and most successful oil companies in the United States, will be strictly adhere to on both sides of the lines. As a back-log for Canadian operations, Nordon has already secured valuable royalties in the great Sante Fe Springs field in the Los Angeles Basin, California. With six wells flowing, Nordon's revenue from that source alone will presently be at the rate of $300,000 per annum, and it is believed that before the end of the year the income will be at the rate of $500,000 per annum as thirteen additional wells are drilling to the deeper sands on the royalty leases. It is interesting to know that a deeper sand recently penetrated in this field, and known as the Buckee, has quadrupled the daily production of the Sante Fe area and that geologists have more recently designated several even lower horizons to which several wells are now drilling. Nordon's royalties in the field were obtained upon the technical advice of its staff in advance of the discovery of these deeper sands.

Nordon also owns other valuable royalty rights in other fields in the United States, noticeably in Texas and New Mexico, where recent developments have uncovered one of the greatest producing areas in the country. In all, its United States holdings comprise leases on 24,000 acres and royalties on 76,800 acres in selected fields, interests which are carried at a very low annual expenditure. In Canada, Nordon already has leases covering 10,000 acres and will increase those holdings on the advice of its technical staff, which believes that this vast area may develop some of the heaviest producing oil pools on the continent.

Nordon Corporation's personnel will favorably compare with that of any other oil company on the American continent, directorate and staff consisting of men well known either for technical or business experience. The directorate includes Glen M. Ruby, formerly vice-president and general manager of Hudson's Bay Marland Co., formerly chief geologist of Rocky Mountain Division of Empire Gas and Fuel Co., formerly chief geologist Marland Oil Company of Colorado and acknowledged to be an outstanding authority on oil possibilities in Canada, who will assume the dual position of president and general manager of Nordon on May 1st; Samuel R. Smith, formerly head of the land department of Hudson's Bay Marland Oil Co., a native of Ontario, who has covered the Western Canadian oil fields from the international boundary to north of Liard River, who is Nordon's assistant manager and vice-president; C. G. Willis, formerly chief assistant to the director in charge of geology and research of Marland Oil companies and geologist for Associated Oil Co., who is managing director of Nordon's United States holdings. Other directors are Robert B. Moran, formerly with the geological department of Standard Oil of California; J. T. Van der Gracht, formerly assistant general manager of Hudson's Bay Marland Oil Co., and formerly with Royal Dutch Shell Corporation, Marland Oil Co. of California, etc., who is secretary-treasurer and director; Major-General D. M. Hogarth, D.S.O., C.M.G., director of Sherritt-Gordon Mines and Sudbury Basin Mines, director; Mackenzie Williams, B.Sc., investment banker, director, and E. E. Campbell, M.E., formerly assistant general manager Granby Consolidated and general superintendent United Verde Extension Mining Co., director. One vacancy on the directorate is to be filled.

The company is capitalized under Federal charter with 5,000,000 shares of no par value, of which 1,500,000 shares have been issued for full payment of properties, leaving 3,500,000 shares in the treasury. A public offering will be made next week. When present financing is completed, the company will have over $1,000,000 cash in its treasury, in addition to the unissued stock. The head office of the company will be at Vancouver, B.C., with administrative offices at Calgary and Los Angeles. General direction of its affairs will center in Toronto, where a majority of directors reside.

WALKERS GAINS ACTIVE SESSION

Prominent Stocks Lead Downward Movement When List Turns Irregular.

NICKEL FIRMER.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press). — With the heavy trading leaning toward International Nickel and Hiram Walkers, prices developed irregularity on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Although there were a goodly number of declines, they were made by the more prominent stocks. McColl-Frontenac was the only member of the oil section to make any definite move, climbing up 2 points to 34. Imperial and British American were unchanged.

International Nickel enjoyed the heaviest turnover of some time, strengthening fractionally to 50⅝. Walkers sold as high as 82½, with the noon price of 81¾, showing a net advance of 2¾ points. Distillers-Seagrams acted in sympathy with its leader, gaining 1⅝ points to 22¼. Brazilian held at the morning's high of 165, up 2 points, while City Dairy was up 3 at 72, and Moore A 3 at 129.

Gypsum and Alabastine broke 3 points to 110 and Canada Dredge lost 1¼ to 73¼. Standard Steel reacted a point to 58, while Steel of Canada was off one at 59, as was Dufferin Paving at 32. Royalite was off 2 at 163.

PURCHASE BOND ISSUE

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—George Carruthers and Son, local bond house, has purchased from the Town of Sandwich a $137,000 bond issue for local improvements. The price was 98.5. The bonds are for 15 years, bearing 5½ per cent.

No Marked Price Changes Shown in Noon Quotations On Standard.

OIL SECTION STEADY.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23.—(Canadian Press).—Heavy buying was again evident on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day and though fluctuation was fairly active there were no marked changes shown in the noon-hour quotations. The lower-priced stocks were very active and were inclined to move upward. Amulet held a good deal of interest, shooting up 12 points to 1.87. Howey Gold at 1.23. Kirkland Lake at 1.08. Premier at 1.75 and Vipond at 1.10 were all from 2 to five cents stronger. Siscoe made a spurt of 8 points to 75 while Big Missouri rose to 1.45.

Noranda retained its gain of yesterday, holding 25 cents higher at 53.25, while Teck-Hughes improved 20 to 9.40, Sudbury Basin a similar amount to 9.10 and Sherritt-Gordon 5 to 8.50. Falconbridge sold up 45 to 11.00, and Ventures 15 to 10.10.

The oils were all steady, with Mayland and Foothills both rising 50 cents to 11.25 and 8.25 respectively.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, April 23 (C.P.).—Foreign exchange steady; demand rates (in cents): Great Britain 484 15-16; Canadian dollars at 25-32 of one per cent. discount.

NORDON CORPORATION LIMITED is a Canadian company, acquiring the property of Nordon Corporation and other valuable oil leases and royalties, deriving substantial present income from existing oil fields of the United States, directed by technical and practical talent of the highest order, which will largely devote its efforts to development of oil in the fields of Western Canada. Nordon Corporation had its inception early in 1928, to acquire exceptional opportunities in various oil districts of Canada and the United States, under the guidance of Mr. C. G. Willis and associates.

PROPERTY HOLDINGS:—Leases on 24,000 acres and royalty under 76,800 acres on seventeen distinct oil areas of the United States, and 10,000 acres in prospective valuable areas in Western Canada. United States royalty interests include portion of landowner's royalty in one of the finest leases in the Santa Fe Springs field of California. Five wells have here been completed to recently discovered deep and very prolific sands, and thirteen more wells are drilling on the company's royalty acreage. In New Mexico, company owns royalty under 70,000 acres, in the latest producing oil area in the United States. In Texas, the latest major producing field in the United States, company owns leases on 7,500 acres in Midland county, part of which is now being drilled on acreage-division basis by some of the larger operating companies of the industry; leases on 2,500 acres in Crockett county, where 2,500 checkerboarded acres, transferred on acreage-division basis, is being drilled by Marland Oil Co. and W. A. Moncrieff, and where within the past few days one well reached the sands and was bailing at the rate of 288 barrels daily, with prospects that a big producer would be brought in; leases on 960 acres in Pecos county, on the Fort Stockton "high"; and leases on 1,000 acres in Ward county on the Soda Lake structure. In Oklahoma, one-half of royalty under 160 acres on top of a large core-drill structure in the Wilcox sand area, where Marland Oil Co. owns the leases on Nordon royalty acreage. In Kansas, acreage in the vicinity of the recent discovery just north of Wichita, Central Kansas. In Ohio leases on 80 acres in eastern part of state, where a well within one mile has just come in with yield of 100 barrels of high-gravity Pennsylvania crude. Other royalties and leases are under option or negotiation in Santa Fe Springs field and in other fields in Texas and New Mexico.

PRESENT REVENUES:—Royalty revenue from five wells in Santa Fe Springs field will presently be at rate of $300,000 per annum, and rate is expected to reach $500,000 per annum before the end of this year, as thirteen more wells are being drilled on royalty leases. Further revenues are expected from Texas and New Mexico fields from wells now drilling.

FINANCES:—Upon completion of this present financing the company will have in excess of $1,100,000 in its treasury.

INTENSIVE CANADIAN OPERATIONS:—The immediate objective of the Corporation is large expansion of its operations in the prospective fields of Western Canada, where its staff, in possession of valuable geological data, believes some of the most important structures on the continent may be developed.

PRINCIPLES OF OPERATIONS:—The principles which have been and will be followed by the Corporation in building up revenues necessary for execution of its policies, used with marked success by the great royalty companies of the United States, will be rigidly adhered to, thus eliminating, in largest measure, drilling operations—the most costly and most hazardous branch of the industry. Leases and royalties will be negotiated over a wide spread, thus minimizing hazard of loss and increasing the chances of big success.

The Corporation is not a drilling company and will confine its operations in that direction solely to offset drilling where such operations are imperatively demanded in protection of its holdings.

PERSONNEL:—The standing of the directors of Nordon Corporation is of the highest order. President and General Manager Glen M. Ruby is acknowledged to be the outstanding authority upon the prospective fields of Western Canada, with the widest experience in continental oil affairs. Managing Director C. G. Willis stands equally high in the Southwest and is generally accorded a portion of the credit for discovery of several of the important fields in the Los Angeles Basin. From time to time, announcements will be made regarding the personnel of a Board of Consultants, which will include oil experts of continental and international reputation.

Application will be made for listing on Eastern and Western Stock Exchanges.

The invisible difference

Many motor oils look alike, but there is a vast difference in the way they perform. Unfortunately this difference is difficult to detect.

The invisible difference which makes one motor oil better than another must be inherent in the crude from which it is made.

There you have the reason why Marvelube gives better engine lubrication than oils refined from ordinary crudes. Imperial Oil searched the world over for a better crude--and in South America they found it. From it they make Marvelube--a pure, carbon-free, full-bodied oil that resists the extreme heats and pressures of modern engine operation.

Aircraft operators prefer Marvelube because better lubrication means greater safety and longer intervals between overhauls. Motorists prefer Marvelube because it is the ideal oil for modern motors. It ensures greater power, greater flexibility and greater economy.

There is a grade of Marvelube refined to meet exactly the specifications of your car. Consult the Marvelube Chart at Imperial Oil service stations and dealers.

WITNESSES RECALL FLOOD IN CITY CASE

tions for the phoning of City Engineer Parsons, and had gone to the basement to have some of the more easily moved stock, placed on higher levels. At 5.50 the creek had not seemed any higher and he had gone home, leaving word for the nightman to call if there were any signs of the water coming into the basement. He had called about 6.45 and witness had dressed and proceeded to the plant about 7 p.m. At that time, there was no water in the basement, and he had stationed men in the various departments. A few minutes later, one of them had given the warning that water was coming in beneath the door which connected the west end with the garage. Witness here described subsequent attempts to block the openings with waste, and how, when he and other men had been working outside the door with water rising, it had suddenly given way, with the result that he and an employee had been carried into the basement, to escape only by forcing a door into another section of the cellar. The basement had filled rapidly after that to a depth of approximately six feet and the firemen had come down with a pumper. Witness had seen the city Engineer drive up some time between twelve and one o'clock. Previous to that, (several times after 10 o'clock) he had gone to the bridge and had seen the water flooding over it while logs and rubbish were piled between the bridge proper and the fender beam to the north. The firemen had worked all night but in the morning little headway had been made though the water had ceased to flow over the bridge. On instructions from B. F. Ackerman, witness had phoned the Mayor requesting him to send some city men to help clear the pile of rubbish which seemed to be blocking the creek. The men had come, while two divers had been secured from the Trent Canal offices and they had succeeded in closing the doors and nailing up the windows to prevent further flooding. Then the work of the firemen had become more effective.

No Previous Flooding

Cross-examined, by Mr. Grant, witness could not recall any such flooding previous to 1928. His company had, prior to erecting the present quarters, been located at the northeast corner of George and Dalhousie streets so that he had been familiar with that section for many years. He recalled that there had been several mild spring days previous to the 1928 flood in question, and that a thunderstorm had come up on the evening of March 26, of that year. He believed that the Jackson's Park creek found its source in Lily Lake, several miles northwest of the city limits. George Matthews had been the resident of a house near the Dalhousie street bridge who had erected the hanging lawn. Witness admitted that the creek had been built over, further up its course.

Following up some of the witness' remarks regarding the old bridge, Mr. Grant asked certain details of its construction, and Mr. Ackerman answered from his boyhood memories of it, stating that it had had a wooden frame-work. Of the 1928 flood, he believed that it was due to a blockade being formed of the rubbish catching on the fender beam. He couldn't say whether the bottom of the creek had or had not raised during the years. He admitted that during the past summer, his men had erected a kind of dyke along the creek's course. There had been a dangerous freshet in January 1929, but it had not caused any flooding.

Toward the conclusion of his cross-examination, Mr. Grant suddenly inquired: "Is it not right that the chief of the Fire department offered you four men to help move the basement contents and didn't you say 'yes' and then change your mind and say 'no, don't'?"

A.—"It is not right. I do not remember any such offer. It would have been impracticable to have moved the contents since there was only the elevator to move the stock with."

Re-examined by Mr. Robertson, witness told of precautions taken this January. All the contents of the section of the cellar nearest the creek had been removed when the ice piled up at the bridge.

Benjamin F. Ackerman

His evidence being similar in many respects to that of his son, B. F. Ackerman was the second witness. He recalled having his attention drawn to the water flooding over the property north of the building, and of later calling the City Engineer's office. The street Commissioner was to have come down but witness had not seen him. When witness had gone home to supper he had noticed the creek partly blocked with logs and rubbish, and that pieces of debris and ice were striking the bottom of the bridge in passing beneath it. He had returned about seven o'clock and the fire chief had co-operated by locating the Mayor and securing an order to give assistance with the pumper. The water was coming into the basement before the firemen got there and it would have been impossible to remove the stock except by means of the elevator. Witness had gone home about 10.30 and on returning to the plant about one o'clock in the morning, had been forced to take a different route owing to the Dalhousie street bridge being flooded.

Cross-examined, Mr. Ackerman said he had never seen such a flood as that of 1928 except in 1850 or 1860. He believed that the old bridge was higher than the present one since he remembered planking being built up to it. On the afternoon of the flood, a lot of rubbish had come down the creek. He didn't see any city officials that day.

Samuel A. McCall

An employee of the Ackerman firm for thirty-five years, Simuel A. McCall was the last witness called during the afternoon. At noon hour of March 26, 1928, he had noticed the water under the Dalhousie street bridge, apparently higher than usual and later in the afternoon had noticed the water flooding over the northeast part of the property north of the plant, just below Sherbrooke street. Witness told of giving instructions in his department to have all loose material placed higher up, and described the rubbish around the bridge. When he started for home about one o'clock, there was water which he believed to have come from the creek, on the George and Dalhousie street intersections.

Cross-examined, Mr. McCall said that it was between four and five o'clock on March 26, 1928 that he had noticed the water on the north property. At 8.15 that evening, there had been four or five inches of water in the basement. He had never heard of the offer made by the fire chief, nor did he recall any such flooding occurring previous to 1928.

The court adjourned immediately after conclusion of Mr. McCall's cross-examination.

Fire Protection Discussed At Meeting of Warsaw Property Owners.

WARSAW, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The property owners of Warsaw and surrounding were fairly well represented at a meeting called to discuss fire protection, on Wednesday evening.

Reeve James Hawthorne was appointed chairman and Alec Rose, secretary, for the evening. There was a great deal of discussion on the subject. An apparatus for fire fighting may be bought in Montreal for seven hundred and fifty dollars.

Two committees were appointed, a managing committee, consisting of Messrs. Alec Rose, Rufus Payne, and Thomas Clements, and a canvassing committee, consisting of Messrs. Herrington, George Taylor and George Lonsberry.

The canvassing committee is to canvass for subscriptions and when it gets a suitable sum, to confer with the managing committee, which will go ahead and purchase whatever apparatus the committee thinks best, not necessarily the one from Montreal.

A good sum, nearly five hundred dollars is subscribed already.

Paving Companies To Commence Operations

LINDSAY, April 23.—(Special to The Examiner).—Important permanent highway construction projects will be undertaken by both the Standard Paving Company, of Ottawa, and the Dufferin Construction Company, of Toronto, in this district, within the next few days. The Standard Paving Company will construct several stretches of permanent road in Victoria County, while the Dufferin Company will construct a stretch of the Lindsay-Whitby highway from the village to a point west of the village of Manilla. It has been decided to continue the work of paving the entire stretch of this highway to link up with the permanent section between Myrtle and Greenbank. By fall the entire highway from Lindsay to Toronto will be of a permanent type.

Get Rid of Those Awful Pains, Gas, Bloating, Headaches

Get rid of every trace of Stomach Trouble, Indigestion, Constipation. Get back your old-time appetite and pleasure at meal-time. Get back your strength, vigour, vitality. For 10 years, Tanlac has restored to health many thousands who suffered just as you do.

For instance, Mrs. George Bell, of 317 Grey St., London, Ont., writes: "I have suffered for years with Stomach Trouble. Gas would form and bloat me up so that I could hardly breathe. My nerves were shattered; I did not sleep; became weak and run-down; and spent enough money on medicines to furnish a home. Two months after starting Tanlac, I was entirely free of Indigestion and had gained eleven pounds. Now, I have no pain, no gas, headaches have disappeared, I sleep well and house-work seems like play to me."

QUAKER OATS HOLDS BANQUET

Dealers of Feed Department Meet in Hotel Statler, Buffalo.

WILLIAM WHITE PRESENT.

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 23.—Research methods and equipment required by the modern desire to improve the quality of cattle and poultry feed were subjects dealt with in detail Friday evening at a banquet of the dealers of the feed department of the Quaker Oats company here in Hotel Statler. More than 50 dealers from Rochester, Olean and other points in Western New York attended. Guests included William H. White, manager of the flour and feed department of the Peterborough, Ont., mill of the Quaker Oats company, and Arthur O. Rue manager of the Utica, N.Y., office of that organization.

Dr. Olney B. Kent of Chicago, Ill., connected with the poultry service department of the Quaker Oats company, spoke on "Poultry Feeds and Research and the Libertyville Experimental Farm." Prof. John R. McLean of Chicago, connected with the live stock service department, told about "Live Stock Feeds Research at Monoca Farm, Madison, Wis." Other speakers were Charles P. Clark of Chicago, eastern division manager of the flour and feed department; H. Burton Damon, Akron, Ohio, division manager, and Arthur F. Wright, Chicago, connected with the Irwin-Massey company, who spoke about advertising. Oliver H. Turgeon, territorial sales manager for Western New York, was toastmaster.

Wooler

WOOLER, April 23. — (Examiner Correspodence).—A new bridge is being erected near the Nichols' home previously known as the McColl grist mill. This will be a cement bridge, and is under the supervision of David Teal, Township of Murray road overseer.

Roads Being Repaired.

The roads in general are being scraped, holes filled up, and motors are able to get through, and in a few days the track will be smoothed out ready for the summer tourists.

Hold Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society was held on Thursday, with an increased membership and more enthusiastic spirit to make the homes and village more beautiful with flowers. The premiums are excellent and may encourage more to join the Society. The president, Rev. H. B. Neal, and secretary, Edward Nelson, are energetic workers.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dorland and Mrs. C. R. Terrill spent Thursday in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell are closing their home for a few months and will go to the summer resort at Wessel McCoon Lake. Mr. Mitchell has taken the contract to build a number of summer cottages.

Mrs. Reazin, of Peterborough, spent the tea hour with Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Massey, of Morganston, were in the village on Thursday.

Services were held in the Anglican church on Sunday.

Sunday school and morning service was conducted in Friends church on Sunday by Rev Asa Rogers.

S. L. Terrill is drawing grain to Brighton where he is having it cleaned. He began cultivating on his farm on Friday.

REMOVE HATCHERY

New Location on Pigeon River More Satisfactory for Spawning Purposes

LINDSAY, April 23.—(Special to The Examiner).—During the past few days representatives from the Game and Fisheries Department, Toronto, have been engaged removing the hatchery, which was located on the Scugog river to a point on the Pigeon River near the village of Omemee. It is claimed that the new location is a more satisfactory one for spawning purposes.

The authorities have been quite active of late as a result of information received to the effect that unscrupulous parties were destroying lunge on the lower Scugog. Game and Fishery Overseer Windsor has been successful in apprehending two parties, and heavy fines have been imposed. It is the intention of the authorities to stamp out this practice, as it is realized that if the wholesale destruction of fish is allowed to continue it will not be long before the fishing grounds are depleted.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Miss Mabelle Govan, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Govan, Williamston, Ont., is the guest of her aunt, Miss Agnes Govan, Booth street, and other relatives.

Mr. Harry Gourley and Mr. Howard Davidson, Oshawa, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davidson, Mill street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cochrane, Peterborough, visited Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cochrane over the week-end.

Saturday afternoon saw the Orland detour of the Campbellford-Brighton highway considerably shortened when a temporary bridge was completed over the creek. Until now, it has been necessary to drive about four miles in order to get around the eighty-foot gap left when the highway bridge was washed away by the spring freshet. The present crossing is about one hundred yards east of the roadway. It is constructed of timber and is expected to stand the stress of traffic till the permanent structure is completed.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church yesterday evening, the four elders-elect were officially inducted. The elders are John McGregor, John Arnold, Harold Dunk and Walter Rutherford.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG, April 23—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne Adams took dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fennell and family and Miss Audrey Whitney spent Sunday afternoon with friends in Shannonville.

Mrs. Robert McCamon, Mrs. Claude Wager and Miss Mary Robinson spent Monday at the home of Mr. Damon McCamon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wannamaker and Master Harold Wannamaker and Mr. and Mrs. Grantley Burleigh were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. Watler Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mouck spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mouck.

A play entitled "Head Strong Joan" was given in the I.O.O.F. Hall on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the young people of the United church, at Cannifton. There was fifty-two dollars taken in at the door.

Mr. Robert Fennell and Teddy Fennell left on Monday for Norwood where they will spend a few weeks with Mr. Fennell's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne Adams spent Thursday with their sister, Mrs. William Marshall, of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fisher, of Toronto, are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fisher, of Chapman.

IN POLICE COURT

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—One case of trespassing was all that awaited the attention of Magistrate Floyd in police court here last week. James Wilson was fined five dollars and costs for trespassing on the property of Dr. West. D. J. Lynch appeared for the defense. Dr. West pleaded his own case.

LEAGUE MEETING.

Packard Group Again in Lead For Zion League Attendance.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Fifty-three league members were in attendance at Thursday evening's meeting, under the direction of George Brunton, citizenship convenor. The Packard group was again in the lead for attendance. Program numbers included a devotional talk, Rev. F. G. MacTavish; reading, L. Anderson; citizenship topic, "Alcohol and Its Effect on Social Life," George Brunton, and an interesting Bible contest was won by the Reo group.

Practices Being Held.

Practices are in full swing for the annual play to be presented by the local Dramatic Club at the pie social on May 3.

Good Motoring Promised.

The improvement to the roads by the judicious use of gravel and small graders is giving promise of a good season's motoring this year.

Sowing Being Done.

Local farmers are well away with the spring work and some sowing has been done. Fred. Barnum sowed a field of spring wheat on Saturday, he being about the first to commence operations.

FAMILIES OF MINERS AMONG IMMIGRANTS

Many miners were among the 300 immigrants who arrived from the Old Country. They told tales of hardships they had to endure owing to lack of employment. The photograph snapped a few of the new arrivals as they got off the train. In No. 1 is seen Joseph Wickham, a Welsh miner, with his wife and family. His little daughter, Thelma, is between them. From left to right are: Edgar, Doris, Cecil, Arthur, David, and Ronald. Nos. 2 and 3 are William and James McKinstry, two sturdy brothers from County Down, Ireland, who are going to farm in this country.

CLASSES HOLD ENTERTAINMENT

Social Affair Sponsored By Members of Senior Bible Classes.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A very pleasant social gathering was held in the Sunday school room of the United Church on Friday evening, the two senior Bible classes sponsoring the event, Mrs. (Dr.) Rae being the teacher of the men's fully organized class, and Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones holding this position for the Boneka class, which is largely composed of the younger married women.

The guests included not only the members of the two classes, but also friends who were invited to join with them, and whom it is expected will shortly be enrolled in either of these organizations, as each has a constantly increasing membership.

The two teachers, with the two class presidents, W. OBrian, and Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, were a reception committee, and warmly greeted the incoming guests, and everyone was promptly made to feel thoroughly at home, the atmosphere of the entire gathering being one of happy good fellowship, and of hearty welcome.

Shortly after eight-thirty the chair was taken by the president of the Boneka Class, Mrs. I. Hatherly, who announced that community singing would occupy the first part of the program. W. Fred Fallis, superintendent of the Sunday school, operated the lantern as the hymns were flashed upon the screen, while G. E. Burnham supplied a splendid lead with his cornet, his little daughter, Mary Burnham, presiding at the piano.

In her opening address Mrs Hatherly explained that some confusion and delay in preparations for the evening had been inevitable as the electric blower for the pipe organ was being installed that day. However, the work in the basement had ceased soon after 6 oclock, and the spasmodic hammering going on in the church auditorium, she believed, would not seriously interfere with the pleasure of the evening. A 'rush order' had brought things into readiness in the school room by the time the guests were due to arrive.

A warm tribute was paid the teachers of the two classes, "who have the interests of their class at heart, and who have proved themselves thoroughly Christian, not alone in their teaching, but in actual practice." The motto of the Boneka class, "Help Whoever, Whenever, Wherever You Can," was stressed as having a distinct meaning for the membership, and a hearty word of welcome was followed by the earnestly expressed desire that the gathering would yield both pleasure and profit as an informal social time was enjoyed together.

Besides the community singing, items on the program included: Readings by F. P. Stinson „Don't Knock," and the hymn "Gratitude", written by W. E Dyer, of Toronto, and recently broadcast, expressing the Empire's thankfulness for the recovery of King George from his recent illness. Copies of this hymn had been secured by Mr. Stinson, and were passed on to the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, for use in the churches and schools of the community. One million copies of this hymn are being distributed free, and Mr. Jones referred to a personal acquaintance with the author, who is the youngest son of the late Rev. Dr. Dyer, formerly principal of Albert College, Belleville.

Readings by W. O'Brian, "Our Minister's Sermon", by Mrs. Hilliard Lang, "Pull Together"; by Irwin Hatherly, "Labor Saving Inventions", and a recitation, "The Hielans" by J. H. George, with "When Father Cut Our Hair", an encore, were all well received, and decidedly entertaining.

A number of contests, under the supervision of Mrs. Edgar Fallis, provided interesting and agreeable employment for everyone, at the conclusion of the program, and afterward the committee in charge served refreshments.

The popularity of the two teachers, Mrs. Rae and Mrs. Jones, of whom have large classes each Sunday, was well attested throughout the evening by the warm greeting accorded when they were called to the platform during the opening period, and also when the social element was uppermost and the informal part of the gathering gave opportunity for pleasant converse, among the various supper groups, before dispersal took place.

SOCIAL EVENNG.

Entertaining Program Provided By Members of Deloro Sunday School.

MARMORA, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—All dressed up in their Sunday best, such of the scholars attending Deloro Sunday School as were not prevented through measles attended Deloro hall on Saturday evening for the annual social. Trained by Miss B. Handley, principal of Deloro Public School, the scholars in the presence of many parents and friends, put on one of the best entertainments in the Sunday School's history.

The program was as follows: Recitation, "Springtime," Lois Buskard; song, "The High-headed Band," five girls; recitation, "The Fortunate Clock," Jack Berry; dialogue, "Baddy Boy"; instrumental, "Poinsettia," Fay Buskard; recitation, "I Wonder When?" Mary Elliott; dialogue, "Thinking of Others," Burnett and Fay Buskard; chorus, "Eeny, Meeny, Miney, Mo"; recitation, "A Cranky Cook," Phyllis Mumby; recitation, "What I Want To Be," Wellington McInroy; instrumental, "The Flight of the Gypsies," Mary and Grace Hemphill; recitation, "Daniel in the Lion's Den," William Reynolds; song, "Lullaby Lane," Grace Hemphill; dialogue, "Busy Days," eight girls; song, "Champeen Nine," nine boys; recitation, "Wouldn't It Be a Surprise?" Jack Berry; monologue, "Spring Troubles," Jack Reynolds; song, "An Umbrella Built for Two," three boys and three girls; dialogue, "Henry's Kindness," four boys; recitation, "A Loud Wish," Hilda Mumby; song, "The Children's Way," Miss Morton. Four reels of children's comedy added much to the delight of the children. A dainty lunch was served at the close. Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Blake, who for a number of years have conducted this Sunday School, being assisted by kind friends.

the erosions were not caused by the absence of the old culvert. Two or three culverts would not make any difference. It's all due to the earth wearing away as the surface water flows off his land, and it will continue until Morton puts some stone in there."

Reeve Wilson said the damage by erosion might cost $20 to repair by filling in with earth. As for the deposit of sand, the Reeve said virtually the same condition was on part of his field, but was so small in extent that it was not worth considering.

William J. Byers, a Hope township farmer, said that the road superintendent had no authority to reopen the culvert.

Mr. Morton, in reply, denied that he had never consented to the filling of the old culvert.

Mr. Justice Raney said he found that the plaintiff had failed to make a case.

"I am not satisfied that the culvert had anything to do with the washouts or erosions, and as to the sand in the pasture field, I think that is greatly exaggerated. It is unfortunate that this action was brought into this court. It should have been brought before the county court.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I have never written you before, but am coming to you for help now. I would like to get a good recipe for a wedding cake, also the almond icing, etc., and as the neighbors are so good to help, I thought maybe they could help me.

If "Alley" will send her name and address we can supply her with slips of flowers, as mother always has lots of lovely ones.

We all enjoy your page and helps, and it is generally a rush to see which one gets it first. Then we send it over to a neighbor who is sick all the time and cannot get out, and they enjoy it, too.

If it isn't too much, could I get the helps marked on the enclosed coupon, too? I enclose a two-cent stamp.

Wishing your page continued success,—I remain,

Buddy's Sister."

It's nice to know the recipes and other items are appreciated, "Buddy's Sister," and I hope now you have started you will be a visitor often.

I really think it would be better to send the seeds to me, marked "For Alley," and I will forward them. Will you do this?

* * *

"Dear Marion:

Will you please try and get for me, through the "Old Song" column of your newspaper the old song, "Comrades"?

Thanking you in anticipation,

F.J.M."

I hope some neighbor who has the song will respond.

* * *

"Dear Marion:

I received the patterns, and wish to thank you for your kind and prompt attention and to thank you again for many past favors, and to wish you success, as I enjoy reading every item in the women's page, and also the Whatnot.

Yours sincerely,

E.J.R."

Thank you, "E.J.R.," for your appreciation.

"Dear Marion: Was so interested in Oddity's letter last night. Think she must be just the sort of person I would like to be, and seemingly, can't—a real hard-headed business girl. As for me I like nothing better than to get into some old duds, or do some other work around the house—and my chief ambition is to live until some Golden Age in the far distant future when office windows shall be decked in frilly white muslin curtains and the care of house plants shall be the accomplishment of every efficient stenographer. But then I'm so afraid that future is very far, very distant. However, in the meantime I console myself with a dear little window garden of pink and red geraniums—and you should just see how they thrive!

"I do wish we could have a column for Business Girls. I would dearly love some experienced business girl to tell me how I can become a reporting stenographer. I have worked at stenography for nine years. Any shorthand class I can find takes dictation much too slowly to be of much help in this way, and while I have made reports of a few speeches I find that most public speakers talk too quickly for me to get them down.

"I feel quite sure Oddity could help me in this matter.

"LYDIA."

You'll be quite in line, "Lydia," with a competition I hear is being started. Some competition or other is to give prizes for the best window boxes.

About the reporting—why not call and see Miss Moore at the Court House? She is an expert, and could tell you just how it's done.

I, too, like puttering around at painting and fixing—but don't get much chance. But don't you think every one of us can make her own Utopia, if she wishes?

* * *

"Dear Marion: I hope you do not think that I am ungrateful for not writing before to thank 'Diana' for her lovely poems, but I couldn't get a minute to spare, as the baby has been quite ill for over a month.

"She is getting along quite nicely now, but they sure are a puzzle when you are inexperienced.

"I must say: 'Thank you' to 'Lonely Lady' for the return of the pattern.

"I am learning a lot from the letters and helps on 'Child Training,' and they are real good, especially the one the other night by Quo Vadis. She spoke correctly when she said 'Be truthful to children.' I know a very nice little girl of two years who won't believe what her mother says. And the mother can't understand why she can't make the child obey her.

"Marion, could I have the loan of the blue print for the kitchen cabinet, with the recipe cabinet combined, if it is not loaned out.

"Well I must not take up all the space but I must say the What-not and letters are a great help to me. I wanted to make a date loaf the other day and I couldn't think of a nice recipe, so I went and searched through all the recipes I had clipped from your page and found F M's lovely recipe. It was delicious.

"Thank you, Marion, for the lovely page, I remain,

"DOREEN."

I'm glad to have your letter, "Doreen," telling how well the recipes and hints turned out. The neighbors you mentioned will be pleased to know you liked their letters, too.

I've sent you the blue print of the cabinet, but you have to put in the recipe drawer in a space to suit yourself. The thing to do is decide what you want in your cabinet and then fit that idea into the general plan—that makes it easy.

Write soon again.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

DRY CATARRH

Catarrh is a miserable ailment and it seems to be very difficult to affect a cure.

There are different types or rather degrees of catarrh, with just the ordinary everyday irritation of nose and throat, with a little thickened "spit" or sputum, then the further advanced case where there is considerable discharge of a thick mucous from nose and throat, some of which drains from the sinuses, the little "sounding" chambers which adjoin the nose.

Then there is the third or last type where there is considerable discharge atatimes but this dries up to a considerable extent and dry "crusts" are formed.

The removal of these crusts, which become quite offensive, is often a matter of prolonged treatment by the doctor and by the patient also.

A few years ago the remedies suggested were boracic acid or baking soda, and later various oils, but for the past five years the specialists have been recommending a solution of ordinary table salt, used hot.

Prof. J. Kollarits, Budapest, suggests the use of a solution of about a half teaspoonful of salt to a cup of water, as hot as possible.

This not only cleans the mucous membrane, but removes the odor also.

The solution is repeatedly snuffed into the nose three times a day; then the back part of the nose, and the throat, is also cleaned by bending the head backward and pronouncing a prolonged A sound which prevents the fluid from getting into the lungs.

To remove the crusts, one nostril and then the other is filled for ten minutes three times a day with an absorbent cotton plug, soaked in the above solution, and pushed as far into the nostril as possible.

When these plugs are "gently" removed, the crusts go with them.

Now this seems like a lot of time to give to the treatment, but surely when a patient remembers the distress and embarrassment that accompany this ailment, it is not too much to pay for the relief obtained.

Sometimes it may be necessary to make a few visits to the specialist's office and thus learn the proper method of handling the condition. Although a complete permanent cure may not be affected, the relief obtained is as before mentioned worth the effort.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

One hears quite a bit nowadays concerning Provincial French furniture and in the collections of furniture shown by many of the important furniture dealers you will find a few chairs, tables, day beds, desks, etc., of this sort. To the woman who wants to furnish a room with distinction—and who has set her heart against anything modernistic—furniture of this sort is well worth considering.

What is the difference between regional French and provincial French—as applied to furniture? someone asks. Really there is no difference—and some of the furniture experts prefer to speak of all these things as regional. The thing to remember is that they are pieces made away from Paris. They may belong to any of the well-known French periods—they may be Louis XV, Louis XVI, Empire, etc. While the cabinet makers in Paris were making furniture of a very elegant sort from the choicest woods—the regional cabinet makers were using the less costly native woods, such as walnut or beech. Some of this furniture followed quite closely the models made by the Parisian cabinet makers while others made cruder pieces for use in farmhouses and peasant cottages.

For those who cannot afford antiques of this sort—which naturally are rare and expensive—the furniture dealers are offering imported chairs of present-day manufacture—made by small furniture makers in the French provinces and following the traditions of the older pieces. Many of them are of French walnut, left unpolished. The chairs have rush seats or are upholstered with quaint peasant prints. Normandy chairs with seat and back covered with quaint quilted peasant prints are shown in several of the specialty shops. The fact that these Provincial French pieces are rather small, unpretentious, comfortable and liveable, makes them more suitable to the present-day American small house or apartment than the elaborate, gilded or inlaid French furniture designed for the ornate chateaux of the French kings and nobles.

Agree To Disagree

By E. RAY BAKER

"Do you think we were made for each other, Fred?"

Fred Hamilton's lip curled in scorn.

"Hardly. I have never thought so—except back in our school days, when I used to carry your books and share my jaw-breakers with you."

Eva Marlow adjusted a bouquet of roses in a vase on the table.

"Then why carry on this farce any longer? It's making us both miserable. We don't love each other; in fact, it's quite the reverse. For one thing, you're terribly selfish, and there are other things about you that I do not like."

"Thanks for the compliment," he said dryly, rising from the chair in which he had been seated. "Perhaps I am selfish, but remember I am an only child. To be frank, I have much the same opinion about you."

She lifted the vase and inhaled the fragrance from the flowers.

"Thanks for the compliment," she mocked. "Perhaps I also am selfish, but remember I, too, am an only child. It's nice to have an understanding, isn't it? It appears to be mutually agreeable for us to disagree."

"Decidedly," he acquiesced. "It was foolish for us to become engaged in the first place."

"We wouldn't have," she reminded, "if it had not been for our parents. Just because they had all been friends they tried to settle our destiny for us.

When Fred left the apartment occupied by Eva and her aunt he was not in the best spirits imaginable. He was as glad to be free of Eva as she was to get rid of him, but that remark about selfishness rankled.

He had been driving abstractedly, when of a sudden a cry distracted him. A big touring car ahead had come quickly to a halt, but as abruptly it started off and disappeared. Jamming on the brakes, Fred managed to avoid striking a small, huddled human form on the street.

He looked with a feeling of curiosity for a moment. It was no concern of his, was his thought, until suddenly the trend of his recent recollection flashed back to his mind. "You're terribly selfish," were the words that echoed in his ears, and they prompted him to leave the car and join the group.

A man held the limp form in his arms. Fred recognized the pale face as that of a diminutive newsboy familiar to this busy corner.

"Poor kid," said the man. "That big car hit him and hurried away. What had I better do with him?"

"Take him to Doctor Wilson's office across the street," Fred directed.

"He will get along all right," said the doctor, "but he ought to be taken home at once."

The boy looked up wildly.

"No—no!" he exclaimed in a plaintive little voice. "I can't go. I haven't sold my papers—my papers! Where are they?"

"That's all right," said Fred. "Come on with me and I'll take you home. I have the money for your papers right here. You see, I—I sold them for you."

The lad lived with his father in a hovel in the worst part of the city. The father was an invalid.

"You are very good to us," said the father on the occasion of one of Fred's visits, "and there are other people who are good to us, too."

"And I like you best of anybody in the world," Little Jim told Fred, "except daddy and one other."

Came a day when Fred called to find Little Jim in tears. His father had suffered another stroke and a doctor was busy about the sickbed.

The sick man smiled sadly and raised his eyes appealingly to Fred. Then he uttered a deep sigh and lay back, closing his eyes. Little Jim's father had gone to a place where there are no invalids; and Fred understood that last mute appeal.

A little later Fred took the orphan in his arms and carried him away.

The door at the foot of the stairs opened and a young woman started up the flight. Fred stepped aside with his burden to let her pass, but she came to a stop.

"What has happened?" inquired the voice of Eva Marlow. "And where are you taking my Little Jim? Why, it's—is that you, Fred?"

"It is," he said calmly but somewhat aggressively, "and I'm taking him home because his father is dead. And what do you mean by 'my little Jim'?"

She appeared indignant.

"Why, I've been coming to see these people for some time. It started by your calling me selfish. That very day I came into this district to see if I could discover a way to become unselfish, and I found Little Jim and his father. I love the little fellow, and I am going to take him home with me."

"Not much you aren't," Fred said firmly. "I am going to be his father."

"You are wrong," she declared firmly. "I am going to be his mother."

Little Jim smiled through his tears.

He reached out with one arm and encircled the girl's neck, while the other clung to Fred. It brought the two very close together.

First they looked at Little Jim, and then they gazed foolishly into each other's eyes, and slowly a smile crept across their countenances.

"Eva," said Fred, clearing his throat, "I don't believe I dislike you after all. You are not selfish, and—and after all, our parents' wishes—"

"Yes," she agreed, "our parents' wishes—"

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

A flowered chiffon evening gown with flounces scalloped in petal effect.

There are women who will wear this season as they did last!—flowered printed silks and crepes for almost every conceivable occasion. They will wear them to work in offices, they will choose them for the all-day motor trip, for breakfast, for church, for shopping. They may even wear them for golf and tennis.

They like prints because they don't show waterspots, dust or wrinkles—and because of that they consider them more practical than plain materials. Flower prints are even better than prints showing stripes, dots or geometrical designs because their outlines are less distinct.

The spread of the feeling that figured prints were intensely serviceable—spot proof or rather absorbent—has done more harm than anything else to these essentially attractive marerials. And if we want to bring figured prints back into the good repute they deserve we should treat them with more consideration.

This season the tendency on the part of many of the best dressmakers has been to use solid-toned materials for the more practical type of clothes, saving figures for light afternoon gowns and evening gowns.

THE IRISH UBILEE

(Contributed by "Erin's Youth.")

A short time ago, boys, an Irishman named Doherty
Was elected to the Senate by a very large majority.
He felt so elated that he went to Denis Cassidy,
The owner of a bar room of a very large capacity.
He said to Cassidy: "Go over to the brewer
For a thousand kegs of lager beer and give it to the poor;
Then go over to the butcher's shop and order up a ton of meat,
Be sure and see the boys and girls have all they want to drink and eat.
Send out invitations in twenty different languages,
And don't forget to tell them to bring their own sandwiches.
They've made me their Senator, and so to show my gratitude,
They'll have the finest supper ever given in this latitude.
Tell them that the music will be furnished by O'Rafferty,
Assisted on the bag-pipes by Felix M'Cafferty.
Whatever the expenses are, remember I'll put up the tin,
And anyone who doesn't come, be sure and do not let them in."

Cassidy at once sent out the invitations
And every one that came was a credit to the na ions.
Some came on bicycles because they had no fare to pay,
And those that didn't come at all made up their minds to stay away.
Two by two and three by three they marched to the dining-hall,
Young men and old men, and girls that weren't men at all;
Blind men and deaf men, and men who had their teeth to pawn;
Single men and double men and men who had their glasses on;
Before many minutes nearly every chair was taken,
Till the front rooms and mushroom s were packed to suffocation.
When everyone was seated, they started to lay out the feast;
Cassidy said: "Rise up, and give us each a cake of yeast."
He then said as manager he would try and fil the chair,
We all then sat down and looked at the bill of fare.

There were pigs' heads and gold fish, mocking birds and ostriches;
Ice creams and cold creams, vaseline and sandwiches;
Blue fish, green fish, fish hooks and partridges;
Fish balls, snowballs, cannon balls and cartridges.
We eat oatmeal till we could hardly stir about;
Ketch-up and hurry-up, sweet krout and sour grout;
Dressed beef, naked beef and beef with all its dresses on,
Soda crackers, fire crackers, Limburg cheese with tresse on.
Beef steaks and mistakes were down on the bill of fare;
Roast ribs, and spare ribs, and ribs that we couldn't spare;
Reindeer and snowdeer, dear me, and antelope;
The women eat so much melon, the men said they can't elope;
Red herrings and smoked herrings, herrings from o'd Erin's isle;
Bologna and fruit cakes and sausages half a mile.

There was hot corn and cold corn, corn salves and honeycomb;
Red birds, red books, sea bass and sea foam;
Fried liver and baked liver, and Carter's little liver pills;
And everyone was wondering who was going to pay the bills.
For desert we had toothpicks, ice skips and skipping rope;
And washed all down with a piece of shaving soap.
We eat everything that was down on the bill of fare,
And looked at the back of it to see if any more was there.

Then the band played hornpipes, gaspipes and Irish reels,
And we danced to the music of "The wind that thro' the barley steals."
Then he pipers played old tunes and new tunes so very fine,
Then in came Piper Heidseck and handed them a glass of wine.
They welted the floor till they could be heard for miles around;
When Gallagher was in the air his feet were never on the ground.
A finer lot of dancers you never set your eyes upon,
For those who couldn't dance at all were dancing with their slippers on.
Some danced jig steps, door steps, and Highland flings;
Murphy took his knife cut and tried to cut a pigeon's wing.
When the dance was over, Cassidy told us
o join our hands together and sing the good old chorus:
"Should old acquaintance be forgot?"
Wherever we may be,
Think of the good old times we had at the Irish Jubilee.

WALNUT SLICES

(Contributed by "Crocus.")

½ cup butter.
1 cup flour.
Pinch of salt.

Cream together and pack in bottom of small sized pan and press up the sides a little. Then mix ½ cup cocoanut, 1½ cups brown sugar, 1 cup chopped walnuts, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 beaten eggs, vanilla and pour over pastry and bake in moderate oven. When cold ice with butter icing and cut in slices. These are delicious for parties or tea.

9 out of 10 screen stars keep their skin lovely this way . . .

Mary Duncan, exotically lovely Fox star, says: "A screen star's skin simply must be silken smooth to be 'studio skin.' That's why I am so faithful to Lux Toilet Soap."

Smooth skin always wins . .

Hollywood directors find

"BEAUTIFUL smooth skin is the great heart winner." George H. Melford, famous movie director, thus expresses the experience of 39 leading Hollywood directors.

"The public certainly takes to its heart the actress with a skin that shows flawless—faultlessly smooth—under the terrific test of the close-up lights," he continues. "Such a skin is a prime factor in making her a star."

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. It keeps their skin exquisitely smooth for that most important of all tests: the all-revealing close-up. And all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

You, too, will find that this delicately fragrant white soap keeps your skin exquisite and smooth. Try it—today. And use it for bath and shampoo, too.

Mrs E. Simmons of Trenton, District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 12, made her official visit to Peterborough Chapter No. 161 O.E.S. last evening. There were present visitors from Belleville, Trenton, Colborne, Brighton, Tweed, Napanee, Brantford, Barrie and Listowel Chapters. A souvenir was presented to Sister Simmons in recognition of her visit by the Worthy Matron Mrs. Moore, of Peterborough Chapter. At the conclusion of the meeting dainty refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

WOMEN APPEAL CASE.

LONDON, April 23 (Canadian Press Cable).—Counsel for the Canadian Attorney-General to-day requested the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to fix June 17 as the date for hearing of the appeal from a decision of the Canadian Supreme Court against eligibility of women for appointment to the Canadian Senate. The appeal is being taken by five prominent Alberta women.

PARENTS UNDERSTOOD THIS BABY'S LANGUAGE

"We thought we were going to lose our baby, teething," says a Kentucky mother. "He couldn't digest anything and was getting thinner every day. After one of his fretful, crying nights, I thought of Castoria and got some. A few drops made him comfortable, and after a few doses, he seemed like a different baby." Doctors everywhere recommend purely-vegetable, harmless Fletcher's Castoria for colds, constipation, colic and other ills of babies and children, and millions of mothers know its gentle influence is best. Avoid imitations. The Fletcher signature is the mark of genuine Castoria.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

There are many housewives in Peterborough who have a few minutes in which to relax each day, but not every person relaxes in the same way.

• • •

After many hours of hard work at housecleaning and other household tasks, you must find a little time for rest and give yourself some physical relaxation. But just what attitude do you take?

• • •

I have often read that this is very important. It is said that just how much it will help to rest you will depend a great deal upon the position you take.

• • •

A lying-down position, of course, is the most refreshing. If you are very busy and have only a few minutes to rest, you will find that the lying-down position will be most beneficial to you.

• • •

Lie flat on your back with your arms down straight and your legs straight, too. Do not have a high pillow at your head. A small, low pillow is much better.

• • •

If you have been doing some heavy work and your back is very tired, you may put a small, flat cushion under your waist. Perhaps you may not have a small cushion handy. If not, then fold a small blanket, which will serve the purpose just as well.

• • •

Often you have a chance to rest, but are not free to assume this completely restful attitude. You may be called upon to rest in a chair when it is impossible to be flat on the back.

• • •

If you must rest in a chair, shift as much weight as possible from the body. Do not make the mistake of sitting in a hump. Let the weight of the body bear evenly on the chair over as much of the body as possible.

• • •

Then there is another thing. Do not have the body bent more to one side than another. You must remember, too, to sit as straight as possible for resting with the spine in a curved position is certainly not beneficial.

• • •

You may have more than five minutes to rest. If you have say half an hour to rest, do not sit down all the time. You know that sitting for a long time in one position is just as fatiguing as standing or walking for a length of time.

• • •

Sitting for a long time produces a fatigue of a different sort—a sort of inert, rather than tired feeling. It is well then, when you are working at something where you are sitting most of the time, to remember to walk about for a few minutes.

• • •

This should be done at intervals in order to get the best results.

• • •

I wonder if you have ever noticed when you have been ill, that the most trying time of all is the period when you are getting better? You know at this period you become very restless to get up.

• • •

It is at this time that little attentions will often help a great deal toward lessening this restlessness. The next time you have the opportunity to help anyone at this period, here are a few things you might do.

• • •

Put fresh pillow slips on the pillows every day or so. If these have been allowed to lay in lavender for some time, the odor is more pleasing and it will quiet fevered heads.

• • •

An ice bag filled with chipped ice or even a wash rag wrung out of ice water rests the eyes. And do you know that bathing the temples with cologne soothes the patient?

• • •

Washing the hands and face with tepid water and brushing the hair often do wonders. Two or three small pillows tucked into the small of the back or under the knees relieve wearied bones.

• • •

A few days ago I came across the following poem, written by Nixon Waterman and published in the C. E. World.

A gossipy tongue is a dangerous thing
If it's owner is evil at heart;
He can give whom he chooses full many a sting
That will woefully linger and smart.
But the gossipy tongue would be balked in its plan
For causing heart-burnings and tears
If it were not helped out by the misguided man,
Who possesses two gossipy ears.

Oh, the gossipy ears are the ones that believe
The evil reports they are told;
The sly, subtle tales which they gladly receive
Would tarnish the purest of gold
The cruel "They say" which goes floating about
Like a hidden foe, fostering fears,
Would lose all its force, were it firmly shut out
By the man with the gossipy ears.

When the man with the gossipy tongue happens by
With his stories of evil and strife,
We ought just to look him right square in the eye
And ask him his mission in life.
We ought to refuse him a chance to retail
The false, idle rumor he "hears";
He ought to be locked up somewhere in a jail
With the man with the gossipy ears.

• • •

There are some people, you know, who delight in telling tales about other people. Sometimes people use this as a means of revenge, but it isn't a very noble way.

• • •

And it is in this way that people are hurt most. To some people a blow to the body would smart less, than the blow of idle talk. And to make matters worse, there are always those who are willing to listen to the idle talk and then pass it on.

• • •

And as it is passed on a little more is added until there is no truth left. Some listen to such reports and gladly receive them that they, too, might make use of them to get revenge.

• • •

So the next time someone comes to you with a tale about someone else, do not listen to the talk. Refuse to listen at all and if you set an example, there are always those people who will follow.

• • •

If you must get revenge on someone, do not choose this low way of doing it. Be upright and choose an upright way if you must have revenge. Do not give other people a chance to quote you as saying untrue things about others.

CIRCLE MEETS.

Good Program Provided By Members of George Street Church Society.

The regular April meeting of the Twilight Mission Circle of George Street United Church proved to be a very successful meeting. About forty girls sat down to a supper provided by the girls of Group A, under the leadership of Margaret Deyell. The tables were artistically arranged with mauve and yellow runners and vases of pushy willows and spring flowers. After the meeting the girls adjourned to a class-room for the business meeting. The president, Helen Burns, occupied the chair, and the meeting was opened by singing a hymn and repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. The minutes of last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Aileen Clark, and approved, after which Miss Myrtle Burns read the Scripture lesson. An interesting paper entitled "New Year's Day in China" was given by Miss Evelyn Miller. A pleasing vocal duet was rendered by Miss Pearl Carruthers, and Mrs. Gilgour, accompanied by Miss Helen Burns. An Easter thankoffering story was read by Miss Evelyn Routley. Miss Aileen Clark took up the study book, "Drums in the Darkness" in a very interesting manner. The meeting closed with prayer by the leader, Mrs. W. H. Morton.

NON-EXPLOSIVE LIQUID AIR

LONDON, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—Hugo Koenig, a German war veteran, and Otto P. Rindelhart, London, Ont., who organized the London Machine Gun Company, Limited, to exploit an invention of their own, announced yesterday they had perfected a non-explosive liquid air. They claim it has limitless possibilities for scientific and industrial purposes and that it will be used for cooling their machine gun, which the inventors claim will spray lead at a rate of 2,350 shots a minutes—four times as fast as present army standards.

Fashion's Forecast

SMARTLY WEARABLE

THE STYLE No. 2638 with trend toward modern lines is ever so smart in geometric print in silk crepe, and affects hipyoke through long waisted bodice with fashionable pointed outline at front, which always gives decided length to figure. The back is trim and slender with circular fulness at front to sway beautifully at each move of wearer. Darts at underarm seams supply sufficient fulness across bust. It has the flattering scarf tie at end of Vionnet neckline. It's a model that adapts itself to sheer woolens, sheer crepe and plain silk crepe.

THE PATTERN is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust and is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew. The making of it is a simple matter for illustrations in Pictures tell how each part is joined. In the 36-inch size 3 yards of 40-inch material with 5-8 yard of 36-inch contrasting and 3¼ yards of binding is all it takes to copy it exactly.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

DATE SET FOR PICNIC

Annual C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club Affair Will Be Held in Oshawa.

EXECUTIVES APPOINTED.

The annual picnic of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club will be held this year in Oshawa on June 8 as the Motor City had a very large majority over both Cobourg and Peterborough in the election which was held this week among the members. This year will be the third time that the C.G.E. has had a picnic, the first, held at Cobourg two years ago met with little success as it rained heavily the greater part of the day. Similar weather conditions prevailed last June when the large contingent of picknickers journeyed to Orillia, this feature combined with bad roads and a long trip for those who motored took most of the pleasure out of the undertaking. Oshawa on the other hand has ideal road connections with good accommodation in its large park, while the trip by train or car is not of sufficient length to render it monotonous.

At the regular meeting of the Social and Athletic Club held last night in the employment bureau, the several committees to handle the various details of the picnic were appointed, with a great many of last year's committeemen again assuming the responsibility. Information with regards to railways fares, etc may be obtained from the zone representatives throughout the plant.

The film entitled "Lumbering in Canada" which was shown on Thursday night in the Legion Hall and which proved to be both educational and entertaining will be shown again on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Lecture Room, Laboratory Building, after 5 o'clock.

BISHOPS STATE DIVORCE POLICY

Anglican House of Bishops Outlines Its Attitude Towards Divorce.

SENT TO CLERGY.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23. (C.P.)—Opposed to divorce and therefore to any extension of the grounds upon which divorce may be permitted, the Church of England in Canada, through the House of Bishops yesterday issued to the clergy a pronouncement, in which the attitude of the church toward marriage and divorce was defined.

Since the gravity of the situation was urged upon the General Synod in 1927 by the Council for Social Service, the subject has been under surveillance by the House of Bishops. That the pulpit is too often silent upon the subject of the Christian law of marriage and the anti-Christian and anti-social nature of divorce and that it is the duty of the clergy more frequently to preach and otherwise instruct on these important matters, is the finding signed by the Bishops of Ottawa and Kootenay, on behalf of the House of Bishops.

The pronouncement to the clergy is in part as follows:

"The breaking up of families by divorce and the increase of the grounds and of facilities for divorce, do constitute a moral peril. We dare not look upon this thing with light-hearted unconcern or pass it by with a flippant cynical jest. History tells us that it is not an evidence, as some are urging, of progress working out toward self-development, and the greater freedom of the individual. The New Testament tells us that it is not according to the mind of Christ. It must be looked upon as nothing short of a menace threatening the stability of our modern civilization."

RONALD COLMAN IN "THE RESCUE"

One of Joseph Conrad's dramatic novels has been filmed in the feature picture at the Capitol for the first half of this week. Ronald Colman as Tom Lingard, the "King Tom" of the Singapore seas, is the hero and the picture brings a new and exotic leading lady as heroine, in Lily Damita, playing the role of Edith Travers, wife of a yacht owner who becomes fouled on a reef near the Catalinas. He applies to Lingard, who is the master of a sailing brig, for assistance, but "King Tom" is at the time involved in an effort to restore the throne to a native Mayalan rajah who has been ousted on account of his friendship for Lingard.

The lady, who is a very beautiful actress, makes a dead set for Lingard and succeeds in vamping him. She has a direct method all her own and forgets her husband absolutely, letting him go to his death later without a qualm. But it turns out that he isn't to be killed after all, and, when numerous exciting adventures have transpired, there is a sad ending.

Now, sad endings are the rule in real life, but people who go to the movies like their romance to be brimful in the cup. The closing picture of Lingard kneeling beside a grave on the seashore, while the energetic waves progress and recede behind him, and the lady of his heart bids him a thrilling and painful farewell, may be artistic and melodramatic but it isn't satisfactory. There is a suggestion of anti-climax in the last bit, where Lingard asks of his pilot in which direction the Travers yacht has sailed. The man answers, "South," and the audience hopes briefly that the lover is about to make a manful attempt at pursuit and wrest the vamping lady from the embraces of her elderly spouse. But, with commendable and entirely unsatisfactory strength of mind, he only says flatly, "Then sail north," and the brig heels about with the strong-minded man in charge and the lady progressing southward.

There is a gigly comedy that is fnny in the extreme. The two nuts, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, have a vehicle in "That's My Wife," that suits them to perfection. Stan is made to play the part of Oliver's wife, after the real Mrs. Hardy has departed in wrath from the domestic abode, and the visit of an elderly uncle, bent on meeting Mrs. Hardy and endowing her with a new residence, if he finds his nephew happily married, makes it imperative a lady be produced—pronto. Stan does his best and gives a very creditable performance in the main. It is only when they all embark for the "Pink Pup" cabaret and a thieving waiter drops a necklace down "Mrs. Hardy's" low-backed frock, that things begin to happen.—Jeanette.

ATTEMPT PIANO RECORD

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—Timothy Foggin, of Windsor, next week will attempt to smash the world's marathon piano-playing record, he announced to-day. He wants to lower the record of Geza Ledovsky, of Vienna, who played the Blue Danube Waltz for 75 hours.

Cold Weather and Rain Bring Day of Rest To All Teams.

READING, Penn., April 23.—A torrential downpour here during the early hours of the night, which turned the Lauer's Park into a miniature lake, and two dugouts into model natatoriums, washed out yesterday's Toronto-Reading International League tilt, and gave the Leafs their first day off of the season. With Manager Stev O'Neill's pitching staff up to top-notch form, and the Toronto clan swinging into a winning stride, the Leafs were anxious to get their second crack at Hinchman's Keystones yesterday afternoon, and the locals were willing to accommodate them.

Feeling confident that either "Jess" Doyle, who has always been poison to the Pretzel Town aggregation, or Clarence Fisher, with his deceptive subway delivery, would have annexed the honors yesterday, the Leafs were keenly disappointed.

It was an idle day all around in the International, rain wiping out the attractions at Newark, Jersey City and Baltimore, as well as at the Reading Park.

TIGERS WIN 1-0.

ST. LOUIS, April 23 (Canadian Press).—A balk by Ogden in the first inning, coupled with two singles, gave the Detroit Tigers one run and enabled them to shut out the St. Louis Browns yesterday, 1 to 0, in the third game of the series.

CUBS BLANK CARDS.

CHICAGO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—With Pat Malone pitching a great game, the Cubs brought their total up to 26 consecutive innings without a score for their opponents by shutting out the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday 3 to 0. It was their second successive victory over last year's League champions.

THE LEAFS' PRIZE

Fred Bedore, a find of Scout Knotty Lee, has turned out to be the best third sacker in the International League. The acquisition of this speedy baseman was a fine piece of management for the Toronto Leafs, and he should do a good deal towards helping the team get the pennant this year.

Manager O'Neill's great difficulty has been that he has had one of the poorest crop of rookies to work with that have been seen in the Leafs' training camp for many seasons. If they were all Bedores he would be on easy street, but they are not, and the hitting strength of the team has still to be improved, if the Leafs are to be in championship class, according to the critics.

The infield will look much the same as last year with the exception of Sweeney at the first sack, but anything may happen in the outfield, if the hitting of the team does not improve.

INTEREST OF SOCCER FANS WILL BE FOCUSSED ON FINAL BOLTON-PORTSMOUTH CLASH

History of Series and Sidelights On Players As Seen Through Eyes of Writer On This Side of the Atlantic.

CUP FINAL CLASSIC WILL BE DECIDED IN LONDON APRIL 27TH

(By Willis Entwistle)

Special to The Examiner (copyright).

TORONTO, April 23.—The soccer classic of the British Empire will be staged at Wembley stadium, London, the empire's capital, on April 27 with Bolton Wanderers and Portsmouth as the contesting teams. There are so many Old Country people and others of Old Country ancestry in this vast Dominion that the result will be awaited in Canada with almost as much eagerness as in England.

The issue is being decided sudden death. Here in Canada our hockey teams play an extended series to decide who is boss for the time being and the same applies to baseball, basketball and other sports. At Wembley there is one chance and experts declare that it is the most trying ordeal any athlete can be called upon to undergo.

This year, a capacity attendance of 120,000 is assured. Tickets were mailed to fortunate subscribers weeks in advance and as many as obtained tickets were disappointed. The Football Association handles the job and plays no favorites, the competing teams being limited to a small number.

The cup final was first decided at Wembley in 1923 following an agreement the Football Association made with the Exhibition company, the builders of the massive arena. The exhibition was not a successful venture and while the stadium is, at present, little more than a white elephant, it is used at least once every year, by the soccer players.

Royalty attends and where possible the King himself presents the cup to the winners. In his absence one of his sons performs the honors.

Medals For Players.

Besides the cup there are beautiful gold medals for members of the winning team. There are eleven men to a team and a player could go right through to the final and be absent in the last great struggle only, but he still will not be eligible for a medal if his team won. These trophies are highly prized and there are players who have attained all the high honors the game can bestow except won a cup medal, for example Bob Crompton of Blackburn Rovers and Steve Bloomer of Derby County.

Regarding this year's final there is much of interest in the record and personnel of the competing teams. Bolton Wanderers are paying their third visit to Wembley since the war. The Trotters from Lancashire were at Wembley at its inception in 1923, when the crowd broke in and surged on to the sidelines. It is estimated that over 200,000 saw the struggle on this occasion, half of whom never paid at all. The Wanderers won on this occasion, from West Ham United, 2 to 0.

The Bolton eleven again visited Wembley in quest of the trophy in 1926 and were again successful, this time from Manchester City, by 1 to 0. Bolton supporters are taking a cue from the sequence of years and say their men cannot but win with their chorus, 1923, 1926 and 1929.

Before the war the Wanderers had never won the cup. Often had they reached the last stage, only to fall down. Their victory in 1926 was regarded as revenge for the struggle more than 20 years ago when Manchester City and Bolton met in the final at Crystal Palace and the latter triumphed by what was regarded by many as an unfair goal.

Veterans On Team.

Another great feature of the Bolton angle is that five of the present team, Pym, the goalie, Howarth, a full back, Seddon and Nuttal, halfbacks, and Butler, forward, took part in the 1923 and 1926 victories. Finney, the other full back, was in the 1923 eleven and was only prevented from playing in 1926 by injury.

Also, the Wanderers have done remarkably well in the eliminations this season, as only in one instance, the third round, were they drawn to play at home. They first beat Oldham at Bolton. They they made a draw at Liverpool and won the replay at Bolton. Next they eliminated Leicester's team at Leicester and followed this by defeating the famous Rovers of Blackburn, winners of the cup in 1928. In the semi-final they downed the mighty Huddersfield and now they are ready for the representatives of the south, Porstmouth, who have never before played in the final.

Added to their cup troubles the Portsmouth boys are battling to keep themselves from finishing in one of the last two places in the league chart, which means demotion to the second division. Their work in recent weeks indicates they are showing a sample of their magnificent cup play in the league struggles and continuance will mean they will save their faces.

Members of Southern League

The Portsmouth eleven have risen to prominence only since the war. They were members of the old Southern League, which afterwards became the third division, southern section, of the football league. They won promotion to the second division and then advanced to the first, in which they have spent two seasons.

They owe much to the astute football knowledge of a man named McCartney, who learned a lot of his tricks with the Hearts of Midlothian at Edinburgh and, as was to be expected, he looked to the land of the thistle for much of his talent.

The Pompeyites, as the Portsmouth men are called, are a curious combination, for there are Scotsmen, Englishmen, Welshmen and Irishmen in the team. Gilfillan, the goalie, was formerly with the Hearts of Midlothian and is considered the best netminder Portsmouth have had in years. McIlwaine, centre half back; Weddle, centre forward, and Cook, outside left, are other players who stand out.

They are fighters from the first toot of the whistle and no other instance of their grit need be quoted than their recent league tussle with Bolton Wanderers at Portsmouth. The Wanderers were winning 3 to 0 in the first twenty minutes and yet the final score was four-all, with the visitors going all out to save even half a loaf.

It is said that Bolton's strength lies in their magnificent half back line, which is composed of Kean, Seddon, and Nuttall. All three are internationals and Seddon and Nuttall played against Scotland on April 13.

Bolton's rise dates from the time Kean was obtained from Sheffield Wednesday. This accomplished player seemed to put more life into the team.

This year's success has meant a fillip to the club's exchequer, the Wanderers having shared in the distribution of £26,000 since the ties started and their share has been practically fifty per cent. In only one season since the war has the club lost money and owns one of the best-equipped grounds in the country.

The heart-gripping final is sometimes decided by a turn of fortune's capricious wheel, oftimes to the embarrassment of a star player who has made some slight but costly error. Last season when Blackburn beat Hudderesfield a mistake by Mercer, the latter's goalie, which cost a goal early on, was said to have demoralized the Yorkshiremen. The year before that Arsenal lost by a goal, due to a mistake by their netminder, Lewis.

There is something magic in the cup. It may be Bolton and it may be Portsmouth. Who knows?

MIDGET WOLGOST DEFEATS TOBIAS

Has Big Edge in Speed in Ten Round Main Bout—Golstein Wins.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—Midget Wolgost, of New York, won a ten-round decision over Phil Tobias, Brooklyn, N.Y., in the main bout at the Coliseum here last night. Wolgost's speed and lightning punches as he hopped about Tobias presented an elusive target for the Brooklyn boy, and Wolgost took the fight by a comfortable margin. Tobias weighed 112, holding a pound and half advantage over Wolgost.

Tobias took the first two rounds, landing solidly before the midget brought his whirlwind attack and flying fists into action. Wolgost's left was his best weapon and he shot it repeatedly to Tobias' face, crossing it at times with a hard right. Wolgost took six rounds; Tobias three, and one was even.

Decision Over Edgerton

Harry Goldstein, of Boston, 112½, won the decision in the eight round semi-final over Frankie Edgerton, 110½, Toronto. Goldstein scored knockdowns in the first and second rounds. The Toronto battler came back strong and outboxed his opponent, but Goldstein rallied sharply in the final round and took a close decision, counting with hard rights to the head.

Billy Ayrton, Toronto, took an eight round decision over Bobby Clary, Rochester, N.Y. Clary, weighing 112¾, spotted the Toronto boy four pounds, and this weight advantage coupled with Ayrton's greater strength and ruggedness was too much for Clary. Clary's clever boxing was not enough against Ayrton's driving attack.

Sam Hackett, Toronto, 126½, took a six round decision from Jerry Green, Erie, Pa.

Bobby Booth, Toronto, 129, scored an easy victory over Young Jack Dempsey, Tacoma, Wash., 129. Dempsey failing to come up for the second round after being floored in the first, the bell saving him at the count of four. He was out cold and was helped to his corner.

21st Battalion Accepts C.O.B.L. Play-off Ruling

KINGSTON, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press). — The 21st Battalion Club, sponsoring the C.O.B.L. team here, have decided to accept the decision of the league, and they will draw a bye in the series this season. Arrangements are being made for an appeal to the citizens to assist the team and plans will be immediately laid for the bringing in of American teams for exhibition games. It is planned to have one or two games a week here, and at the end of the seasons the locals will play the second place team in the C.O.B.L. if successful they will take on the winners of the series in the O.B.A.A. playdowns.

GENERAL MOTORS OF CANADA, LIMITED

Fisher resources, Fisher volume, create far greater beauty, richness and

VALUE APPARENT AT A GLANCE

No other cars begin to measure up with Fisher Body cars in downright body value. ¶ The reason is, that no other body builder can begin to measure up with Fisher resources and Fisher volume. ¶ In every General Motors car from Chevrolet to Cadillac, this appraisable value is apparent at a glance. ¶ The more closely comparisons are drawn, the more does the Fisher Body car in any particular field gain by those comparisons. ¶ Upon Chevrolet, for instance—forgetting for a moment speed and power performance utterly unknown in its class—Fisher Body has conferred so much richness and beauty that all cars around or immediately above it are ruled out of consideration. ¶ This is true of every Fisher Body car. So true in fact that thousands now clearly recognize that, in every price field, the car which is unmistakably the better choice is always the car with Body by Fisher . . . ¶ There is only one way to know and to appreciate the almost sensational superiority of any Fisher Body car—and that is, to compare that car's body, point for point and feature for feature, with that of any car in its price field. Do this, and you will soon become a judge of real motor car value.

RONALD COLMAN IN "THE RESCUE"

One of Joseph Conrad's dramatic novels has been filmed in the feature picture at the Capitol for the first half of this week. Ronald Colman as Tom Lingard, the "King Tom" of the Singapore seas, is the hero and the picture brings a new and exotic leading lady as heroine, in Lily Damita, playing the role of Edith Travers, wife of a yacht owner who becomes fouled on a reef near the Catalinas. He applies to Lingard, who is the master of a sailing brig, for assistance, but "King Tom" is at the time involved in an effort to restore the throne to a native Mayalan rajah who has been ousted on account of his friendship for Lingard.

The lady, who is a very beautiful actress, makes a dead set for Lingard and succeeds in vamping him. She has a direct method all her own and forgets her husband absolutely, letting him go to his death later without a qualm. But it turns out that he isn't to be killed after all, and, when numerous exciting adventures have transpired, there is a sad ending.

Now, sad endings are the rule in real life, but people who go to the movies like their romance to be brimful in the cup. The closing picture of Lingard kneeling beside a grave on the seashore, while the energetic waves progress and recede behind him, and the lady of his heart bids him a thrilling and painful farewell, may be artistic and melodramatic but it isn't satisfactory. There is a suggestion of anti-climax in the last bit, where Lingard asks of his pilot in which direction the Travers yacht has sailed. The man answers, "South," and the audience hopes briefly that the lover is about to make a manful attempt at pursuit and wrest the vamping lady from the embraces of her elderly spouse. But, with commendable and entirely unsatisfactory strength of mind, he only says flatly, "Then sail north," and the brig heels about with the strong-minded man in charge and the lady progressing southward.

There is a gigly comedy that is finny in the extreme. The two nuts, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, have a vehicle in "That's My Wife," that suits them to perfection. Stan is made to play the part of Oliver's wife, after the real Mrs. Hardy has departed in wrath from the domestic abode, and the visit of an elderly uncle, bent on meeting Mrs. Hardy and endowing her with a new residence, if he finds his nephew happily married, makes it imperative a lady be produced—pronto. Stan does his best and gives a very creditable performance in the main. It is only when they all embark for the "Pink Pup" cabaret and a thieving waiter drops a necklace down "Mrs. Hardy's" low-backed frock, that things begin to happen.—Jeanette.

ATTEMPT PIANO RECORD

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—Timothy Foggin, of Windsor, next week will attempt to smash the world's marathon piano-playing record, he announced to-day. He wants to lower the record of Geza Ledovsky, of Vienna, who played the Blue Danube Waltz for 75 hours.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

Thursday night the boxing tourney will take place at the "Y" gym, marking another goodnight of sport.

MANAGERS AND COACHES NEEDED.

It was emphasized at the City Baseball League's meeting that unless more men are sufficiently interested in the youngsters to come out and do duty as coaches and managers that a fair percentage of the young players will not be in organized ball this year. From the meeting it was indicated that junior ball, always strong here, may have to go by the boards this season—and not for lack of players, but for lack of coaches. In all other partculars the Leageu ers, but for lack of coaches. In all other particulars the League workers. The League is all ready to begin the season, as far as its own condition is concerned, but an effort will be made to line up some enthusiasts to take hold of some junior and juveniie teams.

* * * * * * *

LAKEVIEWS MAY RETURN.

It may be that the Lakeviews, twice junior provincial champions, will again appear on the sporting page, if the Knights of Columbus do not run a team in the junior series. Lou Lebarr believes that he could line up a strong team. The Lakeviews would get a big hand from the fans and league alike if they came back.

BOXING TOURNEY AT "Y."

The big sporting bill for the week is scheduled for the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday evening when the student boxers will again strut their stuff in the gymnasium. The boxers have not lightened their workouts since the last tournament and they should give an even better exhibition than on the previous occason.

RUNNERS TAKING WORK SERIOUSLY.

Whether local runners will be entered in some of the big track and field events that are being planned throughout the province, or not, the boys are taking their efforts seriously, and are out practising every night. The Harrier Club are sponsoring the running, but the services of a coach would be most welcome.

MORE SUPPORT FROM MAJOR TEAMS.

The fact that the City League is supplying the baseball players for the Senior and Intermediate teams in the city, was well brought out at the meeting last night. The opinion was taken that under these circumstances the major teams should take a keener interest in the welfare and success of the minor leagues. The stand was taken that unless the youngsters are taught and kept in baseball in a few years there will be a shortage of players. Something that does not exist to-day.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

The bowling tournament arranged between the Toronto and Peterborough plants of the Canadian General Electric Co. was voted as being the most successful and entertaining contest that has been staged to date by these two plants

The first half of the battle was fought on Saturday, April 13, when six men's teams and one ladies' team journeyed to Toronto and matched their pin toppling ability against the Davenport crowd. The local men won handily, but the girls from Peterborough were swamped by the Queen City quintette, and when the total pinnage of all the teams were added together the Toronto teams had won the first half.

The return games were played in the Duffus Recreation Academy last Saturday night after the teams had enjoyed a banquet at the Empress Hotel, but despite the determined efforts of the local men, Toronto carried the day. The men's team won again, but the girls lost by such a margin that it wiped away the gain made by the men.

Prizes for high single and high three on both teams were presented at a dance held after the contest at the Legion Hall. The following are the prize winners.

High three— Miss K. McLarnon, Toronto Works, 531.

High three—Miss G. Condon, Peterborough, 537.

High single— Miss D. Seabrooke, Peterborough, 187.

High single—Miss V. Jackson, Toronto, 189.

Jack Lesurf took the prize for high three on the Peterborough teams with 688 and T. Turner of Toronto came in for a share by piling up 306 pins in a single game.

The highest team scores of the battle were collected by the Peterborough crowd who chalked up 3,222 pins in a smart battle with one of the Davenport Work's teams.

Cincinnati Reds Break Losing Streak

CINCINNATI, April 23. — The Reds broke their three-game losing streak yesterday by staging their first rally of the new season in the seventh inning against the Pirates after being blanked for six innings, and won 9 to 4. Allen was the hitting demon, getting four singles in five trips to the plate. Gooch, recently acquired from Brooklyn by the Picinich trade, caught his first game for the Reds.

Soccer Notes

At the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association last evening, it was decided to abide with the previous ruling that the schedule be run on a single basis. The result of the vote was: Seven for the motion, a single schedule, and there was only four against.

Saturday's games are as follows: Deloro vs. Brinton A.A. in Deloro, referee Frank McKinley. The executive has asked Mr. Wright of Deloro to kick off. The president of the local body will be present at this game. Kick-off at 4.15 prompt.

Owing to tickets from the Woollens and Deloro not being returned, the Board was unable to make the draw until the stubs are received. The final touch will take place on Saturday at King Edward Park, when the Canadian Packing and the Canadian General meet in a league game. Kick-off at three o'clock. Referee, Alex. McKinley.

Canadian Packing team will practice on Tuesday (to-night) and on Thursday evenings at King Edward Park. All players please turn out.

All Quaker players are requested to be at King Edward Park on Wednesday evening at 6.15 prompt, when they will play the Canadian General in a practice game.

GAVUZZI HOLDS FOUR HOUR LEAD

Twenty-nine Survivors of Pyle's Derby Sun-Blackened By Weather.

IN ILLINOIS STATE.

VANDALIA, Ills, April 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Patiently plodding toward the west, the 29 survivors in C. C. Pyle's bunionless bunion derby resumed their trek this morning, leaving Vandalia at 7 o'clock, with Collinsville, Ills., 50 miles distant, set as their control point for to-night. Sun-blackened despite weeks of inclement weather, the pavement pounders moved on their final stopping place in Illinois with hope un dimmed after 976 miles.

A warm sun shone on them yesterday as they jogged 31 miles from Effingham and it was with revived spirits to-day that they renewed their quest for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Pete Gavuzzi of Southampton, Eng., his beard growing longer with the passing days, enjoyed a lead of more than four hours over Johnny Salo, Passaic, N.J., policeman and Legionnaire, when the variegated collection headed out from Vandalia today.

DEGREE TEAM VISITS OTONABEE LODGE

Oddfellows Hold Big Night in Local Lodge Rooms—Many Present.

In response to an invitation from Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, I.O.O.F., Durham Lodge, No. 78, of Port Hope, brought along a very strong degree team last evening to confer the initiatory degree. In addition to the degree staff of twenty-three members a large number of brother members from Port Hope accompanied them.

Visitors also were present from Cobourg, Belleville, Madoc and Peterborough Lodge, No. 111. This team was undoubtedly one of the best trained of any which have visited Otonabee Lodge for a long time, and much credit is due to Bro. Crowhurst, P.G., Ex-Grand Herald of Grand Lodge, who captained them.

After lodge was closed everybody adjourned to the banquet hall for a well planned luncheon in charge of the refreshment committee, Bros. Beckerman, C. H. Hotson, Pease and Vernon Skitch. Bro. Col. Miller was the chairman of this important part of the evening, to whose lot fell the task of selecting a few from the many eloquent speakers present.

Much pleasure was derived from the speeches of Bros. Hircock, of Cobourg, Crowhurst, Burtch, Flood, McTaggart, McElroy and Bro. F. G. Smart of Otonabee Lodge.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the staff and visitors, after which at a late hour they left for home by automobile. The Port Hope team was composed of: N. G., Harold Fox; V. G., J. Bate; Warden, J. Burtch; I. Cond., F. Flood; O. Cond., W. R. McTaggart; R.S.N.G., A. Darling; L.S.N.G., J. Ham; R. S. V. G., W. Bruce; L.S.V.G., J. F. Comley; R.S.S., F. Little; L. S. S., William Trawin; I. G., J. Baxter; Chaplain, W. Greenaway; P.G., C. McElroy.

Scene supporters: O. Cole, William Smith, Weatherup, Ball, Philips, Lyall.

Orchestra: Piano, H. Groome; violin, S. Zeland; drums, I. Walters.

In Police Court

It was a brief session of the Police Court this morning. A man appeared charged with an indecent act in Jackson's Park. He pleaded guilty and was fined $20 and costs.

Fred Orr who stated that he was a travelling man from Belleville, pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place and was fined $15 and costs or in in default fifteen days in the common jail. This man, when he was picked up, told the police that he had come to Peterborough to fly an airplane, but only 5 cents rewarded the police search of his pockets.

SUSPECTS RELEASED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Two young Americans, arrested yesterday by police as suspects in the Beamsville Bank robbery of last week, were released last night, after being questioned by local detectives and Assistant Commissioner Cuddy, of the Provincial police. They were driving an automobile bearing a New York license number and which somewhat resembled the car wanted in connection with the robbery.

Provincial police are continuing their hunt for the robbers, who last week held up members of the Beamsville branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and escaped with $2,000. pects n the Beamsvlle Bank robbery

PORT ARTHUR PLAYERS

Above is a photograph of the three Toronto boys who played on the Port Arthur Allan Cup team. The ployers are, from LEFT to RIGHT: Harold Goss, right defence; Bruce Cox, substitute right wing, and Eddie Baker, goal tender. Their careers in the O.H.A. and Toronto Industrial are:

Harold Gross: First played with the Kitchener juniors, in the season of 1922-23, when they won the junior O.H.A. title. Was with them again in the following year, and for the next two years played with the Stratford seniors. He was out of hockey for the following season, and then played for the Goodyear Tire team of the Toronto Industrial league, going to Port Arthur at the close of the season.

Bruce Cox: Played with Peterborough in 1925, when they won the senior O.H.A. title, and for the next two years was with the Goodyear team.

Eddie Baker: Broke into the O.H.A. in 1922-23, when he tended goal for the St. Mary's juniors in winning the S.P.A. cup, and stayed with them till 1925, when he transferred to the Toronto Marlboros, and through it all, was connected for five years with the Goodyear Industrial league team.

SPRING WORK PROGRESSING

Farmers Commence Operations On Farms—Plowing On High Lands.

CATTLE FEED SCARCE

BURNBRAE, April 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Spring is in the air in spite of chilling breezes, for these same cold air currents are drying the land rapidly and local farmers are getting away to a fine start on the spring rush. While plowing has been in order on high land for more than two weeks, little cultivation was possible until about April 15. R. J. Cleugh was probably the first to commence seeding on Friday last, but several farmers have fields ready for the seed with the new week. This is one of the earliest starts in the last decade, the spring of 1920 being the earliest here in the memory of the younger generation, when seeding commenced the first week in April. However, that season hard frosts prevailed late in the month, while this year promises fine growing weather in the near future.

Fall wheat never looked better than at the present time, while hay and pasture fields are well advanced and with average conditions from now on, cows should go to grass about the 20th of May with a fine summer's pasture ahead of them. Many farmers will appreciate early pasture, for in spite of last year's good crop, several barns are nearly empty, and the general opinion is that cows ate more feed last winter than ever before. This may be due to the inferior quality of some of the hay on account of too much rain while curing. At any rate cattle have done well with the feed consumed for the dairy cows shipped from this locality by outside buyers have invariably shown fairly high flesh.

Few Factories Running.

Cheese factories are late in starting this year, due to the unreasonably low prices offered for fodder cheese. Only a few are running now, most of the plants waiting until May 1st before commencing operations.

Hog Prices Improving

Hog prices are looking up and little pigs are correspondingly high, selling around $10 to $12 a pair.

Plants Potatoes

An early start in potato planting was made by Lorne Hay, who planted a bag of Irish Cobblers on April 20. These should be ready for the early market.

Tired Nerves and Heavy Head

So many women complain of both. Nerves are all unstrung. Restless and irritable. Can't sleep well. Get up in the morning without that feeling of freshness and cheerfulness that a good night's sleep should bring. Usually, this unhappy condition is the result of a number of little things, rather than one serious ailment.

Indigestion, sour stomach, biliousness, lazy liver, constipation — these are the usual things that upset the nerves, make the head ache and keep you feeling miserable.

And these are the troubles that ABBEY'S corrects so quickly. Just a glass in the morning is sufficient to sweeten the stomach, clean the system of waste, neutralize acidity, send pure, rich blood flowing through the body and put your whole system in an orderly natural condition. ITCHY ECZEMA ON BABY'S FACE

Broke Out in Watery Pimples. Cuticura Healed.

"Eczema broke out in watery pimples on my baby's face. It itched and burned so badly that she scratched, and her face was covered with sore eruptions. When she scratched the eruptions they used to bleed something dreadful. She used to fret and stay awake nights. It caused disfigurement for a while. "I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using it I purchased two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and in five weeks she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Clifford Fancy, Westfield, N. S.

Give Cuticura Soap and Ointment the care of your skin.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: Canadian Depot: "Potterone, Ltd., Montreal." Price, Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

SUPREMACY

The Daily Newspaper excels every other form of advertising in three respects:

(a) Universal Appeal

(b) Immediate and Frequent Appearance

(c) Localised Circulation

Its appeal is universal because its service is universal. Service has made it a daily necessity. No Canadian city or town considers itself fully born until it boasts its own Daily Newspaper.

Of all advertising mediums the Daily Newspaper offers these vital advantages in the highest degree.

The distributing and selling power of the dailies is constantly enlisted for exclusive campaigns; it is employed as a permanent select media and to vote funds for advertising appropriations.

BIG OPPORTUNITY AFFORDED CITY

Male Voice Choir Would Help To Establish Peterborough As a Musical Centre.

There probably has never been presented to the city of Peterborough a better opportunity for recognition as a musical centre and as a progressive community than that afforded by the appearance of the Male Voice Choir in the Associated Glee Clubs contest in Madison Square Gardens, New York, on May 24, when four glee clubs from Canada—Ottawa Toronto, Peterborough, and Hamil-

BIG FIND MADE IN NEW ONTARIO

Veteran Miner Displays Exceptional Specimens of Gold in Quartz.

STAKES 15 CLAIMS.

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont., April 23.—(C.P.) — Displaying exceptional specimens of gold in quartz and characterizing his find as "the biggest thing in the north," George Costello, veteran miner and prospector, is in Sioux Lookout, awaiting airplane transportation to "a certain lake" midway between Red Lake and Favorable Lake, where over a year ago he and John Boviteski staked 15 claims.

"Motherlode," is Costello's boast, and the picture he paints of his discovery has left miners along the outposts of civilization gasping with incredulity. But there are those who have heard the tales of Indians trekking in from the sub-arctic—stories that tell of glistening nuggets lying on the surface of the earth, where white men have never set foot, and these miners, shaking their heads in doubt over Costello's tale, nevertheless ponder the question whether the north is not rich enough to surprise the wisest.

Excavation for the 18-storey structure will be completed by the end of this month.

EFFECTS OF MORTAL SIN OUTLINED

Rev. Father O'Hara Addresses Women of St. Peter's Parish at Mission.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS.

People Must Belong To Christ Or Satan, Declares Speaker.

The renewal of the Mission that is being conducted this week at St. Peter's Cathedral for the women of the Parish drew another large crowd last evening. The speaker on this occasion was the Rev. Father O'Hara, who dwelt on the effects of mortal sin.

The rev. speaker, after asking the question, 'What is mortal sin?' went on to explain that we are unable to give a clear and definite answer to this question, in as much as we cannot understand God. However, if we consider the consequences of mortal sin, we can, in some degree, arrive at a satisfactory answer.

Father O'Hara made it clear that he did not intend to speak of the direct temporal effects of mortal sin, although he referred to a few of these. He wished, he said, to consider the greater effects of mortal sin on the soul

Loss of Sanctifying Grace

The first of these was the loss of sanctifying grace — that gift that makes us one with God. This, he said, was that gift that St. Paul referred to when he said, "The Charity of Christ poured forth in our souls," and that St. Peter called "A partaking of the divine nature."

What a change! said the rev. speaker, is brought about by the loss of sanctifying grace. Who, he said, can measure the harm that has been caused by mortal sin? First of all, the sinner has lost all merit, and all the prayers and good works that have been performed are counted as nothing for eternity. Even though one were to live to a ripe old age, and had spent these years in the performance of good works, all merit would be lost by one mortal sin.

Must Belong To Christ Or Satan

In this life, as in the next, we must belong either to Christ or to Satan, we must be enlisted either under the standard of Christ or that of Satan, for there is no neutral stand. We cannot, said Father O'Hara, serve God and man, and therefore as soon as sanctifying grace departs we are subjects of Satan himself. Then it is, we lose that peace of conscience, that we experienced when we were in the state of grace and feel that remorse of soul, that is the lot of the sinner.

We should often think of the terrible punishments that have been inflicted by God, because of one sin. Lucifer and countless numbers of angels were expelled from heaven and cast into hell for one sin of pride. Adam and Eve were driven from Paradise for the one sin of disobedience. So it is with us, one mortal sin will be cause of our spending an eternity in hell.

Finally, Rev. Father O'Hara referred to Christ's sufferings and death, brought about by the sins of men. He admonished his hearers to fear mortal sin and to preserve that great gift of sanctifying grace. He urged them to follow the example of St. John Chrysotom, who after offending the powerful Princess Eugenia, and being threatened with terrible punishments because he would not do something for her, which in conscience he could not do, replied, "I fear only one thing, and that is neither rack nor sword, nor imprisonment, not even death—but sin, and sin alone."

BLAZE DAMAGES TOWN FIRE HALL

Fifty Thousand Loss Suffered At Merritton — Fighting Apparatus Destroyed.

TOWN RECORDS SAVED.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Fire which started in the Merritton Town Hall shortly after 11 o'clock this morning caused damage to the extent of $50,000 to the stone structure, the loss including the entire fire-fighting apparatus of the town, two auto trucks, one of which was a pumper, and all hose.

The blaze started in the fire hall, located in the rear of the building, which was soon a roaring furnace, and spread by way of the roof to the front of the structure. Realizing that the Merritton firemen would be helpless without their equipment, Miss Elizabeth Barling, stenographer in the Public Utilities Office, immediately started calling the St. Catharines and Thorold Departments for aid. Thorold was speedily on the way, but considerable difficulty was experienced in getting a call through to this city. Miss Barling heroically stuck to her desk until the city department had been notified, and had to be carried out, being practically overcome by the smoke.

St. Catharines despatched its entire motor equipment, including two pumpers and the entire day staff of men from the Central and Lake Streets Station, the flames being brought under control by noon.

The records of the town on the ground floor of the building were saved. A temporary office will be established in the Public Library across the street, until the structure is rebuilt.

The cause of the fire is laid to a short circuit in the battery charger for the fire alarm system.

Around the City

It was announced to-day at the Peterborough Automobile Club Headquarters that in all probability W. G. Robertson, Secretary, Ontario Motor League and of the Canadian Automobile Association with Dr. P. E. Doolittle, President of the latter Association, would accompany T. N. Phelan, K.C., on Tuesday, April 23rd for the purpose of attending the Annual General Meeting and Banquet to be held in the Empress Hotel that evening, commencing at 7 p.m. Both Mr. Robertson and Dr. Doolittle are well known in Peterborough, especially the latter party, and many Peterborough motorists will welcome the opportunity to renew acquaintance of other years. Officials of the Club also intimated that they had been fortunate in being able to secure a soloist for the evening, Miss Geraldine Collins, of the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and a well known Peterborough vocalist

REPARATION EXPERTS FAIL IN CONFERENCE

disputed while the delegations continue to exchange views as to the contested features.

The Germans still appeared to cling to hope of reopening talks concerning the main question of an agreement on reparation payments, but the French and Belgians remained impassive, apparently determined to make no move themselves nor to encourage any steps by anyone else unless the German experts should raise their offer very close to the French and Belgian figures. Outside of the German group there was no one who thought any further useful discussions could be held on anything else but the final report.

Those who took up the question of how this report should be framed and what it should contain were Dr. Schacht, Owen D. Young, Emile Oreau, Emile Francqui, Commandatore Pirelli, Kengo Mori and Sir Josiah Stamp.

Some of the experts wanted a brief statement of the failure of the committee to accomplish the task committed to it. Others wanted a full report of everything that went on during the life of the committee. There was a third tendency, believed to have American representatives behind it, to select for the report what was significant and useful for future reference, leaving out everything that can serve no other purpose than to establish responsibilities or lay down points of policies.

Will Comprise Whole Scheme.

The report was thought most likely to comprise the whole scheme for an International Bank and the reports of the sub-committees on deliveries in kind. Whether the three memorandas that form the basis of the real work of the committee's figures shall be incorporated is what the chief experts were discussing today. There was little objection to including Mr. Young's paper laying down the general principles for negotiations on annuities. The Germans, however were little inclined to favor publication of their memorandum in answer to the creditors' proposal, if the German figures are not to be included, the Allies' figures also will not be included.

The question of whether there is likely to be a minority report will be settled only when the report is finally acted on and the Germans may ask to be relieved from signing the document and be permitted to put in a report of their own. In that case, there may be three reports since Mr Young might well decline to take sides between the two principal parties to the conflict.

The experts began thinking about a departure from Paris just as soon as the Drafting committee is appointed. The Japanese who were the first to arrive and who are the farthest from home already were booking passage.

INDIAN CHIEF LEADS REBELS

Of All Mexica Rebel Generals One Alone Is Left To Command Forces.

ATTEMPTS TO RALLY MEN.

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, Mex., Apr. 23 (Canadian Press). — One full-blooded Yaqui Indian chief—General Ramon Yucupicio—to-day doggedly continued his efforts to hold the rapidly disintegrating Mexican revolutionary movement together along the Sonora-Arizona border. Of all the rebel generals who have moved to and fro along the international line for the last six weeks he alone remained, a colorful, obdurate and slightly pathetic figure.

The Rebel Generalissimo, J. Gonzalo Escobar, presumably was at Novojoa to make a stand against the Federals, and with him was General Fausto Topete. Most of the rebel soldiers had departed from the garrison here and from Nogales, Sonora. General Francisco Manzo, who deserted the rebel cause, was living peacefully at his home at Nogales, Ariz.

government and found positions in which they were playing a real part in the life of the community. Out of this hundred, only two had gone wrong he added.

First offenders, principally men with families whose infraction of the law was not too serious, were being released on permits so they could work outside the limits of the jail to provide for their wives and children. He felt these men should be reclaimed and reformed. In some cases the government found them jobs. It was much better to have the man retain his self respect so that he again became a strong and worthy citizen, he thought.

The government was always seeking methods to correct errors that have been committed in its aim to improve the citizenship of future generations, Mr. Ferguson said.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN PLEADS FOR PEACE

Canadian War-time Premier Addresses Members of First Canadian Contingent.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23. (C.P.) — Sir Robert Borden, Canada's war time premier, speaking at the Ypres dinner of the Ottawa Red Chevron Club last night, urged the veterans of the First Canadian Contingent to work for world peace.

"Treaties cannot prevent war; force cannot prevent war; in the last analysis public opinion alone will keep peace," Sir Robert declared.

He further urged his hearers to stand for right and above all to have firm unwavering confidence in the future of Canada, its institutions, and in the destiny of Canada in the British Commonwealth.

Senator Major-General W. A. Griesbach, who went overseas with the Alberta Dragoons, presided.

St. George's Day

To-day is a day of triple significance, the birthday and the death day of William Shakespeare and the day of St. George, England's patron saint. LIBERAL LEADER SEEKS TO HAVE UNITED FRONT

W. E. N. Sinclair Appeals For An Opposition Candidate in Every Riding.

ARRAIGNS ADMINISTRATION.

Demands An Educationalist As Minister of Education, Not a Politician.

LONDON, Ont., April 24.—(By the Canadian Press.)—Concluding an address severely arraigning the Conservative administration of Premier G. Howard Ferguson, at the banquet of the Ontario Liberal Women's Association last night, W E N. Sinclair, K.C., leader of the Liberal party, appealed for an opposition candidate in every riding of Ontario in the next general election as the "only way to test public opinion."

"An election is likely. All opposition must be converged to the same point," Mr. Sinclair said. "The question is the Ferguson Government, or not. The Liberals are prepared to lead the way. They welcome all non-Conservatives and appeal to all who wish the removal of the Ferguson government."

The Liberal leader urged organization of the party, riding conventions and the selection of candidates, and asked for some women candidates.

Demands An Educationalist.

Directing his attack on Mr. Ferguson's administration of the department of education, whose portfolio the prime minister also holds, Mr. Sinclair demanded "an educationist as minister of education, the absence of all politics, local autonomy and not ministerial dictation, instruction in practical matters, teaching of character and the presentation of Canada, its history, its people and their possibilities and place in the Empire before the children in our schools."

Premier Ferguson, he said, was "political from his youth up and was not an educationist," with the result that a "non-political department is in the hands of a political leader."

Declaring the Liberal party had afforded opposition and constructive criticism in the session of the legislature just closed, Mr. Sinclair said the future of the Liberal party in Ontario was what it made itself. There must be economy of administration, reduction in taxation, aid to agriculture, hydro for farmers at reduced cost, provincial water powers must be harnessed for the people, timber resources must be conserved and "honestly administered," he said. Provincial highways must be financed by the province, there must be a non-partisan, rigid enforcement of the Liquor Control Act, "and the legislature must be restored to supremacy over the cabinet," he said.

Congratulates Association

At the outset of his address Mr. Sinclair congratulated the association on the success of the meeting in the heart of Western Ontario Liberal ridings. He welcomed Hon. Ernest Lapointe, dominion minister of justice, and his daughter, to Ontario as Liberals who achieved results. He extended thanks to the association on behalf of Mrs. Sinclair and himself, who had been invited as guests.

Ontario women, he said, have the same franchise as men and the same problems to solve. The men should be more generous to the women, and place them on their riding executives. Ontario women have been in the public service in Ontario for 50 years, and are celebrating the jubilee of the appointment of the first woman, by Hon. Mr. Pardee. They have earned a high place in the service, he said.

Referring to the 'Last Awful Night' of the last session of the Legislature, Mr. Sinclair said bills, estimates and resolutions were rushed through and the Government found it had passed one bill it was now disowning. "The indecent haste to finish was discreditable to the Government," he said.

Hampers Education.

"There is ample proof that politics permeates the Department of Education and hampers education in Ontario," Mr. Sinclair said. "As proof of the political taint in the Department, there was the book, 'Great Men in Canada.' Twenty thousand dollars was spent to purchase and distribute 20,000 copies of the book in the school libraries. Can Ontario children know the history of Canada with no William Lyon Mackenzie, no Sir Oliver Mowat and no Sir Wilfred Laurier mentioned in the book? Is it sufficient they know only of Sir John A. McDonald, Sir Charles Tupper and Sir George Cartier? Premier Ferguson wrote the preface to the book, so he answers yes to both questions. Liberals have been insulted by the book, and their money has been taken to propagate Tory history and doctrines in the schools. The Mini-

Bodies Are Found In River

Two Ottawa Youngsters Disappeared From Their Home Early Yesterday.

RIVER DRAGGED.

Had Apparently Tried To Get Into Canoe To Go Fishing.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 24 (Canadian Press).—Vernon and Roy Tudhope, seven and six-year-old sons, respectively, of Squadron Leader J. H. Tudhope, of the Civil Aviation Branch Department of National Defence, were found drowned this morning after having been reported missing since yesterday morning. They had apparently tried to get into a canoe at the end of a pier at Woodroffe, a suburb of Ottawa, and the craft, it is presumed, upset.

The two boys left their home shortly before noon yesterday and a frantic hunt was launched when evening failed to reveal any trace of them.

To-day City, Provincial and Royal Canadian Mounted Police, aided by volunteers, started a widespread search of the countryside. Dragging operations in the Ottawa River, near the home of the boys, was also ordered, as they had told a playmate they were going fishing.

SOCIETY JOINS BEAUTY DRIVE

Horticulturists Link Up With Examiner To Make Peterborough Beautiful.

JOIN CAMPAIGN.

Two civic institutions are now working hand-in-hand for the beautification of Peterborough—The Peterborough Examiner and the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

By invitation of The Examiner, representatives of the two organizations met this week and formulated plans for a joint campaign, and the following letter has been received:

"The Managing Editor,
The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—As an organization we wish to convey to you our appreciation of the work which you are doing in your 'Beautify Peterborough Campaign.'

We feel that each and every one of our members is behind you in this work; many have already signed the pledge card, thereby linking themselves actively in your campaign on their own behalf.

We, therefore, as a society, wish to give you our hearty endorsement, and are ready and willing to to-operate in any way that will help make Peterborough more beautiful.

The above resolution was made at an open meeting of the society, and was passed unanimously by those present.

Yours truly,
The Peterborough Horticultural Society
S. T. Harris, Secretary.

That the campaign is bearing fruit is generally acknowledged, and this addition will materially assist.

Plan to Help

The combined organization now plans to help city gardeners by publishing hints on gardening, care of lawns, and general beautification of the city. One of the subjects discussed at this week's meeting was the removal of unsightly fences, and further action will be considered. It was the general opinion that dilapidated fences should be removed or rebuilt, and that all fences should be repainted, in order to give a good general appearance to the city.

Old Home Week is a spur to special effort, because the story of Peterborough's appearance will be carried to the ends of the continent by those who visit the city. Close liaison will be maintained, therefore, with the horticultural committee of Old Home Week.

DISSOLUTION ON MAY 10

LONDON, April 24 (C.P.).—Premier Stanley Baldwin to-day announced in the House of Commons the prorogation and dissolution of Parliament for May 10, nominations for seats in the House of Commons on May 20, and polling day on May. 30.

AMBASSADOR RETIRES

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 24 (C.P.).—Henry P. Fletcher, after more than a quarter of a century of diplomatic service, is to retire as Ambassador to Rome.

Upon the appointment of his successor he will return to the United States.

Passengers On Board Duchess Of Atholl Tell Of Experiences In African Jungle

CHERBOURG, France, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—The steamship Duchess of Atholl, homeward bound after a four months' world cruise, arrived at Cherbourg to-day saddened by the deaths of four passengers, all Americans, who succumbed aboard ship a little over three weeks ago.

Malignant malaria attributed to insect bites during an overland trip in Africa, was held responsible for the deaths.

Although some of the other passengers had suffered from the same fever, three of them severely, the whole ship's company was in good health when the liner called at Cherbourg where 100 of her 293 passengers disembarked.

Some of these had exciting stories to tell, of being marooned without food and water and all drenched to the skin for 18 hours in Krueger National Park where their party was trapped by a sudden rise of two rivers. Three of the four passengers who died were members of this overland party as were two of the three others who fell seriously ill. Some of those who escaped fever told of passing the night in the African park and of climbing trees through fear of roving animals.

THOMAS M. DUTTON IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF AUTOMOBILE CLUB ANNUAL BANQUET IS BIG SUCCESS

T. N. Phelan, Past President of Ontario Motor League, Delivers Fine Address.

MANY VISITORS PRESENT.

Alderman Nagel Phelan Installs New Officers of the Local Automobile Club.

Thomas M. Dutton is the 1929 president-elect of the Peterborough Automobile Club. He was formally installed in that office of responsibility last evening at the annual general meeting and banquet of the club, held in the Empress Hotel, to succeed James Juby, who this year steps up to the honorary presidency, after a most active tenure of office. The other officers chosen and duly installed last night by Alderman Nagel E. Phelan were as follows:

Vice-president—J. L. Gillespie.

Directors—V. M. Eastwood, W. E. Franks, Robert Haddow, H. C. Huffman, L. A. Potvin, J. S. Selkirk, L. A. Turner, and R. H. Turner.

Viewed from many angles, the annual meeting of last evening was an even greater success than its 1928 predecessor. The attendance, which included many ladies, was probably larger than had been anticipated, while a battery of local as well as speakers from the Ontario Motor League, Toronto, dwelt at satisfactory length upon a varied range of subjects all of interest to the motoring public. The main speaker of the evening was T. N. Phelan, past president of the Ontario Motor League, and at present legal solicitor for the League, while other members of the party from Toronto who spoke were Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the Canadian Automobile Association; L. B. Howland, past president of the O.M.L. and the Canadian Association; and W. G. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Motor League. A. T. Guay, field organizer of the League, was also present, and was introduced along with the other visitors from Toronto headquarters.

The musical phase of the meeting was of the same high calibre as the addresses. Miss Geraldine Collins contributing two specially pleasing vocal selections, accompanied by Gwen Mary Donley. In addition four members of Stewart Widdess' Silver Slipper Orchestra provided a well chosen program of popular music during the banquet hour.

The President's Address.

"I think the principal activity of the Automobile Club during the fiscal period just closed was the dissemination of touring information and the maintenance of a tourist information service for the members of the club, visiting tourists, and the public generally. Quit a large number of mail enquiries for touring information of various sorts were taken care of, as well as enquiries by telephone and telegraph, and in person.

"The provincial road bulletin is of inestimable value to the club in enabling us to answer numerous enquiries as to the condition of roads in the different parts of Ontario. Last summer, with construction work under way on highways Numbers 28 and 7 and at the approaches to the city, we were kept fairly busy supplying information in connection with detours and the condition of arterial approaches."

Supplied 25 Cars

"On Sunday, July 15th, the Automobile Club co-operated with the Chamber of Commerce in supplying 25 cars for the transportation of members of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association who, some seventy in number, were visiting Peterborough by special train on their annual outing. On reaching the city, the visitors were transported to the street railway wharf and, later in the day,

LEGION PLANS BIG CARNIVAL WITH UNIQUE TICKET SCHEME

Purchaser of Ticket Not Only Buys Admission But Gets Ten Cents Value.

TO HELP VETERANS

Care For Interests of Returned Soldiers Now Devolves Solely on Legion.

The carnival planned by the Canadian Legion for May 15, 16 and 17 will be unique in its setting and new in its method. Tickets will be sold at ten cents, and, after showing these tickets at the door to gain admission, purchasers retain them to use as ten cents value inside. There will be new games, a war trophies exhibit, an exhibit showing the work of the Legion, and many other features.

The Legion, which is the only organization now existing solely for the care of returned soldiers, and the presentation of their cases before the Government, requires funds on which to operate. Feeling that it is doing just what the people would like to do for veterans, the Legion is giving the people an opportunity to assist through this carnival.

Several committees have already been organized, and a meeting of the chairmen on Tuesday evening brought out many ideas. T. E. Chapman, chairman of the concert committee, plans three half-hour concerts every evening, to be given in the card room. One program will be Hawaiian, while another will be a hilarious half-hour in a trench. C. L. Armstrong, chairman of the wheel of fortune committee, has a strong list of helpers, and is already planning for splendid prizes. G. H. Cutmore, chairman of the war trophies exhibit, will have a big booth full of war trophies never before shown in Peterborough. Many of the items already booked are real treasures, and the exhibition will well repay a visit. M. J. Clancy has plans to put over the bingo game in a new way, with wonderful prizes. He picked for his committee some of the livest wires among the members, and is well away with his plans. One of the real hits of the show will be the dugout, under chairmanship of F. C. Gant. Not too much can be told about this, but there are surprises in store.

These are only a few of the booths;

British Attitude On Naval Question Outlined In House

Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, In Answer To Query, States Attitude of His Majesty's Government Towards Disarmament Policy.

DESIRES REDUCTION OF NAVAL ARMAMENTS AND NOT MERELY A LIMITATION SPEAKER SAYS

Reduction Should Be Applied To Every Class of War Vessel, Declares Speaker—Previous Disagreement Was On Determination of Categories To Divide Ships of War.

LONDON, April 24 (Canadian Press). — Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, told the House of Commons to-day that the British Government shares fully the hopes and wishes of the United States Government on disarmament as set forth in Ambassador Gibson's speech at Geneva on Monday.

"The Government desired me to take this opportunity to express its warm appreciation of the cordial conciliatory spirit shown by the American delegates and give assurance on its behalf that in the same spirit and with the most earnest wish to reach a complete understanding, it will consider the American suggestions," declared Sir Austen.

Sir Austen made his statement in answer to a question by Commander Joseph Kenworthy, Laborite, whether Ambassador Gibson's speech had been called to his attention and what response His Majesty's Government proposed.

"As was at once stated by my noble friend, Lord Cushendun," began Sir Austen, "His Majesty's Government shares to the full the hopes and wishes of the Government of the United States as therein set forth. His Majesty's Government, equally with the Government of the United Sates, desire not merely a limitation but a reduction of naval armaments.

"They have indeed themselves made proposals for such a general reduction and that the reduction should be applied to every class of war vessel. As between ourselves and the United States, such difference as has hitherto existed has not been concerned with these great principles, nor with the relative strength of our respective navies but with determination of the

Quarantine Ban Lifted In Ekfrid Township

MELBOURNE, Ont., April 24...—Ekfrid Township Board of Health at a special meeting last night received a report from Dr. R. D. Dewar, Medical Officer of Health, that the danger from the streptococcus disease had entirely subsided. As a result, the schools resume their classes to-day, churches are again free to hold their services, and all restrictions are relieved except against the Sinclair, Brown and Gates homes.

"There is no more evidence of any fresh cases and everything has returned to normal,' said Dr. Dewar.

BIG OPPORTUNITY AFFORDED CITY

Male Voice Choir Would Help To Establish Peterborough As a Musical Centre.

There probably has never been presented to the city of Peterborough a better opportunity for recognition as a musical centre and as a progressive community than that afforded by the appearance of the Male Voice Choir in the Associated Glee Clubs contest in Madison Square Gardens, New York, on May 24, when four glee clubs from Canada—Ottawa Toronto, Peterborough, and Hamilton—will compete with seventy-six organization from the United States.

The Male Voice Choir has been and is still giving many hours of practice; have contributed $1,200 to the fund necessary to pay expenses of the trip; are willing to lose the time required, and give their best in the contest, for which the city would get all the credit.

About $1,800 is still required to complete the fund, and a canvass is being made by men who are interested in the affair from a community standpoint; and it is hoped the response will be as liberal as citizens can afford for such an effort.

Contributions sent in to The Examiner Office will be acknowledged and handed over to the committee.

AUGER APPEAL BEING HEARD

First Divisional Court is Considering Case of Former Prescott Member.

GIRL'S STORY REVIEWED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 24.— (By the Canadian Press.)—The appeal of Louis M. Auger, former member of Parliament for Prescott, convicted at Ottawa of committing a serious offence against Miss Laurence Martel, of Hawesbury, Ont., a 17 year old girl, in the Parliament Buildings, was commenced before the First Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall today. Auger was sentenced by Mr. Justice Wright to nine years' imprisonment.

A. G. Slaght, K.C., Gordon Emmerson and Raoul Mercier appeared for the appellant and I. A. Humphries, K.C., and A. W. Rogers for the Crown.

View Not Presented.

Mr. Slaght protested that the defence view had not been presented to the trial jury by the Judge. He reviewed the story told by the girl to show its incredibility, and to emphasize the contention of the defence that there was consent. Mr. Slaght's particular complaint was against the Juages charge which he said contained 4,280 words and out of which the mention of the name of testimony of the seven defence witnesses was contained in 3 1-2 lines or 34 words. Six of the witnesses were never mentioned at all, he said.

"The girl's evidence shows Auger committed a dastardly offence on the girl on the Friday afternoon, if she was telling the truth," said Mr. Slaght. "The girl was in Auger's room in the Parliament Buildings for a protracted period after the attempt had been made to assault her. She went home, had supper with her aunt, and there was nothing unusual in her conduct.

Goes Back Again.

"And then the next day, Saturday, she goes back to the same room, to the same man on a telephone invitation. Before going back she did a thing she never did in her life before— she went to a beauty parlor and had her hair marcelled. She told the hair dresser she wanted to look nice because she had a date with an M.P. She had no further business to transact in regard to the Civil Service position, but she went there and remained from 3 to 5. The girl testified she thought Auger was going to apologize, and that was the reason she went back to the lion's den on the Saturday.

"There is also an important piece of evidence given by the girl's aunt relative to what took place on the Friday. The aunt asked her how she got on with Auger. The girl indi-

EVIDENCE OF PLAINTIFF IS COMPLETED

City of Peterborough Commences Its Defence To-day in $15,000 Damage Action.

DETAILS OF FLOODING.

Edward M. Proctor, Engineer of Toronto, Presents Plans of Jackson Park Creek

Legal guns of the B. F. Ackerman, Son and Company, Limited, ceased fire at 5.30 Tuesday afternoon having conducted for nearly two days an offensive whose final objective was the winning from the City of Peterborough, of a $15,000 damage action, along with a mandatory order from the court, compelling the municipality to cease hindering or blocking the Jackson's Park creek, near the Ackerman factory, corner of Dalhousie and George streets. Arising out of the flooding of the Ackerman factory cellar by the creek in March, 1928, the suit has attracted more than passing interest during its hearing before Mr. Justice McEvoy at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme court in the County Court House, here this week.

At 9.30 this (Wednesday) morning, the city's legal forces began a stubborn defence, likely to last two days.

Nightwatchman Testifies.

While the entire afternoon of Monday was occupied by the hearing of the first three witnesses, William C. Ackerman, Benjamin F. Ackerman, and Samuel McCall, the Tuesday morning session was more successful in point of numbers heard, for five witnesses were heard during the forenoon, though the fifth, Edward M. Proctor, a consulting engineer from Toronto, was still on the witness stand when court resumed in the afternoon.

Samuel Hele, nightwatchman at the Ackerman plant, was the first witness, giving details of the flooding as he had seen it after coming to work at 5.30 in the evening of March 26, 1928. He told of seeing the water first coming over the more northerly property when he went through the company's garage to the north. At that time he had proceeded to the Dalhousie street bridge, where the water was running a little above the oft-mentioned fender beam to the immediate north of the bridge. He had noticed several logs, one inside a triangle caused by another wing beam which came out from the bank to join the main fender beam. The other log was outside the triangle. On the south side of the bridge at the same time, witness testified, the water was 18 inches lower than on the north side. This was about seven o'clock, and at about 7.10 the water began to come into the Ackerman basement beneath the garage door. There was considerable water inside the basement at eight o'clock, and by nine o'clock it was level with the basement windows. By 10.20 the water was high enough to run out of those windows when they were purposely broken. By morning, the water had stopped running out the windows, and the creek had gone down slightly.

Cross-examined, the witness repeated much of his first evidence, gave details of where he had been standing, when making the above observations, and answered further questions regarding the logs which he had seen above the bridge He had not paid much attention to the creek the following morning. He was positive regarding the two logs, and was pretty sure that the other debris was not part of the old lawn flooring which had formerly spanned the space between the bridge and the fender beam.

Sydney G. Johnston, a resident on King street, near where the creek passes that street, was only able to confirm the fact that there was very high water both in the spring of 1928 and in January of 1929. He had seen the water flowing over the Dalhousie street bridge on the night of March 26, 1928.

J. S. Fanning whose laundry business whose laundry shrdlshrdlucm is also on King street, testified that he had shown Engineer Proctor the correct high-water marks as they applied at the time of the 1928 floods The water had gone down by the morning of March 26.

Nicholls Hospital Bulletin

No. 2 April 24, 1929

THE NICHOLLS HOSPITAL, together with its endowment, belongs to the people of Peterborough, it was accepted many years ago by the then Town Council, as a gift from the late Mrs. Nicholls, its doors are open to the sick irrespective of creed or color. The adequacy of its equipment and the success it attains should be viewed with civic pride by the citizens of Peterborough since the institution is theirs, and only their support and loyalty can make it really efficient. The Board of Trustees, all men of standing in the city, after studying the situation from every angle for the past 18 months, most definitely concluded that additions and renovations must be made if the proper care of the sick is to be made possible.

26 Divorce Bills Are Read

Conservative Censure Is Defeated in House By 98 to 71 Votes.

LITTLE PROGRESS MADE.

Postmaster-General Veniot Is Again Flooded With Questions From Opposition.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 24. (C.P.) — The bombardment of the Postmaster-General, which opened several days ago, when the government attempted to move into supply for consideration of post office estimates, continued throughout the day in the House of Commons. Early in the day's proceedings, the House disposed of the Conservative amendment, moved by H. A. Stewart, member for Leeds, which censured the Postmaster-General with respect to the Simcoe post office appointment. The amendment was defeated by 27 votes, 98 being registered against it and 71 for.

The amendment defeated, the House then moved into supply on the estimates of $34,926,639 for the post office outside service. This appropriation has already been before the committee of supply without any appreciable progress having been made. To-day the stream of questions which has already flowed unceasingly in the direction of the Postmaster-General since he took up his estimates, continued with little abatement.

Dismissals Queried.

Discussion was chiefly concerned with the dismissal of postmasters in various parts of the country and the appointment of others to fill the vacancies thus created. From Conservative members came the charge that many of these changes had been made by Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, for political reasons. This allegation the Postmaster--General met by declaring that postmasters were not dismissed without investigation. His own record, with respect to dismissals, was, he declared, much less drastic than that of the Conservative administration.

With the embargo off the passage of divorce bills, 26 of these measures passed their second reading during the hour devoted to private bills after the dinner recess.

FOND MEMORIES OF MOTHERLAND RECALLED AT ANNUAL BANQUET OF LOCAL LANSDOWNE LODGE

Englishmen Proclaim Pride in Their Race at St. George's Day Event.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

Canadians Are Asked To Retain Spirit and Courage of Merry England.

Yesterday being St. George's Day, the greatness of England, her glorious history and achievements, and fond memories of the Motherland were recalled at the St. George Day banquet of the Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, held in the Paragon Hall last night. Englishmen took the opportunity to proclaim their pride of race; but, during their praise of England, the richness and great future of Canada, the loved home of their adoption, was not forgotten.

It was a happy occasion at which merry Englishmen recalled the rich lore of Merry England and the battlecry that had risen from brave men's lips down through the centuries, "For St. George and Merry England."

The hall was completely filled and the banquet board surrounded by Englishmen, brothers all. The guests included a delegation of the Lindsay Sons of England.

The glories of England were told by Joseph Wearing; the opportunities of Canada were extolled by Rev. A. Minchin; the purposes and objects of the Sons of England Order were recounted by E. A. Peck, M.P., one of the oldest members and a past president; and Peterborough's place in Canada told of by Mayor Denne; B. J. Lemmon, president of the lodge, made a happy host, presiding over the banquet as chairman and toast master.

The choice of St. George as the patron saint of England was a happy one said Joseph Wearing, in replying to the toast proposed by Mr. Lemmon to "St. George and Merry England, since the qualities of chivalry, courage, boldness and love of Christianity in his character were typical of Englishmen. It is these qualities of resourcefulness that have raised England to the greatest nation of the world, he said.

Optimism Stamps England

Stating that Scotland might be referred to as "Rocky Scotland," Wales as "Wild Wales," Ireland as "Unhappy Erin," yet always, he declared, England will be known as "Merry England." Despite the ceaseless wars, vicissitudes of trade and government and even revolution, Englishmen have always had the invaluable trait of looking on the best side of trouble, and this has marked her through the ages, he said.

English literature which describes the people of England are Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," Shakespeare and Dickens—these all give a broad hint of the ripple of laughter concealed in the Englishmen. This, it was said, was a sign of a healty body and soul and this gave the English their ability to tackle the job of building the Empire, and giving truth, honor and justice wherever the flag waves. Their faith makes them merry, too, said Mr. Wearing. "Englishmen, no matter what, never lose faith in their ultimate destiny."

Drawing examples from the present sane coolness of the two great English leaders, Baldwin and Lloyd George, during the troublous times of reconstruction and political changes, the speaker said, they still have time to laugh.

Canada a Pleasing Home

Two Engineers Prevent Possible Fatal Accidents

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 24. —(C.P.)—Quick thinking on the part of two engineers on the Michigan Central Railway yesterday prevented two possible fatal accidents. Thomas Burke, engineer of a passenger train, saw a little girl standing on the track near Welland, Ont. When she failed to move after he had blown the whistle, he applied the brakes and the train of 15 cars came to a stop a short distance from the little girl.

L. J. Arlein, engineer on the Wolverine, one of the crack trains of the line, noticed an auto stalled on the tracks and brought the train to a quick stop.

PASSENGERS DIE ON CRUISE

Four Travellers On Duchess of Atholl Die From Sunstroke and Malaria.

CONTRACTED ASHORE.

MONTREAL, Que., April 24.— (C. P.)—Sunstroke and malaria took a toll of four lives on board the Canadian Pacific liner, Duchess of Athol, during a world cruise which began at New York on January 22 according to advices received at the company's offices here. The Duchess of Atholl is now approaching Cherbourg, France, which port she expected to reach to-day. The liner during her cruise made stops at West Indies, South American, African and Mediterranean points. Of the four victims three were men and one was a woman. Three were citizens of the United States and one passenger boarded the ship at Kingston, Jamaica.

In a statement issued to the Press, the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company said that the malaria from which two of the passengers died was contracted ashore. Rumors reached the company's offices here that deaths among the crew were being reported in cablegrams sent by passengers to relatives in the United States. The company officials announced that no deaths among the members of the crew had been reported.

The Weather

Meteorological Office, Toronto, Ont., April 24.—The depression which was off Sable Island yesterday morning has developed into a severe storm off the east coast of Newfoundland and another disturbance is centred over Nebraska, while pressure is high over the Atlantic States and the Western Provinces.

Snow has fallen in Cape Breton, while in nearly all other parts of the Dominion the weather has been fair.

Forecasts.

Body Under Australian Plane Is Believed To Be That of Anderson.

MOUND NEARBY.

LONDON, April 24.— (Canadian Press). — The Daily Express to-day said it was believed Lieutenant Keith Anderson and Robert Hitchcock of the airplane Kookaburra, lost in the Tanimi Desert, Australia, in search of the Southern Cross, both were dead.

Observers flying as near to the Kookaburra as they might, and failing to find a place to land, ascertained the body under the wing of the plane was that of Anderson. Nearby, they reported, there was a mound of earth, indicating that perhaps Hitchcock had died and Anderson had buried him before he himself expired.

The two men were missing for nearly a fortnight after starting out to seek the Southern Cross, which in the meantime was found by others.

TWO AVIATORS KILLED IN CRASH

Toronto Young Men Had Just Taken Off From Leaside Air Field.

PLANE WENT INTO SPIN.

TORONTO, Ont., April 24 (C.P.).—Two prominent members of the Toronto Flying Club were killed late yesterday afternoon when their plane crashed to the ground and burst into flames. The men were William Mackenzie and Noel Marshall. They had just taken off for a short flight and were about three hundred feet from the ground when the plane went into a spin and struck the earth with a terrific crash. The nose of the machine was buried in the earth.

Eye-witnesses of the tragedy were at a loss to account for the crash. The plane, a Gypsy Moth machine, had been inspected just before it left the hangar and Mackenzie, who was at the stick, was regarded as one of the best pilots produced since the formation of the Toronto Flying Club. The machine was not climbing at the time, but was flying almost parallel to the ground at a height of about 300 feet.

Not Burned to Death

Although the plane burst into flames so soon as it hit the ground and was almost completely destroyed the men were not burned to death. Apparently they were killed instantly by the crash. The bodies, when recovered, were only slightly burned.

The tragedy occurred at the Toronto Flying Club's field at Leaside and the machine crashed on the north side of the field a short distance from where it had taken off. The two men had been in the habit of flying for an hour or so two or three days a week after leaving their offices. Yesterday they left their work and went directly to the field, and a few minutes later were in the air.

Had Pilot's Certificate

Mackenzie had obtained his pilot's certificate only a short time ago and Marshall had not yet taken his wings though he was considered one of the club's most promising students. In the ordinary course of events he would have qualified in a very short time.

Both young men were well known in Toronto. Mackenzie was a grandson of the late Sir William Mackenzie and Marshall a grandson of the late Col. Noel Marshall, president of the Standard Fuel Company. Mackenzie leaves a wife and an infant child, and Marshall was unmarried.

The two victims will be buried here on Thursday afternoon. Marshall's funeral is to be held at 2 p.m., and Mackenzie's at 4 p.m.

Mackenzie was a son of the late Alexander Mackenzie, president of the Brazilian Traction, Light, Heat and Power Company. He was 24 years of age. His uncle, Count De Lesseps, was killed flying over Gaspe Bay last summer. Mrs. Maurice Hodgson, Montreal, is his sister. Mackenzie had been interested in flying for a number of years and had just PICKPOCKET ARRESTED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 24 (Canadian Press).—Alleged by the police to be an internationally known pickpocket, James Wright was arrested here yesterday upon his arrival by boat from Tennessee. Irene Haslet, who was with Wright, was also arrested. She is alleged to have stolen two fur coats from Guelph and St. Thomas.

THREE PASSENGERS DIE.

NEW YORK, April 24. (C.P.)—The Canadian Pacific Steamship Company announced yesterday that three passengers, two Americans and one Britisher, had died of sunstroke on the Duchess of Athol, due at Cherbourg to-day after a cruise along the South American and African coasts.

HOOVER CONGRATULATED.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 24 (Canadian Press). — President Hoover was personally congratulated yesterday by Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, on the American disarmament disagreement stand. The Ambassador said that everyone in his own country seemed very much satisfied and had received the Gibson declaration with a most "hearty welcome."

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, April 24. — Following Monday's clean-up of cattle offering at an advance of 25 to 50 cents per cwt. in killer value trade at the Union Stock Yards yesterday opened slow with salesmen holding for a further advance.

Some sales were made at Monday's improvement in value, in which all classes, including heavy steers, shared.

Handyweight, light and heavy steers sold to a top of 11 cents a pound and best heifers made 10½ to 10¾ cents a pound, nothing in the butcher steer and heifer line selling below 8¾ cents a pound. Baby beef showed a gain of 50 cents a hundred for the week at a range of 10 to 13 cents a pound. Fancy light cows and fat kosher killers were in good demand, topping 9 cents a pound in spots, while average good butcher cows brought 8 to 8¾ cents. Good butcher bulls sold from 8 to 8¾ cents. Good butcher bulls sold from 8 to 8½ cents, and bolognas from ½6 to 7½ cents a pound.

There were good inquiries for stockers and feeders, with good feeders around 900 pounds quoted from 9 to 9¾ cents, but the supply of that kind was very short. Good stockers were worth 8½ to 9 cents a pound. Trade in milkers and springers was dull, with prices steady. Best fresh cows were worth $100 to $110 each, and best springers $115 to $125. The calf supply yesterday was heavy, and largely of an inferior quality. Fresh calves were steady, at 15 to 16 cents a pound, with a lot of common to medium calves forming the bulk of the lot sold from 6 to 12 cents. With a very few yearlings in the large supply of sheep and lambs, most of them arrived late, and were not weighed in the early trading. Spring lambs sold steady at $8 to $16 each. Sheep prices were unchanged, with best light ewes bringing 8 to 9 cents a pound.

Hog prices were unsettled, but there are prospects of settlement at 12½ cents, f.o.b., and 13½ cents straight off cars, for sheep.

The cattle receipts were: 1,088 cattle, 1,276 calves, 1,121 hogs and 175 sheep and lambs.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 24.—"Quiet and steady" was the general description of the butter market here yesterday. No changes were announced in prices. Receipts were 2,213 boxes, of which 1,475 were from New Zealand.

The cheese market continued quiet with a slightly easier undertone. Receipts were heavy, being the biggest day since last summer. Arrivals totalled 6,705 cases.

Potatoes were dearer in Montreal yesterday, an advance of 5c being announced. Sales on track here were being made at 55c per 90 lbs. in bulk for New Brunswick Green Mountains and at 70c. per 90 lbs. in bags for Prince Edward Island Green Mountains. Trading was reported as more active. American markets have stiffened, due to short supplies and bad roads, and this was reflected on the Canadian market.

Cheese—Westerns, 21½c to 22c.

Butter—No. 1 pasteurized, 38c to 39c.

Eggs—Fresh extras, 33c to 34c; fresh firsts, 31c to 32c.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 29—Fairly heavy shipments of eggs were received on the local produce market Monday and prices were unchanged. Eggs are moving into storage freely at present prices, and dealers report that demands for the retail trade are not very active. Outside representatives of local houses report that there is an accumulated supply of eggs throughout the country that are being held back on account of the prevailing conditions of the roads.

Prices were quoted as being firm at the following ranges: Fresh extras, 26c to 27c; fresh firsts, 24c to 25c, and seconds, 21c to 22c per dozen. These prices are for ungraded eggs delivered in Toronto, cases returned. Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged.

Butter Is Steady

Prices held steady on the wholesale butter market, although dealers reported an easier undertone in evidence. Trading was quiet, as retail dealers are operating on hand-to-mouth requirements. There is also a lack of activity in wholesale trading circles, and dealers are not placing additional commitments on spot unless their current stocks have been practically cleared.

Quotations for No. 1 finest creamery remained at 41c to 42c a pound, delivered in Toronto, with No. 2 grade creamery at 40½c to 41c. Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged at 45c for No. 1 creamery prints.

The cheese market was quiet, and demand showed no change from that of recent trading sessions. Prices were unchanged at 21¾c per pound for No. 1 large, waxed, colored. Government-graded supplies.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 24. — Wheat prices yesterday advanced 1 cent in the first hour, broke 2 cents from the high point a few minutes later, but came back sharply to the levels of the previous close, and eventually finished the session ¼c lower to ⅝c higher. Export business overnight was reported excellent, sales being placed at 1,000,000 bushels.

Selling pressure was heavy at some periods of yesterday's trading.

Volume of trading in the cash market was fairly large, with a good demand in evidence for all grades. Values were about ⅛c to ¾c higher than the previous close.

Oats, barley, and rye were well bought by shipping interests at prices unchanged from yesterday. Flax trade continued on the light side.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 24. — Big export business did much to make wheat prices average higher yesterday, but the volume was greatly under-estimated until after the market had been closed. The total of European buying then revealed was 2,500,000 bushels including considerable domestic wheat. On the other hand, corn values were depressed owing a good deal to reported cancellations of corn sugar orders as a result of the Government inquiries about use of the sugar by home brewers.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular at ⅝c to ¾c net decline to ⅜c advance. Corn finished 1¼c to 2⅜c down, oats ⅛c off to ¼c up, and provisions varying from 17c setback to 17c gain.

Corn Moves Lower.

Despite the fact that taken as a whole the wheat market yesterday averaged higher, new low price records for the season were touched due to current under-estimates of wheat export business, but also resulted from notable sudden downturns in corn values. In this connection, it was reported that a corn manufacturing plant at Decatur, Ills had shut down because orders for corn sugar had fallen off 25 per cent.

Better Undertone in Wheat.

Contrasting with uncertainty of the wheat trend in the late dealings was the fact that the market throughout most of the day showed a better undertone than has been the rule of late. This was ascribed more or less to unfavorable crop reports from Europe, and to emphatic denials of dissension in the Canadian growers' pool, as well as to the fact that seven consecutive days had witnessed price breaks and that a rally appeared to be overdue. There was also talk current that indications now pointed to passage of a farm relief bill which the President signed.

ster of Education has stamped his approval on this kind of political education in our schools.

Conservative Clubs in High Schools.

"An additional proof of politics in education is seen in the Young Conservative Clubs in the High Schools, endorsed by the Conservative organization. Premier Ferguson winks at these. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Education, does not disapprove. The Minister of Education sent to the Educational Association and interjected gas tax, roads and Provincial politics into his speech."

Mr. Sinclair referred to Mr. Ferguson's township school board scheme and his plan for university work in the high schools as evidence of the Premier's "tinkering to attract attention." "But he gets nowhere," he added, "and shows unfitness for the position."

Recalling that Mr. Ferguson told the Educational Association there were a lot of teachers in the Province who should be at some other job, Mr. Sinclair said Mr. Ferguson may have been referring to some who answered his two letters to the Ontario teachers, in 1928 and 1929, stressing the teaching of temperance, while he was "head of a $50,000,000 a year liquor-selling proposition."

The letters, Mr. Sinclair said, "were an insult to the intelligence of the teachers who know their business and are doing their duty."

TWO AVIATORS

completed arrangements for the purchase of his own plane.

The deaths represented the first fatality since the formation of the Toronto Flying Club twelve months ago, despite the fact that planes owned by the club had been in the air more than 1,500 flying hours.

Marshall was 24 years of age and a distant relative of Mackenzie.

Mechanics at the flying field, armed with fire extinguishers, attempted to put out the flames which enveloped the plane when it crashed, but were unsuccessful, and within a few minutes the airplane had been reduced to a heap of twisted metal. The crash attracted a crowd from the surrounding district and Leaside police were called to keep it in order.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Mr. Elie Brunelle and Miss Brunelle are spending a few days in Toronto this week.

An attempt is being made by several who are interested in local sport to revive lacrosse this season. Whether or not anything will come of it remains to be seen. In former years, Campbellford has put a lacrosse team in the field that took some beating. There are still several former players in town, but not enough of them to organize a team on a par with former line-ups. The popularity which the game enjoyed for many years in this district, has not been forgotten, and there are many who are willing to assist in reorganizing a local team in the intermediate class.

When Joyland Shows take the road this summer, they will add the name of a famous tight wire artist, James E. Hardy, the high wire king, famous at Niagara Falls, the Genesee Gorge, Montmorency Falls and many other places. Unfortunately his contract does not call for an appearance with the shows here during Gala Week, which is the opening engagement of the midway. Hardy does not come under the Joyland banner till May 20. Among the long list of breath-taking feats which have been marked down to Hardy's credit, are seventy-six performances over Montmorency Falls, twenty-six over the Genesee Gorge and sixteen over the Niagara Whirlpool Rapids. He was recently the head-line attraction at the New York Hippodrome during the mid-winter circus, His slogan is, "Return engagements everywhere." Edward Hubble, owner and manager of the Joyland All-Canadian Shows, is being congratulated on this high-class addition to his already long list of attractions.

USEFUL BROADCASTING.

The announcement that the services of the radio are to be used to give Canadians a non-partisan review of national problems and national business, should be received with pleasure.

The network of the Canadian National Railways is to be the medium used to reach Canadian listeners-in and the series of addresses will be led off by Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, while other members of the Cabinet and Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Opposition, will be heard in subsequent addresses.

Their talks will be non-political and non-controversial and are intended chiefly to interest the people of Canada more deeply in the nation's business.

For some time there have been similar addresses on United States questions each week from Washington, and it is a safe assertion that many Canadians as a result of listening-in on these occasions have a better knowledge of many aspects of American government than they have of public affairs on this side of the line.

The series of Canadian talks just announced will help to correct this condition, and to bring to Canadians a more intimate acquaintance with public business and the problems incidental to governing the affairs of this great country.

HERE IS A SURPRISE.

Regardless of their own particular views as to the best tariff policy for this country, most Canadians will be able to see the humor in the application that Western poultrymen, representing 40,000 producers and some 2,000 merchant members, have written to Premier King asking for protection against the importation of under-grade foreign eggs.

"We feel," writes the Westerners, "that we can accomplish little in a national way, owing to the fact that our Canadian market is open to importations by large American corporations now established in Canada."

These Prairie Provinces poultrymen are doubtless quite justified in asking for relief, but the funny part of the situation is that, while they line up behind the Canadian Council of Agriculture and similar organizations in attempting to take away from Canadian manufacturers the advantage of tariff protection, they do not hesitate to ask for protection in the case of their own products.

Sometimes it is suspected that the saving grace of humor is missing from the personnel of the Council of Agriculture.

An organization that fights for the retention of the income tax because its members know that they won't have to pay it, and that opposes the whole principle of tariff protection except on products in which it is directly concerned is difficult to explain, unless it is that it is composed of people who cannot see a joke.

Incidentally the Consumers' League should be on its guard against this raid from an unexpected quarter.

VACATIONS IN CANADA.

Canada is the playground of America, a natural consequence of the many attractions the Dominion has to offer the tourist and sportsman. A million square miles of forest, countless lakes and thousands of miles of rivers and brooks provide America's finest hunting, fishing, canoeing and camping; while paved roads, highly developed resort districts and picturesque cities await those for whom life in the open has no special appeal.

The vast extent of Canada and the diversity of conditions in different sections make it difficult for the prospective visitor who is not familiar with the country to decide which particular section interests him most. To overcome this the Department of the Interior has published "Vacations in Canada," a 96-page handbook which sets forth the attractions which Canada offers to tourists and sportsmen.

This booklet describes the tourist attractions of each region in the Dominion—the climate, the motor roads, the points of historic interest, the fishing, hunting, canoeing and camping, the principal cities and the popular summer and winter resorts. In addition, it gives a summary of the Canadian customs regulations covering the entry of tourists' automobiles and outfits, and synopsis of the road rules, game laws and fishing regulations of the different Provinces.

"Vacations in Canada" may be obtained without charge, from the Natural Resources Intelligence Service, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada.

GOOD SERVICE.

It was a splendid record of useful service that President James Juby of the Peterborough Automobile Club was able to present at last night's dinner of the organization.

A summary of his report shows the following activities to the credit of the Automobile Club during the past year:

The maintenance of a tourist information bureau and the dissemination of information to club members, tourists and the public generally.

Co-operation with the Department of Highways in the safety campaign.

The erection during the past two years of 1,200 road signs, as well as the inspection and renewal of school signs in city and county.

The study and promotion of changes in the legislation affecting motorists in regard to a number of local conditions.

In short, the Peterborough Automobile Club has been active in many fields of service for the benefit of car-owners and of the public.

It has done much to add to the prestige of Peterborough as a tourist headquarters, to ensure safer driving conditions in city and country, and generally has been of valuable assistance to the community.

Its membership during the present year should show an increase preportionate to the service the organization has rendered.

There are not many kisses in evidence in the game of "postoffice" being played in Parliament just now.

THE GREAT DELUSION.

When Norman Angell wrote his famous book, "The Great Delusion," the thesis of which was that, economically, no nation could win a war, he was derided by the militarists. Yet if the last great conflict proved anything at all, it proved that Angell was right. In Paris this week a second reparations committee failed hopelessly in its purpose to re-delimit German reparations for the damages of the World War. With heads high, and showing no signs that they were the vanquished, the German delegates told the Allies that payment of even one-half the total sums demanded must be conditional upon abolition of the Danzig corridor, revision of the frontier of Upper Silesia, and immediate return of the Saar Valley to Germany.

Such things, of course, are impossible. They would never be accepted by France, regardless of any reparation that Germany might pay, and they would be anathema to Poland. They are, in fact, outside practical politics.

But if Germany, failing to secure such changes, refuses to pay, what then? How can she be made to pay? What method of coercion would be adopted? And what would be the effect of coercion upon the "spirit of Locarno?" Upon Germany's position in the League? Small wonder that Lord Revelstoke, the British delegate, worn out by his exertions to bring order out of chaos, and crushed by failure, went to his hotel and died! He had realized in an appalling way the pity and the awful folly of war.

The truth—all that has happened since 1918 bears testimony to it—is that war is a game in which both sides always lose. That being so, the lessons of the last Great War having been brought home with such terrible poignancy, it is up to all of us to try to do somcthing to prevent the recurrence of such another catastrophe.—Ottawa Journal

THE PEOPLE'S PRINCE.

If any proof were lacking of the value of the services rendered by the Prince of Wales in personally visiting the distressed British coal-fields in order to ascertain the actual conditions and, in the light of this knowledge, in issuing an appeal for support of the relief fund, it is to be found in the spectacle of A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, the fire-eating secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, standing opposite to the Prince at a function in the Mansion House in London and personally thanking him for what he had done. The force of this situation lies in the fact that Mr. Cook belongs to that group of Britishers, limited in number, which pretends to scoff at the Crown and to work in behalf of the world revolution which would overthrow the existing order of things. He is an extremist of the extremists, has been repudiated by the saner and less radical representatives of British labor and has frequently indulged in impassioned oratory directed against the present system of government. More than that, he was one of the principal instigators of the disastrous general strike of a few years ago and one of the "die-hards" who held out against any settlement upon a basis of give-and-take. Yet Cook—and evidently those for whom he speaks—has been so greatly impressed by what the Prince has done in behalf of the unemployed miners that he temporarily, at least, calls a truce, goes to a gathering at the Mansion House and there makes a point of thanking the heir to the throne for his efforts.

The incident is not without its significance in illustrating the hold which the Prince of Wales has upon the imaginations and affections of the British people of all ranks, stations, classes and beliefs. Extremists like Cook and his associates may rant and rave against existing British institutions and demand the substitution therefore of another system patterned after that of Moscow, but, in spite of all their fulminations and fomentations, they have to admit in the end that the Prince of Wales is a pretty good fellow and that his influence is constantly exerted in the right direction. Of a truth the Prince's tour of the distressed coal-mining districts has done more than possibly anything else to bring the world to a realization of the conditions under which the miners and their families have been struggling and to lead to a demand that something definite and adequate be done to improve their lot. Before the tour, the public was inclined to regard the situation with a considerable degree of complacency and to view it as a condition to correct which little could be done. But it was noticeable that almost from the moment that the Prince issued his memorable and ringing appeal for support of the relief fund, the contributions to that fund began to rise in a remarkable manner until finally they reached a figure sufficiently large to maintain the miners and their families for a certain length of time. Nor is there contentment merely with furnishing the miners with this temporary assistance. The British people to-day realize that, if the miners' wants are satisfied for the moment, their plight remains unrelieved, and if work is not found for them, it will only be a matter of time before another appeal in their behalf will be necessary. They are, consequently, demanding of the party which will assume power at the close of the impending general elections that it shall provide a permanent remedy for the unemployment problem, if that is possible, and that the country shall be no longer obliged to witness thousands of its citizens merely subsisting through lack of the work which they stand ready to perform. There is profound evidence of this general desire for a firm handling of the unemployment situation in the increasing support which is being accorded Mr. Lloyd George's proposals and in the corresponding decline in the popularity of the Baldwin Government. Many thousands of Britishers, without taking into account those who are out of work and unable to procure it, are out of all patience with the protraction of this distressing problem and are urging that steps be taken to bring it to an end. And it is highly probable that the Prince of Wales' personal interest in the welfare of the unemployed and of their families and his outspoken and clear-cut demand for a permanent solution of the difficult are chiefly responsible for this growing feeling. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

President Hoover declares that life and property are relatively more unsafe in the United States than in any other civilized country in the world—a striking indictment of conditions to come from the head of the nation.

The blockade against divorce bills in the House of Commons has been lifted. It was the wrong method of dealing with the problem and was needlessly delaying the business of Parliament.

The saying that woman's work is never done is becoming nearly true these days, with so many labor-saving devices to keep working.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

A Thought

CO-OPERATION

Can business be conducted in the spirit of unselfish service? Surely it can. The very nature of business is that it is service; and modern business is inherently co-operative. Every big industry contains many co-operating departments; and it only exists because people want what it produces.

It is, in its own nature, co-operation for public service. What is wrong, is the fact that the people engaged in it so largely insist on treating it as if it were in its own nature competition for private gain. The gain and the competition are incidental; the co-operation and the service are essential.—Archbishop Temple.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE THINK A PAINTING MORE BEAUTIFUL THAN A PHOTOGRAPH

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Before the days of the camera you had to be done in oil if you wanted to preserve a likeness of yourse'f. And of course the artist used his skill to improve on original nature. The camera being a mechanical affair and not subject to prejudice is more likely to tell the truth. The photographer may touch up a picture considerably but the camera itself is no respector of persons.

Perhaps this is one reason why even to this day a painted portrait is considered more valuable. A painter with real imaginaiton may do wonders for you.

Another reason why we think a painting is more beautiful than a photograph is that the painting is hand work. It is more expensive. A photograph, on the contrary is common and cheap.

We judge not only quality but beauty by its price.

Another illustration of this human trait is found in the fact that we think a winding walk through a level lawn is more beautiful than a straight walk. Everyone knows that the best way to get from one place to another is to go in a straight line. A curve in a walk is a device for getting around an obstruction. Where there is no obstruction we sometimes make one by planting a clump of trees or shrubs in the curve. When there is no obstruction the curve is meaningless and foolish.

What a curving walk in a level lawn really demonstrates is the ability to spend money in unproductive ways. It is the pecuniary standard to which the winding walk confirms and not any purely aesthetic standard that makes us think it beautiful.

Useless and unnecessary expenditure of money implies wealth beyond the bare necessities of our existence. It signifies that the spender is not governed by the law of hand-to-mouth. The majority of us have to be so everlastingly cautious in our expenditure and to count our pennies so carefully that it is a real treat and a delight to our aesthetic nature to see it squandered now and then.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Voice of the People

THE PICKEREL SEASON.

To Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The law under the Dominion Special Fishery Regulations for the Province of Ontario, in Sub-Section 2, Section 8, reads that the open season for the taking of wall-eyed pike (pickerel-dore) in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough and Durham, and the inland waters of the County of Northumberland, extends from the 1st of July to the 30th of September, dates inclusive.

You will note that this is the same open season as for maskinonge and black bass. This is by ruling of D. McDonald, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, December 7th, 1928.

By the above ruling I do not believe it is possible to take wall-eyed pike (pickerel-dore) until July 1st.

In a recent issue of The Examiner it was stated that the only closed season for wall-eyed pike (pickerel-dore) was in April.

Unless the above is receded, I do not believe it is lawful to catch these fish until July 1st.

FISHERMAN.

The following is a letter "Fisherman" received from the Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries:

"Sir,—With further reference to your letter of the 4th October last, I would advise that under the provisions of sub-section 2 of Section 8 of the Dominion Special Fishery Regulations for the Province of Ontario, the open season for the taking of pickerel in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough, and Durham and the inland waters of the County of Northumberland extends from the 1st of July to the 30th September, both days inclusive. You will note that this open season is similar to the open season on maskinonge and black bass.

"Under the provisions of sub-section 5, Section 13, of the same regulations, the taking of any fish in these four counties by means of a boat or any other floating device, or through the ice, is prohibited during the close season for the taking of bass and maskinonge."

I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

D. McDonald,
Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, per Assistant to Deputy Minister.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

For a moment she hated Mollie; for a moment she felt that she hated Anthony, too. Did he love her? and if he did—— With an effort she calmed herself.

"He does love me. I know he does! and I must trust him." After all, it would not be for long; soon he would belong to her altogether.

She destroyed Mollie's letter and did not answer it.

The day dragged, then came another endless, wakeful night.

In the morning, Miss Sawyer came down to breakfast with pitiably red and swollen eyes. "I have decided to go away for a holiday," she said frigidly.

Ana's heart leaped in dismay. "But not with me," were the words which rushed to her lips.

Miss Sawyer went on: "I have not had a real holiday for years. I shall go to Brighton to the Forsyths." The Forsyths were her cousins, a couple of spinster women very much like herself. "You will be able to look after the house perfectly well," she added.

Ana drew a sharp breath of relief.

"Of course," she said. "I am glad you are going away. A change will do you good."

She felt herself to be the veriest humbug; she knew that was not the reason she was glad her aunt was going away.

Miss Sawyer went on, unheeding the interruption:

"I shall send Martha for her holiday while I am away—unless you are afraid to be left alone in the house."

"I?—oh, no."

"Then I shall go to-morrow. I shall send my cousins a wire to-day." So that was that.

Ana did all she could to help Miss Sawyer get ready; she packed her frocks for her, and mended her stockings, and pressed her best coat.

"You're a fraud, a disgusting humbug," she told herself as she worked. "It's not because you are sorry for her, and want to help; it's because you are glad she is going."

Miss Sawyer went off on the morning train with a hundred last instructions about the aspidistra.

"If dear Benny were alive I should not be going," she said finally, and burst into tears as she got into the cab.

Martha sniffed sympathetically as she shut the front door.

"It seems hard," she said. "Benny was all she had to love in the world."

"I hadn't anything to love till I met Anthony," Ana thought. "And I've no right to love him, but I do—I always shall."

Martha went away in the afternoon. She had cleaned everything up, so she told Ana, and there would only be need to "dust round."

She gave Ana her address on the back of an old envelope.

"If you feel too lonely, and would like me back, miss, drop a card and I'll come," she said in kindly fashion.

Ana thanked her.

"But I shall be all right," she said. Still, the house seemed desolate without them both.

There was nothing to do. She went for a walk, but came back quickly in case there should be a letter from Anthony. How the hours dragged!

In the morning Mollie sent her a wire.

"Come and lunch with me."

Ana locked up the house and went. She did not want to go, but she knew it would pass the time.

She went to Mollie's hotel.

"Is Mr. Hambledon still here?" she asked, and her heartbeats seemed to quiver in her throat.

The maid shook her head.

"No, miss, he went away the day before yesterday."

Mollie was changing her frock; she looked tired, Ana thought, as they kissed. She tried to avoid that kiss, but could not.

"Anthony has been up," Mollie said without preamble. "I told you in my letter didn't I?—I didn't know he was coming. I thought he hated London, but that's like him—he always does the thing he says he will never do."

"I think most of us are like that," Ana said.

"He wasn't very nice," Mollie said frankly; there was a worried look in her eyes. "He seemed—quiet, somehow!" She powdered her pretty nose with too lavish a hand. "You know I never really understand Anthony," she confided. "Sometimes I think he's desperately fond of me, and desperately jealous, and at other times I don't think I matter to him any more than that does"—and she flung the powder puff down on the littered table.

"Don't you ever get married, Ana. It's a swindle, the whole thing."

"It depends upon whom one marries, doesn't it?" Ana said with an effort.

"Pooh! men are all the same after the first five minutes," Mollie declared. "If I had my time over again, I'd do very differently."

"Why, what would you do?"

"Marry a rich man for one thing," Mollie said candidly. "If you've got money, it helps when the glamour wears off, but if you haven't"—she shrugged her shoulders.

"When did—when did Anthony go back?" Ana asked.

"Oh, the next morning, and I'm going to-morrow." She turned round and looked Ana full in the eyes. "He ordered me to! did you ever hear such a thing?" she demanded indignantly. "And I was so surprised that I actually said I would go." She laughed. "Do you know, I believe if Tony played the cave man a little more often, I should fall in love with him all over again. It's his indifference I can't stand."

Ana felt as if someone had squeezed her heart; she looked round the room with jealous eyes.

Anthony had been here after he left her, after he had kissed her.

"Let's go and feed," Mollie said. She picked up her hat and rammed it on carelessly over her beautiful hair.

She always seemed to throw her clothes on, Ana thought, and yet she looked as if she had spent hours over her dressing.

They went down to the restaurant, and Ana told her about Benny and her aunt's grief.

Mollie laughed unfeelingly.

"I don't care for dogs," she said. "I don't really care for children, either. I shouldn't have minded a bit if I'd never had any." She caught Ana's eye and added hurriedly, "Of course, I love the General now I've got him."

"He's a darling," Ana said, and her heart ached.

Mollie ordered an extravagant lunch, but neither of them ate much.

Mollie looked restless and nervy, Ana thought; she talked all the time, and laughed a good deal, but she did not seem really happy.

"You've got thin," she told Ana. "Don't get thin, it doesn't suit you. You're the sort who will look old if you get too thin. Don't you hate being back at Wimbledon?"

"Yes, but I don't think I shall be there long," Ana said unthinkingly, then stopped and coloured.

Mollie laughed.

"Don't tell me you are going to marry Tom Drake?"

"Tom Drake?" Ana knit her brows Tom Drake had quite slipped from her memory. "Good heavens, no!" she said fervently.

"I thought he was nice," Mollie said.

"So he is, but I don't want to marry him, I don't want——" Ana broke off; she had been going to say "I don't want to marry anyone," but checked herself in time.

She wanted to marry Anthony—it was all she wanted in the world, but Anthony was already married, and to this girl who sat laughing and talking with her in such a friendly way.

She leaned back in her chair with a little sick feeling.

It was all horrible—horrible. She felt as if someone had thrown pitch all over something beautiful which she valued.

Supposing she never could marry Anthony? Supposing—there she was again, straining every nerve to look ahead into the future. Why could she not be content to wait, and leave everything to the man she loved. For the first time she was conscious of something very near despair. She had built a castle in the air, and lived in it for a few hours—but already the castle was tottering and threatening to fall. She was thankful when Mollie said she must go.

"It's been lovely seeing you, and I hate running away, but I've got an appointment at three," she said. Ana looked at her steadily.

"I saw you in a car the other day with Mr. Mahon," she said. She longed desperately to tell Mollie all the truth; to say "Anthony and I were together and Anthony knows everything, or thinks he does. He and I love each other. What are we going to do about it? Don't you care for him any more? Do you want to lose him?"

But she dared not.

Mollie flushed up to her pretty eyes, but she laughed.

"Did you? Poor old Ralph! He will run about after me. Of course, he has a pretty thin time with his wife."

She deliberately changed the conversation.

"How do you get back to Wimbledon? It's an awful long way out, isn't it?"

They parted outside the hotel.

"I'll tell Anthony I saw you," Mollie said.

Ana walked away without answering.

"Horrible, horrible," she told herself again, but hardly knew what she meant.

She felt guilty, as if she had been discovered in some crime. She tried to recall what Anthony had said to her, how he had looked, how he had held her hands and kissed her lips, but somehow it all seemed unreal and so far away. With him she had forgotten that he was Mollie's husband; now she could remember nothing else.

She went back to Wimbledon by the longest route. She felt she could not bear the silence of the house. Even poor old Benny would have been a welcome companion.

When she got home she made herself some tea. Her head ached, and she was surprised to find that her hands were trembling.

"I wish I hadn't seen Mollie," she thought angrily. "Why did I?—it was like being a Judas."

The postman's knock rang through the empty house, and Ana ran to the door. One letter lay on the mat. It was addressed in Anthony's writing. Ana picked it up and held it to her heart. She was conscious of a sudden reaction—a grateful reaction. It was as if he were with her again, holding her hand, chasing her fears away, showing her only the beauty and happiness of the future with him.

"I love him. I will never give him up," Ana told herself fiercely, and realized for the first time that since she left Mollie that afternoon there had been no other thought in her mind but that she must give him up, that she could not go on.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

In the busiest hours of this day a benefic aspect is strong, according to astrology, but the early morning may be unfortunate.

It is not a lucky day to begin anything important whether it is a new job or an artistic enterprise.

Whatever is constructive should benefit under this planetary government which encourages building and home-owning.

All the signs appear to presage great material prosperity which soon will concern itself with sweeping reforms.

Since the foundations of the nation may be undermined by the prevalence of crime, statesmen will rise to lead the people into paths that sweep away the unfit who corrupt good citizenship, the seers prophesy.

Again the stars seem to frown on aviation to the extent of retarding certain branches of development.

Both men and women should practice concentration while this configuration prevails, for the tendency will be toward lack of wise mental activity.

Under this rule the young should be protected from evil books and corrupting influences.

Thought should be safe-guarded at this time when wrong suggestions easily find harbor in the human mind.

It is not a favorable rule for wise decisions, and snap judgments should be avoided.

Oil again is subject to influences that seem to threaten changes of public interest where the management of great corporations is concerned.

This is not a lucky day for starting on sea voyages for there may be unexpected storms of great violence, astrologers foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year favorable to their work, although they may encounter difficulties in obtaining proper compensation. The year should be on the whole very prosperous, however.

Children born on this day may have large ideas regarding life and may be inclined to be extravagant, but they probably will possess the elements of supreme success.

Oliver Cromwell was born on this date, 1599. Charles Fayette Taylor, eminent judge, also claimed it as his birthday.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE OLD CROW

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

"Where are some of my old clothes," asked Uncle Wiggily of his wife one day. "An old ragged coat and a pair of trousers will do very nicely. I already have an old hat."

"For mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears. "What's the matter now? Are you going to a Hallowe'en party dressed like a tramp?"

"No," answered the rabbit gentleman, "Hallowe'en is a long way off and I'm not going to any party that I know of."

"Then you must want some old clothes to give to a poor tramp dog," went on the rabbit lady.

"No," and Uncle Wiggily laughed. "You would never guess so I will take pity on you and tell you. I want some of my old, ragged clothes to make a scarecrow. This morning I saw an old crow flying over the field where I have planted some early corn. I know that black bird is just waiting for a chance to dig up the kernels I have put under the ground. So I will make something to scare him."

"Yes, I would," said Mrs. Longears. "I'll get you some old clothes!"

A little later Uncle Wiggily was making a scarecrow, or image of himself, stuffed with straw and held up straight by a pole stuck in his corn field. With an old, tall silk hat on the head, a ragged coat and trousers filled with holes, the scarecrow, from a distance, looked just as if old Uncle Wiggily himself were standing there, with a big stick in his paws.

"There!" said the rabbit gentleman when he had finished making the stuffed figure. "I guess that will keep Old Crow away!"

Suddenly, behind him, Uncle Wiggily heard a sound like:

"Ha! Ha! Ha!"

"Who are you and what are you laughing at?" cried the rabbit as he hopped around.

"I am Old Crow, and I wasn't laughing. I was only singing," came the answer. And from the beak of a black bird perched on the fence came the cry of:

"Caw! Caw! Caw!" It really sounded like harsh laughter.

"Perhaps you were making fun of the figure I have just stuffed, Old Crow?" asked the rabbit.

"Not exactly laughing or making fun," cawed Old Crow. "That would not be polite, for the figure looks like you, Uncle Wiggily and I like you. But I could laugh, if I wished, for it is silly for you, or any other farmer rabbit, to think he can scare crows that way. We are too wise. We know the figures in the fields are only stuffed."

"Well, then," said Uncle Wiggily, "there is no use of all my work."

"No!" cawed the Old Crow. "But why do you want to scare me away from your field, Uncle Wiggily?"

"So you will not take all the corn

"What is it now?" asked the rabbit.

I have planted," answered the rabbit. "I want my corn to grow into ears that I and my little rabbits may eat it and have some to pop next winter. But you will pull it up before it grows if I do not stop you."

"Yes," cawed Old Crow, "I will eat a little of your corn, for I am hungry. But also, when I pull up corn, I pick and eat bad bugs and worms that would do more harm to your corn, after it is grown. So, in a way, I am helping you. I don't eat much corn, and I do eat a lot of bad bugs and worms."

"Ha!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, "I never thought of that. I'll take this figure down since it is of no use. And I'll put out a little pile of corn kernels each day, Old Crow. You can eat them along with the bad bugs and worms and leave the corn that I have planted alone."

"Yes, I'll do that," promised the black bird.

Then Uncle Wiggily took back to his bungalow the old coat and trousers that he had stuffed with straw to make a scarecrow. He was getting some kernels to put in a pile for the black bird to eat when, all of a sudden, the bunny heard once more:

"Caw! Caw! Caw!"

"What is it now?" asked the rabbit hopping out of his barn. He saw Old Crow flying toward him and dangling from the bird's beak was Uncle Wiggily's gold watch and chain.

"I found this on the ground where you had set up the scarecrow," cawed the black bird. "We crows have sharp eyes for finding anything that shines and I found this. Is it our?"

"Oh, why of course—yes!" cried Mr. Longears. "That's my watch that I have been looking for a long time. I must have left it in that old coat and it dropped out when I stuffed it for a scarecrow. Thank you, ever so much."

"Don't mention it!" cawed the black bird. Then an extra helping of corn was given to him and all summer he caught bad bugs and worms.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

The meeting of carnival chairmen was well attended last night, and plans were thoroughly discussed.

There wil lbe about a dozen booths and exhibits in the carnival, a splendid series of concerts arranged by the program committee, and features that will attract everyone. The auxiliary is being asked to take part. Volunteers are rolling up a big organization.

The ticket idea is unique, and will attract the public. Tickets are sold at ten cents each (everyone should buy at least five). Each ticket will admit one to the carnival, AND IS THEN GOOD FOR TEN CENTS. Each ticket may be paid into games, exhibits, concert and dance JUST LIKE A DIME.

The tickets will be on sale at the end of the week, by Legionnaires. The cause is a worthy one, and good value will be given for every dime invested.

Other branches of the Legion in this district are assisting, too, and a prominent provincial personage is expected to open the carnival.

It is planned to publish a detailed statement of the carnival immediately after its close, in order to show patrons what has been raised and how the money will be expended.

Every member of the Legion has been assigned to a committee, and the co-operation of the more than three hundred members will make the campiagn successful and easy for all.

Wives and daughters of members are also being asked to help. A personal letter is being sent them by the president.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL

CALMONT FINANCIAL POSITION.

Calmont capitalized $1,000,000, dollar par, issued 840,000. Deal for Dallas property which adjoins Home on basis of one Calmont share for three Dallas but exchange does not take place until well Calmont will drill is 15 feet in lime. Dallas shareholders may then purchase one new Calmont at par. Calmont has funds in treasury to take care of drilling program and has $150,000 in equipment, including two strings of cable tools, and in addition has a rotary outfit on order to drill well near Home.

UNITED OILS.

United Oils has not definitely decided to pay shareholders $4 dividend out of $1,000,000 received for sale of lease to Home Oil, but as matters now stand the proposal is likely to go through on May 1. When deal was closed $100,000 was paid and just recently Royal Bank notified United that the balance, $900,000, was waiting for them at Calgary.

AGAIN A PRODUCER.

Okalta No. 1 was brought under control by crew of men working 14 hours over gas and naptha gushing hole. They were soaked with naptha and a spark would have meant a catastrophe. One 240-foot section of casing was frozen solid with ice. This well was Turner Valley's second million-dollar hole. Calmont No. 1 is in close proximity.

MAYLAND.

Mayland directors have issued report outlining history both financial and operating. With No. 1 well nearing completion company has $100,000 cash and 80,000 shares in treasury and has 20 acres, of which 200 are conceded to be on the Southern Turner Valley structure.

FOOTHILLS.

Foothills No. 2 now drilling 35 feet above the lime.

ILLINOIS-ALBERTA.

Illinois-Alberta No. 2 has a small gas flow.

Royalite No. 20 was placed on production of crude oil from the McDougall-Segur sands during the week while production of naptha is being taken from the lime once more.

At Home No. 2 where the diamond drill is being taken into place in order that drilling for production in the lime may be started shortly. Preparations for the same end are also being made at this company's No. 3 well where the 6¼-inch casing has been run to the bottom of the hole.

Another 40 feet of hole remains to be cleared at the Calmont No. 1 following the short of nitro-glycerine fired in the hole a week ago, it was stated by an official of the company during the week-end. About 20 feet of the hole was cleared in the last two days but work was slow owing to the caving in of the lime which was broken up by the shot. The hole has been cleared to the 5,160-foot horizon, while the bottom of the hole is down 5,633 feet. The lost tools lie a few feet above the bottom of the hole, and it is to move these that the nitro-glycerine is being fired.

An official report of drilling progress at all the well being drilled in the Alberta oil fields by the Imperial Oil Limited has been issued to the Financial News Bureau for the former company. Royalite No. 12 is down to 3,980 feet; No. 14, 3,656 feet; No. 16, 5,060 feet; No. 17, 2,975 feet; No. 19, 4,318 feet; No. 20, 3,726 feet; No. 21, 3,726 feet and No. 23, 2,031 feet. Foothills No. 2 is at 4,293 feet and the No. 3 is down to 2,135 feet. Home No. 2 is at 5,353 feet; No. 3, 5,033 feet and the No. 4, 2,842 feet. The Northwest Associated is at 4,691 feet. The Highwood is down to 4,185. The Bow River has now reached a depth of 2,372 feet, and the Devenish No. 3 is down to a depth of 3,068 feet.

An increase of the capitalization of the Signal Hill Company was approved unanimously at a special meeting of shareholders on Friday morningfi states a wire from Miller, Court and Company's Calgary office, and the necessary action is being taken by the directors with the Dominion government in order that a stock issue may be made.

Following the completion of the heavy derrick for the Home No. 2 well and the diamond drill to be used to drill this well into production was being moved Friday. As the well was drilled into the lime with a standard outfit, it has been necessary to erect a stronger derrick for the diamond drill. Casing has been cemented in the lime and it is probable that drilling will be resumed as soon as the diamond drilling outfit has been installed.

REGATTA COMMITTEE.

There Will Be No Meeting Tonight—Announcement Was Wrong.

The announcement in yesterday's Examiner of a meeting of the regatta committee was mistaken. It was not authorized by the chairman or by any official. The committee will not meet to-night.

Canadian imports from the United States during 1928 were valued at $825,741,000.

A Special Service to the Examiner

Increased Earnings for Dominion Power

Hamilton.—The earnings statement of the Dominion Power and Transmission Co., Limited, of Hamilton, shows an increase in net earnings of $94,208 for the months of January, February and March of this year over the corresponding period of last year. This increase is largely due to the increased industrial activity in Hamilton and district and to more favorable operating conditions. Dominion Power and Transmission Company operates under the supervision of the Power Corporation of Canada.

Beauharnois Power Stock Issue Pending

It is understood that a syndicate headed by the Dominion Securities Corporation and by Newman, Sweezey and Company will make a stock offering this summer to finance construction of the big power project of the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company. According to the plan, the securities will be placed on the market this summer, a block to be placed in England.

Contrary to the statement prevalent a few weeks ago that the financing would take the form of two issues, is the report now made, that no particular plan has yet been decided on. Market conditions at the time of issuance may dictate the form of debentures to be offered, such as the extent to which rights will be offered.

In a development of the magntude of the Beauharnois project the annual fixed charges during construction will obviously be heavy, seeing that four summers will elapse before the undertaking will be finally completed. That is the one reason why it is not planned to arrange heavy capital expenditure this year. The material and construction equipment will be assembled on the ground in full preparation for operations next spring.

National Sewer Pipe Stock Offered

An offering of 30,000 shares of National Sewer Pipe Company Limited, $2.40 non-cumulative, convertible class "A" stock at $38.50 per share. The company has no funded debt, the capital to be outstanding comprising 40,000 no par value shares of class "A" and 43,000 no par value common shares.

The company includes the merger of three manufacturing companies, the Ontario Sewer Pipe and Clay Products Limited, the Dominion Sewer Pipe and Clay Industries Limited, and the Hamilton and Toronto Sewer Pipe Limited, as well as Clay Products Agency Limited. Plants are maintained in Hamilton, Mimico, Swansea and Aldershot.

Operations of the present company for the first quarter of this year have proceeded very satisfactorily, and while no figures are available it is understood that sales in the first three months were in excess of any previous quarter.

Ottawa. — Revenue freight loadings on Canadian railroads for the week ending April 13 amounted to 64,356 cars. This was 825 cars higher than the previous week, and continues the improvement apparent for the last two months. Compared with the corresponding week of last year, the increase was 5,297 cars.

Calgary advices are to the effect that liquidation of Highland Oil Co., Limited on Monday will start receiving Highland stock for conversion into Regent on basis of 9 Regent for 10 Highland. It is probable that Regent stock will be delivered to Highland shareholders by Wednesday.

DULL SESSSION MINE MARKET

Penny Stocks Register Light Gains in the Morning Trading.

OIL GROUP ACTIVE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 24 (C.P.).—After starting off in a brisk way, trading quieted down on the local mining market to-day and in the noon quotations little change was shown in prices. The penny stocks were generally stronger and a couple of the oil showed substantial gains but the higher-priced stocks remained unchanged.

Mayland Oil soared to a high of 16.00 with the noon price at 14.00 showing a net gain of 2.00, while Foothills gained 75 cents to 8.75.

Ajax Oil led the list in point of activity, selling up 10 cents to 87, while Keeley was up 4 at 43½, and Newbec strengthened 5 at 44. Amity, Manitoba Basin and Bathurst were all a little stronger. Big Missouri shot up 13 cents to 1.53.

Falconbridge Nickel lost practically all its gain of yesterday, dipping 45 cents to 11.05, while Sudbury Basin and Sherritt-Gordon were both off a little at 9.05 and 8.40 respectively.

LIST ADVANCES AT NEW YORK

Favorable Earnings Statements Provides Background For Upward Movement of Stocks.

CALL MONEY HIGHER.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 24 (C.P.).—Special dividend distributions and favorable earnings statements provided the groundwork for another broad advance in prices in to-day's stock market. The rally was temporarily checked before midday by the marking up of the call money renewal rate but offerings were well absorbed, and prices headed upward again in the early afternoon. Gains in the active issues ran from 1 to 11 points, with trading again in large volume.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent as against 7½ yesterday, but their seemed to be an ample supply of funds at that figure. There was only a nominal calling of loans during the early part of the day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad increased the annual dividend from $3 to $4, the annual rate on Calumet G. Arizona Copper was raised from $6 to $10.

Added Convenience For Bus Passengers

Another clock has appeared on the corner of Charlotte and George Streets. This clock does not tell the time of day but is for the convenience of bus passengers and has been placed on the north-west corner by the Border Cities Transit Company.

The clock has movable hands and tells when the next bus leaves the corner. The hands are fixed by the East City bus driver on his leaving

It was noticed that when the clock was first put up yesterday afternoon some citizens were comparing its time with the city clock in some anxiety.

The officials of the bus company state that similar clocks may be placed at the terminals of the lines.

WALKERS TO SPLIT STOCK

Holders Get Right To Buy New At $15 On Basis of One New For Each Old.

VALUABLE RIGHTS COMING.

TORONTO, Ont., April 24 (Canadian Press).—Anncuncement of a three-for-one split in the stock of Hiram Walker - Gooderham and Worts, together with valuable rights, was made here yesterday, following the special meeting of the directors.

The rights will take the form of the privilege to subscribe for one new share of the split stock at $15, for each share of the old stock now held. There will be no increase in the amount of dividend received by individual holders, though, as a result of the stock readjustment, the new rate will be 25 cents quarterly on the new stock. The present rate is 75 cents quarterly on the old stock.

While the directors agreed to the above change in Walkers' capital structure, it will doubtless be some time before the shares can be transferred. A special general meeting of the shareholders will be called as soon as practicable to authorize the action of the directors, but there appears to be little doubt the approval of the move will be extended as Walkers has been called for a long time for a split.

ENGINEERS WILL MEET ON THURSDAY

W. C. Dancey, of Montreal, Will Give An Address On Telephotography.

A meeting of the Peterborough Branch, Engineering Institute of Canada will be held to-morrow, April 25. The special speaker for this meeting is W. C. Dancey, transmission maintenance engineer of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Montreal, whose subject, "Telephotography" should be of particular interest at the present time when such systems are becoming more and more commercial propositions.

The meeting will be held at 8.15 p.m. in the Paragon Tea Rooms and visitors will, as usual, be welcome.

SCOTCH NIGHT.

Entertaining Program Presented At Meeting Of All Saints' A.Y.P.A.

On Monday evening All Saints' A.Y.P.A. held their nominations of officers for the year. Following the nominations a very pleasant Scottish evening was given under the direction of Miss E. Young. Those assisting in the program were:

Violin selections—G. Gatfield.
Accompanist, Stanley Northrop.
Humorous talk, Rev. A. H. McConnachie.
Vocal solos by Mrs. Anderson and Mr. Anderson.
Accompanist, Miss M. Rome.
Scottish dance. Mr. Thompson, accompanist on bagpipes, Mr. Milne.
Reading, Mr. J. John.

Refreshments were then served and an enjoyable evening brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

HIRAM WALKERS LEADS TRADING TORONTO CURB

Heavy Demand For Walkers Following Announcement of Stock Split.

PRICE CHANGES SMALL.

International Nickel Unchanged At Noon Hour in Light Turnover.

TORONTO, Ont., April 24 (Canadian Press). — Hiram Walkers monopolized the interest in an otherwise listless session on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. There was no definite trend to the general list, and changes were very small. Following the announcement of the stock split in Walkers, the demand for stock became so heavy that traders, for a time, found it difficult to get a market on any other stocks. In a turnover of more than 16,500 shares, the original stock reached a high of 84, with the noon price at 83½, showing a clear gain of 3½ points. Walker Rights were heavily traded in between 10.00 to 12.00, while the new stock was active at 25.50 to 25.75.

International Nickel failed to draw its usual attention and in a very light turnover held unchanged at 50¼. Hayes Wheels advanced 2 to 65, while City Dairy was up at 75, Tip Top 1 at 40, and McColl-Frontenac 1 at 35½. The other oils were mostly unchanged.

Gypsum and Alabastine lost a further 2 points to 110, while Photo Engravers at 35 and Dufferin Paving at 31 were both off one point.

There are more students for the ministry in Chicago than in any other city in the world.

TRINITY CLUB HOLDS BANQUET

Good Program Provided By Members of United Church Club.

REVIEW OF WORK.

Last evening in Reid Street Hall of Trinity United Church about one hundred and twelve young people enjoyed the closing banquet of Trinity Club.

A splendid and edifying after-dinner address was given by R. J. Kidd and the success of the program was contributed to by Miss Trucie Pearson, who sang Cyril Scott's "Blackbird Song" in her usual excellent manner; a symphony trio by Messrs. Green McFarlane and Thackeray was an excellent fine number, also a fine reading "The Fairies of Kaladen-roe" by Miss Helen M. Ross, assisted at the piano by Miss Francis McFadden.

In closing, Mr. Wren, pastor, gave a brief resume of the club's work during the year, the success of which was emphasized by the exceptionally large attendance at their closing banquet."

FORGER GETS FOUR YEARS

William Montgomery is Sentenced to Four Years in Portsmouth.

FIVE CHARGES.

William J. Montgomery, with numerous aliases, and wanted in many cities over the continent, was sentenced to four years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary by Magistrate Langley—this for all five of his forging operations in this city. He was sentenced on each count, but the sentences will run concurrently.

BUILDING IS BEING RAZED

Workmen Tearing Down Walls of Old Kingan Hardware Store.

INTERIOR DISMANTLED.

Work on the dismantling and razing of the old Kingan hardware store in preparation for the erection of the new Kresge building on the same site is being pushed with great speed. Already the interior of the store has been entirely dismantled and the boarding along the street for the protection of pedestrians, begun yesterday, will be finished within a few hours.

A few workmen are engaged at the rear in tearing down the walls of one of the brick outbuildings, clearing the way for the big job of taking all four walls of the main walls down brick by brick.

M. Maloney, foreman on the job for the Sullivan and Fried Company, of Toronto, who have the contract, stated that he expects the whole building will have been razed to the ground by the end of the next two weeks. In all he figures that there will be 150,000 bricks taken from the building. Of this number about 90,000 will go back in the new structure and the remainer will be sold. The materials from the store are being placed at the rear of the Lockworks plant.

The difficulties of the job are being increased," said Mr. Maloney, "because it is necessary to remove from the property every load of material immediately on taking it down."

"We can't get those kind of joists to-day," said the foreman, as he pointed to one of the 2 by 10 joists that had been removed from the roof of the building. "Those joists are as good as new and they have likely been in that building for fifty years or more."

CABLE RESTORED.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 24 (Canadian Press).—The Halifax and Bermudas cable, which has been down for some time, has been restored, re-establishing direct communication between Canada and the British West Indies, via Bermuda.

SAINT HONORED.

Day of Patronal Saint Observed By Members of St. George's Church.

At St. George's Church the day of the Patronal Saint was observed yesterday in a memorable way. The day opened with a celebration of Holy Communion at 9 o'clock. The flag bearing the cross of St. George floating over the porch reminded those passing of the significance of the day. In the evening, members of the Men's Club were entertained to supper by the joint organizations of the Ladies' Guild and Woman's Auxiliary. A few weeks ago the men decided to make a canvass of the Parish for increased funds to carry on the work of the church. The ladies decided to show their appreciation of the efforts of the men and the success attending those efforts in a manner always acceptable—namely by a banquet at 6 o'clock about thirty people gathering at the well filled tables, the chief item on the menu being the "roast beef of Old England." After the banquet which came the toast list presided over by Rev. J. L. Hughes. The first toast to the King was duly honored by all joining in the National Anthem.

The toast to the "Church" was proposed by A. Cuff (Rector's Warden), the Rector responding. A. Sims (People's Warden) proposed the toast to "England and the Empire." J. M. Brownlee responding. The next toast was to the "Gentlemen." This was proposed by Mrs. T. Monk (president of Guild), and responded to by G. Parkes. The last toast, to the "Ladies," which also included a vote of thanks, was proposed by A. Thomas (president of Men's Club), the gentlemen following this by singing "They are jolly good fellows." Mrs. J. M. Brownlie (president of W.A.) replied.

Immediately following the supper, the whole company adjourned to the church, where evensong was said. This was followed by another adjournment to the basement, where games and a social time passed the evening. Refreshments were served at the close.

NORDON CORPORATION LIMITED is a Canadian company, acquiring the property of Nordon Corporation and other valuable oil leases and royalties, deriving substantial present income from existing oil fields of the United States, directed by technical and practical talent of the highest order, which will largely devote its efforts to development of oil in the fields of Western Canada. Nordon Corporation had its inception early in 1928, to acquire exceptional opportunities in various oil districts of Canada and the United States, under the guidance of Mr. C. G. Willis and associates.

PROPERTY HOLDINGS:—Leases on 24,000 acres and royalty under 76,800 acres on seventeen distinct oil areas of the United States, and 10,000 acres in prospective valuable areas in Western Canada. United States royalty interests include portion of landowner's royalty in one of the finest leases in the Santa Fe Springs field of California. Five wells have here been completed to recently discovered deep and very prolific sands, and thirteen more wells are drilling on the company's royalty acreage. In New Mexico, company owns royalty under 70,000 acres, in the latest producing oil area in the United States. In Texas, the latest major producing field in the United States, company owns leases on 7,500 acres in Midland county, part of which is now being drilled on acreage-division basis by some of the larger operating companies of the industry; leases on 2,500 acres in Crockett county, where 2,500 checkerboarded acres, transferred on acreage-division basis, is being drilled by Marland Oil Co. and W. A. Moncrieff, and where within the past few days one well reached the sands and was bailing at the rate of 288 barrels daily, with prospects that a big producer would be brought in; leases on 960 acres in Pecos county, on the Fort Stockton "high"; and leases on 1,000 acres in Ward county on the Soda Lake structure. In Oklahoma, one-half of royalty under 160 acres on top of a large core-drill structure in the Wilcox sand area, where Marland Oil Co. owns the leases on Nordon royalty acreage. In Kansas, acreage in the vicinity of the recent discovery just north of Wichita, Central Kansas. In Ohio leases on 80 acres in eastern part of state, where a well within one mile has just come in with yield of 100 barrels of high-gravity Pennsylvania crude. Other royalties and leases are under option or negotiation in Santa Fe Springs field and in other fields in Texas and New Mexico.

PRESENT REVENUES:—Royalty revenue from five wells in Santa Fe Springs field will presently be at rate of $300,000 per annum, and rate is expected to reach $500,000 per annum before the end of this year, as thirteen more wells are being drilled on royalty leases. Further revenues are expected from Texas and New Mexico fields from wells now drilling.

FINANCES:—Upon completion of this present financing the company will have in excess of $1,100,000 in its treasury.

INTENSIVE CANADIAN OPERATIONS:—The immediate objective of the Corporation is large expansion of its operations in the prospective fields of Western Canada, where its staff, in possession of valuable geological data, believes some of the most important structures on the continent may be developed.

PRINCIPLES OF OPERATIONS:—The principles which have been and will be followed by the Corporation in building up revenues necessary for execution of its policies, used with marked success by the great royalty companies of the United States, will be rigidly adhered to, thus eliminating, in largest measure, drilling operations—the most costly and most hazardous branch of the industry. Leases and royalties will be negotiated over a wide spread, thus minimizing hazard of loss and increasing the chances of big success.

The Corporation is not a drilling company and will confine its operations in that direction solely to offset drilling where such operations are imperatively demanded in protection of its holdings.

PERSONNEL:—The standing of the directors of Nordon Corporation is of the highest order. President and General Manager Glen M. Ruby is acknowledged to be the outstanding authority upon the prospective fields of Western Canada, with the widest experience in continental oil affairs. Managing Director C. G. Willis stands equally high in the Southwest and is generally accorded a portion of the credit for discovery of several of the important fields in the Los Angeles Basin. From time to time, announcements will be made regarding the personnel of a Board of Consultants, which will include oil experts of continental and international reputation.

Application will be made for listing on Eastern and Western Stock Exchanges.

TOM DUTTON IS NEW PRESIDENT OF AUTO CLUB

were brought from the wharf to the Empress Hotel; also, a great many of them were taken on a pleasure drive lasting about an hour prior to their assembling for dinner in the evening.

"Legislation affecting motorists claimed the attention of the executive council on several occasions. Locally, the club recommended to the City Council their reconsideration of some phases of the present traffic by-law, particularly the sections having to do with the "no left hand turn" at the corner of Charlotte and George streets, and the "no parking" regulation relating to certain sides of streets in the business section. The City Council, after consideration, saw fit to rescind the "no left hand turn" regulation and the new by-law, permitting the left hand turn, has since been approved by the Department of Public Highways. A committee of the council has been appointed to consider the various phases of the traffic by-law which are under consideration and it is expected that during this spring a solution will be found regarding the different sections under dispute. Provincially, all the automobile clubs have had before them the matter of the increase in the gasoline tax which, up to the present, has not been accompanied by any reduction in the cost of license plates. Some relief in 1929 is hoped for. When one considers, however, that during 1928 the Government expended some $21,000,000.00 in road building, and received in revenue from the sale of license plates, the tax on gas, and so forth, only approximately $11,000,000.00, it is not surprising that it was found impossible to reduce the cost of license plates for this year.

Endorses Council's Policy

"At a meeting held September 27, 1928, the club forwarded a resolution to the City Council in appreciation of their general forward policy regarding the improvement of city streets. Besides adding to the paved mileage in the city, the council improved a number of corners which were difficult from the standpoint of the motorist and of general safety, and the club felt that the occasion should not pass without recognition being made.

"We also have taken up with the City Council the matter of adding cooking appliances and showers to the city's tourist camp. We consider these utilities necessary if we are to compete for tourists with neighboring municipalities, some of which have tourist camps located at the water's edge and of the most modern type, having all essential conveniences for the comfort of the touring motorist.

"In closing, I should like to express, on behalf of the club, our hearty appreciation of the support given us by the press. The Examiner has shown its loyalty and aided our organization in many ways by taking an active part in the programs which we are desirous of carrying out.

"I want to thank my board of directors for their support; also the secretary and staff, as without their general interest and co-operation it would have been impossible for me to carry on and, as far as was possible, direct the activities of the club for the two years during which I have been president.

Then there was a brief but satisfactory treasurer's report, submitted by F. G. Stinson, and President Juby called upon the first speakers of the evening, who each occupied a few minutes.

Alderman Nagel E. Phelan, chairman of the finance committee of the City Council, as the official representative of the city, welcomed the visitors and speaker from Toronto, congratulated the officers of 1928 on a successful year and concluded by predicting a banner year for the Peterborough association in 1929.

Suggests Gate

Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the Canadian Automobile Association, accused of being the originator of the used car business, replied in humorous vein. He had always felt a deal of pleasure in visiting Peterborough, the Gateway to the Kawartha Lakes, and felt that the people of this city should attempt to make a lasting impression on her visitors by means of an artistic entrance.

Introduced Visitor

R. H. Turner's pleasant duty was the introduction of L. B. Howland, president of the Ontario Motor League and of the Canadian Automobile Association in the one year of 1916. Mr. Turner, himself a past president of the Peterborough Automobile Association, discharged ...at duty most acceptably.

Mr. Howland, speaking, recalled a visit to Peterborough in 1879—he and a boyhood chum wheeling old high-wheeled bicycles from Toronto in 15 hours. While here, they entered in a race at the Exhibition grounds against one competitor from Omemee.

When next he came, it was in his first Ford car, during the year 1900, and that trip from Toronto had required eleven hours, due to many stops out of respect for farmers driving horses. Speaking in the present, Mr. Howland mentioned faulty headlights, parking problems in cities, and finally railroad crossings, as three main issues yet to be satisfactorily disposed of. He felt that there was one thing which should be taken up—the matter of uniform signals for locomotive drivers to use in approaching crossings. A specially placed siren on the front of the locomotive, he felt, would be of genuine assistance.

Mr. Robertson Speaks

F. G. Stinson, secretary of the Peterborough Association, spoke briefly in troducing W. G. Robertson, secretary - treasurer of the Ontario Motor League and the Canadian Automombile Association.

Mr. Robertson spoke briefly of the Ontario Motor League, whose success he attributed to the activities of the many branch organizations throughout the province. He touched on the league's emergency road service department, quoting statistics to show that an average of 1,000 emergency calls were received each month this year by Toronto garages alone who give O.M.L. emergency service. This total he divided to show the varied causes for the calls and went on to emphasize the value of the league's legal service branch.

Mr. Phelan Speaks.

Harking back to the Ontario Motor League's origin in the old Toronto Automobile Club, T. N. Phelan first told of the valuable service given by that organization in promoting a proper public respect for the rights of others on the highway. A gradual tendency to the giving of more personal service to league members has resulted in such departments as the legal branch coming into existence.

"In addition to the emergency road service," continued Mr. Phelan, "the League has co-operated with the Department of Public Highways in the promotion of a safety campaign which is likely to be repeated this year owing to its good effects in 1928.

"Since more than one million motor cars of non-residents travelled our highways last year we have many problems peculiar to this situation, some of them problems of international relationship. Yet another serious matter is the prevalence of accidents at railway grade crossings. The League has been successful in persuading authorities interested to have grade crossings inspected with a view to greater safety.

"The local clubs are, so to speak, the nerve centres of the main body, and they may give valuable service to tourists, especially. There are other problems, such as the question of a minimum speed on the highways which the League is interested in promoting now, with a view to facilitating highway traffic. Also, due to the League's efforts, there are fewer speed traps, and more constructive assistance is given by police officers.

"The League has also advocated proper uniforms for highway police, so that when a motorist is stopped at night, he will not be under the suspicion that he is being held up by a highwayman."

Mentions Insurance.

Speaking of automobile and motorists' insurance, Mr. Phelan declared that it was just as desirable, if not more so, to have insurance for protection against accidents on the highways, as to have insurance against fire on building property, because the dangers of accidents are far more numerous than are those of fire. He went on to speak of the many abuses which might grow out of indiscriminate compulsory insurance, and of the wrong impressions which people frequently gain regarding the settlement of claims. He predicted an insurance branch within the Ontario Motor League.

As a matter of fact, he felt personally that the Government should set aside a fund for the settlement of claims where the victim of an accident is unable to collect from the often moneyless second party in the accident.

Should Reduce Fees.

"During the past fifteen years, the Government has expended $200,000,000 on roads in the province, but we cannot see where the motorist should have to bear more than his share of the expense incurred," said Mr. Phelan. "While we are not protesting the increased gasoline tax, still, the League feels that license fees should be reduced accordingly, and it is up to you automobile clubs to urge this reduction most vigorously," he declared.

The speaker also dwelt upon the recent action of the Legislature in repealing that section of the Motor Vehicles Act so that a man should not be held responsible for damage done by his car unless while it is in his control or the control of his servants. Previously he was held responsible even if the car were being driven by a thief. It is the League's intention to lessen the necessity for the motorist to prove that any accident in which he may figure, was accidental on his part, at the present time the onus is on the motorist. In conclusion, the speaker complimented the local club on its year of progress.

Following Mr. Phelan's address and the installation of the officers, James Dutton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, moved the vote of thanks to the speaker and the musical contributors, while Dr. J. J. Craig ably seconded his motion.

BRIDGE RULES.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — H. N. Carr did his share to liven up the Rotary luncheon Monday when he presented fifteen rules which, he claimed, simplified the game of bridge and made it much more interesting. But there was a condition or at least a suggestion added after the fifteenth commandment. It was to the effect that life insurance might be a good investment before starting to play the game according to the rules he was about to lay down. At first the Rotarians were inclined to take the matter seriously and almost every man held up his hand as a bridge player of sorts, when Carr asked how many understood the game.

The Fifteen Rules.

1. Pick up your cards as dealt. You will be ready to bid ahead of the others.
2. If your hand is rotten, mention it. It will guide your partner in his bid and play.
3. If your partners bids first, don't hesitate to raise. He has to play it.
4. Never hurry. Try several cards on a trick until you are sure which one you prefer.
5. Occasionally ask which one is trump. It will show that you are interested in the game.
6. Don't show lack of interest when you are dummy. Help your partner with your suggestions.
7. Walk around the table when you are dummy and look at the other hands. Tell them what cards are good and how many tricks they can take if they play right.
8. Talk about other subjects during the game. It makes good fellowship.
9. Feel free to criticize your partner. He will do much better as a result.
10. Always trump your partner's cards. Never take a chance.
11. Don't try to remember the rules. Its too confusing.
12. If it is a money game, always stop when you are ahead. It will leave a lasting impression and folks will remember you.
13. Always explain your plays, particularly when set. It shows your card knowledge.
14. Disagree with established rules and conventions. People will know you are a person of independent mind.
15. Eat chocolates, carmels or other adhesive candy while playing. It keeps the cards from skidding.

White Swans Are Reported In Vicinity Of Mud Lake

TRENT RIVER, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Three white swans of a most rare variety have been recently seen near Tree Island at the head of Mud Lake by various hunters and residents. The swans appear to be going to spend the summer in Trent district and according to the oldest residents this variety of birds have not been seen in the Trent River for years. James Keller of Healey Falls, who is 88 years old, states that he has been able to get within 50 yards of the birds who appear to be quite tame. Residents of the district are quite indignant at hunters whom they have heard discharging fire arms in the vicinity of where the swans are and have more than once issued warnings that the law protects this variety of birds and the penalty for shooting them is very heavy.

Trent River

TRENT RIVER, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—There was a large attendance at the United Church services on Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. R. Archer chose as his text, "Elijah."

Personals.

The many friends of Mrs. W. R. Archer will regret to learn that she underwent an operation in a hospital in Toronto on Wednesday of last week.

Miss Fleda Wildman has made a good recovery from her recent illness and is able to be out and around again.

The Misses Laura and Agnes Wight of Peterborough were home for the week-end.

Chronic Bronchitis

Templeton's RAZ-MAH gives the most wonderful relief.

After 30 years' Chronic Bronchitis, John Hales, Port Bolster, Ont., got relief. Mr. Hales heard of RAZ-MAH through a friend. The friend knew RAZ-MAH because it had relieved his father's Asthma. Mr. Hales says: "I recommend RAZ-MAH to anyone suffering from Chronic Bronchitis or from Asthma." Guaranteed relief from a $1.00 box or money back. At your druggist's. 124

CONTINUES PROGRAM ALTHOUGH INJURED

Metropolitan Prima Donna Received Painful Injuries in Vienna.

VIENNA, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Maria Jeritza, Metropolitan Opera Company prima donna, received painful injuries in the course of a performance of 'Cavalleria Rusticana' at the State Opera House last night. She threw herself down the church steps on the stage with such violence the flood flowed freely from a cut.

The prima donna, undaunted by the injury, continued to sing until the curtain was lowered. Then she fainted. A physician administered restoratives, and then bandaged her arm.

She insisted upon resuming her role in the short opera, and continued singing with her usual verve and brilliancy.

FOND MEMORIES OF MOTHERLAND ARE RECALLED

Britisher can get on if they will work" said the speaker. "To love this new land does not cause us to love the Old Land less. If the little island can influence the world so greatly, what influence will so large a country as Canada exert, when we get established?" he asked. But he warned his audience that "we must retain the spirit and courage of Merry England and character of St. George."

In telling of the aims and objects of the Sons of England, E. A. Peck M.P., said that the order was first founded in Toronto in 1874 and the local lodge was established in 1882. The objects were to retain the Christian religion, extend a kindness and brotherly interest in other Englishmen and to preserve the connection between Canada and England.

"Canada was given to us as trustees for its development" said Mr. Peck.

Citizenship Needed

"Peterborough is one of the finest cities in Canada and it depends upon each individual on whether it will progress or fall behind" said Mayor Denne. After telling of each individual's importance in the community he told of the need for better hospital accommodation at Nicholls' Hospital and expressed the hope that the children of the city would have proper bathing facilities at Inverlea Park by the voters supporting the by-law.

During the course of the evening S. Willis sang several solos, "England My England" and "Land of Hope and Glory" in splendid voice.

Fred L. Roy delighted the audience with several reels of his Overseas pictures showing many scenes in England of which the people present were most familiar with.

Charles Coleman as host was called upon to say a few words. Mr. Coleman stated that he had particularly celebrated the day, since it was the twenty-fifth anniversary of his landing on Canadian soil.

After having expressed the appreciation of the Sons of England to the speakers, Mr. Roy and all who had aided in the success of the banquet Mr. Lemon ended the happy celebration of St. George's Day within a half hour of midnight.

The rate of tax applicable to Corporations and Joint Stock Companies is eight (8) per centum on the income in excess of $2,000.

After April 30th the law imposes penalties for delay

If you have not already declared your 1928 income for Dominion Taxation purposes, do so without delay. You have only a few days left.

You may pay your tax in one lump sum, or in instalments, plus interest. Every person liable to pay Dominion Income Tax should obtain three copies of the official form, either from his Postmaster or from the Inspector of Income Tax in his district. These forms are:

Form T 1 —For all individuals, other than farmers or ranchers.
Form T 1A—For farmers or ranchers.
Form T 2 —For corporations and joint stock companies.

Note carefully the instructions on the form. Fill in all details accurately and answer all questions. Make up the amount of your tax. You can do this with the help of the accompanying table. Mail two copies, properly filled in and signed, to the Income Tax Inspector for your district, together with an accepted bank cheque or money order for the full amount of your tax, or for the first instalment. Keep the third copy for your own reference. Be sure to have these returns mailed before April 30.

Personal Exemptions

Personal exemptions should be noted carefully. They may be summarized as follows:

(a) $3,000 in the case of a married person or householder, or any other person who has dependent upon him any of the following persons:

1. A parent or grand-parent.
2. A daughter or sister.
3. A son or brother under 21 years of age; or incapable of self-support on account of mental or physical infirmity.

Note—Where husband and wife each have a separate income in excess of $1,500, then each shall receive not $3,000 exemption, but $1,500 exemption.

(b) $1,500 in the case of unmarried persons.

(c) $500 for each child under 21 years of age who is dependent upon the taxpayer for support, or if 21 years of age or over is incapable of self-support on account of mental or physical infirmity.

Send Only Accepted Cheques or Money Orders

Dominion Income Tax may be paid in a lump sum on or before April 30, or the taxpayer may pay one-quarter of the estimated tax due on or before April 30, and the balance in three equal, bi-monthly payments, together with interest at 6 per centum per annum. If the taxpayer adopts the instalment plan of payment and fails to pay instalments as they fall due, additional penalty interest will be added.

A cheque marked accepted by the bank on which it is drawn or money order for either the full amount, or the amount of the first instalment, must accompany the official forms.

Cheques must be made payable to "The Receiver-General of Canada." Do not send cash.

Mail forms together with cheque to the Inspector of Dominion Income Tax for your district.

No Extension of Time

If you delay making Income Tax Returns for any reason, the penalties must be imposed.

In cases of absence from home, or inability to sign the return for any other cause, your accountant, or your solicitor, or your partner, or your agent may sign for you and save you the penalty. No extension of time will be granted.

Public Co-Operation Asked

The Department's Inspectors will be glad to advise any taxpayer in preparing returns.

The Department desires the co-operation of the public in administering the Income War Tax Act.

Rev. Father Cloran Delivers Address On 'Death' To Women At St. Peter's Mission.

NOTHING SO UNCERTAIN.

Hearers Are Asked to Meditate On Their Folly and Prepare For Life to Come.

Taking for his text the words of Ecclesiasticus, "In all thy works remember thy last end, and thou shalt never sin," Rev. Father Cloran spoke on the subject of death to another large congregation of women in St. Peter's Cathedral last evening.

"We read in history that when the Roman conquerors returned from their conquests, a certain order of march was religiously observed. First came the captives taken in battle, then the huge cars or chariots of the victors laden with the spoils of war. These were followed by the victorious army, singing and shouting the praises of their hero, and finally the hero himself. In the midst of it all a curious part fell to the lot of a simple slave. He was made to take his stand next to the conqueror's chariot and as the monster parade advanced he was instructed to raise his voice above the din, and cry out these strange words: "All will soon pass away—honor and glory, pleasure and riches, even life itself."

"My dear women, in our more or less triumphant march through life there is a voice periodically crying out to us these self same words—'All will soon pass away, honor and glory, pleasure and riches, even death itself.' It is the voice of death! The question is have we heard it? Alas, no! the majority of people have not They seem to think that death will never come. They live as if death had nothing to teach them. Let us like reasonable, intelligent beings, not to say like Christians and Catholics, meditate on their folly, and let us see that death shall surely come, that we know not when nor where, nor how it shall come, and that we would do well to live in constant prepaartion for it."

Death Shall Surely Come

"It received its instructions 6,000 years ago. It was told to strike down every living creature that should come into this world. For 6,000 years it has obeyed. No one has escaped, no one shall escape. It has no preferences, no favorites. If it strikes the old, it also strikes the young. If it takes the poor, it also takes the rich. If it visits the hovel, it also visits the mansions and palaces of the great. One and all it takes and casts prostrate to be the food of vermin and filthy worms."

"Why mention these things? They are truisms. You have never questioned them. No one has ever questioned them. Fools there are and fools there have been to question the most evident and most elementary things of life—the existence of God, of the soul, of heaven, of hell, but there never yet was man or woman fool enough to question the existence of death. It is the one thing we are all agreed on. It is the one thing we are absolutely sure of. Yet, in spite of all this, there is nothing so uncertain as death. We know it will come, but when, and where and how? These are mysteries.

"We imagine that if we knew we would prepare. To reason in this manner is absurd. Now that we do not know, we have more reason to be prepared than ever.

"Death is the echo of life. It is not hard to lead a good life, for our Divine Lord has said: "My yoke is sweet and my burden light." All that is required is good will. The good will to love God above evrything to keep God's commandments, to receive God's sacraments— the good will to pray, and God will do the rest."

categories into which ships of war should be divided."

"On this point His Majesty's government have noted with much interest the new criteria suggested by Mr. Gibson. They attach great importance to the possibilities opened by his suggestion to the adjustment of the agreed naval strength to the different circumstances of the two powers."

In Police Court

It was a long and busy session in Police Court this morning, and the city's coffers will be enriched by the fines levied by the Magistrate on four local young men, who pleaded guilty to being in an intoxicated condition whilein a public place.

Charles Fleetwood pleaded guilty to being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle, and was sentenced to seven days in the common jail.

Another local man, angry at having his friend arrested, made his protestations so loud and strong that he, too, was arrested and pleaded guilty to the charge of conducting himself in a disorderly way. He was fined $5.00, and costs.

Lighten your fall burden of bills by laying in your Coal Supply Now

HOUSEHOLDERS who maintain their homes on fixed income, as the great majority do, find it wise to spread their fixed expenses as evenly as possible over the year.

Coal, unlike some other commodities, can as safely be bought in the Spring months — when household expenses are lightest — as in the Fall months, when the "peak-load" comes.

And the dealer's coal stocks are always complete, with no "style element" to be considered; moreover, anthracite—stored by nature for a million years before it is mined—does not in any degree deteriorate in your cellar.

Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite has just entered its 109th consecutive year as America's premier home-heating fuel. History of Peterborough

Chapter II.

THE IMMIGRATION OF 1825

Not only was the town of Peterborough without a single inhabitant in the Spring of 1825, save Mr. Scott, the proprietor of the mill and a workman or two who assisted him, but the settlers in the adjoining townships were few, and their prospects far from encouraging. Two families only were settled in Douro, those of Robert Reid, Esq., and the Honorable Thomas Alex Stewart, afterwards a life member of the Legislative Council of Upper Canada. Besides the little colony in Smith already referred to, a few adventurous settlers had found their way into Otonabee, Asphodel, Monaghan and Emily, but very little land had been brought into cultivation. The country languished and many even of the best settlers felt despondent as to the prospects of the future.

Up till this period the entire number of settlers occupying the townships north of Rice Lake did not exceed five hundred. During the autumn of that year a large accession was made to their numbers by an Emigration on an extensive scale chiefly from the south of Ireland, conducted by the Honorable Peter Robinson, under the auspices of the British government, which greatly conduced to the speedy settlement and improvement of the country. Four hundred and fifteen families availed themselves of the advantages thus afforded them, comprising in all 2,024 souls.

The ships laden with the emigrants sailed from Cork in May, 1825, and after a very speedy passage, in only one case exceeding 31 days, arrived at Quebec, from whence they were immediately forwarded to Kingston. Here they remained for nearly two weeks, mostly in tents, and owing to the intense heat of the season many of them suffering from fever and ague. Mr. Robinson in the meantime had sailed from Liverpool to New York, and proceeded from thence to Toronto by way of Niagara. We mention this as illustrating the round about manner of reaching the capital of Canada from Great Britain in those days, compared with the direct routes and expedition of the present time.

Having procured from the Surveyor General such information as he could, in reference to the lands he was about to settle, he proceeded to Cobourg and thence to Peterborough, or "Scott's Plains" as it was then called, and spent six days in exploring the townships, aided by Mr. (afterwards Colonel) McDonell, whom he describes as "an intelligent and respectable young man well acquainted with the country." In the minutes of his evidence taken before the Emigration Committee in London in 1827, we find the following narrative of subsequent events: "On the 11th of August," said Mr. Robinson, "I embarked five hundred on board of a steam-boat, and landed them the next day at Cobourg on Lake Ontario, a distance of one hundred miles; the remainder of the settlers were brought up in the same manner, the boat making a trip each week. Our route from Cobourg to Smith, at the head of the Otonabee River, lay through a country as yet very thinly inhabited; the road leading from Lake Ontario to Rice Lake (12 miles) hardly passable, and the Otonabee River in many places very rapid, and the water much lower than it had been known for many years. The first thing I did was to repair the road, so that loaded wagons might pass; and in this work I received every assistance from the magistrates of the district, who gave me fifty pounds from the district funds; and this sum, together with the labor of our people, enabled me to improve the road in ten days so much that our provisions and baggage could be sent across with ease, and three large boats were transported on wheels from Lake Ontario to the Rice Lake. The Otonabee River is navigable for twenty-five miles, although in many places it is very rapid, and at this season there was not water enough to float a boat of the ordinary construction over some of the shoals. To remedy this difficulty, I had a boat built of such dimensions as I thought might best answer to ascend the rapids, and had her completed in eight days. So much depended upon the success of this experiment that I felt great anxiety until the trial was made and I cannot express the happiness I felt at finding that nothing could more fully have answered our purposes, and this boat, sixty feet in length and eight feet wide, carrying an immense burden, could be more easily worked up the stream, than one of half the size carrying comparatively nothing. Now that I had opened the way to the depot at the head of the river, there was no other difficulty to surmount, than that which arose from the prevailing sickness, the fever and ague, which at this time was as common among the old settlers as ourselves. The first party I ascended the river with consisted of twenty men of the country hired as axemen, and thirty of the healthiest of the settlers: not one of these men escaped the ague and fever, and two died."

The boat alluded to was flat bottomed, and was propelled by several oars at each side. It would carry between twenty and thirty persons with a large amount of luggage, and, with hard work, the distance from Gore's landing to "Scott's Plains" could be made in a day. The landing place was that before mentioned, just above Spaulding's Bay, and at the spot afterwards used as a steamboat landing.

Banquet Planned For Old Schoolboys

Some days ago the Old Home Week corner printed a reference written by A. J. Johnston, of Dennistoun avenue, mentioning that himself and Jack Brownlee would be the only surviving members of the galaxy of those who attended the old Grammar and Common School, that stood at the corner of Hunter and Sheridan streets, in the long ago, from 1853 to 1860. The building was a deceased church, and had been bought from the Free Methodists, which denomination failed to gather such a congregation as would support the church.

Amongst the staff of the Old Home Week office are those whose recollection and impressions enable them to bring together the names of many who as yet survive. So a list was compiled and the names as listed below, verifying by enjuiry or by letter that all were still above the sod. Others of whom enquiry was made had all passed away, though several more may turn up, presently and get their names in the honor roll. Every man, so listed, is eligible for an old age pension, on the grounds of being over seventy years. Indeed Alex. McNeil has twenty-four years to spare over that age limit, he being now 94 years of age, and living at Barrie, Ont.

Sam Montgomery, living in Toronto.
George W. Hatton, County Crown Attorney.
E. H. D. Hall, barrister, City.
William Menzies, of The Examiner staff.
T. H. Dobbin, gentleman at large.
Fred Stinson, farmer, Monaghan road.
A. J. Johnston, retired.
Gus Sawers, retired.
William Harper, London street.
John Haper, Romaine street.
James Edwards, Lindsay.
J. J. Hartley, Antrim street.
Geo. Hutchinson, Sheridan street.
David Mason, Sherbrooke street.
Alex. McNeil, barrister, son of Alex. McNeil, the auctioneer, sole representative of the profession.
John Brownlee, enthusiast.
Macello Mowry, Charlotte street west.

If these men can be brought together during Old Home Week, it is proposed to have a banquet of the most gorgeous description, with baked meats and confections and a prudent hilarity pervading the assemblage and make the welkin ring, whatever a welkin really is.

(Please, Mr. Dobbin, what about the girls?)

WINDOW BOXES BRIGHTEN CITY

Horticultural Committee for Old Home Week Suggests Good Plan.

(Contributed by Horticultural Committee, Old Home Week)

Have you been digging in your garden yet? The miracle of life is already to be seen. Things are growing. Do you realize that Old Home Week will soon be here?

If you have not yet caught the enthusiasm that everyone should have, just take a look in Grafton's window. There you will see a sample window box with flowers all in bloom.

A similar one can be had from any of the local florists or you can make and plant one yourself.

The horticultural committee of Old Home Week has been making plans for a long time to try to have the old town all dressed up when the company comes. My, what a thrill the old boys and girls will get when they see so many flowers in bloom. We are trying to stress the window box type of decoration this year, so that we can be sure of at least some flowers that will brighten up the home surroundings. The season may be late, but if you plan right now to order your box or get it made, you will make a real contribution to your city.

We feel certain that the residential part of the city will respond to our appeal and we would also suggest that where it is possible for any business place to have a hanging basket or window box, that the flowers will speak their words of welcome to the guests.

You cannot expect the florist to give you a good choice of flowers if you wait until after the 24th of May to place your order. Book your order now, and make sure that you will get the best.

Organizing in Rochester

A letter received from J. E. Kelso, Rochester, N.Y., encloses copy of a missive he has sent out to get together the bunch in his city in an On-to-Peterborough expedition. Mr. Kelso has been supplied with lists of all those who went to his city from the Old Home Town, numbering over two hundred.

Mr. Herbert A. Johnston,
1505 Lake Avenue,
Rochester, N. Y.

My Dear Friend. — A special committee meeting to arrange for "On to Peterborough" for "Old Home Week," will be held at the Power's Hotel, Parlor "A," 8 p.m. Friday, this week.

At this meeting, we will consider some very important points pertaining to the rounding up of the boys and girls, young and old, who formerly lived in Peterborough.

Prompt opening will mean early closing. Hoping we may have you with us.

Remaining, Yours as ever,

R. J. Duncan, R. J. Lynch
J. E. Kelso, Committee.

A letter received from Miss Lucille Lonergab, Detroit, asks that an invitation be mailed to Fred G. Westcott, at 708 Oakland Avenue, Birmingham, Mich., U.S.A., and adds that he is a very old man and a resident of Peterborough in the long ago, and that he was the originator of the name Westcott street in Peterborough, it being called after him.

GREAT POET'S BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

Women's Art Association Presents "Shakespear's Famous Women."

(By Jeanette)

A presentation of "Shakespeare's Famous Women" marked the anniversary of the birthday yesterday of the famous Bard of Avon, when the members of the Dramatic Study Club of the Women's Art Association held their concluding meeting of the season in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening.

The performance was of a type to hold the attention of the audience from the first to the last minute. Mrs. L. J. Pettit, who organized the Dramatic Study Club early in the New Year, has been coaching the members in various aspects of dramatic work and the results last evening were a surprise to the audience, which taxed the big hall to capacity and filled every available seat. Over four hundred people were in attendance.

The many phases of women's lives and manners which formed a portion of the magic of Will Shapespeare and has sent his name echoing down through tradition to live probably as long as the world shall endure, were demonstrated in the acting of the ladies last night, when excerpts from eleven of the famous plays were given. The tragedy of Queen Katherine, the jealousy of Othello, the impassioned love of Juliet, the sorrow of Lady Constance, mother of the ill-fated little Prince Arthur, the fun of Rosalind in the Forest of Arden, baiting her handsome swain, and the broad comedy of the two loves of the portly Flastaff, in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" had their place on the stage.

Settings Most Effective

The settings were appropriate and simple, but very effective. For the smaller scenes, a little background contrived with dark velvet hangings, was just the thing, and for the large scenes, there was a fine interior formed of a room and ceiling loaned by St. John's Church with beautiful tapestry drapes on the walls, many Persian rugs and a draped divan. These were supplied by A. Comstock and Company.

The costumes were surprising in the wealth of detail which made them outstanding in appropriateness and charm. The days when fuss and feathers were correct for men and women alike were well portrayed in the purple velvet and satin doublets and hose and the plumed hats of the masculine characters portrayed, the flowing veils and embroideries, the stiff brocade gowns, the farthingales and ruffs and jewelled stomachers, of the women. Nothing was overlooked, evidently in the presentation of conthis charming production, and the director, Mrs. L. J. Pettit, is to be gratulated heartily on the wonderful success achieved.

The episodes portrayed were so uniformly excellent that it is difficult to mention any outstanding number. Perhaps the Trial scene from "Henry 8th" was the most ambitious portrayal. In this, Mrs. N. D. Seaton starred as the passionate, and wronged queen who protests so vehemently at the injustice done her.

There was a dramatic touch to the scene where the three Weird Sisters assemble to go through their terrific incantations, in the bit from "Macbeth," that made it extremely thrilling and spooky, and the strong humour of Mistress Page and Mistress Ford in the scene from "The Merry Wives of Windsor" gave it an attraction all its own.

Mrs. Pettit welcomed the audience in a few brief words and then the curtains parted for the first scene from "The Tempest," with a pleasing introduction in the sweet, echoing voice of Ariel, the island sprite, singing off stage. Miss Daisy Davidson was splendid in this soft music of the solo, "Come unto these Yellow Sands," which leads Prince Ferdinand to the dwelling of Miranda, on the Enchanted Isle. In the second scene from this play, Miranda and Ferdinand have a dainty love scene. Miss Isabel Connolly made a masterful Prince Ferdinand and Miss Maida Conner a lovely Miranda.

Romeo and Juliet.

A dainty episode from "Romeo and Juliet" came next, the little scene where the old nurse (Miss Viola Fusee) teases her charge in the garden. Taking her part at a late hour, owing to the inability of the scheduled actress to perform, Miss Fusee did wonderfull yand Miss Marguerite Herridge was a very attractive Juliet.

The scene from "Othello" was enacted in wonderfully realistic fashion, when the jealous Moor (Mrs. Gerald McClelland) demands of his wife the return of the handkerchief he has given her. Miss Viola Payton was a beautiful Desdemona in this scene, acting her role in superb style.

A little episode that was charming in its portrayal was the bit from "Henry 5th," giving the lesson in English at the French Court, between the captivating Princess Katherine and Alice, her lady-in-waiting. Madam Sifroy Goulet made a fascinating Princess in this scene, portraying her role in engaging style, and Miss Barbara Foster was her lovely little companion.

Then came the big scene of the evening, the trial of Queen Kather ine, from "Henry 8th," with Mrs. N. D. Seaton as the dramatic and out raged queen, going through her role with majestic dignity and ease, and Mrs. C. H. Edwards as a bored and indifferent King Henry. Other color ful characters were the two scarlet-robed Cardinals, Wolsey and Campius, played respectively by Mrs. J. F. Allan and Mrs. B. Homer Meyers, the black-gowned scribe and court crier, ((Miss Helen Staples and Mrs. W. McKee-Bingham), the gentleman-at-arms, (Miss Linden Hall), the three dark-robed priests, (Mrs. J. Wearing, Mrs. H. W. Morphet and Mrs. C. B. Adair) and the ladies-in-waiting, Mrs. J. A. Morgan, Mrs. Gordon Grahame and Miss F. Hatton.

In the second portion of the program, the opening was a scene from "Twelfth Night" with Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, as the Duke of Illyria, singing in beautiful voice the solo, "If Music bt the Food of Love," companied by the lute player ((Miss Alma Blanchard).

In the second scene from this play, Miss Helen Staples, as the lovely Lady Olivia, receives Ceasario (Viola in page's disguise) as the messenger of her rejected suitor. Both parts were superbly handled in this fascinating bit which illustrates one of Shakespeare's favorite feminine portrayals, that of a woman with beauty and a strong mind—an alluring combination. Mrs. Bingham was splendid in the role of Viola, and Lady Olivia had a pretty maid in Maria (Mrs. Frank Stinson.)

An outstanding portrayal of the evening was the passionate sorrow of Lady Constance, bewailing the loss of her son, Prince Arthur, in the presence of Cardinal Pandulph. This is taken from "King John" and the role of the bereaved mother was taken in wonderfully good dramatic style by Mrs. J. Wearing, whose portrayal was interest-holding in the extreme. Mrs. B. H. Meyers was the Cardinal and was also extremely good in her quiet part.

As Mistress Page and Mistress Ford, in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," enacting the bit where both ladies receive duplicate love letters from the fat and faithless Falstaff, and give their own private and unadulterated opinion of him to each other, and the audience, Mrs. J. F. Allan and Mrs. H. E. Connolly scored a real hit with their audience. They were splendid in the roles of the outraged ladies, and were costumed in appropriate style.

The Weird Sisters.

The first scene, "The Weird Sisters," from "Macbeth," which afforded a sharp contrast to the preceding jolly bit, was quite like its name. Shuffling around an iron cauldron, in which they threw such likeable things as toads taken from beneath cold stones and worms, and the fingers of a strangled babe, with incantations that suited the occasion, were a trio of grey-clad hags whose cackling voices, "like thorns under a pot," and elfin locks added to the uncanny atmosphere of the scene. The same trio of cheerful ladies attended the soliloquy of Lady Macbeth later, when she meditated on the doing of a bloody murder. The three weird sisters were Mrs. D. Carmichael, Mrs. V. S. Foster and Miss Marguerite Herridge, and Mrs. W. McKee-Bingham acted as a messenger in this scene, bringing word from her husband to Lady Macbeth (Mrs. F. Stinson.)

Another sharp contrast, very effectively arranged, was in the charming love scene, from "As You Like It," in which Rosalind, disguised as a page, encounters her lover, Orlando, in the Forest of Arden, and twits the luckless swain to her heart's content. Another aspect of the famous Bard, that of endowing his women with a quick and mirthful tongue, is apparent in this captivating episode, which was so satisfactorily enacted by two bright young ladies, Miss Elizabeth Armitage, as the merry Rosalind and Miss Isabel Connolly as her handsome lover, Orlando.

Moonlight at Belmont

As a picturesque introduction to the final scene, in two episodes from "The Merchant of Venice," an exquisite contralto duett is sung by Mrs. McKee Bingham (Jessica) and Miss Alma Blanchard (Lorenzo) meeting by moonlight at Belmont.

The return of Portia and Nerissa from Venice, which closes this part, is a pretty brief bit in which Miss Shirley Pettit and Miss Isabel Cragg have two splendidly-enacted roles.

The finale was a tableau of the entire cast on the stage, when flowers were presented to Mrs. L. J. Pettit, director, and Mrs. W. McKee-Bingham, who assisted with the presentation and had charge of the musical program.

Mrs. Pettit's flowers, in commemoration of her work and also of the fact that her birthday, like Shakespeare's, occurred yesterday, took the form of an old English garden of flowers, in a lovely basket.

Throughout the entire performance, a noticeable and attractive attribute was the absence of self-consciousness and a very enthusiastic entering into the part portrayed. Softness of voice and gracefulness in carriage were also emphasized in the feminine parts portrayed.

Assisting with the production, off stage, were the musicians of the evening, Miss Constance Lewis playing the piano, and Miss Dorothy Fine, the violin.

The very attractive and rich stage arrangement was the work of Mrs. G. S. Cameron and Miss Maud Rush.

464,590 TROUT HAVE BEEN DISTRIBUTED

Department Since April 1 Has Placed Young Trout in Streams.

TORONTO, Ont., April 24 (Canadian Press). — Since April 1 last the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries has distributed to various lakes and streams throughout the province no fewer than 346,650 speckled trout one-inch fingerlings, 5,740 three-inch, 108,000 four-inch, and 2,100 yearling speckled trout from the Mount Pleasant and Normandale Hatcheries.

In addition, 2,100 adult trout (parent fish) have been put out. The planting locations have been chosen with extreme care, and according to the size of the fingerlings distributed.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS.

The office worker, the farmer and the mechanic are all liable to suffer from derangements of the kidneys. Backaches and headaches are one of the many symptoms, others suffer from high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries sets in. In order to check these alarming and sometimes fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are now recognized by the Doctors and Druggists as one of the most reliable kidney preparations on the market. They will correct acidity of the urine and by keeping the kidneys in a healthy condition they will remove the poison that remains in the blood, which is the cause of a great many rheumatic ailments. The numerous testimonials from individuals who have derived benefit from the use of these tablets, speak for themselves.

These pills are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store and have no hesitation in asking your druggist about the merits of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills.

ASSOCIATION HOLDS MEETING

Routine Business Discussed By Members of Omemee Church Society.

DISTRICT NEWS.

OMEMEE, April 24.—The Women's Association of Trinity United church met in the basement for the regular meeting on Thursday evening. Mrs. W. Henderson presided. Following the opening exercises reports were given by the secretary and treasurer and correspondence was read. Several matters of business were then discussed and settled. The committee previously appointed to look after the alterations to the water system in the parsonage were authorized to see about the same immediately. The church blackboard has been re-lettered and replaced on the church lawn and presents a satisfactory appearance. The decoration of the basement was discussed at length but was left over until the May meeting. It was decided to extend an invitation to the Presbytery to meet in Omemee next fall, through the pastor, Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, at the May meeting which is being held in Greenbank. The association will be responsible for the meals provided.

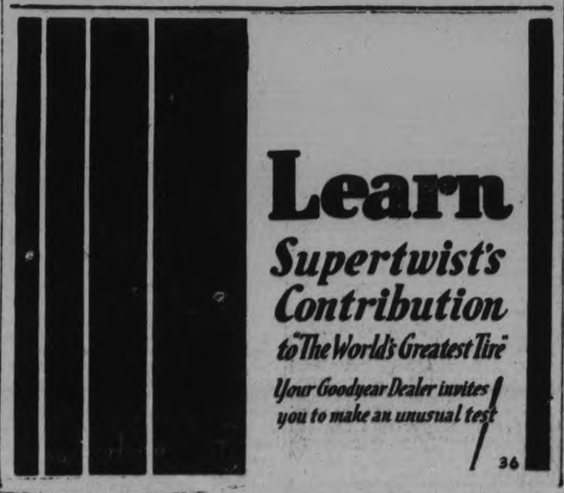
Practically all highways leading south from the City of Rochester were under water, and the basements of many buildings in the heart of the city were flooded.

There are about 135 doctors for every 100,0000 persons in this country.



MANY MATTERS ARE DISCUSSED

Proposed Change in D.S.C.R. Representative Discussed By Campbellford Legion.

INITIATION CEREMONY.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Several matters of importance to the local branch of the Canadian Legion were discussed and settled at the executive meeting held Monday night in the armouries. There will be an initiation ceremony brought into use as soon as the necessary apparatus can be obtained. Another item of business was the proposed change in the local representative of the D.S.C.R. The account of a medical doctor was recommended for payment with the exception of one item. This will be brought in at the next regular meeting. The members present at the executive meeting were Comrades Bygott, Free, Watters, Armstrong, Dutton, Johnston, Smith, Ironside and McEachern.

The first matter to be discussed was the change in the local doctor to attend to matters connected with the D.S.C.R. For some time past, Dr. Brintnell has been looking after this work, but it was understood that he had resigned, but had heard nothing from the board about his resignation. The secretary was instructed to write to the board and the Provincial command secretary and ask if the resignation had been submitted. If it had been the executive of the local branch were in favor of Dr. Johnston himself, a member of the Legion here, being appointed to the position.

The account submitted by a medical doctor of the town and which had been mislaid for some time was brought up for discussion. The Legion admitted having authorized all the items with the exception of the one for twenty-five dollars. This item was thoroughly discussed and finally the bill was recommended for payment with the twenty-five dollars excluded from it.

At the last regular meeting of the Legion, Comrade Ironside presented an initiation ceremony which was suggested by the Baron Byng branch in Toronto. At the meeting the formula was discussed as some length and finally left in the hands of the executive. Monday night the executive decided to accept it temporarily. The vote was not unanimous. The first motion was to lay it aside till after the Dominion Convention to be held in Regina in November when it is expected that some initiation procedure will be decided upon. An amendment to the motion to the effect that the ceremony be adopted by the Campbellford branch and that it be altered to coincide with whatever the Dominion command decided upon, was carried by a small majority.

MISSION BAND HOLDS CONCERT

Interesting Program Presented By Members of Lakefield Church Society.

MUSICAL NUMBERS.

LAKEFIELD, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence)—An interesting and instructive entertainment was given on Monday evening under the auspices of the Mission Band of Regent Street United Church under the direction of Mrs. Leslie Harrison and Mrs. Theodore Nicholls. Rev. S. A. Kemp acted as chairman for the evening and at the close gave a short address, expressing his pleasure at the success of the affair and his sympathy in the work of interesting young children in the great cause of missions. The following is the program:

Opening chorus, Members of the Mission Band; reading, "Goldilocks and the Three Bears", Phyllis Webster; piano solo, Robert Spence; exercise, "Ten Little Light Bearers." Edna Robinson, Miriam Brown, Isabelle Brown, Phyllis Webster, Grace Ward, Isabelle Millage, Marjorie Ward, Doris Chittick, Leona Murphy, Alvilda Pearson, Betty Brown; recitation, Donald Harrison; solo, Donald Milburne; solo, Miss Winnifred Payne; reading, Vivian Hendren; chorus, "We're Bound to Take Angola for Jesus."

Following this an interesting lecture on mission work in Africa was given by Mrs. Leslie Harrison with lantern slides which added to the interest. The African Mission in Angola is of special interest to the Regent street people as a member of the congregation, Rev. R. B. Harrison, with his wife, is engaged in the work there. Ronald Kemp efficiently managed the lantern. The proceeds of the lecture from a silver collection amounted to about fourteen dollars.

To Present Play.

The C.G.I.T. group of Regent street United church is giving a play in the Town Hall on May 3 The play is entitled "The Path Across the Hills" and promises to be excellent. This is the third annual dramatic effort of the group and each one has been more successful than its predecessors. Two years ago a school girl play, "'Neath the Sceptre of Susan" was given and last year "The Daughter of the Desert", a western comedy drama was put on.

To Hold Dance.

The Agricultural Society is putting on an Old Time Dance on Friday evening, April 26, and it promises to be a popular and unique function. The program includes dances, round and square, which were popular some years ago when young people did not need to be bribed with prizes to make them enjoy a dance. The old time waltz, Scottische, barn dance, two step and rye waltz figure on the program.

Entertain At Bridge.

Mrs. J. H. Sherin entertained at six tables of bridge at her home on Regent street on Tuesday afternoon. The reception rooms were decorated with spring flowers, a bowl of which also centered the table in the tea-room. Prizes were won by Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs. Renwick, and Mrs. Kelsey.

Mrs. G. G. Connell entertained at four tables of bridge on Friday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Reid, of Hamilton. Prizes were won by Mrs. J. H. Sherin and Mrs. H. E. Moore.

Dance Very Successful

A very successful dance was held in the Town Hall on Friday evening under the auspices of the Northern Light, L.O.B.A. No. 381. There were more than two hundred and fifty present and a very pleasant evening was spent. A large number were present from Peterborough, Buckhorn, Bridgenorth, Young's Point, Warsaw and Aspley and South Burleigh. Excellent music was provided b the North Smith orchestra.

Henry L. GOOD CONSTRUCTION IN NEW CHASSIS

Frame of New Knight Engined Cars is Advanced Type of Construction.

A distinct advance in engineering construction is seen in the chassis of the new line of Willys-Knight Six models, now being exhibited by all Willys-Overland merchants.

The frame of the new line of Knight engined sixes, showing such a marked improvement over the design of any other frame in the new Willys-Knight Six price class is worthy of special consideration, which should be of interest to engineers and motor car owners alike.

In these new models the frames are of extra heavy stock. The connection between the front and rear cross members and side rails forming a box section which is accomplished through widening and turning down the lower horizontal flange of the side member and carrying down and riveting to the projected lower flange that part of the cross-member which is additionally riveted to the upper flange.

A further improvement over past engineering practice is the addition of a tube which is welded into the cross-member, thus giving additional rigidity and providing sturdy support for a trunk rack.

Engineers point out that the very nature of the construction of this new Willys-Knight Six frame provides marked rigidity both fore and aft which is an important factor in producing increased comfort riding over rough roads and at the same time gives increased stability.

These facts, coupled with the flexible springing, Tryon shackles and Watson rubber flow stabilators bring to the new Willys-Knight Six a degree of riding comfort that one usually associates only with motor cars that sell many hundreds of dollars higher.

1,100 REBELS WERE KILLED

News Is Expected Hourly of Last Big Clash in Mexican War.

ADVANCE CAUTIOUSLY.

MEXICO CITY, April 24 (Canadian Press). — News was expected hourly to-day of initial clashes near Masiaca, Sonora, between the principal rebel army entrenched there and advancing rebel forces of General Plutarco Elias Calles.

Last reports from General Talamantes, commanding 2,000 Federal cavalry several miles in front of the infantry and the main army, said he had advanced cautiously as far as Luis, 12 miles south of Masiaca, but had found no enemy.

The Government made public statistics which is said were complete on the massacre at La Forma. They showed 1,100 rebels killed and 2,000 made prisoners in three days' fighting. Sixty-one Federals were killed and 312 wounded. A Federal army of 8,600 men was engaged, the report said, with a rebel army of more than 8,000 men.

More than a half million foreign birds weer imported during 1928 a figure never before attained, according to the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture.

SOCIAL EVENING.

Members of Springville-Fairmont Literary Society Enjoy Jolly Affair. .

SPRINGVILLE, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A delightful social evening was enjoyed by the young people of the Springville-Fairmount Literary Society, who gathered in the basement of Springville United Church on Friday evening. Numerous games, contests and carpet bowling comprised the evening's sport at the close of which refreshments were served.

An interesting announcement was made stating that on Friday evening, May 3, a concert will be given by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, contralto soloist, and Miss Helen McKenzie Ross, elocutionist. The Wedding Feast from Hiawatha (in costume) which won high favour at the Male Voice Choir concert will be one of the numbers given by Miss Ross. Miss Constance Lewis will be the accompanist of the evening.

With this excellent program the Literary Society will bring to a close another successful and interesting winter season. A large crowd is expected at this, the final meeting of the year.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:—

You have had so many things in "Whatnot" that are especially interesting to me. Some of the letters have touched me, or perhaps I have read or heard something which seemed to touch a vital spot in our home life.

Does it not seem that the mothers are to blame for such numbers of forced marriages, and for much of the terrible finding of infant's bodies? If mothers will allow, encourage their teen age girls, and in some cases they are barely in their teens to have boy-friends, so called, and allow them out driving, to parties, and every sort of entertainmen, out until all hours at night, it would seem that the mothers themselves are forcing a big risk.

Young things must have company. God put boys and girls into families, God made them love life and pleasure, it would therefore seem nothing but right indeed, needful and good they have it—but let the parents take the responsibility. The fun will be as great, the training better, the danger less.

A few days ago I was buying a certain article, but had to limit the price. The saleswoman was very nice, but we were really enjoying ourselves, when she mode the remark: "There is just one thing that would ever induce me to marry any man, that is that he would have lots of money and I would never have to consider expense." I did not tell what I thing, but it would be a mighty poor bargain. Half the fun and zest would be out of life, and a lot of selfish jealousy come in.

One of the correspondents, I think it was Adasias, whom I admire greatly, spoke of Aton Beau Adhem. Do you wholly admire the teaching? I do not. It is a great deal, but I doubt the truth. Certain sects seem to teach it and they are necessarily very charming people. One, who had been brought up that way, asked me if I knew much about the particular sect to which he belonged. When I told him I did not, but admired the people whom I had met very much, his reply was: "Do not try to, the less you know of them the better."

Ella May has some questions about farmers which do not seem to apply any more to farmers than to any one else. Why should any one keep books? The accounts are not kept track of in some way not many of us would very long know where we stand. Many do not, in town or country, and many go to the wall. It may not necessarily be set down in books, but it must be some sort of knowing where we stand.

Many farmers do, and many more will set their own prices, at the selling value of their product. As quality of produce rises, the producer will have to get his price, for he cannot produce the best quality without remuneration. I notice often buyers prefer to buy a cheaper grade than give the higer price for a better quality. The country will be better off when producers aim and bend every effort, to produce the best, and buyers wish to buy only a good quality—or none. I do not mean a fancy brand but a good grade. There is a difference.

As for milking: it is not now so generally considered women's work, but if it be necessary a farm women should be able to help. Many farm women, if need be, can turn their hand to almost any farm work. Many farmers, if need be, make excellent nurses and house-helpers, and that is as it should be.

Should not any man or any woman be well enough acquainted with the other work—the other partner's work, to fill a breach for a time if necessary. Many a woman, in times of stress, in both urban and rural districts, has done her husband's and perhaps other work and done it well, and so saved a situation. It almost seems as though women are a bit better at it than men. There are hired men and hired men, and if a man must be boarded in the home, there should be a little discrimination made in getting one, whether or not there are babies. Despite much being said to the contrary, a good man can always be gotten, probably not on a day's notice.

Electricty and many other conveniences are coming and before long it will be greatly a woman's fault if she has too much to do. I would not wish being a farmer or any other business profession or trade to influence my daughter in her choice of a husband.

Is it not delightful to sit on a step—it is nicer than a chair, and prepare vegetables, fruit, or anything else? There are the blue sky, the sun, the trees, the birds, the fields the whole beautiful, wonderful, restful outdoors to see and listen to. In the country not necessarily the back porch, but whichever one is most pleasant at the time one wishes to go there. A friendly screen of trees, shrubs or vines, may shelter one from passers-by or the friendly wave of the hand, may hearten one, when the mending basket is too full.

One hardly can remain blue if one takes oneself and one's mind out of doors, even in the city. I fail to see why women may not at least sit on their back porches at their work. Why mind even an unknown next door neighbor, perhaps she is waiting to see some one on a porch. God made the sun, the blue sky the white clouds, the trees, the birds, the myriads of insects whose hum fills the air—mosquitoes are not always near, and may be prevented — He made the grass and other things grow in the earth, he grass He gave to make into plots or fields. Let us absorb every bit of it we can into our lives, then can we better able to choose the Higher Way for our souls to go.

Sincerely yours,

Quid Est."

Thank you very much, "Quid Est" for your splendid letter, which is awfully interesting. I hope you don't stay away so long next time!

* * *

Dear Marion:—

I intended to come again before this to thank you for the helps I received and tell you how much I like your page, but I have been ill in bed for two weeks with mustard plasters. I was sorry to be sick on Good Friday and Easter Sunday as I had planned on Hot Cross Buns and Sally Lunn. However, I am up around again and thankful I escaped pneumonia. You would have been amused Marion if you could have seen my husband sometimes, with cooking, nursing, and looking after our little girl. He thought he was a busy man. Oh yes, and he did the washing too.

The helps you sent are fine. The trimming for little girls' dress looks real cute when finished, and so simple and easily made.

I am also sending you a few of my recipes which I hope some neighbor will like.

Here is my Potato Biscuit which we like better than the fried ones. Boil six white potatoes until tender, mash them and when cool add one cupful of milk and enough flour to roll out. Add two teaspoonfuls of baking powder just before adding the flour and cut into small biscuits. Bake in a quick oven twenty minutes.

To clean a stove: Dissolve one handful of salt in a point of vinegar and wash the stove with this solution. Wipe dry with a flannel cloth and put a few drops of turpentine in the blackening. This will put the rustiest stove in good condition.

Egg Eating: To cure hens of the habit of eating eggs, take enough bran and cornmeal of equal parts for one feeding and enough vinegar warmed to make the meal wet enough for the hens to eat. Mix together and feed to them.

Here is another hint for housecleaning time: When oilcloth has been down a few months and is losing the shiny surface, it can be renewed easily and made to last twice as long if treated in the following way: Melt a little ordinary glue in a pint of water, letting it stand on the top of the oven until dissolved. Wash the oilcloth thoroughly and let it dry. Then at night, when the traffic of the day ceases, go over the whole carefully with a flannel dipped in the glue water, choose a fine day for this and by morning the glue will be hard and will have put a fine gloss as good as new on your oilcloth.

Carrie Lucinda."

Thank you, "Carrie Lucinda" for your recipes and hints—and your nice letter. I'm glad that your illness didn't turn out as serious as might have been.

Ask Your Neighbors

"I was all run-down, tired all the time and could not do my housework. My eyes were dull, my tongue was coated and I did not want to eat. A neighbor told mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it and now I am hungry all the time. I sleep well, my nerves are good and I have told lots of friends how the Vegetable Compound has helped me. I have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I feel lots better. I will be glad to answer any letters."—Mrs. H. E. Winters, 827 S. Willow St., Faribault, Minnesota.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

For motor or travel this brown tweed coat is convenient and decidedly smart. It is lined with red and beige, and is worn with a two-piece frock of zephyr in beige with brown and red border. A red felt skull cap and a red bag go with it.

Younger women—and older women who have kept pace with the new tendencies in dress—like to consider their clothes in terms of entire outfits. And they have learned that this is possible and practical with a small wardrobe as well as with a large one.

It is a great convenience—and a saving of time—to be able to feel that when you dress, let us say, for a morning in the garden you have a frock, shoes, stockings, etc., that are entirely suited for the occasion. You don't wear a pair of old street shoes and stockings with a mended run—but an inexpensive pair of broad-heeled sports oxfords and a pair of appropriate lisle stockings. And to protect your hands when you putter in your garden beds you don't wear a discarded pair of kid gloves but a cheap pair of cotton work gloves bought specially for the purpose.

Miscellaneous accessories that may be worn with this or that are not tolerated by the young woman who realizes the importance of ensemble at all times. Arranging one's clothes and accessories in special outfits of this sort may mean spending more time in planning and buying but it surely makes for saving of time in the long run.

For travel and motor there should be a well-planned ensemble—every detail of which should be chosen from the point of view of comfort and smartness "en voyage." Navy blue or black should be taboo for such ensembles—beige or light brown that makes light of dust are so much better. Materials chosen should be of the sort that do not show creases readily. When you have learned how to choose clothes and accessories for all occasions and to wear them with an air of casualness and good taste then you have gone far in the fine art of well dressing.
